A PHILOSOPHICAL CANDIDATE.

Someone placed a candidate card on the desk of the editor a few days ago. On one side it bore the picture and announcement of the candidacy of John Hornsby for state senator, who is running in another district and it is difficult to understand how the card reached here. But, anyway, on the other side appeared some golden thoughts and we saved the card. Had we a vote in Mr. Hornsby's district, we would have been strongly impelled to vote for him because his name suggests that he is related to the immortal Rogers Hornsby, the greatest player in the National league, and because of the philosophy on the back of the card:

Mon Talisman, Heaviest Winner in France, Passed Up By Many Experts.

By RALPH HEINZEN. Press Staff Correspondent. PARIS, July 28.—The heaviest winner of the French turf this season, Mon Talisman, the marvel horse belonging to the Argentine millionaire, Martinez de Doz, had, as a colt, such thin legs that one trainer after another declared they would snap into pieces if the horse was ever made to run.
