Eastland Will Have Community Night Programs

The Board of City Development has announced that it will sponsor a series of four or more "Community Nights" for Eastland during which special features of entertainment will be offered to the public free of charge.

The tentative program for the first of the entertainments will include a band concert, amateur and professional vaudeville, three big contests and a Chinese auction. The band concert will be given by the Eastland Booster Band which will play a few selections following the beginning of the program.

Vaudeville acts will be secured from Dallas for the night, according to the plans, and it is said that there are several good actors who live in Dallas who are now out of employment who can be secured for a nominal cost to produce their "big time" acts here on that night. Following the vaudeville presentations there will be three contests for the people to enter or watch as they desire. The first will be a three legged race in which two participants will be strapped together, the left leg of one entrant being strapped to the right leg of the other. The winners of this race will be given a prize.

A smoking contest, which is not only new but novel, will be the second on the program and a prize will be offered to the winner of this contest also.

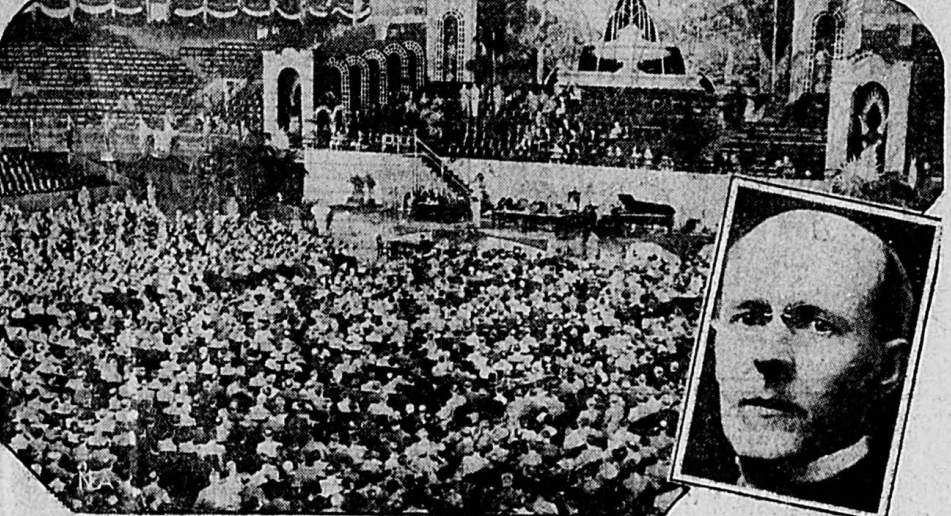

The third of the series of three contests will be a harmonica contest which will be open to the harmonica or "French harp" players of the county. The third prize will be awarded to the one the judges select as the best all-round harmonica player.

The Chinese auction will be one of the features of the night. In every poster advertising the event and in the newspapers will appear coupons that represent certain amounts in money. These may be clipped and used in the bidding just as though it was real money. With each purchase made from the merchants participating in the community night, a similar coupon will be given. These can be saved from week to week and may be used in purchasing the commodities that will be offered for sale at the auction.

The "community nights" will be held once a week for four consecutive weeks, beginning on Friday night, July 11.

Gangsters Take Life Of Another Gang's Member

CHICAGO, June 30.—The body of Mike Gallichio, member of the notorious "42" gang, who apparently was the victim of a gangland "ride," was found today, face down in a muddy ditch along the Joliet highway in Cook county.

Gallichio had been riddled with bullets and his body tossed into the ditch, half burying his head in the mud and water. When the body was picked up a nickel dropped from the clenched fist.

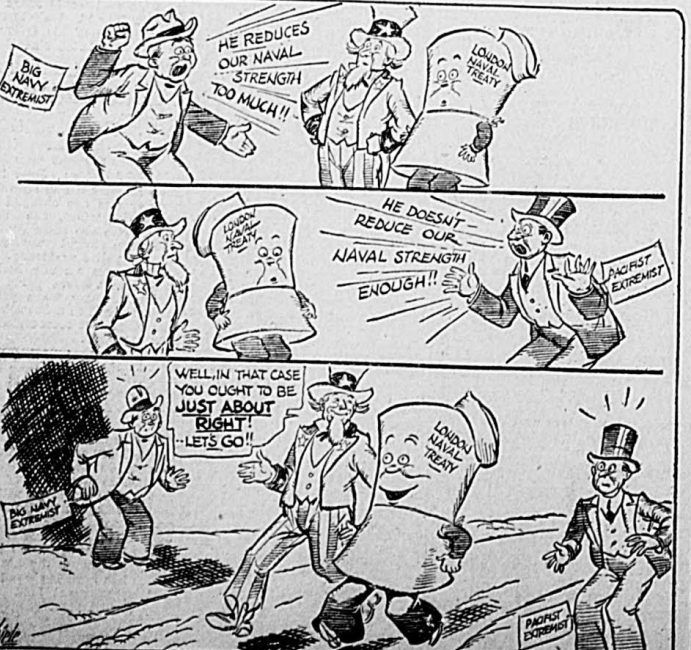

Police said Gallichio, who had a long record, probably was the victim of a gang feud. The murder was the second gang killing since Alfred J. Lingie, Chicago Tribune reporter, was assassinated three weeks ago which resulted in a wave of sentiment to stamp out crime.

Man And Woman Shot By Negro Are Recovering

GEORGETOWN, Tex., June 30.—R. L. Eggar and his wife, wounded near their home at Round Rock Friday by a negro farm hand who later was killed by a posse, were recovering here today, but physicians said Eggar, who was shot in the face, probably would lose the sight of one eye. Mrs. Eggar was shot in the chest. The negro, Jack Robertson, was killed shortly after he shot the Eggars and he was later by the posse where he fell at the side of a roadway.

Sheriff Slaps Agitator's Face, Mob Disperses

BEAUMONT, Tex., June 30.—A sun-tanned little man with old-fashioned courage hung up a victory for law and order in the face of ever-surgin mob spirit over the week-end, and Rainey Williams, negro, still a prisoner of constituted authorities, and believed safe from lynching.

Three times the mob from Port Arthur tried to take the negro from Sheriff W. W. Covington of these men, and three times they were driven back.

Once, the gallant group of officers who fought the mob recovered their prisoner after he was in the hands of would-be lynchers. The second time, Sheriff Covington turned speech-maker and persuaded the mob to go home, that was Friday night.

But the wily little sheriff was tired of "foolishness," the mob came back early Sunday, and he warned them that any attempt to storm the jail would be met with gunfire.

The Sunday morning mob finally retreated to water front, and a few of them were leaving. A sailor turned agitator and tried to inspire a fourth attempt, but the sheriff took the spirit of leadership out of him when he walked up and slapped his face. That disheartened the other members of the mob, too, and they soon went home.

No outward moves were made. The negro is under indictment for robbery with firearms and felonies in Texas, and also is charged in three cases with assault on murder, and in another with assault attempted criminal assault.

New Ocean Flying Feat Accomplished

NEW YORK, June 30.—A new ocean-flying feat which may hasten establishment of a regular air service between the United States and Bermuda stood today to the credit of Roger C. Williams, trans-Atlantic pilot.

Williams, accompanied by a navigator and another man to relieve him at the controls completed the first non-stop, round trip flight between New York and the tiny group of islands 780 miles to the south-east at 10:03 o'clock last night in the monoplane Columbia, which Clarence Chamberlin flew to Germany three years ago.

Williams and his companions, who left Roosevelt field soon after 5 a. m. Sunday made the 1,560 mile flight in 17 hours and one minute—a journey which ordinarily requires four days by steamship. They flew a severe tropical squall, reached Hamilton, chief city of the islands, dropped a sack of mail and headed back to New York at a speed around 100 miles an hour.

The navigator who pointed the way to the tiny set in the open Atlantic is Harry Y. Conners, a former navy man. Errol Boyd, relief pilot, was the third member of the crew.

Bishop Cannon Is Asked To Resign

ATLANTA, Ga., June 30.—A resolution petitioning Bishop James Cannon, Jr. of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to resign "for the best interests of the cause of Christianity throughout the world" has been adopted by lay members of the church at Newman, Ga., and was characterized today by the Rev. R. G. Smith, of Washington, Ga., as evidence of "serious dissatisfaction" with the outcome of the Dallas conference.

The resolution mentions specifically Bishop Cannon's admitted political activity in the last presidential campaign, and his stock market speculation, against which the Dallas conference declined to take action.

"I believe many other churches which feel the way the New. Man church does and the way I do—about this matter, will take the same method of expressing protest against religiously expressed political activity," Dr. Smith said.

DALLAS, Tex., June 30.—Four men lost their lives in Texas by drowning over the week-end, two of them former football stars.

After nearly 24 hours of searching, officers and citizens early today recovered the bodies of Julian P. Garrett, Dallas insurance man, and Morris Ivory, negro, from the Greenville Club lake near Greer-camp. They were drowned late Saturday night or early Sunday when their boat capsized.

Garrett formerly played football with the Dallas High School and Southern Methodist University teams. He was an excellent swimmer, and friends are unable to explain why he was drowned.

sudden purpose. "Oh, I suppose it's your money," he said frankly. "Nonsense! The bit of money I have couldn't surely come between me and my old friends. That would be too small, Dumont. And the girls are much the same. They're frightened if I offer them a chocolate. I've tried to believe it's because I've been away so long." "I expect it is," Dumont said vigorously. He could not have explained the feeling himself; but it was quite true that he had experienced it. "But I'm not going to heap reproaches on you now you have come," Alan went on gayly. "I'm only too glad to see you. Are you sure you're comfortable there? I hope it will be rather decent when it's finished." There was in him not a spark of jealousy of Steyne's worldly possessions. They made a tour of the place, and came back and settled themselves in chairs. Then Dumont burst out suddenly. "Steyne, I really came to consult you—to ask you if you couldn't do anything. I must tell you that I'm worried to death about Judy Grant." Steyne shifted his position, and put his tumbler down on the floor beside him. "Yes, Dumont—why?" he asked. "Is it this dancing business? I haven't seen her since I came back; but Clarissa has been telling me about it. She says the girl is working much too hard." "It isn't the dancing," Bastien said fiercely. "It's this odious man—this Bruce Gideon who's got hold of her!" "Got hold of her!" The words left Steyne's lips like a pistol shot. Deeply moved, he turned a fierce, white face to the other man. "In God's name, Dumont, what do you mean?"

BURGLAR HAS HIS TROUBLE FOR NOTHING

RANGER, Texas, June 30 — A large supply of groceries had been stacked up by a burglar in the Piggly Wiggly store early Saturday morning when he apparently became alarmed and fled. The groceries, according to the police, consisted of flour, sugar, lard, canned goods and other articles, the value reaching perhaps to $75 or more. Entrance had been gained by prying bars at a window. The rear door was then unlocked from within and the groceries were tacked up preparatory to being carried away. A truck was heard going up the alley at an early hour and the authorities surmise that the robber became frightened and then left without the groceries.

MAN LOSES THE SIGHT OF ONE EYE

RANGER, Texas, June 30 — The loss of the sight of one eye was sustained by A. A. Ames as the result of an accident Friday night. He was walking to the well in the yard and, in the darkness, a protruding pipe at the well struck him just below the left eye. The accident occurred at the home of his son, west of Ranger. Mr. Ames is a well known citizen of this section and his many friends deeply regret the misfortune.

IMPROVE THE GORMAN-TO-RANGER ROAD

GORMAN, June 30 — After spending several days with the county grader working over the surface, T. G. Gray, commissioner for this precinct, put a large number of trucks to work Tuesday morning to hauling gravel to surface the Ranger road. This road is one of the local highways that get plenty of use and it has long needed something done to it. The road was built in the county's road building campaign a few years ago and has had hard use ever since it was built. It was ordinarily a sand and clay road and the surface has worn away until something had to be done to it. Mr. Gray found the proper road building material on Nash creek and has started to make it a real road with this material. It is being worked on from Nash creek to town and the entire distance will be gravelled. Colleche, the best of road materials, used. Those who have occasion to use the road and those who in that section will be glad to see the work is going on.

DANCING JUDITH

by CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKIN. BEGIN HERE TODAY Judith Grant, beautiful artist's model, shares her Greenwich Village apartment with Chummy Morley, a lovely girl whose mind has been a blank ever since Alan Steyne, her lover, disappeared seven years ago. Steyne comes back but Chummy fails to recognize him; meanwhile he and Judith fall in love, and he tells her that he never loved Chummy and never knew Chummy loved him. However, when Chummy recovers his memory and recognizes him, he feels bound to her because of her years of suffering, and asks her to marry him. Judith has aroused the infatuation of Bruce Gideon, rich financier, who offers to star her in a musical show. She agrees, and prepares to take dancing lessons of Guarvenius, the great dancing teacher, who is impressed with her talent. Alan, meanwhile, tells Chummy that Judith ought not to have to work for a living. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVI Chummy smiled tenderly at Alan's vehemence in declaiming Judy should not work. "Still, it will be splendid, Alan, if Judy makes a great name as a dancer. Of course, she's wonderful." "I can't see that it's much good to be gaped at by big vulgar crowds," he answered testily. She gazed at him in surprise, and he pulled himself together. "Look here, Clarissa," he went on in some embarrassment, "you are just as bad. Look how you pinch and scrape and live like a beggar, and never let me do anything for you at all. If you come out with me, you always eat the cheapest things, and insist on sitting in the cheapest seats at theaters. I don't think either you or Judy ought to go on living in those dreadful rooms. I wish you'd realize that I'm well off. I've more than $5000 a year, and the little place in Maine." Chummy's lovely cheeks glowed. "Oh, Alan, I'm pining to see the dear place in Maine! I think you're right. It would be lovely if Judy and I could come and live with us when we are married." "It would be a splendid idea," he said; "but it wouldn't solve the problem now. What we want to do is to prevent Judy from killing herself at the present moment."

she returned, as she would, about nine o'clock, from a late dancing lesson. Guarvenius had very erratic hours, and Judy had to fit her times in like a jig-saw puzzle. On the way back they bought some tasty morsels, such as a slice or two of galantine and the Italian sausage that Judy adored. They also bought cakes and fruit and a small bottle of good red wine. At least, Alan determined, with a kind of grim materialism at which he laughed himself, Judy should have a good supper that night. As if a supper—or any meal, for the matter of that, any bodily comfort—could make any difference to that little girl's eager spirit! He left Chummy at her door and walked back to Gramercy Park. The girl tentatively asked him up, but he made the excuse of having a couple of cases of books to unpack. He did not press him. She seemed to be all taken up with her supper getting. No doubt, also, she recognized that they saw a great deal of each other every day; and in the nature of every woman is the guile which, however much she may long for him, sends the man of her heart away from her at times. Steyne walked slowly home, dejected and sorely oppressed. He summoned all his will power to think of Clarissa Morley as his wife, and to vow to make her a better and more loving husband; but he knew, even as he summoned it, that it was not equal to the task. He reached his rooms, high up in a building looking down on the park. He occupied the attic, where he had been constructing the kind of town dwelling that appealed to him. It consisted of one very large studio and three or four smaller rooms, a miniature kitchen, a bathroom, and a level bit of tiled roof big enough to stretch his legs on, with a fascinating view. It was far from finished yet. The studio was packed with the easels and painting gear. A carpenter had put up shelves halfway across one of the end walls; and here Steyne proposed to busy himself tonight, unpacking some books that he had collected on his travels, and others that his benefactor had bequeathed to him. He had his own bedroom and the kitchen comparatively in order, and an old woman came in to clean every day. He had just changed his coat for an old one, and was on the point of attacking one of the cases of books with hammer and chisel, when there was a ring at his outer door. He went to open it and found Bastien Dumont outside. "Is it too late, Steyne?" the young artist asked rather timidly. "I mean, are you busy?" Steyne grabbed him by the arm. "Come in, Dumont! I'm only too glad to see you. I call this friendlier. I've been hoping you'd look me up some day. Fact is, my fellows seem to fight shy of me now." "Oh, no!" exclaimed the other, his lean, picturesque face alight with pleasure at the warmth of Alan's welcome. "You mustn't say that, Steyne. One knows that you're busy."

"I'm not here, clear all those papers on that chair and sit down, will you?" Alan went on. "I'm in an unholly mess. I'll get you a drink. What shall it be—whiskey and soda?" "No—vermouth, if you please," laughed Dumont. "I see a bottle over there." Steyne poured out two glasses, and handed his guest one. "I'd like to have it out with you, Dumont," he said, offering a cigaret. "There is something, you know. How many times have I asked you to dine with me? You have never been able to, my dear chap!" He smiled his charming smile, which the young artist, with his susceptible nature, could not resist. Dumont smiled back, and his splendid dark eyes glowed with a

THE REALM of SPORT

WITH THE TEXAS LEAGUE

The Houston Buffs today held a one-half game lead in the Texas League for the second half of the season following their 5 to 0 victory over Beaumont Sunday while Wichita Falls, winners of the first half and now in second place, split a double-header with Shreveport.

Ralph Judd, diminutive Buff fast ball pitcher, held the Exporters to five scattered hits and struck out five men to shut out the Beaumont nine while his mates were scoring enough to win, 5 to 0.

Scoring eight runs in the ninth inning, Shreveport defeated Wichita Falls, 12 to 11, in the first game but lost the nightcap, 7 to 10. The Spudders scored four runs in the first inning of the aftermath when Barrs, first baseman, hit for the circuit with the bases loaded.

Fort Worth defeated Dallas, 3 to 2, in a pitchers' duel. The Cats scored their three runs in the third inning when Mallon stole home and catcher Tobin allowed a wild pitch to get away. Jake Atz, Steer manager, was ordered off the field in the third inning for disputing umpire Ballafant's decision on Mallon's steal.

Waco went into fourth place, defeating San Antonio, 7 to 3. Pettit and Harris hit home runs for the winners, Laveque for the losers.

The police, on whom the council of ministers relied chiefly for support, imposed the most rigorous martial law on the city. Everyone was notified to remain indoors, and in consequence those who appeared on the streets were shot first and then questioned. The United Press correspondent watched the scene from the windows of the La Paz Club, and saw men and women, fleeing for shelter, picked off one by one by police rifles and machine guns. One woman, apparently caught far from her own home, implored residents across the street to give her shelter.

At 5:40 p. m. CDT the plane had been in continuous flight for 445 hours and was adding hour after hour to the record which it established at 6:01 yesterday, but 30 minutes earlier it had appeared almost certain it would be forced down.

Military Group Takes Charge Of Bolivian Affairs

LA PAZ, Bolivia June 30—Public indignation against Gen. Hans Kundt, former German army officer who was chief of staff under the overthrown Siles regime, increased today as the capital settled down to normal under the revolutionary military government.

Various revolutionary leaders and newspapers accused General Kundt of responsibility for the bloodshed in the revolution which was estimated to have cost more than 200 lives. With many others, including some women, wounded.

General Kundt, who was given refuge at the German legation, was promised protection by the military committee but demonstrators paraded the streets last night urging he be surrendered for court martial. The press continued to attack him today, charging he was the actual power behind the regime of former president Hernandez Siles and that he issued a manifesto to all army chiefs asking them to aid the unconstitutional re-election of Siles.

Ferguson Is Said To Have Dropped To 2nd Division

AUSTIN, June 30—The past week has seen the Ferguson campaign ranked with apparent finality down into the second group of governor candidates, alongside of Thomas B. Love and James Young. It has shown Barry Miller reacting to a slight upward swing that puts him along the border line between the first and the second main groups.

Dopesters Put Sterling, Mayfield, Small and Miller In First Group with Love, Young and Ferguson In Second.

The first group seemingly is made up of R. S. Sterling, Earle B. Mayfield and Sen. Clint Small. With Barry Miller somewhere in between, and yet to be located by general opinion in one of the other, the second group now lists Miller, Thomas B. Love, James Young and Mrs. Ferguson.

Soil Erosion Takes 40 Inches In 40 Years

Erosion continues to wash away the soil resources of the Nation. A recent survey of a typical small valley in northeastern Kansas shows that 88 per cent of the land, comprising the greater part of the valley, has lost from 8 to 40 inches of soil since it was cleared 40 years ago, the United States Department of Agriculture reports.
