City and now Dallas, being also connected with the Bird Grocery Company, were in Eastland today

CASH PRIZES WILL BE GIVEN FOR EXCELLING

Various Contests In Eastland
On Trades Day Promise To Be Hotly Contested.

Who are to be the winners of the many cash prizes being offered by the business institutions of Eastland for those successful in the various contests to be staged on Wednesday, July 25th, the occasion of Eastland's big trades day?
This is the question that is arousing interest among the people who are already planning to be in Eastland on that day and take a part in the contests. Eastland merchants, who are offering these prizes, are not concerned about who wins them except to see that each and every contestant gets a fair deal.

Picnic Provender

PREPARING the basis of your picnic dinner at home is one sure way to know that everything will go smoothly when the picnic grounds are reached.

Tongue Sandwiches: Shred contents of one can cooked tongue. Add two tablespoons chopped dill pickles, three tablespoons mayonnaise dressing. Use between either white or whole wheat bread.

Sardine Sandwiches: Remove bones from a can of sardines and mash to a paste. Add two tablespoons chili sauce, a few drops of lemon juice, salt and cayenne to taste. Add enough olive oil or melted butter to make it easy to spread.

Vienna Sausage Sandwiches: Slice caudex Vienna sausages lengthwise and arrange on buttered bread slices. Mix six hard-boiled egg yolks with enough cream to moisten. Add one-half teaspoon dry mustard, a dash of paprika, and a teaspoon chili sauce. Spread on the bread then cover with slices of sausage.

Tasty Picnic Treats
In making sandwiches it is important to choose a kind that will not be dry, staling and yet will not be too moist. Wrapped carefully in paraffin paper, they should reach the picnic in perfect condition.

Some recipes for picnic sandwiches are:

Swedish Botanist Spending Lifetime Collecting and Classifying Willows

NEW YORK—Because of a willow tree the Rev. Dr. Sven Jonan Enander was shipwrecked on an arctic island, and because of a willow tree he was rescued by the King of Denmark.

Dr. Enander has just arrived in New York to start a search for more willows. It will take him to Labrador, Mexico, Canada, Japan, India, and into the subalpine regions of the Himalayas.

Whenever Dr. Enander travels he carries a passport that will admit him to almost every country in the world, whether he intends to visit there or not.

He had been visiting the northern coasts of Greenland collecting willows in 1921. Dr. Enander told a Monitor reporter here through Holger Lundbergh, a New York agent who acted as interpreter.

One End of Ship Floated
"I had been visiting the northern coasts of Greenland collecting willows in 1921," Dr. Enander told a Monitor reporter here through Holger Lundbergh, a New York agent who acted as interpreter.

Lead Dries
"I saved a number of willow shoots which were rooted in an iron pail. That was about all I had left when we landed on an uninhabited island. There was one Eskimo in our little group who had saved his kayak, or sealskin canoe. He paddled for two days to get to a point of communication.

The King's Little Joke
King Christian, according to Dr. Enander, was greatly interested in the development of the botanical garden in Copenhagen, and the willow specimens drew his attention.

ART LOVERS

STOCKHOLM, July 17.—That the Swedish Vikings of old were art collectors as well as feared warriors and world travelers, has been discovered by Swedish archaeologists. When the Vikings, more than 1,000 years ago, penetrated the Russian plains and sent expeditions to the Black sea and the Mediterranean, they captured rich booty which they brought back to Sweden.

This consisted of beautiful gold and silver ornaments and bric-a-brac as well as Roman, Byzantine and Oriental coins. Their spoils also comprised an interesting marble statue, which was unearthed on the Swedish island of Oeland in the Baltic sea.

For many years this piece of sculpture was believed to be the image of the goddess Freya of Norse mythology. Recent systematic researches have, however, shown that it represents an ancient Greek horseman, of which exact replicas have been found in Greece. How this statue, sculptured in the early Hellenic period of 600 B. C. came to be shipped to the Baltic shores remains a mystery, but it seems to indicate that the Vikings were no barbarians with love only for money and glittering gold, but also showed a liking for beautiful things in art.

A promoter has bought John D. Rockefeller's birthplace and will move it to Coney Island for exhibition as an object lesson. Folk seeking object lessons probably can find a healthy one whenever they pass a gasoline station, too.

The democratic fight against Herbert Hoover and the republican administration was being planned as this picture was snapped. It shows the meeting of Governor Al Smith and Senator James A. Reed in New York, where a meeting was held of the democratic national committee. Reed, who had been rejected by his party as a presidential nominee, was expected to do the heavy bombarding of the Hoover camp.

When delegates of the National Prohibition party assembled in Chicago the other day, Dr. Leigh Colvin (top) was chairman and Clinton N. Howard (below) of Philadelphia delivered the keynote speech. Rigid enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment is the party's platform.

ONE CENT.

While the penny is the humblest of coins, most people will be glad to see the gasoline tax drop one cent a gallon on Sept. 1. For the past year, the tax has been three cents. After next month, it will be two cents. This will reduce the income from that source for government purposes by some millions of dollars annually but the gasoline tax will still amount to many millions and will be adequate to build a great mileage of roads and to decrease the use of that commodity.

Very few object to paying a gasoline tax as it makes the man pay the most for roads who drives over the roads the most. But, in this day when taxes seem to be burdensome, citizens hail with delight a move that results in a tax reduction instead of a tax increase. If the tax had remained at three cents instead of receding, it might have encouraged legislators to try to raise it to five cents which would certainly be a burden on many motorists.

Any tax on a commodity tends to decrease the use of that commodity because it forces an increase in the price that has to be charged. Therefore, if the reduction of the gasoline tax has any effect whatever, it will be to stimulate the use of gasoline—which will be to the advantage of the oil industry and, of course, to the advantage of the oil field cities, such as Ranger, Eastland, Breckenridge and the other outstanding towns of this great section.

POLITICS. An editor who takes his pen in hand—or in this modern age seats himself in front of his typewriter—to write on the theme of politics is venturing out on thin ice, especially in West Texas, where folks take their politics seriously.

However, we will proceed to make the observation that the present campaign has been the mildest that Eastland county has witnessed in many years—which most of us will agree is a good thing, as few of us like to see feelings soar to fever-heat.

On the other hand, interest in the races is increasing—and that is a good thing, too. Because every citizen owes the duty to his government and to himself to take occasion to inform himself as to the qualifications of the candidates who ask election to office.

T. P. PERKINS CONTINUES IN RACE FOR CONGRESS

MINERAL WELLS, July 17.—Desiring to correct the impression that he has withdrawn from the race for Congress in the 17th district, Judge T. P. Perkins of Mineral Wells has issued the following statement:

"Due to the published announcement of Tom W. Perkins of McKinney that he had acted upon the advice of physicians in withdrawing his name as a candidate for congress in the 4th district, I may have confused it with my candidacy for congress in the 17th district. I should like to correct that impression by saying I am in excellent health, that I am still in this race, and that I confidently expect to receive the Democratic nomination. I shall make an active campaign to the very last and many of my friends assure me that I will lead the ticket by a large vote in the primary."

MISS FRIZZELL MAKES SUCCESSFUL DEBUT The Dallas News of Tuesday carried a large title announcement, Brownwood Girls Win Ovation on Palace Program; Howard Payne College Chorus; Part of the Stage Show; Which tersely expresses the success which has met Miss Norma Frizzell and the other fifteen members of the college group, who has signed up for forty weeks contract with the Public theatres.

The article states that the musical ensemble was an outstanding one as anything imported from New York or Chicago, and that it is the Trouble Clef Club of Howard Payne College, and composed of teachers and pupils in the institution.

The young women's appearance was very striking and artistic. They curve over an uneven platform in single rank, flashing in bright uniforms of brilliant orange, draped with gorgeous Spanish shawls. Their numbers range between Rose of Melody Lane, Faraway Belle and popular modern songs, with a grand finale, "That Same Silver Moon."

GIRLS HAVE KODAK PARTY AT CITY PARK Miss Lois McAnally and a foursome of young girls enjoyed a kodak outing at City Park Tuesday afternoon, arranged for the pleasure of Miss Helen McCormick of Pittsburgh, Pa., the one-day guest of Eastland friends when enroute with her parents to Fort Worth, where they will locate. The many pretty scenes of the Park were snapped and afterwards cold drinks and ice cream were enjoyed at the pavilion.

Father Petitions Court For Custody of His Little Son

An application for a writ of habeas corpus was filed late Tuesday in the 91st district court, in which B. A. Henson, next friend, seeks to obtain the custody of Jack Henson, Jr., a three-year-old boy now alleged to be unlawfully restrained of his liberty by his mother, Mrs. Bessie Henson, a widow residing in Eastland county.

The petitioner alleges that the boy is the son of the petitioner, B. A. Henson, born during the time that he and the respondent, Mrs. Bessie Henson, were living together as husband and wife, following which they separated and the petitioner obtained a divorce from the respondent.

The petitioner alleges that the respondent is not the proper person to have custody and control of the boy, and that she is financially unable to support, maintain and educate him properly, wherefore the petitioner asks the court to award custody and control of the boy to him.

R. L. Rust is attorney for the petitioner.

Ten Rules For Fire Prevention

Fire Chief Scott of Los Angeles, enumerates ten rules for fire prevention which should be followed by every citizen. Their observance would contribute very greatly to reducing fire losses to a minimum:

A Duke Can Dance With a Queen

Ever see an honest-to-goodness queen doing a fox-trot? Here's one, and she is none other than Victoria Eugenia, Queen of Spain. The Duke of Leocera is her partner. They were attending an open-air society fete.

caused by defective chimneys and by sparks flying on shingle roofs.

6. Do not use gasoline to clean garments or gloves in the house. Do that kind of work in the open air away from the fire.

7. Keep an approved fire extinguisher in the house for emergency use. It is better to be safe than sorry.

8. Do not use flexible gas hose to connect gas heaters or stoves. Use solid pipe connections only.

9. Cooperate with the fire department by making your building safe against fire; by removing the cause of fire.

10. Keep in mind the location of the nearest fire-alarm box and memorize the telephone number of the fire department.

The Boy Scouts are campaigning against smoking cigarettes by women. Mothers seen behind the barn sneaking a puff should be reported.

"Thinks Women Will End War" says a headline. When they do, then it will be time for the men to consider it, too.

Grid Array Will Invade West Texas For a Game

ABILENE, July 17.—West Texas will get a chance to see the best array of football stars from the Pacific coast here next Saturday, when Coach Jimmy Healy brings his Olympic club from San Francisco to play the Simmons University team here on that date.

Books and Slides

So Long, Mr. Bush! In the Pittsburg, Mo., the Pirates will be more than a slight ally that the Pirates will bring their orders from a new field next season.

Mr. Bush, who led the team in the disastrous world series, is said to have admitted that his job is gone, but he will not give up, and the firm will have to fire him.

Reports of dissension on the club were denied vigorously in Pittsburgh, but now it is admitted that the club did not get their boss and that their manager fails to do with a team such as the Pirates must expect criticism.

Mr. Bush had the misfortune to have many glaring mistakes in the past that convinced his players that he was not doing his job.

Mr. Bush is doing a fine job with the club, but there is said to be office interference in Pittsburgh that there was in Pittsburgh.

Well, It's Their Dough. In a very good ball club can't be a little heart lacking in parts. For years the Pittsburgh Athletics this year, because of the fact that the club has made so little progress, such good prospects for a few years.

Mr. Bush is doing a fine job with the club, but there is said to be office interference in Pittsburgh that there was in Pittsburgh.

Whoofus Whiffletree's Woozy Wonderings

Says the Abilene Reporter: "Ray Morrison, S. M. U. mentor, didn't pull anything new in spite of the publicity he got for his avers Frank Bridges, when the Pony trainer ordered baseball shoes for his ends and backs, to be used particularly against the Army next October. Bridges says that his teams have been similarly equipped for the last three seasons, and that the lighter shoes are just as essential for linemen as they are for backs and wings."

We confess this has us confused. We thought that the bottoms of football shoes had ridges made of some heavy substance similar to rubber or hide. We thought that baseball shoes, since they have spikes, would not be permitted in football.

However, we presume it is all right. Personally we are going to suggest greater changes, among them that the guards on our team be allowed to wear the same kind of spikes that these telephone linemen wear in climbing poles—and when a football lineman gets "set" he will stand like the Rock of Gibraltar. Then we are going to advocate equipping the ends with stilts, which will enable them to catch high passes.

A big time college game right here in the Oil Belt will be presented next fall at Breckenridge when Simmons and T. C. U. meet.

Just this month and next—and then the football season will open.

Sports Matter

Not even Mile. Suzanne Lenglen of France in her palmist days as an amateur ever dominated the women tennis players of the world as completely as Helen Wills of Berkeley, Calif., does today.

Within the span of a year, Miss Wills has won the three major tennis titles of the world, and won them so decisively that there is not an amateur player in the entire world left to dispute her claim to the world's tennis title.

In winning the national championships of the United States, France and England, Miss Wills did not suffer the loss of a single set competing against the outstanding women players of the world.

Opening her foreign campaign at Auteuil this summer, Miss Wills won the French championship June 4, by defeating Eileen Bennett of England, 6-1, 6-2, 6-2, in the final.

With Miss Wills ruling the women's division of the tennis world, there is a complete gap in supremacy of the United States men players. France won the Davis Cup last fall and there is every indication that the trophy will stay in the Racing Club at Paris for another year.

Rene Lacoste, the sad-visaged Frenchman, holds the United States and English tennis titles and Henri Cochet, the former Lyons ball boy, holds the French hard courts championship.

Leading Lacoste two sets to one and needing only one point to increase his lead in the fourth set to 4 games to 1, Tilden failed to follow up his advantage and the Frenchman went on to win, 2-6, 6-3, 2-6, 6-4, 6-3.

With Tilden's defeat by Lacoste apparently went America's hope of regaining the Davis Cup in the challenge round at Paris, July 27, 28 and 29. Tilden has built up a fighting team of young players who have won their way to the final by a brilliant string of victories but there is not a man among them who appears capable of conquering Lacoste or Cochet.

WAITRESSES A SHOCK. HANKOW, July 17.—Although this city is in the forefront of the youth movement in China, and has always been among the first to take up foreign ideas and fads, it was not until this month that real waitresses were to be seen in Hankow.

The opening of the first restaurant, more on the order of an American quick lunch parlor, with girls serving the tables, created quite a furore. Chinese are to be seen daily watching through the windows, many of them shaking their heads in evident disapproval.

IT'S EASY, SAYS MAN WHO MADE FORTUNE ON $50 JOB

By NEA Service. SEATTLE, July 12.—Can a man accumulate a six-figure fortune on $50 a week? "He sure can," says David G. Younggren, who is a trainman on the Seattle municipal trolley system.

He has never made more than $50 a week, but he's piled up the six-figure fortune in just a quarter of a century. He was "broke" when he landed in Seattle.

Twenty years later he sold the crop from a fruit farm he owns for $32,000 cash. Later he sold the farm for a good deal more than that.

Younggren saved his early wages—what he could of them—and started investing in real estate. The city grew and his holdings grew with it. He branched out into fruit ranches—and they grew in value, too.

"Use common sense. Working men should get over the idea of aping the rich, live simply, save modestly and invest wisely. There's no trick in it. I've always lived well, belonged to all the lodges I wanted, seen all the shows I've wanted—but I never made saloon-keepers or bootleggers rich."

Prouder than he is of his fortune, Younggren harps on the fact that no passenger, of the millions he's carried, ever has been injured. "Anybody can make money," he says, "but carrying a few million people in safety for 25 years is a good trick—if you can do it."

DALLAS MAN LIKES SPEED

DALLAS, July 17.—J. L. Gray, 65, chief engineer for a pump company here, likes speed whether on the ground or in the air.

Gray, who has been a pilot for four years, has bought a new type Swallow biplane and had it equipped with an Hispano-Suiza motor of 180 horsepower. The plane will travel at a speed of 140 miles an hour. It is one of the fastest planes at the Dallas airport.

Gray makes frequent trips to his company's home office in Los Angeles.

Barkeep Who Aided Jack London Now Dispenses Sodas to Thirsty

By NEA Service. OAKLAND, Calif.—Johnny Heinhold is still doing business at his famous old "First and Last Chance" on the local waterfront, where he was holding forth in the days he used to give Jack London cash loans for schooling, use of his dictionary in connection with his stories, and bits of homely philosophy that stayed with London.

London used to spend long hours in Heinhold's place of business.

But it's not the same stock of goods that Heinhold dispenses these arid days. The waterfront population is not one to shy away from hard liquor, and many would consider this an ideal location for a "speak-easy." But not Johnny.

When the Volstead law went into effect, the "First and Last Chance" ceased selling liquor after 35 years. Johnny felt it was up to him to uphold the American constitution, inasmuch as his son had won a medal fighting for it in the World War.

If you want soda water, candy, tobacco or the like, Johnny is glad to supply you.

Chance" ceased selling liquor after 35 years. Johnny felt it was up to him to uphold the American constitution, inasmuch as his son had won a medal fighting for it in the World War. If you want soda water, candy, tobacco or the like, Johnny is glad to supply you.

if you wish alcoholic beverages, it's just too bad. But aside from the post-Volstead stock of goods, the "First and Last Chance" looks much as it did in old days. Prints of ships, horses, gamecocks and boxers of other eras decorate the walls. So, too, does Heinhold's card as a member of the Bartenders' Union, issued in 1880.

And there are autographed copies of all of Jack London's books for Johnny was a friend to the young sailorman with literary ambitions in the days when he needed friends. And Johnny's "Last Chance" and Johnny's personality were interpolated into many of London's colorful stories. There are many letters there, too, from London to Heinhold, in which the author always referred to Heinhold's encouragement and financial assistance.

But it's an institution entirely within the law, is Johnny Heinhold's "First and Last Chance."

BOY, 12, ONCE

TOUGHEST KID NOW PREACHES

Sermons in Eight Pulpits Have Resulted in Many Conversions.

DIELSTADT, Mo., July 17.—Six months ago they said Delbert Chostner, 12 years old, was the toughest kid in town and "the worst little liar in Belstead."

Young as he was he gambled persistently and once had a $200 bank account built from the proceeds of cotton picking, stealing and gambling. But now Delbert has turned preacher and spends a great part of his time seeking to convert his former cronies. Most of them, it may be added, have joined the church.

Delbert is motherless and his father lives in Los Angeles. He has been the ward of an aged grandfather.

Last December Delbert was converted. He confessed his immaturity, was forgiven and immediately began evangelistic work. Within a half year he has appeared in the pulpits of eight churches. He has had many conversions, including adults.

Sermons Are Original. His sermons are original, forceful and masterfully delivered, say older ministers. He quotes many passages from the Bible by memory, and can tell exactly where they are to be found. His sermons are neither memorized nor read.

He is so small that when he stands behind the pulpit only his head shows. In a recent sermon at Morehouse, he stood erect, looking keenly over his audience, shook his small finger for emphasis, and began:

"Be not deceived, for God is not mocked. Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap. Believe it or not, but remember, your belief will not shut the gates of hell or put out the fire."

"Some may deny the existence of heaven or of hell, or any life hereafter," he continued, "but suppose there is no heaven to gain or hell to shun, am I worse off by being decent and a Christian?"

His elders do not think it is yet time for his ordination, but steps are being taken to license him to preach.

Delbert speaks of his future as though it were open book. He stated that he will finish high school, then spend two years in Marble Hill college and finish his religious education in William Jewell college. He will, he says, continue to preach, probably taking a pastorate while going through college. He is banking heavy on college.

The loss of his $200 in the failure of the Bank of Berhrand has not deterred him from saving. One-tenth of his earnings go to the church and a good part of the balance into his education fund.

"The aim of my life and my ministry," he says, "is to be a soul winner for Jesus Christ, who has done so much for us."

Washington Letter

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON.—The political history of this presidential year dates back to last August when Calvin Coolidge said he didn't choose to run.

Up to that time Coolidge had held the key to his party's nomination. The funniest thing about the whole show is that he continued to hold it from that time on. He stood with his back to the crowd and he had the key in his hand, but no one knew whether he was just fumbling around with it, when and if the door was going to be opened, whether Cal himself would be the first to dash through or whether he would just stand and block the threshold, waiting to be pushed.

Nobody seems to know to this day just why the president insisted on forcing a great national guessing contest which wasn't definitely decided until the night before the Kansas City convention. But he did. And he had some of the heaviest and supposedly most powerful in his party guessing wrong right up to the minute. He simply refused to say what he meant and so gave the whole party a bad case of nerves.

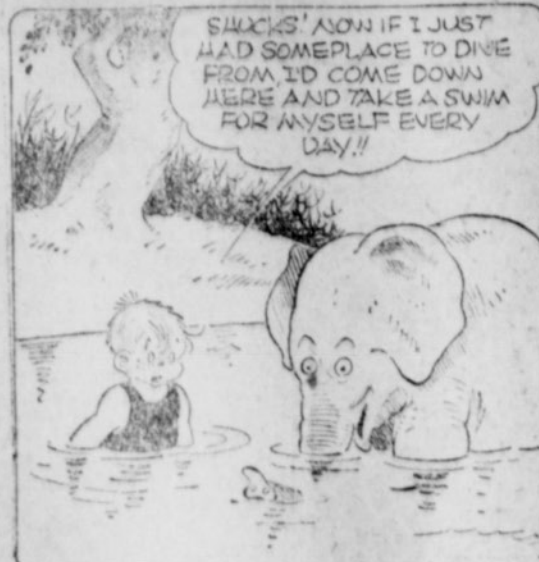

The only reasonable plausible explanation that comes to hand is that this was just happy, jolly little Cal having his little joke on the boys; that he immensely enjoyed his position, which found Andy Mellon and the brethren from Wall street, along with hundreds of smaller fish, imploring him to save the country by staying at the helm four years more. It is also suggested that he may have enjoyed the thought that Hoover was, thanks to him, going virtually without sleep.

Now there is good reason to believe that when Coolidge made his first statement he wasn't dead certain that he wouldn't be the party's next candidate. For one thing, he gave the professional Coolidge shouters like Fess a little too much encouragement.

But the factors which motivated his final decision, regardless of when it may have become a fixed intention, are gradually coming to light.

First, Coolidge is not in good health. He looks healthy enough, but one hears through excellent sources that he is somewhat shy on red corpuscles. Mrs. Coolidge's health has also deteriorated, according to some of their personal friends. She is said to have been especially anxious that they leave the white house at the end of her husband's present term. As a politician Mr. Coolidge

Comment On Financial Situation In U.S. and Trend of Stock Market

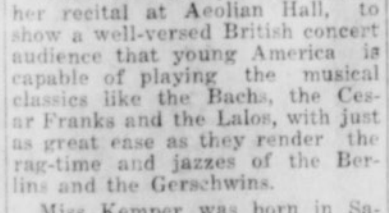

AUSTIN.—Public interest at this time is focussed on the financial situation and the trend of the stock market, according to Bernard Nichols, editor of the Texas Business Review, published monthly by the Bureau of Business at the University of Texas.

Higher interest rates and tightening money market have finally checked credit expansion which has been under way for more than a year, he said.

Member banks added $6,000,000 to their government security holdings, bringing the total to $83,000,000 for the week ending June 27. Many banks sent additional funds to New York City to be loaned on call.

Texas Mother Finds Best Plan

When Nature fails you, try and help yourself by the most natural method! That's the advice of leading authorities nowadays; and for over fifty years it has been the plan of the makers of California Fig Syrup. The quick, easy way this pure, wholesome product relieves children of those symptoms of stubborn bowels, such as: headaches, biliousness, coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy, etc., and makes them strong, energetic and rosy-cheeked again shows there's no use drugging a child with harsh purgative medicines.

Mineral Resources of Texas Large and Varied, Abound In All Parts of State; Production In 1927 Totalled $325,000,000

EL PASO, Texas.—The College of Mines of the University of Texas is unquestionably the most favorably situated mining school on the North American continent, if not in the entire world, with relation to the abundance and variety of mineral and non-metallic resources in the El Paso trade territory. In addition, its huge smelter, oil refineries, cement and brick plants, quarries of various sorts and the wide variety of diversified engineering projects that have been carried to completion in the city itself, El Paso offers opportunity for a practical and visual education that is unexcelled. The major portion of the vast resources of Texas are now found west of the Pecos. In former years the eastern part of the state boasted of its huge oil fields; today that honor goes to the western part of the state, for it is there that a major portion of the oil is produced.

It is generally known that Texas is one of the leading oil producing states of the Union, but it has only been with the advent of the new fields of west Texas that the state has taken the lead in oil production in the nation. Little is known of the vast amount and variety of the other natural products of the state even among its own citizens.

Its sulphur producing areas now furnish 99 per cent of that mineral mined in the country. Its mercury, its silver, its coal and iron mines, its vast areas underlain by common rock salt and by fertilizing potassium salts, its huge reservoirs in lime rock gypsum and non-metallic other metallic and non-metallic constituents go into the vast total of mineral wealth that now places Texas third or fourth as a producing area among the states of the union.

Leads In Oil Production
Petroleum has been known in the state since 1877 when it was first discovered in Nacochoches county, but its major advent into the field of producing states began with the opening of Spindletop in the early 1900's. Since that time Texas has been a major factor in the production of oil with Sour Lake, Batsion, Humble, Wichita, Big Lake, Amarillo and, now the greatest field of all these, just west of the Pecos. Texas is now one of the most important oil producing areas in the world, its daily production being so great that it leads every state where only a few years ago it ranked third, and this with thousands of barrels of potential production shut in for lack of storage or transportation facilities.

The production of natural gas has increased enormously particularly with the opening up of the immense gas areas of the Amarillo region and the Pecos area. In 1927, 175,392,000,000 cubic feet of gas were produced in the state having a value of $28,165,000, at the point of consumption. In addition large quantities were employed in making carbon black, the production of which totaled 36,323,052 pounds having a value of $2,000,000.

Much asphalt is produced as a residual product in the refining of crude oil. The production in 1927 totaled 261,400 short tons from this source. In addition natural asphalt is produced in great abundance in certain parts of the state, especially near Uvalde. Texas produced 289,980 short tons of asphalt in the year 1927 with a value of $825,610. This industry is now increasing as the interest in good roads increases.

Helium Gas
Texas formerly had the only wells producing helium gas, though in the last few years certain other states have found this gas. Its importance cannot be magnified in times of war as it is the only gas that is inert, that does not ignite or explode when exposed to flame. The United States government built a plant at Fort Worth for the refining and obtaining of this gas, that it might be used in the giant dirigible of the army and navy.

The Llano-Burnet region has been the site of much of the finer granite quarried in this state. From here came the granite for the state capitol as well as for the sea wall at Galveston. The granite is found in both red and grey shades. Many large deposits of fine granite occur in West Texas, the only hindrance being the lack of transportation facilities. Near Alpine, Marfa and Van Horn there are fine deposits of excellent granite and marble that will eventually be worked. The Llano deposit produced $450,000 worth of granite in 1924.

The state abounds with special clays excellent for the manufacture of brick, tiles, pottery and the many other things made from this material. The value of the city products amounted to over $5,000,000 in 1924. Only the surface has been scratched and as the needs of the future appear the clays are ready to meet them. The sand and gravel industry was valued at $2,600,000 in 1924.

The natural material necessary for the manufacture of cement construction material are found in the greatest of abundance throughout Texas. There are at present six large cement plants in the state with an annual production of 5,000,000 barrels worth about $10,000,000.

Sulphur and Iron
The largest deposits of sulphur known in the world are found in Texas, the principal producing localities are those of the Texas Gulf Sulphur Company at Gold in Matagorda county, and the Freeport Sulphur company with properties at Bryan Mound and Hoskins Mound. These two companies produced 99 per cent of the sulphur of the United States. While the gross value of their production is unknown, as this is confidential, it is believed to amount to more than $12,000,000 yearly.

Gypsum occurs in great abundance though it is only worked in local areas. Its value in 1923 was $2,237,924. In time its value to the citizens of the state will be greatly increased.

Where "Mexico's Lindbergh" Was Killed

Pictured here is the wreckage of the plane in which Capt. Emilio Carranza, "Mexican Lindbergh," was killed while headed toward home for the acclaim of his nation and a reunion with his bride. His craft crashed near Burlington, N. J. Carranza, who repaid Colonel Lindbergh's visit to Mexico by flying from Mexico City to Washington and New York, had left Roosevelt Field, Long Island, bound for Mexico City, when his plane ran into a storm. The body was found near the wreckage.

Much iron ore is found in the state but because of adverse freight rates producers are unable to compete with the ores and finished product from Birmingham, Alabama. Magnetite of excellent quality is found in Llano county, but the amount is unknown. Large deposits of limonite are known in eastern and central Texas. These deposits carry 40 per cent to 50 per cent metallic iron and occur in beds from 5 to 10 feet thick.

Three grades of coal are produced in the state, bituminous, lignite and brown coal, though the production is limited. About 300,000 tons of bituminous coals are found in the northeastern and southwestern counties of the state and the beds vary in thickness from 3 to 15 feet.

There are more than 30,000,000,000 tons of lignite that will eventually be utilized, practically, perhaps, by changing it into electrical energy at the mine and transporting it over the state as electricity. This is being done in some places. Lignite is friable and runs very high in moisture, for that reason it cannot be economically transported. However, it is possible to briquet it and make coal every bit as good as anthracite in this way. Undoubtedly this will prove commercially feasible in this state with so much heavy crude oil available for a binding medium at a very low price. It can also be used as a powdered fuel at the place where mined. It, also, will make a good coke.

Silver and Copper
The total production of silver in Texas in 1926 was 18,540,043 ounces, having a value of $13,618,558. The greatest part of this production has come from the Presidio mine near Shafter. This mine has been worked continuously for 45 years and is still going strong. Within the last year, because of cheaper freight rates, a number of small mines and prospects have been opened up in the western part of the state and considerable amount of copper and silver ore is coming in to El Paso smelter as a result. With the results presented in the past year it is believed that West Texas will soon become an important producer of the more valuable metals. A considerable amount of lead and zinc is being obtained from the Presidio mine, also. The old Hazel mine at Van Horn is making regular shipments of copper-silver ores to the El Paso smelter, and some copper has been found in the Llano-Burnet region.

There have been a few small gold mines worked in the past, but there is no production from such properties at the present time.

Texas is the second state in the production of mercury, the production coming from Brewster and Presidio counties. To date it has totaled 4,500 flasks from Presidio county and 98,512 flasks from Brewster county. The present value per flask is about $120. Much activity is now on in this area.

Small amounts of lead and zinc have been shipped to the smelter at El Paso, but with improved freight rates it is believed that many small prospects in the western part of the state will become producing mines.

Cassiterite has been found in small veins in an acid granite on the eastern flank of the Franklin range, a few miles north of El Paso.

Great salt beds have been located in West Texas and as time goes on it is very likely that they will be worked with a commercial profit to the owners.

Texas mineral production in 1927 amounted to more than $325,000,000.

The Texas College of Mines is equipped to meet the demands of Texas in the training of the future engineers that will develop yet further the vast untouched mineral resources of the state.

West Texas Tennis Tournament To Be Held In Lubbock, July 20 and 21

LUBBOCK.—The fifth annual West Texas Tennis Tournament will be held at Lubbock Friday and Saturday, July 20 and 21, according to Frazier McCrummen, director of the tournament.

A loving cup, tennis racket and other trophies will be awarded winners in singles and doubles contests. Over forty contestants entered the tournament last year, coming from Brownwood, Amarillo, Levelland, Wichita Falls and intermediate points.

This year more than sixty are expected, McCrummen says. McDonald and McKirhan, winners of the doubles cup last year have announced that they will be back to defend their title to the cup, while Frazier McCrummen, one of the doubles team that won the cup in 1926 and lost it last year has a new partner and will enter the contest this year with the hopes of capturing the prize again.

Among a number of outstanding tennis players who will come for the meet this year, is Dr. Berry, Simmons University Star, who is a 1928 champion in the Texas Conference. He defeated the Texas Tech colors and so the contest between these two will be a rival contest this year if the two meet in the tournament.

Roscoe Etter, of Lubbock, and formerly of Carlsbad, New Mexico, is the new partner of McCrummen. Etter held the title for the state of New Mexico for three years before coming here. The meet will be held at the Texas Technological College tennis courts where modern facilities are available. A tennis racket will be given as a trophy to the winner of the singles contest.

McCrummen is anxious that entries be sent in immediately, however, they will be accepted up to the time of the tournament. The meet is open to anyone in the Southwest.

Stream Pollution Case In Young County Results In Mistrial At Graham

(From Breckenridge American)
The first alleged stream pollution case of the kind ever tried before a jury in this section of the State and, so far as known, the first in Texas, resulted in a mistrial in the County Court at Graham in the case of the State of Texas vs. Charles Atkinson.

After the jury had been dismissed, it was learned that the body stood for acquittal with one exception, one member of the jury holding out for a verdict other than acquittal.

In the case, the State claimed that the waters of Clear Fork had been polluted by virtue of claim that the defendant, a member of the firm of Sanderfer-Atkinson-Daniel Oil Corporation, interested in a well on the Boozer lease, had caused salt water to escape and run into the waters of Clear Fork. The testimony showed that the oil company had used ordinary diligence, backed by an ordinary expenditure, to take care of this salt water and prevent its running into a public stream. It developed however, that during a heavy rain on or about June 21st, the dyke keeping back this salt water broke and permitted it to run into the stream. One witness testified that the water in Clear Fork had been made salty several years ago and witnesses expressed the opinion that the small amount of salt water which had been run from the Boozer lease, had little effect, if any, towards the pollution of the stream.

The prosecution of the case was at the instance of the Fish, Game and Oyster Department of Texas, while the prosecution was in direct charge of County Attorney Enix of Young County, and Assistant District Attorney Barry. Attorneys for Mr. Atkinson were H. A. Leaverton of Breckenridge and Marshall & King of Graham.

Heretofore a number of similar cases against other firms or individuals have been filed in Young, Stephens, and Eastland Counties. The defendants contend since they and other oil companies of this section had used in all cases more than ordinary diligence in caring for the salt water, that they were not guilty of polluting a stream and had decided to make a test case, but the fact that the jury failed to agree means that the case will be retired and will likely be considered during the early part of August.

Pupils Object To Early Bedtime

PARIS, July 17.—"Curfew shall not ring tonight" is now the slogan of the tens of thousands of students living in the dormitories of French "lycees" or high schools. They are protesting to the government that they do not intend to be the victims of regulations which date back to the early part of the seventeenth century.

In those days the students were placed upon the same basis as orphans placed under the government's control. Fixed hours for classes, half an hour for each meal after each study from five to eight o'clock in the evening—the equivalent of modern "home work," and then after half an hour for supper and half an hour of official prayers "bed-time."

But French students are ambitious. They now insist that they be allowed to remain as long as necessary after the appointed hours of their studies is not complete enough to insure their passing the next examination. True, the official schedule, posted on the walls of the lycees and bearing the signature of Herriot as minister of education, provides that they must rise not later than 6 o'clock on summer mornings and half an hour later in winter, but there is a break in the study period, the students have discovered, which is sometimes irreplaceable.

Recreation periods during the entire day, they protest, total about two hours, but there are eight of them, and what boy can enjoy such short installments of football, and what girl can tell her closest chum her secrets in short periods?

Jean-Jacques Rousseau and Descartes laid the foundation of the modern French educational system but they did it after the light of their own associations. Times have changed, and today it is the French youth that intends to lay down the new laws for educational progress and success.

LADY SHOWED SPORTSMANSHIP

That will be helpful to them in the years to come, said a lady who had made a study of child culture. So when a newspaper advertised for contestants to solicit votes on subscriptions, I entered my little girl's name. I will admit that I work because I wanted my child to live up to the old adage, "what is worth doing at all, is worth doing well." We did work and won first prize, yet I really was in hopes that some other person would win, even though the prize was one we valued very highly, the lesson I desired my child to learn is lacking. It's like a business man once told me:

"Show me the greatest men of today, and I will show you that at one time in their lives they failed, but they were too big (big in principle) to let this failure down them." He also stated that a failure will do one or two things for a person, it will either break them or make them—meaning they will try and profit by the experience and go after things with a greater determination to win.

Now that my child won, I will have to look for another opportunity to teach her to be a good loser, for I want her to learn this while young. We are all subject to a loss some time in our lives and I prefer her first experience to come

Maker of Millionaires Heads Smith Campaign

John J. Raskob, of New York, chairman of the finance committee of General Motors, the man who helped make 80 millionaires between 1923 and 1927, has been chosen as manager of the presidential campaign of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, democratic nominee. Raskob, a republican in 1924, declares the wet-dry issue predominates in this year's election.
