Fairylike Romance Unites Them

An odd romance that began when, as a girl of 13, she was visiting Paris and wrote her name on one of the steel standards of the Eiffel Tower first under that of another visitor, M. Maurice Fould, wealthy French steel magnate, will culminate in Minneapolis soon with the latter's marriage to Mrs. Mariel Wright Allen, socially prominent Minneapolis divorcee. The two renewed their acquaintance in Paris last summer, recalled the incident of years ago and recently Fould sailed for this country for the wedding. Mrs. Allen is shown above with her young son; in the inset is Fould, widower with three children and a relative of the famous Rothschild family.

Liquor Found In Creager's Hotel Room Is Charge

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Senator Brookhart, Rep., Iowa, submitted for the Congressional Record today an affidavit made by a Dallas, Tex., ambulance driver alleging he found "two full pints of white liquor" in a Dallas hotel suite occupied by Republican National Committeeman, R. B. Creager of Texas.

The Iowa senator read into the record yesterday extracts from testimony taken in the senate investigation of southern patronage which the senator said indicated "that Mr. Creager was protecting certain hotels in liquor violations."

"I think this evidence is sufficient," he declared, "to warrant the Department of Justice investigating Creager's protection of the liquor business in Texas. I also want to call the president's attention to the situation."

The affidavit Brookhart submitted, which he said was signed by Frank Bryant, Dallas Emergency Hospital ambulance driver, read as follows:

"Ambulance Driver's Affidavit
"On May 21, 1930, at 12:30 a. m. the Emergency Hospital received a telephone call from room 1507, Adolphus Hotel. The surgeon on duty got in with me and I drove to the hotel.

"The room clerk and other employees at the desk in the lobby knew nothing of the incident, and we caught the elevator. When we arrived at 1507, Mrs. Works was lying on the bed.

"Brookhart supplemented the affidavit by reading a newspaper article from a Brownsville, Tex., publication telling of the poisoning of a "Mrs. R. L. Works, Brownsville, Tex."

"She appeared to be unconscious," the affidavit continued, "I saw four bottles of milk in the room in which she lay. In a glass I found a mixture of milk and liquor. We pumped out her stomach. "While we were in the room working on Mrs. Works, a man walked into the room. He said: 'More doctors and less publicity.' I then went after a policeman downstairs. I told a policeman someone had taken Lyso, and he said he had found a Lyso bottle and a glass on Akard street.

"They had been thrown from a window of the hotel after Mrs. Works took the Lyso. When I returned alone a few minutes later, I went into the next room to 1507, which was connected by an open door. The room was one of three in Mr. Creager's suite.

"I saw two full pints of white liquor on a desk. I saw part of "Dr. Tanner has been signally honored by a group of his friends by being drafted for the office of Lieutenant-Governor of Texas in the coming primaries.

"Dr. Tanner is an enthusiastic booster for Texas and, naturally for the particular section in which his progressive city is located."

"Dagger" Pruitt Thinks Of His Mother As He Walks To His Death

By JIM JEFFERS
United Press Staff Correspondent
State Penitentiary, Huntsville, Tex., June 6.—That same air of bravado he had in life was with William (Dagger) Pruitt at the end and he walked to the electric chair in Huntsville prison without a show of fear shortly after midnight today.

At 12:08 a. m. the electric current that took his life was sent through the chair with behind the chair and at 12:15 a. m. Dr. M. H. Judd pronounced him dead. With that, his pallid body was removed from the big frame and picked up on a stretcher and carried out of the death room.

The debonair Dallas killer-bandit had paid for the murder of William Mann, high school student, a crime which he stoutly denied an interview with newspapermen an hour before he was to die. In scholarly language the 25-year-old desperado who caused a reign of terror in Dallas pronounced his views of his case and his predicament, avowing that he should have had a sanity trial, and expressing the belief his death would cause the end of capital punishment in Texas.

Shortly after midnight, a small group of witnesses were led into the execution chamber and the electric motor behind the chair started its hissing death warning. Lee Simmons, general manager of the prison system was among those present. Captain R. H. Vaughn supervised the electrocution.

Sheriff Hal Wood of Dallas county, some of his deputies and Dallas police and detectives were present.

Pruitt entered through the little green door with a firm step, walked straight to the chair, and turned to face Captain Vaughn.

"Have you any statement to make?" Captain Vaughn asked him.

"I've already made my statement," Pruitt answered.

Then he sat down. With thin straps around his legs, arms and body, and the leather death mask about to be put in place, Pruitt gathered courage to hold back tears and said: "tell my mother I was thinking of her."

Indictment For Murder Lodged Against Youth

Oscar Privett Indicted In Ranger Slaying

The 91st grand jury, which was convened Monday by Judge George L. Davenport, recessed late yesterday afternoon to take again on June 30.

Before recessing the jury turned in 36 indictments, all of which were on felony charges.

One of the indictments returned was a charge of murder with malice aforethought against Oscar Privett, who has signed a written confession of the killing of Oscar Dunson at Ranger on May 15. Dunson died Thursday night, May 15, approximately 12 hours after he was shot and Privett was charged with the murder the next morning after he had made two statements to the County Attorney's department.

The other 36 indictments were on various charges including violations of the liquor laws, forgery, robbery, burglary and driving while intoxicated.

Opposing Wet Candidate Costs Preacher's Job

HOUSTON, Tex., June 6.—J. N. Snell, a Democrat candidate for Congress, has been sustained in a fight to keep politics out of the Sunset Heights Baptist Church, his church here.

As a result Rev. W. E. Smith, ardent dry and W. C. T. U. backer has been ousted from the church of which he has been pastor since 1923.

Rev. Smith, from his pulpit, it was learned today, demanded that Snell get out of the church.

"Either accept by resignation or Snell will have to get out," the pastor said. "There is no place in the church for a wet politician and those who oppose such programs as the W. C. T. U. presents."

Snell had opposed presenting a W. C. T. U. program in the church on the grounds that it was a political organization.

The congregation voted on Smith's demand, upheld Snell. The pastor then turned in his resignation.

Snell, for the past year, had been donating $300 a year towards the preacher's salary, offering the sum when Smith had told the congregation that he would not stay on his present salary.

Nix waded after the pole, stepped into a hole and sank.

State Politics Will Center At Austin Monday

DALLAS, Tex., June 6.—Democratic political activities will center in Austin Monday when the State Democratic executive committee meets to certify the names of candidates for state office as they will appear on the ballot, to select a meeting place for the September 9 convention and to pass on petitions for a wet and dry referendum in the July primaries.

Most of the candidates for governor, 15 in all, and for other offices as well will gather in the capital city to watch the committee's actions and to confer with political supporters.

Albert Sidney Johnson, secretary of the state committee, today called attention to the fact that it is not known, in his opinion, whether the committee will exact a pledge from candidates, similar to that provided by statute or exact a pledge from candidates, similar to that provided by statute for voters participating in the primaries.

Since the Supreme Court ruling upholding Tom Love's right to a place on the ticket, most of the candidates who have filed have sent in no pledges of any kind, Johnson said. Before that time, many met the pledge set up by the committee and which was knocked out by the court.

An effort may be made to keep the name of Ferguson's name off the ticket, on the grounds that her husband, barred by impeachment from being a candidate for state office, is using subterfuge and that Mrs. Ferguson is in fact running for him. The Supreme Court recently ruled the so-called amnesty act restoring Ferguson's citizenship rights was unconstitutional and that Ferguson could not be a candidate for governor.

The September convention of the Republican party probably will be held in Houston, according to Heber Page, state committeeman from the Dallas district. The meeting place will be decided when the Republican committee convenes in Houston Monday.

R. B. Creager, Brownsville, Republican National Committeeman, was expected in Dallas late Friday or Saturday on his way to Houston from Washington.

NEGROES CHARGED

GUTHRIE, Okla., June 6.—John and La Tosca Young, Cushing negroes were found guilty by a jury in federal court here today on a charge of obstructing justice in the fatal shooting of Otto Butler, Dry Agent, in Cushing, in December, 1929.

The negroes will be sentenced June 17.

Farm Board Will Buy Millions Of Bales Of Cotton

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Faced by cotton surplus in 1930 and the consequent menace of low prices, the federal farm board, on the recommendation of the cotton advisory committee, is backing a stabilization corporation to purchase millions of bales. It will be patterned along lines similar to those of the grain stabilization group.

Announcement of the new corporation, to which the farm board plans to loan about $50,000,000 at low interest rates, was made at the board's headquarters late yesterday. It followed a report to the board from the cotton advisory committee saying an emergency existed.

Articles of incorporation for the cotton stabilization corporation were filed in Delaware yesterday. A meeting of the group's board of directors here has been called for next Monday.

Farm board officials are yet uncertain as to the amount of cotton the corporation will find it necessary to buy. They indicated the corporation will be provided with ample funds to finance necessary purchases.

Moody Is Not To Be A Candidate

His Administration's Full Strength to Be Placed Behind Sterling Is Claim

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN, Tex., June 6.—Governor Dan Moody will not be a candidate for re-election.

Chairman Ross Sterling of the State Highway Commission will not resign.

The full administration strength will be put back of Sterling's campaign for governor.

State-Wide Bond Issue
Sterling will endeavor to keep his proposal for a $300,000,000 state road bond issue out of the campaign as much as possible.

These were the apparently sure things in the badly muddled state political situation as viewed here today. While Governor Moody has persistently refused to discuss politics since his indefinite statement upon the filing of his candidacy for re-election, he has told at least two persons privately that he will not run.

The Governor is expected back from the Rio Grande Valley sometime today. Representative Alfred Petch, who went to Houston and conferred with Sterling there yesterday after conferring with Governor Moody here on Wednesday has returned to Austin. He was awaiting here today for the Governor's return for another conference. A definite statement from the Governor may follow at any time.

Petch said here today that while he is confident that Governor Moody will not run, he did not go to Houston for the purpose of carrying that message to Sterling. Nor did he ask if D. K. Martin of San Antonio will be an acceptable successor to Sterling on the State Highway Commission, he said.

Sterling should not resign, Petch said, pointing out that he has three more years to serve as chairman of the state highway commission should he not be elected governor. That he so advised Sterling is likely.

Whether efforts to soft-pedal a state road bond issue will be successful remains to be seen. Petch pointed out that the Governor has not the vote as to a bond issue but that a vote of the people decides.

"Would not Sterling's election be taken as a popular endorsement of the bonds?" Petch was asked.

Davidson to Run
"Not necessarily if the campaign were on other issues," he replied.

The Lynch Davidson will formally enter the race on Saturday was also considered practically certain here and that he will endeavor to make the proposed state road bond issue the major issue, himself opposing such a state policy.

Woman May Also Be Fatally Hurt

Another Man Less Seriously Injured When Roadster and Bus Come Together at Street Intersection

DALLAS, Tex., June 6.—One man was killed, a woman was critically injured and may die and another was hurt less seriously today when the roadster in which they were riding crashed into the side of a Ward-Way bus at a street intersection here.

Azelle Pitts, driver of the roadster, was thrown under the wheels of the bus by the impact and crushed to death.

Mrs. Opal Pruitt, 16, received a fracture of the skull and possible internal injuries. She was riding in the rumble seat of the machine.

Edde Pruitt, 18, was bruised and cut about the body.

The injured were rushed to a Dallas hospital where attendants said Mrs. Pruitt had only a fighting chance for recovery.

Sweetwater, Texas, June 6

Frank M. Gibson, 21, college student from Norman, Hitchhiking his way to El Paso to enlist in the Citizen's Military Training Camp, was instantly killed in an automobile crash here today.

He was riding on the running board when the machine collided with another.

He had ridden from Abilene with Hill Hester, Robert Lawrence and a girl, Bobbie Wright, all of Quinlan, Texas. They escaped injury. L. E. Jones, Sweetwater butcher, was driving the second car. The Quinlan trio were held for investigation.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Gibson, parents of the dead youth, were reported to be en route from their home at Norman.

News From The State Capital

Governor Dan Moody upon his return from the Rio Grande Valley today said that Representative Alfred Petch did not go to Houston to confer with Ross Sterling as his emissary.

The governor indicated that Petch's action was entirely voluntary. "I have given him no power of attorney," said the governor.

Beyond the statement that he will attend the meeting of the State Democratic Executive Committee, Governor Moody declined to make a political statement.

He admitted he had read press reports of Representative Alfred Petch's statement that he will not run.

The provision of the State election laws that in an election for United States Senator, those who offer to vote may be challenged, and if challenged, may be required to make affidavit that at the last general election they supported the party nominees may be utilized in the July election despite the State Supreme Court ruling that Hoover supporters are entitled to a place on the Democratic ticket.

A attorney of state wide reputation made the declaration here today that the resolution of the State Democratic Executive Committee inviting Hoover supporters to return to the Democratic party and take part in the primary cannot overrule that provision of the senatorial election statute.

Because of personal connection with the pending campaign, he would make no public statement.

"DAGGER" FRUITT THINKS—

Mother Waits Nearby
Two blocks down the street in the rest room of the county courthouse, the mother, father and brother of the dying youth were waiting. Shortly after midnight they learned their son and brother was dead.

The helmet was fitted close to Pruitt's head. Something clicked and the man in the chair lurched against his bonds. His partly covered face turned a flaming red. In the back end of the small execution room a man faintly and was taken into the fresh air.

Seven minutes later Dr. Judd put his stethoscope against Pruitt's chest and pronounced him dead.

"Dagger" was calm to the end. He talked to his parents without shedding a tear, and finally abandoned hope. He refused late Thursday night to see one of his lawyers who was in the wardens office, saying there was "no use."

A few minutes before he was to die, a woman wired Pruitt, signing herself "Mrs. E. L." and admonishing him to read a passage of scripture she referred to and telling him that "we are at our posts and will continue."

Gives Interview
In his interview with newspaper men, Pruitt declared that he was treated unfairly when a sanity trial was refused.

"Do you think it would have done any good?" he was asked. "Yes, I do," he answered. "The way people in Dallas feel about this case, I think it would. I believe when the truth about this case comes out, it will be the end of capital punishment in Texas."

"I don't want it reported that I confessed. Realizing that I am as close to the hereafter as I am I want to say that I don't know anything about the case except what I heard at the trial. Believing in the hereafter as I do, I wouldn't lie to my God at this late hour."

Pruitt shifted to another foot, took a cigarette from his shirt pocket and lighted it. "I've tried to forgive those who testified against me, and hope in my sub-conscious mind that I have. I want to forgive them. I can truthfully say I have no fear of death. I never thought I'd have to go over there until a day or two ago, and then I realized I was up against it."

Didn't Want to Go
"Understand I don't want to go in there—I'd a lot rather be on the outside—but I'm not afraid of it."

In the death row cell next to Pruitt, there sat Ofilio Herrera, Meixan slayer of a sheriff, twice condemned to die and now awaiting execution. He appeared nervous and fidgety as reporters talked to the youth across the hall.

The "back of the yards boy" who grew up to be a one man crime wave thus atoned for the killing of Mann. Though branded as a companion of underworld characters, Pruitt nevertheless was a scholar as a school boy, and once a student of Theodore Kossloff, the Russian dance master.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., June 6.—Mrs. R. B. Creager, wife of the Republican National Committeeman from Texas, today staunchly defended him against the charges of Senator Brookhart, Repn. Ia., that he protected Dallas houses in liquor violations.

"The charges Senator Brookhart made are not true," Mrs. Creager said. "He waited until my husband left Washington before he dared make such absurd accusations."

Moody Is Not—
Many people coming to Austin from out of the state say that Mrs. Ferguson is likely to be pitted with him in that contest.

Barry Miller's friends believe that while other candidates are pairing off in fights that the lieutenant governor's personal popularity will give him the necessary vote to go into the run-off.

Parrish, it is generally believed, will not take advantage of the committee filing of his name but will leave Clint Small the only West Texas candidate.

Former Governor James E. Ferguson today predicted that more than 800,000 votes will be cast in the primary. More than 10,000 candidates are running for various offices, he pointed out.

Packing Company President Held In Murder Case
TOPEKA, Kansas, June 6.—The president of a packing company, one of his employees were linked here today in an alleged insurance murder plot which caused the death of the vice-president of the company.

First degree murder charges have been filed against Louis H. Kimmel, president of the Kaw Packing Company, and Virgil Pointer, handy man in the company shops. Kimmel was free under $25,000 bond.

An amazing story of a plot in which Kimmel attempted to secure ready cash for his company by collecting $50,000 insurance on the life of Roy Kramer, the vice-president, was told by Pointer in a purported confession to county authorities.

Pointer said Kimmel had promised him an "easy job for life" if he would perpetrate the murder of Kramer. He readily confessed to the actual slaying, according to Glenn Logan, county attorney. He was arrested when discovered buying a high-priced automobile which he said was being paid for by Kimmel.

Kimmel had made no statement today except to issue a blanket denial of Pointer's charges.

Kramer's body was found lying beside his automobile on a highway near here March 26. The wheel of his roadster had been jacked up to make it appear he had been working to repair a tire when hit by a passing automobile. Pointer confessed he killed Kramer with a sledge hammer in the official's office in the company plant, later taking his body to the spot where it was found.

Pointer told County Attorney Logan the death was made to appear accidental in order that the company might collect double indemnity. The insurance has been paid.

Missionaries Tell Gruesome Tales Of Starvation In China
BY UNITED PRESS
PEIPING, June 6.—One of the greatest military movements in recent history has been completed with evacuation of Kansu and Shensi provinces by the armies of Marshal Feng Yu-Hsiang according to V. G. Plymire, American missionary who paused here on route to the United States from his station in Dangar, in Kokonor, on the Tibetan border. Plymire, who has worked in Kansu and Tibet since 1908, said that Feng's men penetrated as far as the Tibetan border, after their sanguinary encounters with the Mohammedans last year, and had garrisons in almost every city. Some of them marched hundreds of miles from the rail-head on the Shensi border and back again, fighting hostile Mohammedans as they went.

But now Kansu and Shensi have been completely evacuated Plymire said. He estimated that at least 250,000 soldiers had taken part in this movement, and had poured into Honan from Kansu and Shensi since the order for an attack upon General Chaing Kai-Shek had come from Marshal Feng—the so-called "Christian-General."

"Thousands of these soldiers have been on rations of 12 ounces a day," said Plymire, "and I saw many of them along the road, unable to proceed."

Plymire and his wife went through the ordeal of a massacre at Dangar, in which a large part of the town was wiped out, and soon afterward 700 Koumichun soldiers, badly wounded, were brought into their compound for treatment. Plymire is not a doctor, but had to perform difficult operations because there was no one else to help the soldiers.

BRISBANE, Australia, June 6.—A gruesome tale of starvation in China and the sale of women for a few dollars a piece to get money for food was told by Mackenzie today.

YOUNG REPLIES TO LOVES TAMMANY CHARGE
BY UNITED PRESS
BASTROP, Tex., June 6.—Charges of Senator Thomas B. Love that James Young, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, has the backing of the Tammany group in his campaign were denied here Thursday.

Young said that Love "is an enemy of organized democracy and is seeking to destroy party organization." "He added that in attacking him Love "is trying to save his political scalp by smoke screens of prohibition, tammanyism and all kinds of 'isms in which he prides himself."

"He would like to divert the minds of the voters of Texas from his advocacy of a $350,000,000 state bond issue for highways which would crucify the taxpayers and the unborn children of this generation on the altar of taxation," Young declared.

"He likewise is trying to divert the minds of voters from his advocacy of the expenditure of some $8,000,000 of the people's tax money in building an experimental industrial plant near Austin and abandoning our present penitentiary properties.

Negroes And U. S. Sailors In Riot
BY UNITED PRESS
NEW LONDON, Conn., June 6.—More than 500 coast guardsmen and sailors from the United States submarine base participated in a riot in the negro section today.

Two sailors were arrested but forfeited $50 in bonds in police court. They gave their names as L. A. Newson and Athol B. Williams.

According to police a negro woman knocked out one sailor and seriously injured the second. The conscious survivor summoned shipmates and within an hour more than 200 sailors were in the district.

Word of the battle reached the coast guard base and 350 guardsmen left ships and barracks and rushed to the assistance of the navy men.

Police restored order after several hours of effort. Besides Newson and Williams, 14 sailors were arrested in a speakeasy.

Converse, jealous of her friendship with Bernadine, leaves him. Alan is by his secretary, Phillipa who is seeking to make an arrangement for marriage.

Alan returns, and Alan realizes that Phillipa has cleverly prevented him from going to the office. Phillipa releases him.

Alan's sister, Florence, fakes a letter to bring Alan back to the office. Alan's chivalrous for Phillipa permits her to stand between him and Alan.

Alan goes to Alan's office to meet Bernadine. Her flares up again and Alan leaves bitterly with Alan. Alan pleads for forgiveness, but she does not tell him that she is there. Natalie leaves in a fearful Alan's anger will not endure, uses a letter from Bernadine in a plot to discredit Natalie. She changes the name of a stock Bernadine wants to buy to one that is worthless. Bernadine comes to the office after the order has gone through and discovers the change that has been made in the letter. Suspicion, directed by Phillipa, points to Natalie. Alan believes her guilty.

Natalie is stricken to utter hopelessness by his accusation. Alan leaves her and goes to Bernadine to offer to repay her losses. He tells her he is through with Natalie for all time. Bernadine is worried over her little boy, Bobby's, future.

Not long afterward Alan is hurriedly called to her home.

CHAPTER XLII

Alan did not want to think of Natalie, as he rushed up to Bernadine's in response to the urgent summons from Dr. Wagnall, but he could not put her out of his mind.

She was always present in his thoughts whenever he went to Bernadine's. "It's because we used to live in Westchester," he told himself, half angrily, half excusingly. He did not want to believe Natalie now held even the tiniest place in his heart.

He had not forgiven her for her last letter—she wrote it in anger though he kept it where he could read it often. "Just to remind myself what an utterly callous creature she is," he would say to himself. "Giving me my freedom! What a gesture! As though she had not ended everything through what she did to Bernadine!"

Bernadine's gradual, but steady sinking, turned his heart to stone against Natalie. Whenever he looked at the sick woman's sunken cheeks and deeply recessed eyes, he felt a new wave of anger come over him.

For Bernadine had never left her bed after Dr. Wagnall had said she must stay there until he gave her permission to get up. To the medical man, the end was coming about as he expected, but Alan could not escape the belief Bernadine had suffered a shock through Natalie's act from which she could not recover.

Had Dr. Wagnall, or Bernadine either, guessed what was on his mind, they could have told him he was wrong that what was happening had been inevitable for a long time.

But Alan kept his bitterness to himself, and strove to be cheerful when in Bernadine's company. He thought he was making her believe he was happy, but when she was closed, he would, as he imagined, it was because she could not bear to see the hidden pain that lay in his.

Her heart ached for him because he had lost the woman she had loved, but when she was closed, he would, as he imagined, it was because she could not bear to see the hidden pain that lay in his.

He never talked to her of Natalie, or of Phillipa either. Only Bernadine's almost supernatural perception enabled her to see that Alan was a fixture in his life with equanimity.

He was rather glad of her. She adored Bobby. Her disappointment because Bernadine would not allow the little boy to leave the house—Phillipa wanted Alan to bring him down to the office—touched Alan.

Phillipa's disappointment was real enough—there were so many things that Bobby, while enjoying a big dish of ice cream, might have told her. Things that she didn't like to ask Alan, but Alan there was no other way of finding them out, for Alan was maddeningly reserved these days.

She wanted to know, for instance, just how ill Bernadine was. She could have asked Bobby how many times a day she was taken to see his mother, and weighed the answer for herself. She could have asked him if anybody had talked to him about going away to a school—a plan that Alan told her had been suggested in the event of his mother's dying.

But Alan did not say that the plan had been suggested by the nurse, Nellie, who was fearful that Alan's guardianship of the boy would mean that she would lose the child entirely if he were taken into Alan's home. She knew her shortcomings, Nellie did, and she had a very earnest conviction she would not be engaged to look after Bobby when a sterner mistress than Bernadine was doing the engaging. She had in mind a professional housekeeper, and they were "worse than the wives," to Nellie.

She could at least, she figured, visit Bobby once in a while if he were in a school. Alan had not seriously considered the plan, but he had spoken of it to Phillipa, without giving his opinion on the subject, and she had fed herself with the hope that it might be carried out. To have a kid like Bobby around the house would drive her wild, she declared—in secret.

Alan, on his way now to Bernadine, despairing of seeing her alive, felt infinitely grateful for Phillipa. She would help him; she would be a real mother to Bobby.

He always thought something pleasant about Phillipa when Natalie threatened to obsess his mind. It helped him to forget her. But Phillipa was not unfailingly effective. Even to the door of Bernadine's house Alan thought of Natalie.

Oh, why, why, why couldn't she have been as good as she looked? When this was over, and Bernadine was "out there," Natalie, in their house a few streets away could have made everything so different—so bearable.

He rang the doorbell, with a feeling of helplessness. Why was it, he wondered, that people always expected a man to meet these crises with undaunted courage? He would have given anything at that moment to have Natalie at his side.

Always going back to Natalie! He recognized the unformed wish in his mind as an outcropping of what he called "his damnable weakness." The weakness of which he was ashamed. Why couldn't he sustain his disgust and contempt for her? Why were his heart and his mind always engaged in warfare over her? Well, no matter. His heart had won once—now it was time for his head to take control of his destiny.

His anxiety over Bernadine deepened the moment the door was opened for him. It was not Nellie's tear-stained face that he saw. A strange maid told him, in hushed and frightened tones, that he was to go up immediately.

Halfway up the stairs he heard Nellie speaking to Bobby, evidently trying to restrain the boy from going to his mother's room. Her voice wrung Alan's heart.

"Hush, darlin', hush. Mother can't see you now. Be a god boy, Bobby, please."

Bobby's childish treble, raised in protest against this interference, caused Alan to reach hastily for his handkerchief.

"But I want to tell Mummy I've builded a bridge," Bobby cried. She wanted me to build her a

Held in Society Rum Plot

Twenty New York society leaders were to be called before the federal grand jury to tell when they know of plans to use their private yachts to smuggle choice liquors into the United States. bridge, and I've builded it."

"She'll know, darlin'." She'll know everything you do; when you're a good boy and when you're not."

Alan went on, but an icy chill had gripped him. He was, then, too late. The maid's nod when he had whispered in the hall: "How is she?" had meant that Bernadine was gone.

One of the nurses who had been in constant attendance upon Bernadine of late, opened the door and said in a professionally subdued voice: "Come in."

Alan looked hastily toward the bed. Dr. Wagnall was bent over his patient. Alan stepped to his side.

"She will not know you," the physician said, straightening up. "She's in a coma."

It seemed to Alan that he stood there in a state of soul-trying inactivity for time unending. The helplessness of man when he would hold a soul from departing mortal clay appalled him. Beads of moisture dotted his brow, but his lips were dry as sun-baked sand.

In reality it was less than half an hour before the doctor looked at him, and said gravely: "She's dead."

Alan stood a moment longer, silently wishing God-speed to the voyager on her long journey. Then he turned with the steps of an old man and went out.

Life seemed heavy, crushing, a burden. Had there ever been any joy in it? Would Bobby smile again when his childish mind grasped the sorrowful fact that his "Mummy" was not there any more?

Nellie was at the door of the nursery. Bobby had tried himself into his afternoon nap, long delayed, and freed her to go to her beloved mistress.

She saw Alan walking wearily down the hall and one glance at his pallid face told her it was over. With a muffled cry she stepped out into the hall and closed the door of the nursery behind her, instinctively thinking of Bobby.

She ran to Bernadine's door just as Dr. Wagnall was coming out. He told the nurse in charge to let her in.

Alan looked at her as she flew to the bed. "I'll wait," he said to

Dr. Wagnall, "to help her with Bobby."

"In the meantime," Dr. Wagnall replied, "will you come downstairs. Mr. Converse? It's imperative that we discuss certain matters at once."

Alan knew what it was he wanted to talk about. "I'll take charge of everything, doctor," he said when they reached the lower hall. "Mrs. Lamont arranged it legally, I believe."

The doctor looked at him keenly. "I'm glad to know the boy is going to be well looked after," he said, extending his hand. "I'm sorry I've so little time—I'd like to stay and go into some of these matters with you, but I've neglected my patients too long as it is. Fortunately none of them were in danger."

"I feel I might thank you, doctor, for devoting so much time to . . . to . . ." Alan voice broke over Bernadine's name; he could not utter it.

Alan watched him go with regret. Now he was alone, with grief-stricken servants and a motherless boy.

The sound of Nellie's sobbing, now beyond her control, came down to him. Slowly he mounted the stairs. Surely she would wake Bobby, and he would have to tell him . . . what would he tell him?

What would he do with him? He could think of but one person to help him. Phillipa!

CAPTURE THE LAST MAN IN JAIL BREAK

RANGER, Texas, June 6.—Soon after the completion of the Stephens county courthouse, a jail break from the supposedly "escape-proof" jail on the top floor of the building occurred.

That was more than two years ago. All the men who escaped were re-taken, except one.

On Wednesday night, Police Chief Jim Ingram and Policeman Bratton of Ranger rounded up the last man who had gained his liberty.

Deputy Sheriff Bud Deason came over from Breckenridge and took the prisoner to that city.

Oil Producers Say New Pipe Line Law Is Proration Plan

DALLAS, Tex., June 11.—The new oil pipe line law, enacted to prevent discrimination in handling of the fuel, was hailed by Texas oil producers today as a means of obtaining proration and conservation of flush fields, with the railroad commission acting as the enforcement agency, when a committee of producers met with pipe line representatives to agree on recommendations to the railroad commission.

The conference was attended by the special committee of seven from the Texas division, Mid-Continent oil and gas association.

R. R. Penn, Dallas independent producer was authorized to name a committee of six to work out a program of curtailment of flush fields so as to adjust the supply and demand, and so survey the entire situation with the idea of submitting a plan to the railroad commission.

The railroad rules and regulations for enforcing the pipe line law, Charles Morgan, Fort Worth, secretary of the Independent Producers Association, said.

"In its final analysis, the new law is in effect a big proration proposition. It is the biggest proration ever undertaken in Texas.

Others attending the meeting included Underwood Nazro, Houston, C. I. Francis, Wichita Falls, Warner Clark, Dallas and Tom Cranfill, Dallas.

Eight Of Thirteen Madmen Captured

IONIA, Mich., June 11.—Fresh squads of volunteers, armed with shotguns and rifles, went forth at dawn today to relieve a band of 200 red-eyed and weary vigilantes in the search for five inmates of the state hospital for the criminal insane who remained at liberty after yesterday's outbreak.

Anxious farmers and townsmen, were relieved to learn this morning that three of the escaped madmen had been captured during the night by possemen.

The general anxiety was further lessened when three other fugitives, two of them murderers, were captured this morning on a road near Orleans, ten miles northwest of Ionia.

Deputy sheriffs effected the capture. One of those taken, John Campbell, 33, from Saginaw county, was considered the ring leader in the break. It was his second self-inflicted release from the hospital in two years. Omar Hassan, 47, convicted of murder in Detroit, and Joseph Sabinkak, 35, convicted of a murder charge at Flint, were with Campbell.

Originally there were 13 men in the group which forced its way out of the state hospital after attacking guards and other officials with dirks fashioned from table knives, but two were taken a few hours after the break and returned to the institution.

With daylight the tense feeling of insecurity and fear which had gripped the countryside over night, relaxed. However, farmers still kept their loaded shotguns handy.

Throughout the night 200 or more men—deputy sheriffs, state troopers, hospital guards and volunteers—kept watch. Lights of motor cars flashed on and off, as drivers trained them on every moving object.

The first man caught last night was John Milendez, who tried to rob a bank in Detroit.

Frank Garrison, 36, and Pearl Covington, 37, surrendered peacefully to possemen.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

Sunday and the gospel is from St. John XIV. 23. Pentecost is from the Greek word Pentecoste meaning fiftieth. It is the 50th day after Easter Sunday and the tenth day after Christ's ascension into heaven. This feast seems to be of Apostolic times, though the origin is much older. The feast of Pentecost was one of the three principal feasts of the Jews, and was called the feast of weeks, because it was celebrated seven weeks or fifty days after Easter. This feast was instituted chiefly in thanksgiving for the harvest that had been gathered in, which in the land of the Jews began at Easter and ended at Pentecost. On this feast two loaves and the first fruits were offered up with great solemnity. Later the Jews celebrated the feast of Pentecost in memory of the Law given on Mount Sinai, for which reason it was also called the feast of the Law. The Law being the Ten Commandments of God implanted in the heart and mind of every individual whether known explicitly or not. Hence all endowed with reason are bound to observe the Ten Commandments of God. (Rev.) M. Collins.

When Life Is At Stake Per ten consecutive years all the winning cars in that classic of automobile racing, the Indianapolis 500 Mile Endurance race, flashed across the finish line on Firestone Tires. In fact every famous driver in these races used Firestone Tires. Everyone of them for years has refused to use any other and the reasons behind their choice tell a story of Firestone leadership. The Indianapolis race requires the most expert driving in the world. It is won or lost on the turns. The man who can make the turns at the highest speed is the man who wins. The track is of rough brick and bumpy. As the race progresses, it becomes soaked with oil and very slippery. Down the straightways the cars pound at sometimes 150 miles an hour, but as the turns come the driver must judge how much speed he can preserve and how much skid he can take and still stay in the land of the living. This judgment must stay with him through 500 miles with changing track conditions, with nerves gone, with hands and body numb and with eyes blinded. These men flirt with death, but there is one chance they will not take. They will not take a chance with tires. These drivers buy Firestone tires. Their tires are not given to them by Firestone, much less are they paid to use them. And herein is the story. Many years ago Firestone did pay drivers to race. The most famous of these drivers was Barney Oldfield. But in the course of time Firestone withdrew from racing and the making of racing tires. Then the trouble began. The leading drivers of the country said that it was Mr. Firestone's business whether or not he paid them to use his tires, but it was their business to judge the risks they would take. They would race on Firestone tires, no matter what the cost, or they would not race at all. And so Firestone had again to make racing tires. There is only one difference between Firestone racing tires and the tires you can buy from Hall Tire Co., your Firestone dealer, and that is in the tread. The heat generated in a tire during the race is terrific. It is heat that causes most tires to fail. The ordinary road tread will burn up on a track, and so for it Firestone substitutes a harder lighter tread which would be exceedingly uncomfortable on the road but which perfectly answers the track requirements. That, however is only a detail. The reason why Firestone tires stand up in any race is to be found in their construction--the same today abroad the liner President Harding after visiting the graves of their sons in the war cemeteries of France. Praise was expressed by all the mothers for the treatment accorded them by both the French and American governments during their trip.

Dallas To Have Federal Weather Bureau July 1

DALLAS, Tex., June 5.—Expansion of federal weather bureau facilities here effective July 1 will make Dallas the hub of dissemination for the entire southwest, with particular stress on aviation safeguards. The enlargement is a part of the general airway expansion to be undertaken through the department of commerce. It will entail an expenditure of from $15,000 to $20,000, and possibly six additional men will be stationed here. Distribution of special aviation weather service information throughout the day and night will be the most important new feature. Auxiliary stations will be maintained as heretofore at Houston, Fort Worth, San Antonio and Galveston.

ONE PRESCRIPTION MADE FAMILY DOCTOR FAMOUS

Seldom has any single act been of greater benefit to mankind than that of Dr. Caldwell in 1885, when he wrote the prescription which has carried his fame to the four corners of the earth. Over and over Dr. Caldwell wrote the prescription as he found men, women and children suffering from those common symptoms of constipation, such as coated tongue, bad breath, headaches, gas, nausea, biliousness, no energy, lack of appetite, and similar things. Demand for this prescription grew so fast, because of the pleasant, quick way it relieved such symptoms of constipation, that by 1888 Dr. Caldwell was forced to have it put up ready for use. Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is always ready at any drugstore.
