They are wanted at Galveston's beach on August 5 to help celebrate "Smith Day" which is expected to be about the biggest and most unique event staged down that way in many years.

The Galveston Beach Association and Chamber of Commerce are behind the project and an elaborate entertainment program is being completed. Governor Smith has been invited to attend and Hugh Reilly, secretary of the New York State Democratic Committee has assured Willett L. The Chamber of Commerce has ordered several thousand melons and white coated, smiling darkeys will carve and serve them on the beach front.

Railway Car Runs Off Drawbridge To Plunge Into Bay

By United Press. NEW YORK, July 21.—Nine persons were injured today when the smoking car of a Long Island commutation train ran off the end of an open drawbridge at Ham-mell's, Long Island, and plunged into Jamaica Bay.

The 15 occupants of the car escaped, many by breaking windows and swimming to a tug, the "dynamic" for which the drawbridge had been opened.

Low tide, which kept the car from being submerged completely, prevented what might have been a disaster of major proportions. The smoking car sank several feet in the mud but most of it remained above water. Firemen ripped off the roof and ascertained that none of the passengers had been trapped.

GOLFERS READY FOR SPECIAL TOURNAMENT

It Is Organized By Weaver and Lewis and Will Be Played Here Next Saturday and Sunday.

Eastland golfers are looking forward to the golf tournament which is to be played next Saturday and Sunday on the grounds of the Eastland Golf and Country Club. It is being arranged by Joseph M. Weaver, president of the club, and J. E. Lewis, who are giving the prizes and will designate who shall play in each flight. It is understood that a gross of golf balls will be given as prizes.

Just because they are the patron saints of the tournament, Mr. Weaver and Mr. Lewis do not propose to be left out of the play, and they are to be eligible for prizes just as are any other contestants.

Mr. Weaver did not participate in the Fourth of July tournament but he has elected to play in the senior flight (designated by some of the disrespeful youngsters as the old men's flight) next Saturday. This flight was won on July 4th by A. H. Johnson.

Mr. Lewis played in the senior flight in the Independence Day tournament, but was eliminated before he reached the semi-finals. He has elected to play in the coming tournament in the fourth flight, which was won on the Fourth by H. H. Porter. Others playing that flight were: C. A. Hertz, E. Blinn, W. B. Tate, W. Cantrell and J. Gerard.

Some two-score golfers are ready to enter the tournament and to play in the flights to which they are assigned. It promises to be an interesting contest and it is possible some new records will be made, for the golfers have been improving wonderfully in their play since Dan Garrett moved from Houston to Eastland and walked away with the championship cup.

The golf tournament in Ranger started Saturday and will be concluded today. A number of Eastland golfers are competing in it.

Kirby, now a legislator, will start state organization when he receives instructions from Lehman. The appointment was the first party organization move made in Texas since the convention here in June nominated Governor Al Smith for the presidency.

Kirby today made final plans for a Democratic rally planned for Tuesday night at the City auditorium. He said the rally was to be a meeting where Democrats would renew their allegiance to the party and its nominee.

Grisham Lauds Wealth of Natural Resources In Seventeenth District He Seeks To Represent In Congress

By United Press. ANSON, July 21.—"The 17th Congressional district is an empire of wonderfully varied activities and resources and, if a wall were constructed around it, this district could produce almost everything that is needed for the enjoyment of life," eloquently declared Judge R. N. Grisham of Eastland in a speech in behalf of his candidacy for Congress.

"Granite as beautiful as can be found in the quarries of ancient Athens itself is produced in Burnet and Llano counties, and hundreds of carloads of this imperishable material is shipped annually to all parts of the United States. The magnificent capitol of Texas was built of this granite.

"Did you know that Burnet county has a graphite mine and a copper mine that are being worked—that 300 carloads of cedar are shipped out annually from that remarkable county and that the production of furs is valued at $39,000 or more? In Llano county, there are gold, lead and iron ore, and silver and marble are found in the Llano-Burnet area.

"San Saba is famous as the pecan center of the world. Pearl-hunting is carried on each summer in the San Saba river, and tradition says that the renowned Bismarck pearl—now in the crown jewels of Prussia—was found in the Llano river, 35 miles from San Saba.

"Lampasas, the city of stone buildings, is noted for the diversity of its farm products, its ranches and its beauties as a vacation spot. Brady, in McCulloch county, ranks as perhaps the greatest turkey-producing center of the United States. Mills county is famous for its honey, and Goldthwaite, the equity capital, possesses the only weekly newspaper in the United States owning a broadcasting station.

"Some of the greatest oil fields in the State are in the 17th district. Brown is the leading county of Texas in the number of drilling wells. Coleman is not far behind. And both counties are blessed with wonderfully fertile farms. Callahan is famed for shallow oil and for fruits; Eastland for oil and as the egg basket of Texas." Stephens, in addition to its oil, leads the counties of the nation in the production of natural gasoline. Jones and Runnels counties rank among the highest cotton-producing counties of the en-

LONE BANDIT MAKES RAID IN SAN ANTONIO

Escapes With $4,250. Bandits Make Successful Holdups In Racine and New York.

By United Press. SAN ANTONIO, July 21.—A neatly dressed young man boarded the pay-roll car of the American Building company at a downtown street intersection here today, held up the two occupants and escaped with the $4,250 weekly payroll of the company.

The bandit knocked A. F. Hubbard, one of the occupants of the pay car, unconscious with a blow from his pistol. He forced John W. Lawrence, driver of the car, to turn into a side street where he ordered both men out of the car.

The bandit drove away in the paycar after ordering Lawrence to remove his trousers so he could not give pursuit. The bandit drove away before Lawrence had time to comply with the demand. Although the intersection where the bandit boarded the car was filled with pedestrians and cars, none saw the bandit as he deftly stepped on the running board and struck Hubbard.

By United Press. RACINE, Wis., July 21.—Bandits held up the Harvey Spring company offices here early today and escaped with a $6,000 payroll.

By United Press. NEW YORK, July 21.—Bandits escaped with a $4,600 payroll of the Bosch Magneto company in Long Island city today after holding up the cashier of the concern.

FRANKIE YALE AND DR. NOGUCHI.

Frankie Yale, murdered gang leader, was buried in Brooklyn the other day with a $50,000 funeral. Money was spent lavishly to give his precious plug-ugly an imposing send-off; obviously the various illicit pursuits of Yale and his toughmen were highly lucrative. A day or so after this great funeral there was an oddly-contrasting little item in the papers—a dispatch from New York revealing that Dr. Hideyo Noguchi, the Japanese scientist who lost his life in Africa a few weeks ago fighting yellow fever, had left an estate of just $12,000. On this money his widow must live for the rest of her life.

Set those two stories side by side—the story of Frankie Yale's $50,000 funeral and the story of Dr. Noguchi's $12,000 estate—and see what sort of comment you are moved to make about our civilization.

Yale was a "bad man"—a thoroughly harmful citizen, who stayed out of jail only because of the inefficiency of our system of detecting and punishing crime.

Dr. Noguchi was one of this country's greatest benefactors. He gave his life in an effort to free a continent from a deadly scourge. Few men in modern times have served the world much better.

Yet the bad man, who preyed on society, died rich; and the scientist died poor, in comparison.

One of the so-called "intellectual" writers the other day, discussing Bernard Shaw's proposal to equalize incomes, declared with great heat that it is a silly idea. In the long run, he said, society pays every man exactly what that man is worth to society. To support his argument he pointed out that Shaw himself gets a very large income, for the simple reason that Shaw is a very talented writer and as such is worth much to society.

The twin incidents of Frankie Yale's funeral and Dr. Noguchi's estate show the falsity of that writer's claim. Society does not always pay every man exactly what he is worth. Far from it. If it did Frankie Yale would have died in debt and Dr. Noguchi would have been many times a millionaire.

That, of course, is not to say that Shaw's equality-of-income idea is the solution. Indeed, it will take many years of thought and discussion to find out just what the solution is.

IN DEBT.

Fred C. Smith, 47, was released from the Michigan state prison the other day after serving six years. He had been sent to prison after he had been identified as a convict who had escaped while serving a long term.

Now he is a free man. For it has just been learned that the identification was a mistake. He was not the man the Michigan authorities were after six years ago when they locked him up. So, doubtless with apologies, they have turned him loose. Smith now has a job with the Ford Motor company.

Probably he's very happy to get out. But who is going to repay him for those six years he spent in prison? The state of Michigan took away six years of his life by mistake. It would almost seem as if the state owed him a little something.

Mr. Kroy is a young man with a promising future, and is a forceful and interesting speaker. All members and friends of the church are cordially invited to hear him. It is true that the weather is warm, but we manage to go to our places of business or anywhere else we want to, why neglect our church services. We ask and receive blessings in warm weather as well as another time. Come, worship God in His sanctuary. Let your reply be made to Him. The choir has arranged special music.

Catholic Church

St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church—Mass at 10 a. m. This is the eighth Sunday after Pentecost.

The Gospel is taken from St. Luke 16:1-9. In this gospel we have the parable of the rich man who demanded an account from his steward. What is narrated here did not actually occur, for a parable is "a short fictitious narrative of something which might occur, by means of which a moral death, judgment, giving an account of our stewardship, God expects us to use to the best of our ability the facilities we have and some day, without any formal warning, He will ask us to give an account of how we have used or abused the many favors and gifts He has bestowed upon us. We cannot hide anything from God. Neither can we deceive Him. The account we render will decide not for time but for all the endless ages of eternity whether we shall be happy or miserable. If we have cursed, lied, stole, cheated or aided in any way in the commission of crime against God or men we will be punished by a just God. God is merciful and "His tender mercies are over all his works," but with death the mercy of God ceases and his justice begins. We may deceive our neighbors, ourselves, but not God. Let us think it over.

Rev. M. Collins, Acting Pastor.

Abundant pasture of a sort that is tender and remains green for a long period is the most economical basis for the raising of geese. A stream or pond, or even tanks of water may serve for the aquatic needs of the birds, and shelter may be reduced to a minimum. In the South none is required and in the North a simple shed open to the south is sufficient. Geese can be raised successfully and profitably in all parts of the United States, but are more abundant in the Middle West and the South. In 1920 Illinois, with nearly 200,000 geese, closely followed by Missouri, Arkansas, and Iowa led in production of geese. Kentucky, Tennessee, Minnesota, North Carolina, and Texas followed, but this group of States was much behind the four leaders.

"Geese subsist largely on grass during the growing season and are the closest of grazers," says Alfred R. Lee, author of "Farmers' Bulletin 767-F, "Goose Raising," just published in a revised edition by the United States Department of Agriculture. Geese grow to much heavier weights than chickens, but the price per pound on the market is usually several cents less than for chickens. Some of the geese are sold from the farms to specialists in the fattening of the birds, and then go to market, largely in the cities where foreign population creates a demand. The bulletin describes the principal breeds of geese found in the an acre as an average. In the South some cotton growers keep geese for the sake of their aid in keeping down weeds in cotton fields.

Many Loan Funds To Help Students at the University

AUSTIN, July 19.—In addition to numerous scholarships and fellowships available to help deserving University of Texas students through school, there are 22 loan funds from which amounts from $50 to $300 may be borrowed by worthy students for periods of time extending until graduation or several years after graduation, most of them to be repaid with interest.

Founded in memory of George W. Allen, of the law class of 1871, the George W. Allen memorial fund affords annually a loan of $200 for five years to some young man or woman from Jones county.

In memory of their son, Carl Stone Benedict, a student in the university during the year 1917-18 and a midshipman at Annapolis at the time of his death, President and Mrs. H. Y. Benedict established the Carl Stone Benedict scholarship and loan fund, available to male students of the college of arts and sciences, preference being given to sophomores.

With a view to aiding women students who need financial assistance, George Brackenridge of San Antonio established a fund from which loans may be made to six girls in the department of architecture, five in the school of law and nine in the school of medicine.

In memory of Lester Gladstone Bugbee of the class of 1892, former adjunct professor of history, a fund which now amounts to more than $1,000 is accumulating and is being lent to needy students.

The Chimes loan fund comes from a fund originally established by the class of 1913 for the purchase of chimes. Additions to the fund were made by the classes of 1914, 1915, 1916 and 1918. The money is now being used as a loan fund, pending the purchase of chimes.

Mrs. Charles A. Culbertson, in 1927, left $10,000 by will as an investment, the interest of which is to establish a loan fund for needy young men law students.

The James Archibald Edmund loan fund was established by Miss Belle Edmund of Waco, in memory of her nephew, a university graduate. Preference is shown to young men who have shown special attainment in the social sciences.

Students of the college of engineering has established a loan fund for worthy upperclass engineers who have previously donated their library deposit to this fund.

Established in memory of John H. Houghton, the John H. Houghton memorial fund affords a loan of $300 for five years to some young man or woman residing in Jim Hogg county.

Mrs. John D. Kane of Fort Worth has established the Bothwell Bierce Kane loan scholarship in memory of her son, a student in the university from 1912 to 1915, killed in action Aug. 12, 1918. The beneficiaries must be candidates for the ministry in any recognized Christian denomination, candidates for home or foreign missionary work or students preparing to become Young Men's or Young Women's Christian association secretaries. Loans are for five years.

The Morris Lasker scholarship loan fund was established by the children of Morris Lasker of Galveston. The interest on a fund of $10,000 is available for students of the Jewish faith who have had one year of resident work in any college or university of Texas.

Students of the university law school established the Law Student loan fund in 1911-1912 to assist middle and senior law students in financial difficulties.

The Charles Durand Oldright loan fund comes from the excess income of the Charles Durand Oldright fellowship, established by Mrs. Julia I. Oldright of Austin. It is available for upperclassmen.

The Reagan literary society of the university has established a loan fund to aid capable women students, granting loans of not more than $50 to any one student.

E. M. Scarborough of Austin, in 1926, bequeathed to the university the sum of $10,000, the interest to be used as a student loan fund.

A students' revolving loan fund has been established to aid Master Masons or dependents of Master Masons by the Scottish Rite Masons of Texas. Loans are made not in excess of $250.

The Sidney Lanier society of the university has a loan fund accumulated from donations by alumni of the society, from the payment of $1 yearly by each active member, and from the proceeds of entertainments given by the society, which it uses to aid women students of worth.

A students' association loan fund was established from the proceeds of the varsity circus of the 1925-26, amounting to $1,200.

As a memorial to those university students who gave their lives in the world war, the Ex-Students' association has established the Students' memorial loan fund. The maximum amount loaned to any one student will not exceed $250.

In memory of her sister, Gertrude Swearingen, the late Mrs. Helen Marr Kirby established the Gertrude Swearingen loan fund. The beneficiary must be a freshman girl, of intellectual promise and moral worth. The maximum income from the scholarship is $250.

In 1921, the Texas Bar association gave to the university school of law some $3,000 to be used as a loan fund. Not more than $200 may be loaned to any one student.

The Cullen F. Thomas loan fund is a small emergency fund provided by Cullen F. Thomas of Dallas and administered by the Ex-Students' association, from which small sums are to be lent to students who would not regularly come under the provision of the Students' memorial fund.

Carob Beans Are Being Given Trial Now In California

Carob-beans, sometimes called St. John's bread, are said to constitute the main food ration of one-twentieth of the world's population. The carob is quite familiar throughout the old world, where it has saved whole tribes and races from starvation and has been utilized as the basic ration for armies. It has just been introduced in California. It needs no irrigating, fumigating, fertilizing, nor pruning. If it is once properly planted it will take care of itself, and prefers to do so.

THE CONTEST ENDS

The race for the merry-go-round is ended. It was a sensational affair. There few contests, even state or national that has attracted more interest, comparatively, than this one.

Just like the present political situation, every candidate is out doing his utmost to win. Yet he realizes his contesting opponents may take a landslide victory. We are thankful however, that congeniality reigned throughout the entire campaign. Everybody enjoyed the efforts put forth in assisting those whom they chose as their favorite, and in behalf of all contestants whether they won or lost.

WE THANK YOU—Nemir's Dry Goods Store.

When a Girl Loves

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Virginia Brewster is in love with an artist, Nathaniel Dann, but she is tricked into romancing a man named Frederick Dean.

She pawns some of her jewelry and Oliver Cutter promises to invest the money for her.

Oliver gains her confidence and shows her attentions which Niel resents, but then she does not like the familiarity with which his model, Chiri, treats him.

Virginia is lucky enough to obtain a position which she likes. In the early autumn she is amazed when charged by Cutter's wife with trying to alienate his affections.

She appeals to Oliver to explain, and demands an accounting of her investments. Then he confesses that he has not made a penny for her, but that he will give her the money if she will go away with him.

Her company offers to send her on a six-weeks cruise as ship hostess, but before giving her answer she goes to see Niel. His model greets her at the studio with such an air of proprietorship that Virginia is angered.

Meanwhile, Dean has written Niel of Mrs. Cutter's charges and when he asks for an explanation, Virginia lets him think that her love for him is cooling.

CHAUTER XXI Virginia could see Nathaniel's point of view easily enough, but it did not suit her purpose to admit that she could.

Virginia forgave Nathaniel his brief period of doubt, but it was a great pity that he did not know she had forgiven him, because he was in a wretched state of suspense over the outcome of the whole miserable business.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

might have found out why I did it before jumping to conclusions about it.

That hurt him, she could see, but she went on mercilessly.

"You'd have tried to stop it if I'd told you; you know you would. I didn't want to quarrel with you."

"I can't see why you had to meet him after office hours to transact business," Nathaniel returned stubbornly.

"How could I meet him during office hours? You know I am not at liberty to leave my work whenever I like."

"Because Mr. Dean had written Mrs. Cutter. She took the stand that I was trying to lure Oliver away from her. We had to settle everything without delay."

"Then you're through with him?" he pressed eagerly.

Virginia hesitated. "Oh, I don't know," she said, thoughtfully. "Perhaps we can manage by seeing each other at noon. That is if Jeanie doesn't object."

Nathaniel took note of the fact that she utterly disregarded his objection. He felt he counted very little with her.

There it was! In India. "I met a fine fellow—likes a good fight—doesn't know what fear is—owe him my life—tiger hunting—sent me spinning out of its brain as neatly as he takes his liquor—going to the West Indies to settle down—sugar raising—sounds a bit tame for old Oddy but he says there's a real scrap to be had with the sugar people—want to give him a leg up—bad luck with money."

A few pages farther on Virginia found more about Leigh. "—had to use a lot of persuasion—could only get him to take $25,000 and that on condition that I'd be part owner of his sugar lands. He sails tomorrow—good luck, old man."

And after that, much later, "—Leigh's bad luck hangs on, poor devil—had a letter from him—still bucking the trust—wants to know if he should sell out—not for my sake, old man—I'll see you through. Well, I wouldn't spoil your fight to get out a hundred times the amount I'm in it."

Virginia put down the book. "Good for you, Dad," she said softly. "We don't quit, do we?"

It seemed to her that her father had spoken to her through his diary. "Perhaps he knew I'd need a pat on the back some day," she said to herself.

She read through to the end. Now and then there was mention of Leigh. Nothing new. The big sugar people still after his Haiti plantations. Leigh still holding out—"It doesn't matter whether he wins or loses. It's the fun he gets out of a fight that keeps him at it" her father had written near the end.

"Haiti," Virginia whispered. "Haiti. That's one of the islands on the Agena's cruise! I wonder if 'Old Oddy' is still there?"

From that thought grew the idea of getting help from the man her father once had aided. "If I'm able to, he will do it," she assured herself.

"Still holding out." That line in the diary impressed her. There must be something to hold out for, she reasoned hopefully.

The morning after her perusal of the diary she telephoned to Mr. Gardiner to ask if there was any record of a business transaction between her father and a man named O. D. Leigh.

She surmised that "Oddy" Leigh would insist upon repaying the loan her father had made in gratitude when he sold the plantations. The diary had closed some few weeks previous to her father's death. Perhaps the sale had been made in that time.

Virginia did not believe so but she wanted to find out if possible. She remembered that Mr. Gardiner had spoken of the money her father had obtained on the estate at Glen Cove. He had not mentioned a sum of $25,000, as he might have done if it had come to the estate so recently.

Besides, if her father had received it, Virginia thought, it would have gone to Frederick Dean; and he had not acknowledged receiving any part of the money he claimed her father had cheated him of.

Mr. Gardiner replied by letter after looking into the matter and informed Virginia that there was no record of the Brewster estate containing the name of Leigh. Virginia breathed a sigh of thankfulness. She regretted, however, that Stacy was away on his ship. She wanted to ask for more information concerning "Oddy" Leigh, particularly regarding the bad news that Stacy had spoken of in connection with him.

She had no idea in which part of Haiti his plantations were located, or how to reach him by mail. Stacy had said that he was a well known character, however, so she set herself to making inquiries at every likely source of information.

Among the few men on the Capella liners whom she knew here was one who gave her the information she wanted not long before the Agena sailed. Leigh owned a goodly sized plantation just outside of Port au Prince, she learned.

"You can drive out in one of those coaches, as they call their horse cabs. It's a great sight if you go on market day. An endless chain of natives in and out of the city. You'll find Mr. Leigh a great fellow, too."

No Question About It, Here Is "The World's Greatest Tire"

Some people have funny ideas.

They think the way to get the most tire for their money is to hunt up the cheapest tire in town.

Honestly, now, haven't you been tempted to buy a tire like that?

Our idea of the tire business is that you have to deliver the goods.

We don't know any way to keep our customers except this: SATISFY THEM.

It takes good tires to satisfy the people who trade with us.

That's why we sell Goodyear Tires.

We have been in the tire business long enough to know exactly the difference in tires.

But until Goodyear brought out this new-type all-Weather Tread Balloon we didn't know how good a tire really could be!

Just to look at this new-type tire is to know it is better. But wait! Wait until you have a chance to learn the things that make it a better tire.

Wait until you have examined the thick, tough tread; felt the sharp, diamond-shaped blocks; noted the two ribs so placed that they protect the tire at the point of greatest wear.

Two Hundred Years Makes Changes On the Road Between London and Bath

It is evening time on the Bath road, about fifteen miles out of London, in the year of grace 1728, with the dusk falling and the windows of the inn just lighting up. There is no breeze to set the great knight painted on the sign a-swinging, or to stir the leaves of the elm opposite. To the westward the road runs away, straight and mysterious under the trees, into the crimson haze of the sunset, and the clank of milk pails in the yard behind the inn. Then with a rattle of boots the lanterns of a chase sob and dance up the road and come to rest before the inn. It ceases to sway on its springs, an astler bustles out of the stable; and the postilion climbs stiffly down to water his horses. The window of the chaise drops, and a pretty face surmounted by a fashionable high bonnet is thrust out.

"Where are we now, John?" says its owner in a languid voice.

"Twelve miles out of Kensington yet, Milady," comes the apologetic reply. "I had hoped to be there by this but the road is heavy after the rains."

"Oh, Lud," says the girl to someone else inside the chaise, "another mortal hour at least before we reach Uncle Sam's, even if the highwaymen do not catch us on the heath; it seems a year since we left Marlborough this morning."

With a rattle and a rush the Bath mail coach swings round the bend and thunders down the road, lamps a-gleam, the six horses stopping out at a spanking trot, and the roof passengers muffled up to the eyes in coats and wraps. My lady hastily withdraws her head. A solitary horseman in a plum-colored riding coat and wide-topped boots, mounted on a fine bay mare follows the mail coach. He catches a glimpse of the face under the bonnet as it is withdrawn, glances at the coat of arms on the door panel, and reins up alongside.

"Well, Lady Betty," he calls through the chaise window, "whence have the fairies brought you today and what's the news?"

The bonnet reappears. "Gracious, Mr. Forsyth, I thought you were at least a highwayman as you drew up. We left Bath yesterday at daybreak nearly and hoped to be in town by this; it is very tiresome. There's nothing new at all down there; Nash drives his grays and a lot of old fogies gossip constantly and nothing fresh ever happens. Are you for Bath?"

"Only for a week or so, and I shall certainly curtail my visit, since it will be doubly dull now you are left. May I do myself the honor of calling you when I return?"

The postilion climbs to his seat; the cavalier doffs his hat with a sweeping circle, and soon the lark and the elm and the painted knight have the road to themselves again.

Dusk again on the self-same road 200 years later. An elm tree stands beside the road, and its leaves are not so dusty now as they were, but the painted knight and the inn have gone, and in their place stands a petrol station—one of the latest kind, terribly efficient and architecturally impeccable.

Houslow Heath is now the haunt of automobile association scouts instead of highwaymen, the road is never empty and if a lark sings above, no one could ever hear it for the noise of engines large and small. Gone the romantic highway, you say, and left the prosaic track. Not at all.

A little four-seater is pulling into the petrol station out of the traffic stream, and comes gently to rest before a pump. It is liberally plastered with mud, and its interior is in that state of heaped confusion which a long journey always seems to cause. A bunch of purple heather crowns the radiator, making a vivid splash of color against the gray car.

The girl at the wheel climbs stiffly out of the driving seat and looks round the tires. She wears a rough tweed coat and skirt, a pink muffler is wound round her throat, and her face is tanned with the sun and wind. A boy on a motorcycle, which gears witness to the leniency of the police in the matter of noisy exhausts, draws up to his machine, and they talk for a moment as the tanks are filled. The manner of their conversation is a little altered since the earlier Betty's horses were watered here.

"It's Dartmoor heather; we've been to Lose for a month and got it on our way up this morning."

"That's of 200 miles, isn't it? Pretty good for the old wreck with a noise at the wheel."

"When you're old enough to have a car-driving license," (the reply is calm and untroubled), "you must come and show me how to do it."

ing 10,000 inhabitants and over is it necessary to obtain exemption certificates. It is probable that the exemptions in Eastland alone are 200 to 300 above those actually claimed, and these may vote without certificate merely by showing they are more than 60 years of age or reached the age of 21 years since January first last. These unclaimed exemptions make Eastland the largest voting box in Eastland county.

According to poll tax receipts and claimed exemptions, the voting strength in each precinct in Eastland county is as follows:

Work At Boxes.

Ballot boxes will be open from 8 o'clock a. m. to 7 o'clock p. m., according to Ed T. Cox, chairman of the county executive committee. Counting of the ballots is to be begun by the election clerks one hour after the polls are opened and continued until all are counted, even though it takes them all night Saturday, all day Sunday, all Sunday night and longer. Perhaps some may sleep while others count, so there is no interruption in the count. Each 12 hours of work constitutes one day at $3 per day, so it is possible for some of the election judges and clerks to make as much as $9 or $12. Few of them care to do so, however, for the continuous work is hard.

Mr. Cox desires each election judge to advise him as soon as possible the selections for assistant judge and clerks of the election. Each judge names his own and is responsible for the service given. All election supplies will be sent to the election boxes next Thursday and Friday.

The law requires the election judges to announce the standing of each candidate at certain hours as the count of ballots proceeds. Occasionally an election judge will refuse this service to the public, but generally they are very obliging about it.

told of his birth in Mississippi, engaging in business in Fort Worth, then moving to Caddo, where he operated a cross-roads store, and in 1918 moving to Cisco, where he has held several responsible and important positions, among them being president of the Cisco Banking Company, which he still holds. He was manager and director of the branch railroad to Breckenridge and had important influence in the building of the railroad into Throckmorton County. In 1925 Mr. Lee was elected president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and did much in the way of bringing West Texas to the front.

Mr. Killough then outlined Mr. Lee's business man's platform, told that he favors farm legislation to the extent of every conservative measure which will benefit the farming and stock-raising interests, and favoring federal aid in establishing demonstration farms in the interest of the farmer, he said.

"In politics Mr. Lee is a democrat.

"He will favor legislation to provide for the dependent families of the killed and wounded world war veterans. He will oppose the cancellation of the war debt but will favor arranging liberal terms for its payment.

"He will favor the keeping of a small regular army and equipment for national defense.

"He will favor such legislation as will be fair to both Labor and Capital.

"Mr. Lee is in favor of regulating the Federal Reserve Bank so that it will accomplish its purpose of extending an liberal and flexible credit to rural member banks as is consistent with safe banking.

"Fundamentally Mr. Lee is for tariff as a revenue only, but he believes in the equalization of the tariff on raw and manufactured goods.

Body of Carranza Taken Into Mexico

LAREDO, July 21.—Mexico received her flying hero in death today when between banked walls of humanity from two republics the United States military government performed its last official function in delivering Capt. Emilio Carranza to his countrymen.

Winding through a mile of street to the center of the international bridge where General Amescua, chief of the Mexican aviation service, and his staff awaited the flower-laden coffin, was tendered to Mexico by the United States military escort. The scene was made impressive by 52 army airplanes roaring low over the Rio Grande sprinkling the scene with flowers.

The caisson bearing the body of the illustrious young Mexican came to a rest in the middle of the bridge. There was a five-minute pause as 10,000 Americans and Mexicans stood on both sides of the river with bared heads while a bugle sounded taps. This marked the end of Carranza's last journey across the United States.

Farmer Charged With Obstructing Public Highway

BELTON, July 20.—Charges of obstructing a public highway have been filed against Rudolph Beran, farmer near Holland, as the result of a feud between Beran and the county highway department.

It was alleged that Beran filled up a ditch along the highway and obstructed the highway so that road machinery could not pass.

Beran is already under a charge of assault to murder in connection with the stabbing of W. A. Nunnallee, county road employee earlier in the week. Nunnallee was stabbed 13 times and is in a critical condition at a Temple hospital.

Nunnallee was attacked when he was sent to make repairs on a road running alongside the Beran farm. It was alleged that the knife wounds were inflicted by Beran's 11-year old son who went to his father's aid in an alleged fight.

DEVELOPMENT OF WEST MAIN MOVING AHEAD

New Store Opened and New Store Structures Being Built. Other Deals Pending.

If any one street in Eastland is showing greater signs of progress than others that street is West Main.

With the announcement of the opening of the Mickle Hardware Company, which is a large retail and wholesale hardware, furniture and general dry goods concern on West Main, the Higginbotham-Bartlett Lumber Company announces they are to build two 25x100 foot brick buildings on their property on the north side of West Main Street, adjoining one already owned by them and occupied by the R. P. Crouch Plumbing Company. Work on these new buildings was started Saturday morning and construction is to be rushed to early completion.

"Cy" Perkins, Eastland manager for the Higginbotham-Bartlett Lumber Company, which owns one of the leading lumber and material yards in the city and which is located on West Main street, stated Saturday morning that the two new buildings being constructed by his company are to be occupied by the John H. Harrison Grocery and the Blue Ribbon Bakery. Both of these concerns are now located on West Main Street and will shortly change over from the South to the North Side.

I. Wolfe of the Globe Grocery and Boston Store, recently purchased the buildings on West Main street occupied at this time by the United States Post Office John Harrison's Grocery and the Blue Ribbon Bakery. Mr. Wolfe said that his plans for use of the building were not complete just now. He said several applications for leases on the buildings had been made to him.

A deal is in a manner of being closed by the terms of which one or more chain stores, one a dry goods store, will be located on West Main street. The bringing of this store to Eastland will necessitate the construction of a modern, new, brick building designed especially for the business that it is to occupy it. More complete announcements of this deal may be released within the next few days.

The new filling station and automobile storage house on West Main street, just north of the Texas hotel, it is understood, has been sold by Mr. Bailey to parties in San Antonio. This deal, however, cannot be announced as closed as Mr. Bailey was out of the city Saturday. This shows, however, the great demand for property on West Main street. Mr. Bailey only recently purchased it.

Higginbotham-Bartlett Lumber Company may build two or three other buildings on West Main street in addition to the two on which they started construction Saturday morning, according to "Cy" Perkins, Eastland manager of the firm. "My company will build these buildings if any firms desire to lease them," Mr. Perkins said.

West Main street, which is rapidly building into one of the leading business streets in the city, is also one of the best residence streets. When the paving which is now being planned, is completed, this street will be much more desirable, both from the standpoint of residences and business locations. Only the west end of the street is unpaved and the city commission, it is understood, plans to pave the rest of it in the very near future.

The Payne & Carter Hospital, one of the finest and best equipped hospitals in West Texas, is located on West Main street in Eastland. This splendid institution, erected at a cost of some $50,000, occupies a commanding position in the center of a block on the north side of the street. Connected with the hospital are a large number of the leading physicians and surgeons of Eastland and of West Texas.

The Eastland Grocery & Market on West Main street recently moving their store from the center of the block to the corner of West Main and North Amnerman streets, where they are located in a new building.

The large sheet metal building on West Main street, used as a planing mill during the "boom" days, has been torn away and removed as has a number of other such buildings on this street. This makes these lots available for either business or residence sites.

The Eastland County Lumber Company, located on West Main street, is one of the leading lumber and material yards in the city and may always be found ready to help promote the interest of Eastland and especially West Main street.

R. P. Crouch of the R. P. Crouch Plumbing Company, is another of the recent purchasers of business property on West Main street.

FOR BETTER PLUMBING

West Main Street Phone 254

Main street, Mr. Crouch owns the building now occupied by the Parker Grocery.

The Crouch Plumbing company is one of the leading plumbing concerns in this section of the state. Pipe and other materials used by this concern are purchased in carload lots. The company also employs a number of the very best workmen obtainable, and no contract is too large or too small for them to handle.

Mr. R. P. Crouch, the manager of the Crouch Plumbing company is one of Eastland's most consistent "boosters."

The Mickle Hardware company, which has just opened its doors for business in Eastland, is one of the largest concerns coming to the city in some months.

This company, which shipped a stock of goods valued at $85,000 to Eastland, occupies its own brick building, which is 100x100 feet and three stories high. The entire building is being occupied.

O. O. Mickle, the manager and one of the members of the company, came to Eastland from Amarillo. He is an experienced business man. His family is here and they expect to make Eastland their permanent home.

The Mickle Hardware company's store is located on West Main street, in the progressive portion of the city.

This company is holding their formal opening this week as will be seen from the big display advertisements in this issue of the Telegram, and the general public—including the people of the towns and rural communities of this and surrounding territory—are cordially invited to visit the store this week. Whether you desire to make purchases or not you are more than welcome to come in and inspect the store and the huge stock of goods.

George Harper, of the Eastland Storage Battery Company, is an enthusiastic "booster" for Eastland and especially West Main street. His partner, Pete Clements, is also a genuine "booster" for the city and West Main street in particular.

Located in their own home on West Main street, the Eastland Storage Battery company, handles storage batteries, gas and oil, car repairing, and sells radios. Their radios and musical instruments are handled in a separate building to their battery business. This building, the Stubblefield building, is also located on West Main street.

The Connellee Theatre, always a "booster" for Eastland, is especially "boosting" just at this time for West Main street for the reason that Manager Harold Smith likes to encourage the splendid work the property owners on that street are doing towards building up Eastland.

The Modern Dry Cleaners & Dyers, while their building and plant, which they own, is located in another section of the city, are "boosting" for West Main street. What builds their west side helps to build the east side, is their contention therefore they want to see West Main street develop into what those on that street believe it will develop into—the leading business and residential street of the city.

The Club Cafe, formerly known as the Corner Lunch Room, has just been rebuilt and remodeled and now has one of the nicest buildings on the public square. This cafe is one of the oldest and most up-to-date cafes in the city.

Information For Farmer Favored

CISCO, July 19.—R. Q. Lee of Cisco, candidate for congress, will spend the latter part of this week in the extreme western end of the district. Abilene, Sweetwater and Blackwell are among the points he is scheduled to visit. He will also make short stops at practically every voting box in Nolan county.

During the final days of the campaign, Lee expects to adhere very closely to the campaign policy he has followed since starting an active campaign. He is advocating a business man for a business position in Washington and continuing his campaign for diversified farming and improved farming conditions. It is his opinion that the farmers in general do not need and do not want advice but that they do need and want information.

"If I am permitted to go to Washington, I will make it my primary object to furnish the farmers of this district and of the country at large if they so desire, the vast fund of agricultural information that has been furnished at Washington but which has never been given general distribution," says Mr. Lee.

FOR PUBLIC HANGING

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—The bill will be presented to the legislature providing that each murderer in the state must hang on a public gallows in the town square.

The bill will further provide that the hangings are to be preceded by the proper amount of advertising so that a large number of spectators will be present at the execution.

By this means, supporters of the bill hope to impress upon people in general, and in particular those who are contemplating murder, the penalty which is acted for their crimes.

SAYS ATLANTIC FLIGHT SAFEST IN AMPHIBIANS

German Lufthansa Head Outlines Plans for Trans-Ocean Service.

BERLIN, July 17.—Amphibious airplanes are the logical type of machine for trans-oceanic flying, according to Otto Merkel, the director of civil aviation, in a speech delivered here recently.

Merkel, who is also a director of the Lufthansa, added that although the amphibious plane was the ultimate objective, seaplanes were the only type of machine suitable for long-distance over-water flying at the present moment. The amphibious plane has not yet reached a sufficiently high stage of development, he declared.

Merkel was describing the Lufthansa's air program, which is reliably understood to be the government's policy as well.

The Lufthansa has determined, he announced, to collaborate with foreign aviation circles in an effort to bring transatlantic flying within the range of practical commercial operations. After an exhaustive study of the numerous possible routes across the Atlantic, company experts have decided that the Cape Verde-Brazil hop offers the greatest advantages as a field for the first commercial experimentation.

Northern Route Unwise.
The flight from Ireland to Newfoundland is judged climatically inadvisable since a year-round service would be impossible and even summer flying is, at the present stage of development, uncertain. It was even felt that a route via Iceland and Greenland would be better than the hop to Newfoundland since it offered much shorter overseas jumps.

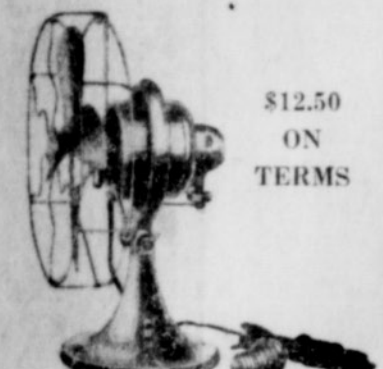

Merkel recalled to his hearers that the Condor Syndicate, with which the Lufthansa organization is affiliated, is already operating a service from Pernambuco to Montevideo.

Crowd Greet Hoover in Superior

"It is only necessary to link this service with a line from Europe, through Spain to the Cape Verde Islands and so across to northern Brazil," explained Merkel.

Enormous Time Saving.
This, the Lufthansa experts are hoping to accomplish.

Such a service would reduce the time element between South American ports and Europe by four-fifths, he asserted.

The Lufthansa plans to collaborate with the steamship lines in inaugurating this service, thus doing away with the latent rivalry which has long existed between the two interests. A special express service in one-fifth the time would be used to supplement the ship traffic rather than to compete with it. He feels sure this service could be run at a profit especially when it is remembered that weather conditions would render flights feasible at all times of the year.

Merkel concluded his address with the assertion that technical advances of the future must concern themselves closely with efforts to decrease the weight of the machine in comparison with the maximum load that could be carried.

JUNGLE PERILS DESCRIBED BY TULANE YOUTH

Members of Mayan Expedition Return After Escaping Malaria Death

NEW ORLEANS, July 18.—Harrowing experiences of three local explorers in the jungles of South Mexico and Guatemala among natives none too willing to work and with monkey meat and a kind of corn for sustenance when food ran short, were related here a few days ago by Webster McBryde, 20-year-old son of Dr. John M. McBryde of Tulane University. Young McBryde returned ahead of his two companions, Dr. Frans Blum and Louis Bristow, also of Tulane, who with native hirelings and mules, made up the Mayan expedition of Tulane University's department of Middle America Research that left New Orleans several months ago for the tropics.

McBryde was separated from his fellows who are still somewhere in the jungle. The youthful explorer, after suffering with malaria fever that ran up his temperature at times to 104, finally made his way to civilization and on to his home here for treatment. He announced he had "enough" of jungle explorations.

The party was separated on Lake Peten, in Guatemala, near Flores, McBryde said. The young explorer with several natives and some pack mules set out to find a trail that was thought to lead to some ancient ruins. Blum and Bristow were pursuing other trails.

Temperature—131 Degrees.
In crossing Lake Peten, McBryde said he noticed it was "rather hot" and looked at the thermometer he carried saw it registered 55 degrees. That's centigrade, and that means about 131 degrees Fahrenheit," he said.

A couple of days later, young McBryde was laid up with an attack of chills and fever. After a few days illness he recovered, apparently, and continued his course covering approximately eight miles in a 10 or 12 hour day's travel through the thick jungle.

Finally, after five days of the resumed journey, he reached Cayo where he was again seized with the dreaded malaria. After four days of burning fever, it was decided that McBryde should proceed down the river to Belize and have a blood test. The test showed malaria and the trip home was advised.

McBryde told of the party spending two weeks searching for a single trail; of Indians, hired to accompany the expedition, deserting their posts and of crossing and

Forgot To Get The Rent For Twelve Years

By United Press

DALLAS, July 19.—Local realtors were chucking this week over the case of a Dallas landlord who overlooked collecting his monthly rent from a tenant for 12 years.

A man living in another city owned several houses here and rental collections were turned over to a Dallas attorney. The attorney knew nothing of one of the houses and it was not until the owner died recently that it was discovered one tenant had been receiving free rent for 12 years.

A woman lived in the house. She said she told the owner 12 years ago that she would refuse to pay rent unless he fixed the roof. She claimed he failed to mend the roof, so she concluded he had taken her at her word when she threatened to cease paying rent.

recrossing rivers by improvised rafts, in quest of trails and other traces of ancient races.

"We ran short of food, with the exception of coffee and tea," said McBryde. "We were compelled to live for a time on oche (a kind of acorn) seed and monkey meat."

At one stage of the journey the explorers encountered some Southern Lacandonese, the last survivors of a tribe and race almost extinct.

Corpus To Vote On Improvement

CORPUS CHRISTI, July 19.—According to an announcement made by P. G. Lovenskiold, mayor of Corpus Christi, an election will be held soon for the purpose of voting bonds with which to carry out the bay front beautification plan designed by Gutzon Borglum, internationally famous sculptor.

This plan provides for the reclamation of approximately 1,369,000 square feet of land that is now submerged in Corpus Christi Bay. Other principal features of the plan are a boulevard two hundred feet wide, and lined with palms, a huge esplanade, park, a twelve foot retaining wall, boat landings, over two hundred ornamental lamp posts and many other improvements.

Mayor Lovenskiold stated that the City Council was going to give the people of Corpus Christi an opportunity to express themselves on the question of the bay front improvements. The taxing power for general municipal purposes will not be used. There is a taxing power of 50 cents on the $100 which can be used only for the improvement and protection of the bay front. It is expected that about $1,250,000 will be needed to carry out the proposed project. All members of the City Council are in favor of the bay front improvement plan. It is expected that the election will be called at an early date. This election must carry by a majority of two thirds of all tax payers who reside in Corpus Christi and who are regular qualified voters.

Three Texans To Be In Air Race

FORT WORTH, July 19.—Texas is to have three entries in the National Air Races in September, it was announced by the Association of Commerce.

William Ponder, flying a Cessna cabin monoplane, and George Williams, with a Speedwing plane, product of the Texas Aerial Corporation of Temple, are two of the fliers. The third has not been named.

More than 100 ships will stop in Fort Worth, September 7 to 9, according to a telegram from Dudley M. Steele, manager. Fort Worth is a control point and night stop in the race from Los Angeles to New York.

PLAYGROUND IN NORTH WOODS IS PROJECTED

Isaac Walton League Would Include Ontario And Minnesota Forest Land

CHICAGO.—A wilderness playground with a waterway labyrinth of lakes and rivers, great pine forests and abundant wild life is planned jointly by Canadian and American lovers of the outdoors.

The project, which takes in a 15,000 square mile area including Superior national forest in Minnesota and Quebec provincial forest in Ontario, is being sponsored by the Isaac Walton league. Such an outdoor world was the dream of "the compleat angler" who said angling was good for the soul.

The area once was the stamping ground of pioneer trappers. So numerous are the streams which thread their way among the trees to join a multitude of hidden lakes that it is said a canoeist could travel 10 summers in the region without duplicating his course. There are moss carpeted retreats, waterfalls and rock-bound, island-studded lakes where fish have gone undisturbed for centuries.

All this is 18 hours from Chicago and with easy vacation reach of 25,000,000 people. The movement to set it aside for recreation of a tired and busy world is being started in both countries. A bill in congress seeks to restrict the use of Superior forest for commercial purposes, as the first step in the plan, the Walton league announced here.

Texas Plants Are Operating Nearly At Capacity Rate

AUSTIN, July 19.—Cement plants in Texas are operating at almost capacity rate, according to Bernard Nichols, assistant in charge of index numbers in the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Texas.

"During the month, 540,000 barrels were produced, compared to 469,000 barrels in June, 1927," he said. "The small increase from May to June is similar to the gain between those two months last year, whereas in the five years prior to 1927 there was a decrease in this thirty-day period. Shipments for the month were 573,000 barrels, or 106 per cent of production, and compare with 454,000 barrels, or only 96.6 per cent of production, in June, 1927. Stocks on hand declined from 389,000 barrels in May to 356,000 in June."

"During the first half of the year, a total of 3,103,000 barrels were produced against 2,644,000 barrels in the same six months of 1928. This is an increase of seventeen and four-tenths per cent. Shipments amounted to 3,154,000 barrels compared to 2,757,000 barrels for the first half a year ago. As a result of the heavy shipments, stocks at the end of June were greater by only 26,000 barrels than those on the same date last year. It must be remembered that one more mill has been in operation this year, and the increased output is due largely to production from that plant.

Production of cement in the entire United States in June was slightly above output in May, but shipments fell off and stocks increased materially.

"The large amount of building and construction work under contract in Texas and the Southwest is stimulating demand for cement. Shipments are holding up exceptionally well and stocks are very light in comparison to output. Imports of the foreign product seem to be shrinking. Prices changed very little during the month, and the market is firm."

"Smart" Child More of a Problem Than the Slow Child, Says Teacher

"The 'smart' child is more of a problem than the slow or 'backward' child because he sets the pace and fixes the standard for his own generation, in the opinion of Helen Taft Manning, daughter of Chief Justice Taft, and Dean of Bryn Mawr college, in July McCall's.

Taking issue with President Lowell of Harvard University who recently said, in a widely-quoted speech given before the National Education Association, that our schools are far behind those of Europe in the speed and efficiency with which they prepare students for college, Mrs. Manning declares that his views are narrow in scope.

Pace At Fault.
Declaring that it is not the goal but the pace of our education that is at fault, Mrs. Manning points out the questions which must be faced:

"Several of the leaders of the Association went further and challenged the very assumption that our public schools should be judged on their ability or inability to prepare for college. Since the public schools of America are required to educate the entire youth of the country, only a small fraction of which will ever attend college, is not the problem of higher education a negligible one in our educational situation as a whole? Many of the later speakers at this Boston meeting urged that the high schools should break even more completely with the colleges, and should refuse to shape their courses to meet the college requirements.

"Whether or not boys and girls are to be prepared for college, it is certain that the kind of education given ought not to be adapted to the lowest levels of intelligence among the pupils. If the duller and slower children in any large group set the pace for the brighter ones, it means that the more promising members of the rising generation, instead of learning to work hard and go ahead for themselves, will be encouraged to take things easy and waste their time—an unhealthy viewpoint.

"But as the slower pace is actually bad for the abler pupils it any subject, we shall have to come to some method of reclassification by which the better students can be pushed ahead. Already there are a few special classes for the 'backward' students. But we are less willing to recognize the exceptionally quick and able ones, in part, because they themselves soon learn and in time may actually prefer to travel at the slower pace. Our school system will never really meet needs of the country until it searches out in every boy and girl who might big ahead.
