FOREIGN

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., June 5—A situation of suffering and narrow escape from death were heard of as hundreds of refugees plodded back to their homes in areas of overland laid waste by forest fires in the past four days. Drenching rains had quenched the more numerous blazes and foresters said a situation was well under control. Thousands of acres of rufous forests from which rose great clouds of steam remained as evidence of the flames. Many of the refugees returned to the scenes of their homes.

Mrs. J. L. Johnson and daughter will leave Friday for Wyoming to spend the summer. Samuel Butler will leave Sunday for the East.

Moody Declines To Talk Politics

AUSTIN, Tex., June 5—The departure of Alfred Petch of Fredericksburg for Houston last night after a conference here with Governor Moody let to much political speculation here today.

Petch has been particularly close to chairman Ross Sterling of the committee of 31 appointed by Governor Moody to advise with the legislature on a state road bond issue.

Governor Moody left Austin last night for the Rio Grande Valley with D. Woodward. He is due to speak at Harlingen today. Prior to his departure he declined to discuss politics.

Lynch Davidson of Houston, here today, said he will announce Saturday whether or not he will run for governor. He was visibly impressed both by the number and the tone of the letters and telegrams he is receiving urging him to make the race. Clint Small headquarters were opened in a local hotel here yesterday.

Passenger Plane Dives Into Bay At Boston Today

One Passenger Is Probably Fatally Injured and Others Are Rushed To Hospitals For Medical Treatment

BOSTON, June 5—An engine that suddenly went dead sent the huge Colonial transport plane Nocomos hurtling into the waters of Boston Harbor from an altitude of 100 feet early this afternoon.

The mishap was witnessed by twenty persons at the airport. Attaches of the field, with ropes and paraphernalia, immediately put out to the fallen plane in boats in an effort to assist passengers.

From the airport the big plane could be seen on the harbor waters, but the extent of damage was not apparent. Neither could it be definitely determined whether the lives of the fourteen passengers were in peril.

The plane was a Ford tri-motor, one of the Colonial's fleet used regularly on the Boston-New York run.

A few minutes after the mishap, a crowd of about 2,000 had gathered on the shore at the airport.

A coast guard patrol boat was on hand, lending assistance.

One passenger was later reported to be apparently dead, and the other 13 were being taken to hospitals.

The cabin of the plane was under water and one wing was broken.

Occupants were tossed about the cabin as the Nocomos struck bottom with terrific impact.

The wrecked plane tipped over on its right side and water rushed in, nearly drowning at least one passenger and causing several others to suffer from immersion.

Several occupants of the craft climbed onto the wings to await rescue.

Meanwhile airport employes hastily gathered ropes and other paraphernalia and put out in a small motor launch.

A coast guard patrol boat from the vicinity and this also headed toward the fallen plane.

Two rowboats brought other rescuers to the scene.

President Hoover Dealt a Solar Plexus Blow

There are thousands of Spanish American war veterans. Names of many of these veterans have never appeared on the pension rolls. The American congress enacted a bill liberalizing the pension law, granting a small increase per month in the pension paid to those who needed pensions for gallant service to the flag and the honor of the nation and enabling those who had not been enrolled to place their names on the honor list.

Pres. Hoover vetoed this most meritorious bill. His veto message was sent to the congress. What happened filled the White House with gloom and sent dismay to the hearts of the champions of his veto measure. This is the record: the senate voted 61 to 18 to override the first veto message of the president to be acted upon and the house voted 295 to 14 in passing the bill over the presidential veto knife.

It was the most crushing rejection of a veto message that has taken place under the big dome in the city of Washington for many decades. Rifle leaders of the republic who are willing to shed their blood on the field of battle in defense of the republic and its flag are entitled to the very best that the national law makers can give them.

All honor to Sen. Tom Connally of Texas. He is a veteran of the Spanish American war. He led the fight in the senate for the rejection of the veto message and the enactment of the bill. All honor to Morris Sheppard. He stood with Connally in defense of the veterans of all the wars who are in the land of the living today.

Least we forget, it was veteran's legislation that brought Calvin Coolidge some of his biggest reverses in congress. He had never been a soldier; he had never bared his bosom to the bullets of the enemy on the field of battle. His veto of the soldier bonus insurance measure was overridden in both the senate and the house. He was given a thorough congressional spanking, but he mustered a greater following than Pres. Hoover mustered in defense of his veto of the measure liberalizing pensions for Spanish war veterans.

Coolidge was spanked by a vote of 59 to 26 in the senate and 313 to 78 in the house. Place the vote in the official record.

Dr. George C. Butte's Candidacy Those who are lacking in Dr. George C. Butte are wise politicians, and this is not written to discredit the qualifications of any of the republicans named in connection with the gubernatorial nomination.

Dr. Butte has loomed large in the picture and this for some time. In 1924, he was the republican nominee for governor. In 1924, Thomas B. Love and his followers bolted the nomination of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson. Mrs. Ferguson was elected by a handsome majority, but Butte received, with the assistance of Love and his followers, more than 300,000 votes.

Since his defeat, Dr. Butte has held high appointments from at least two presidents of the United States. He is prominent socially in Texas and in Washington, and many of his kin in Texas are of old democratic families. He has received great publicity in recent years, and his name, owing to his remarkable race against Mrs. Ferguson, is a household word.

Love and his followers threw more than 200,000 votes to Butte in 1924. It would be the irony of fate if Dr. Butte is selected as the republican standard-bearer, and more than 300,000 regulars would vote for the head of the republican ticket in Texas in November, 1930. A party pledge is illegal in Texas. It is not worth the paper on which it is printed or written. This was the supreme court decision in the Love mandamus case.

13 To Be Charged With Parts In The Chickasha Rioting

CHICKASHA, Okla., June 5—Criminal charges of homicide, rioting, inciting to riot and incendiarism were expected to be filed against 12 or 13 persons today as the result of the inquest of the mob riot here last Saturday.

John Lee of Chickasha was accused by Assistant United States District Attorney Ed M. Frye as the one who destroyed a national guard truck during the riot. The information charged Lee with buying a gallon of gasoline which he threw on the truck.

The inquest which began yesterday was continued today after county attorney B. F. Holding had adjourned the hearing late yesterday because of vagueness of testimony.

Greta Garbo Has Magnetic Personality, Says Charles Bickford

When Greta Garbo walks into a scene she's got something no woman in the world has! Such was the observation made recently by Charles Bickford, who worked opposite the Swedish star in "Anna Christie," her first Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talking picture which is playing at the Lyric Theatre.

"I haven't any idea what it is, that 'something,'" said Bickford. "Call it sex appeal, magnetism or whatever you will, it is there just as plainly as the flame that leaps up when you put a match to a lamp."

"I was fascinated watching her and trying to figure it out. She is one person off the set, quiet, retiring and reserved. You could pass her by without knowing she was sitting there. But the minute she walks through a door into a scene, you can look at nothing else. She just lights up with that elusive and intangible something and dominates her whole surroundings. Her every gesture is compelling, her very glance hypnotic."

"She has that same fascination and sparkle on the screen, I have noticed. And the funny part about it, I don't think she is conscious of it. It is simply her personality, a natural response to her dramatic instinct without an ounce of artificiality."

the statement said, for election day work in the counties and precincts of the 10 Virginia congressional districts. Cannon tabulated the money spent in each district, but did not say who received it.

In making this public statement, which he promised yesterday, Cannon did not modify his previous stand that his anti-Smith activities in Virginia were no business of the lobby committee.

The Bishop's challenge to the committee's power remained unweakened. The Bishop's accounting was given only in outlines. He did not state the names of any persons or firms to whom money was paid and did not separate the lump sums spent in congressional districts into no categories of expense.

Cannon, in concluding his statement, said he had worked to years for prohibition without pay, when I might have had at least $100,000, and he did not think persons "whose opinion I value" will think he received any personal profit from the fund.

Apparently laying the ground for further action, Walsh read the record of the Anti-Smith Democrats of Virginia showing the organization "loaned" Cannon $2,000 in $500 advances during July and August, 1928. A record of other similar advances to Cannon also was read.

In none of these reports," said Walsh, "does there appear any record of receipts from Mr. Jameson." Cannon has said he received $65,309 from E. C. Jameson, New York financier, of which $17,000 was turned over to the Anti-Smith Democratic organization.

Mrs. Bates is to be commended for having made such a splendid record, and Lockhart feels proud indeed to claim so worthy a citizen for her own. Evidence of this fact was made known by the large crowd of Lockhart people who drove over for the commencement exercises. Among the enjoyable features of the program, the address by Dr. Seelman, President of the Southern Methodist University, Dallas, was of special interest.

INDIANAPOLIS
LEADERSHIP

Every driver in the Indianapolis 500 mile endurance race selected his own tires and for the 11th consecutive year every winner rode on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires.

The Firestone tires used in this race are the same 6.00" and 7.00" tires Firestone builds for every day service.

The only difference is in the tread. The gum-dipped cord construction is the same. Both tires are the new Firestone heavy duty balloons.

THE WORLD HAS DEVELOPED INTO A BIG RACE TRACK

Tires must have stamina today as never before. Cars are faster and more powerful. Wheels are smaller. Roads are better. Distance is measured in minutes instead of miles. All this subjects tires to greater wear, harder strains, and the faster a car travels the more essential is the need for tires that are dependable and safe.

The answer is the new Supreme Balloon, the strongest, toughest, safest tire ever built. Gum-dipped cord construction, extra rubber between the plies, a broader thicker safety tread. And new beauty to enhance the finest car.

The Prodigal Son and the "Fatted Calf"!

GIN HERE TODAY

Converse, jealous of her friendship with Bernadine, leaves him. Alan, in consultation with his secretary, Phillipa West, who has managed to become enemies.

he returns, and Alan realizes he loves her, but his enmity with Phillipa prevents him from attempting a reconciliation. He asks Phillipa to release him, but she refuses, and makes a desperate appeal to his pity.

Alan's sister, Florence, fakes a coming home to bring him back to his old home. Phillipa still stands between them. Florence leaves, hoping to get along better if she herself. Natalie makes a visit to Alan's office and there Bernadine, who is seeking advice. Natalie's old jealousy is again and she quarrels with her.

Alan goes to Phillipa's apartment, after a long evening at a hotel. The next morning he comes to the office to find forgiveness, but Alan is told by telephone and Phillipa tells him that Natalie is ful about trusting me?" Alan asked.

"No, Alan, not about trusting you. But there are so many things that can happen, especially if you and Natalie really are at the parting of the ways."

"Well, we are," Alan replied, crisply. "But that makes no difference to you, Bernadine. I love Bobby. I believe I've grown more or less to think of him as my own son. Why, I'd be crazy about having him in my home."

He broke off abruptly, aware too late of the significance of his words. Bobby in his home meant Bernadine—dead. Silently he cursed himself for a blundering fool. But he guessed the cause of his sudden perturbation, and smiled understandingly at him.

"It's all right, Alan," she said gently. "I know I have to go—and I'm not sorry. At least, I wouldn't be if it weren't for Bobby, but I'm wondering what will happen to him if you should ever marry again."

"You don't have to worry about that, Bernadine," Alan told her. "I wouldn't marry any woman who didn't love Bobby. And you know Natalie doesn't care for children. I'm glad she'll never have a chance to hurt him," he added fiercely.

Bernadine sighed. "I was afraid it was like that," she said. "Alan, tell me, did Bobby have anything to do with your quarrels with Natalie?"

Alan answered uncomfortably: "She never knew why you sent for me that first night I went to your house."

"Then she was jealous of me?" "Yes," Alan admitted. "So I thought it best not to tell her about Bobby, unless... unless it became unavoidable."

"I'm sorry," Bernadine spoke with deep regret. "I'm afraid I didn't consider your wife that night, Alan; or you, either, perhaps. I was thinking only of Bobby."

"You did me a great honor," Alan quickly assured her. "I'm sorry, too, that Natalie couldn't

Two years ago Marion Hollins, left, entered into a "gentlemen's agreement" with Louise Dudley and Eric Pedley, a noted polo player, that whichever of the three made a million dollars first would present the two others with checks for $25,000 each. And here they are as they appeared at the "payoff dinner" at San Francisco. Miss Hollins, well-known in New York society circles, recently received $1,500,000 when a Kettleman Hills, Calif., oil well in which she held stock became a gusher.

Phillipa, fearful that Alan's anger will not endure, uses a letter from Bernadine in a plot to discredit Natalie. She changes the name of a stock Bernadine wants to one that is worthless. Bernadine comes to the office after the order has gone through and discovers the change that was made in the letter. Alan starts an investigation. Suspicion, directed by Phillipa, points to Natalie. Alan believes her guilty and goes up to Hillshire to accuse her.

Natalie, sick with despair, is stricken to utter hopelessness by Alan's accusation. He tells her he despises her, and leaves to go to Bernadine and offer to repay her losses. Bernadine is alarmed at his state of mind.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXI

Alan got up and paced the length of Bernadine's somewhat exotic living room, kicking aside a big fat floor cushion that got in his way and then instantly apologizing with a brief "Sorry."

Bernadine relaxed. "I was afraid," she said, "that you were going to Natalie, and you shouldn't do that until you're calmer."

"I've already seen her," Alan replied, his face darkening and his lips growing even harder than they had been before. Then he wheeled sharply, and faced Bernadine. "This is the end for me and Natalie," he declared, with unmistakable finality in his suddenly lowered voice.

Bernadine realized his conviction of Natalie's guilt permitted no argument, but she did think that he might be less bitter, less hurt, if he talked about it with someone. And she did not believe he would casually expose Natalie. Being in his confidence so far, made her think she should go on with it and try to help him if she could.

"Well," she began, speaking unemotionally, "let us assume that Natalie did it; don't you think we ought to try to find out if there was any excuse for it?"

"Excuse?" Alan shouted. "What excuse could there be for a thing like that?" He glared at Bernadine as though he defied her to answer him, for he was past even wanting to believe in Natalie's honesty.

"Perhaps she didn't realize how serious it was," Bernadine suggested. "She may have thought she was just causing you some slight trouble because she was piqued or..."

"Or jealous," Alan broke in. "You may as well know it, Bernadine. Her insane jealousy is at the bottom of the whole thing. And I won't tolerate it any longer. There's no use trying to defend her. I came here to tell you I'll make good all that you lost—paper profits included—just as soon as I can raise the cash."

"No, Alan," Bernadine cried emphatically. "I wouldn't let you do that!"

Alan came to a halt before her, he had resumed his striding, and looked down at her thin body and drawn face, ravaged by illness. A great compassion for her welled up in his heart.

"Don't oppose me, Bernadine," he said gently. "Let me be a man in my own way for once. The money is rightfully yours—you need it. I know. The second mortgage on this place—it's been worrying you, hasn't it? And you want to quit the club, don't you? For Bobby's sake."

He came over and put a hand on her shoulder. "He was much quieter now. "That's settled," he said. "And if you will take my advice, you'll invest the money safely, put this house on the market, and go to live quietly in the country somewhere."

Bernadine managed a weak smile. "And invest chickens," she said. "It's the dream of every actor's life. But I know better, Alan."

"You won't have to depend upon chickens," he said. "You'll have money enough if it's well invested; and I'll see to that."

Bernadine laid a hand on his. "Why bother?" she said softly. "Everything I have will be Bobby's—and you're to be his guardian. You'll have to give a great deal to his support, Alan, because I don't believe I'll have enough to leave to take care of him. I wish I'd taken your advice and not speculated so much lately."

Her troubled eyes sought his. He gave her shoulder an encouraging pat.

"But I was desperate about the money," she went on. "You see, I... I didn't know about you and Natalie... when she went home. I thought you might have parted. You know you were very strange and unhappy those days, Alan, and she was gone so long."

Her voice dropped, drifted away as though it were lost in a fog. Alan spoke up sharply.

"You were right," he said. "We had parted, but Natalie came back and we made it up—in a way. But that's getting off the subject. I want you to agree to do as I say about your financial affairs in the future."

Bernadine did not answer at once. Alan waited. Then she said, musingly: "I wonder..."

"You mean... you're doubt-

AMONG THE MAJOR LEAGUES

Eastland are spending this week with Berta Mae, Dorothea and Charlie Glenn Bisbee.

There has been quite a bit of road work in our community lately. Mr. Britton has placed a good bridge between the homes of C. H. Abbott and W. M. Leveridge.

The ladies of this community are very busy canning beans.

Dorothea and Charlie Glenn Bisbee spent Saturday night with Emma Gene O'Brien.

Jim Dillon and family visited in the T. T. Horn home Saturday night.

Connie Mack has eliminated the Philadelphia Athletics' only weakness—lack of capable reserve material—and the 1929 world champions appear headed for their second consecutive American League pennant.

Three Athletics regulars, outfield Al Simmons, third baseman Jimmy Dykes and second baseman Max Bishop have been on the hospital list during the past week, but the reserves have come through capably and the Athletics have climbed into the league lead.

Wednesday's 4 to 3 victory over St. Louis was the tenth consecutive victory of the Athletics, who now boast the longest winning streak made by any Major League team this season.

Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Reese.
Mr. and Mrs. Walter Robinson were visiting relatives at Carbon Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Reeves of Cisco were spending the day with their daughter, Mrs. J. E. Ramsey Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Wilson had as their dinner guests Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Reese of Graham, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Reese and children of Eastland, Mrs. D. E. Reese of Eastland, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Foster and family.

Action From Big Ten Games

BEWARE OF GASOLENE WEIGHTED WITH GUM

Gum in gasolene is a thief of power. It makes your engine labor—it makes your valves fight to get free—it robs your motor of valuable compression.

Don't put this extra burden on your motor by thoughtless purchases of gasolene.

Insist on Koolmotor Gasolene, the original high test, anti-knock green gas. Harmful gum has been removed from this powerful, clean burning gas. The mini-gum process, descriptive of the extra care and extra refining used to produce this superior motor fuel, has reduced the gum content in Koolmotor Gasolene to a harmless minimum.

Koolmotor Gasolene vaporizes quickly, burns freely, leaves no sticky, gummy deposit behind. It is full of power, full of speed, ready to go when you are.

Keep your motor clean—give it a chance to do its best—relieve it of the burden of gum-stuck valves. Keep your tank full of Koolmotor—the gasolene that's free from harmful gum.

FRIDAY'S CALENDAR

Friday Afternoon Bridge Club, 2:30 p. m., residence Mrs. George Davison, 703 South Seaman street.

CISCO DISTRICT W. M. S. HAVE SPLENDID MEETING

The Methodist Missionary Societies of the entire Cisco District met at Dublin, Wednesday, June 4, at 10:00 a. m. Thirteen adult auxiliaries, 4 junior societies, and 1 young peoples society were represented at the meeting. Each organization gave a report of the year. The morning session opened at 10:00 a. m., with the song, "A Charge to Keep I Have." Rev. W. H. Cole, of Dublin, led the devotional. Mrs. J. W. Mackey of Breckenridge was elected secretary of the meeting with Mrs. M. S. Sellers of Rising Star as assistant. Mrs. Will Haley, president of the Dublin Auxiliary, extended greetings on behalf of the Dublin Auxiliary, which was responded to by Mrs. Iola Mitchell of Eastland. The auxiliaries put a flower in a bowl for each new member received since January 1. There were 91 new adult members, 100 new members in the Junior Epworth Society.

A playlet was presented by the Rising Star Young Peoples Society, "American Beauties." Mention was made of the "Madge Stivey Camp" for girls which will be held at Belton, June 9-16.

A study in blue checks and brown crosses was very interesting. This was presented by means of posters showing the auxiliaries that had reported during the first quarter of the year, also of those that had not reported. The checks represented those who had reported and the crosses represented those who had not reported.

Mrs. G. R. Wright, of Scranton, gave a talk on the qualifications of a leader for junior societies. This was followed by a reading by Elaine Scott of DeLeon. The visiting pastors were next introduced. Eight visiting pastors were present.

During the lunch hour a poster display was presented.

The afternoon session opened with a playlet, "Timothy's Tithes," which was presented by the Breckenridge Epworth Juniors Society.

The visiting conference officer, Mrs. C. A. Boaz, of Fort Worth superintendent of study, gave an inspirational address regarding what mission study will do for auxiliaries. Mrs. Boaz awarded study seals of merit to Breckenridge, Cross Cut, Dublin, Gorman, and Ranger.

Mrs. S. J. Rucker of DeLeon, spoke on what a superintendent of publicity can accomplish for her auxiliary.

After resolutions of thanks to the women of Dublin for the courtesy extended and after DeLeon inviting the conference to be held in DeLeon next year, adjournment was made.

Those present from Eastland were: Mmes. N. E. Sargent, Iola Mitchell, Frank Crowell, H. E. Hickman, Constable, Ed Graham, Ed Wilman, R. A. P. Poole, Luther Bean, E. H. Jones, and S. S. Boland.

MRS. W. L. CLARK HOSTESS TO BRIDGE CLUB

The Wednesday Afternoon Bridge Club was entertained at the home of Mrs. W. L. Clark, 1101 South Seaman street, Wednesday at 2:30.

Mrs. Frank Weaver received high score prize and Mrs. Harry Porter received guest high score prize. Club members present were: Mmes. Homer Brelsford Jr., W. L. Gupton, L. E. Edwards, Frank Beatty, Frank Weaver, Milburn McCarty, W. K. Hyer, Theodore Ferguson. Guests were Mmes. Carl Angstadt, Meeker, Harry Porter, and Gordon Brelsford.

The club will meet in two weeks with Mrs. Frank Weaver, Hillcrest avenue.

MRS. CHARLES OVERLY ENTERTAINS ALTAR SOCIETY

The St. Francis Altar Society met at the home of Mrs. Charles Overly, States oil lease, Wednesday afternoon. The meeting was opened with a prayer by the president, Mrs. J. L. Lumentz.

It was voted by the members of the society to meet during the summer months.

A letter of thanks was read from Mrs. Harry Johnson of Midland who was formerly a member of the society. A prayer book was sent to Mrs. Johnson by the society.

After the business session a contest was held. Mrs. Earl Eimer was awarded a porcelain cream pitcher and sugar bowl, as prize.

Those present were: Mmes. Frank Bida, J. E. Brady, J. L. Laurent, G. Wilkins, W. T. Root, Carl Brown, Earl Eimer. Guests were: Mmes. J. Ernest of Ranger and J. T. Martin.

A salad course was served followed by an iced course.

The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Frank Bida, 1009 South Bassett street, July 3.

that sent him hurrying to her in frantic haste.

Personal

Miss Williams returned from Marlin Wednesday where she has been with her uncle, H. O. Brubaker, who is seriously ill in the sanatorium there. Mr. Brubaker's many friends of Eastland will be sorry to hear of his illness.

Mrs. Ben Hamner is spending the week in Killen visiting with friends and relatives.

Dr. H. B. Tanner, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce is in Plainville attending the meeting of secretaries of chambers of commerce.

Judge Clyde L. Garrett was a business visitor in Ranger today. Guy N. Quirl, executive of the Oil Belt Council of the Boy Scouts of America, and F. M. Woods, scoutmaster of the Carbon troop at Clear Fork, 30 miles north of Albany this week on a camping trip with the Carbon troop.

Alan Williams is visiting her grandmother in Memphis, Tennessee. She will also visit her aunt and uncle, Dr. and Mrs. Hamilton of the same city.

"WHITE CARGO" SET FOR OPENING HERE

According to the management of the Connellee Theatre, the all talking picture, "White Cargo," which comes to that playhouse next Sunday omits none of the vivid realism or colorful romance which made the stage play, on which it is based, one of the most sensational dramas in the annals of the American theatre. The producers have taken utmost care to keep the dialogue and the story intact, and selected a cast of exceptional talents to play the well-known characters.

"White Cargo," as those who saw the play will remember, is the gripping story of a group of white men in the tropics striving to keep their souls clean amidst all kinds of alluring temptations. The unusual setting, the naturalness of the characters, the rapid development of the story and the attractiveness of the primitive siren, Tondoleyo, make it one of the most fascinating productions ever brought to the talking screen.

unkind to him, will you? Promise me that, Alan. Promise me you won't do that?"
Alan gently released her clinging hands, and turned her over to Nellie, who had come as fast as she could from the nursery upstairs, without bringing Bobby with her. He had been determined to come, for he had recognized Alan's voice when the latter stepped into the hall to summon Nellie.

The maid was frankly terrified. "Send for Dr. Wagnall, please, sir," she begged of Alan.

Dr. Wagnall came as soon as he could. And all he said was: "Now you will stay in bed, Mrs. Lamont, until I tell you you may get up."

Bernadine closed her eyes and did not answer him, but an enigmatic smile played around her lips. It had nothing to do with any intention to disobey her physician. She was more at peace now. Alan had sat with her, talking first against her unheeding ears, then getting her attention by gradual degrees, until finally she was drinking in his words as one dying of thirst consumes the last precious few drops of water.

Alan convinced her, beyond doubt, that he loved Bobby, and she believed he would intelligently care for the boy. Her fear of the influence of other women in his life vanished in his reiterated promise not to let anyone make Bobby unhappy if he could prevent it.

There was a moment when Bernadine had been on the point of asking Alan to promise never to marry again, but she had, ill as she was, too great a sense of humor to permit her to do that. She took comfort in his assurance that Bobby would always come first with him and when the doctor arrived she was relaxed, but much weaker than she had been at any time previous to this.

She was, he told Alan, on the verge of complete collapse and must be kept perfectly quiet.

That was why, in the days that followed, Alan did not tell her all that was happening. He told her not a word of the letter Natalie wrote him before she closed the house they had built together in Westchester, and went away "to give him his freedom."

But, though he tried not to worry her, he received a call one day
