Mrs. Ferguson Files Application Mrs. James E. Ferguson forwarded her application for the customary filing fee to Sec. Albert Sidney Johnston of the state democratic executive committee, which is a tip to the faithful as well as the unfaithful that Mrs. Ferguson will be in the running, until the ballots of the first primary are counted.

Lynch Davidson Drafted for Governor Farmers and business men of Hunt county have drafted Lynch Davidson for the democratic nomination for governor and have placed his name in the hands of the official secretary of the state committee with instructions to see that it goes on the primary ballot.

On and after June 2, the agency will be over and the books will be closed. After June 2, if the Saviour of Mankind came to earth with an ambition to be governor of Texas, it would be impossible for him to get his name on the democratic primary ballot, or the republican, for that matter.

He would be barred because of the lawmakers' plan to shut out all wise or unwise men after that date and the courts have sustained the lawmakers.

Two Republicans Announce For Governor Two prominent republicans of Texas are contenders for the republican nomination for governor.

Col. H. E. Exum, a wealthy Amarillo ranchman and oil man, has thrown his sombrero into the ring. He is for a high protective tariff, he is for the Smoot-Hawley bill, without the debenture clause, he is for Pres. Hoover in all things, and, if nominated, he will make an aggressive campaign.

F. A. Blankenbecker will manage Col. Exum's campaign. In his mind Exum is the Creager faction of the republican party, with the national committeeman and all his lieutenants ready for the primary which the party is required this year in order to put forth a ticket.

Capt. John E. Elgin, prominent in republican affairs in San Antonio and elsewhere for many years has filed his candidacy for the republican nomination. Capt. Elgin, in recent years, has been outside of the Creager breastworks. He was the first to file, and then a Creager conference was held in the city of Houston and the Amarillo millionaire was drafted as the standard bearer.

Gangland Warfare Flares Up Again

CHICAGO, June 2.—Bloody reprisals were feared today in the latest outbreak of gangland warfare which flared up over the week-end and resulted in a casualty list of three dead, two dying and three seriously wounded.

The new hostilities were believed by police to have arisen primarily from attempts to corner highly profitable summer resort beer territories. A dawning of battle lines was seen between the gangsters of "Scarface Al" Capone and Joe Aiello.

A machine gun suddenly jammed through the window of a small hotel at Fox Lake, resort town northwest of here, sent a leaden stream of death across a dining table early yesterday and three gangsters were killed instantly, the brother of one "beer" baron was probably fatally wounded and his woman companion was struck by one of the bullets.

Previously in Washington, or "bughouse," square on the near northside of Chicago three minor hoodlums had been shot down in a reckless move of vengeance of rival racketeers.

The men slain in the Fox Lake hotel were Michael Quirk, listed in police records as a gangster, labor racketeer and extortionist; Sam Pellar, hoodlum, and Joseph Bertische, gangster, who recently was released in Cincinnati after serving a four-year sentence for mail robbery.

Lethal Gas Used In Execution of Three Criminals

CARSON CITY, Nev., June 2.—Nevada's novel method of executing murderers by lethal gas claimed its third victim today when H. H. "Bob" White, died in a small gas-filled room at the State penitentiary here.

A string extending from a gas generating apparatus inside the death house to an adjoining "operating room" was pulled at 4:49 1/2 p. m. P. T. shortly after a slight jerk on a slender bit of twine and the room was flooded with deadly fumes and the body of White, strapped in a chair, relaxed as the spirit of life drifted away.

White was convicted of killing Louis Lavell, an Elko, Nev., gambler.

Refusing breakfast, White, a former Texas cowboy who came to Nevada years ago and became a gambler, said he slept well when awakened at 4:25 a. m.

He was calm as death approached, gazing toward the nearby towering mountains and just before crossing a narrow corridor to enter the death house at 4:37 shook hands with everyone and called a cheery goodbye to a group of 50 spectators.

Dr. E. E. Hammer, prison physician, told the United Press. The physicians listened throughout the execution to the first rapid and then faltering heartbeats of the condemned man.

The official time of death, as corrected by the prison watchers, was 4:49:50 a. m. Pacific Standard Time. It was thought at first that White had died at 4:41:30 a. m., but a slight intake of breath and a feeble heart beat started again and continued until 4:49:50 a. m. The smile which adorned White's face as he told Warden Matt Penrose and others goodbye never left him. Although there was the slightest twitch of his hands as Frank Waite, captain of the prison guard strapped him in the chair, he remained calm throughout the ordeal.

White declined to receive visitors and refused to accept the services of a preacher or priest. Evidence against White was circumstantial and he maintained to the end that he was not guilty, but insisted he would rather die than spend his life in prison.

Lavell's body was found in a burned cabin in Elko county. White had left Elko on May 8, 1928, just two days after Lavell was last seen alive. White was arrested in Chicago, tried in Elko and found guilty of first degree murder on Oct. 27, 1928.

"You might give me a gas mask," just before being strapped in the chair. White let his eyes wander over the wall where the gas generating apparatus, which was to kill him, had been placed. The death instrument was a two gallon jar containing two quarts of water and one quart of sulphuric acid. Over this acid solution was suspended a screen holding 10 one ounce capsules of cyanide of potassium and attached to the screen was the string.

When the string was pulled, the screen tilted and the capsules tumbled below into the solution and an instant generation of gas resulted.

Although Nevada has executed three men by gas since the legislature adopted this method of execution at its 1921 session, White was the first to die who was a citizen of the United States.

When the string was pulled, the screen tilted and the capsules tumbled below into the solution and an instant generation of gas resulted.

After the execution the fans were turned on and ammonia was pumped into the chamber before Dr. Hamer entered for a detailed examination of the body.

Physicians including two women, saw the dying gasps of White. One of the women was Margaret Keeter of Virginia, one of the residents of Reno's divorce colony. The other was Miss Maye Kinney of Reno. Both are veteran nurses and wanted to view the execution so that they might observe the effects of a death by gas.

As he had lived, by the flick of a card or the roll of dice, White elected to die wearing his well known "poker face." And as he died—without religion, so he died—raising the end all offers of spiritual ministrations.

Fans Protesting 'Cheap Home Run'

NEW YORK, June 2.—Baseball fans were up in arms today against the "cheap home run." There were 24 homers made in the ten Major League games Sunday, making the third time in 11 days the former record of 23 homers in both leagues in one day, set July 4, 1925, has been broken. A total of 418 home runs have been made in both Major Leagues thus far this season, fifty more than at a corresponding date last

AND NOW the pink organdie hat. This large drooping picture shade is pleated all around, the pleats radiating from the center of the crown. The ribbon is of the organdie.

The "lively ball," short fences, restrictions on the pitchers and other elements are hastening to make a "joke" out of Major League home runs. Even pitchers are swinging for homers.

Babe Ruth hit his sixteenth home run of the season yesterday, placing him even with his 1927 score, when he made his record of 60 in one season.

Ford Prices Are Reduced Today

DETROIT, June 2.—Price cuts ranging from $5 to $25 on Ford cars and trucks were announced today by the Ford Motor Co. The reductions are effective immediately. The phanton car, roadster and the only models in the Ford line not effected.

KEEN SENSE OF RESPONSIBILITY A SAFETY NEED

Would Reduce Accident Rate If It Replaced Mere Fear of Law

ACCIDENTS will be reduced only when a motor car driver attains a greater sense of responsibility, instead of a mere fear of the law, is the consensus of opinion gathered from reports from police, safety officials, and civic leaders of various cities queried on the causes of accidents, by Accident Statistics Bureau, New York City, and other safety organizations. Speed is given major consideration by some. Others amplify the statement by citing the youth of drivers, intoxication, inadequate enforcement, and general lawlessness.

In no instance is the motor car itself condemned. It is a useful agent of transportation and in the right hands is the greatest agent of the youth of this country. Strong brakes, strong bodies, and the general adoption of the new shatter-proof glass, are all factors in reducing injuries, but the old human element still prevails as the underlying cause of accidents.

Horned Frogs Win From Breckenridge By Score Of 9-2

The Hodges team from Breckenridge was defeated by Amarillo's Horned Frogs yesterday by the score of 9-2. It was a fast game, witnessed by a large score of fans.

Dean Turner's marvelous pitching was the outstanding feature of the game. Turner allowed the visitors only two singles, one being a scratch hit, and also fanned ten of the opposing batsmen. Watson's triple and Welborn's long double were the hitting features of the afternoon, while LaFon sparked an infield.

The Frogs started with a smash, making six runs in the first two innings and continued their slugging in the seventh when they scored three more runs. Three fast double plays by the Frog infield prevented several Breckenridge rallies.

The Hodges team was neatly clad in new white uniforms that were bought by the merchants of Breckenridge. Ellingwood starred for the visitors.

Three Were Killed This Time!

Light glare was partly blamed when this car collided with a bus on the Lincoln Highway at Rahway, N. J., recently. John Johnson, driver of the car, was killed outright. Two of his passengers, Miss Lillian Gray of Trenton, N. J., and Mrs. Mary Goodrich of Clintonville, Conn., died in the hospital, while a fourth member of the party, Daniel Wookley, is not expected to recover.

been slowly decreasing, until it is now thirty per cent below 1913, the motorist has been guilty of keeping the United States at the tail end of the heap as a nation of killers. Industry, evidently, is going about the business of preventing accidents in the thorough way that American enterprise does all things that relate to business. More men employed and more machines in operation, the safety of the worker is greater than ever before. Safety engineers employed by large corporations devote time and talent to the business of protecting arms, legs,

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

by Blosser

Hail! Hail! The Gang's All Here!
Freckles sure has his gang! There's Ossie who is always up to something or other.

And Tagalong, Freckles' little brother who, accompanied by the pet pup is usually tagging right along!

Aleck has been one of the bunch for to these many years, while Patsy is the sweetheart (???) of them all!

There's nothing that can take the place of a comic strip about kids. There is something about it that—well, there's just something about it.

"Freckles and His Friends," by Merrill Blosser, is the best known and longest established of the juvenile comic strips.
Many who remember "Freckles" as a boyhood favorite now have youngsters of their own to whom they must read it every day.

"Freckles" makes its appeal not only to youth but to all who are young in mind. Full flavored with the spirit of American boyhood, it grows in popularity every day. This comic appears daily in sharply. Her eyes were ferret-like at that moment. Happily for her, Alan did not glance at her, being totally oblivious of her presence.

She saw before her, almost within her reach now, the quarry she wanted to crush. All the cool aloofness, all the immaculate beauty, all the superiority of breeding and culture that were Natalie's would soon be dragged in the dust.

She was like a jungle cat on the limb of a jungle-shrouded tree, ready to pounce upon her prey. She had wanted Alan before —for his ability to make money, and because he had more personal appeal for her than any other man
she might have married, but now the feeling uppermost in her mind was one of hatred for Natalie.

It was the envy of one on a lower plane of life for one on a higher. But this Phillipa had never admitted to herself. She had wanted to take Natalie's place, and come into the office, dressed in expensive furs and French chapeaux, because she had thought it would thrill her as she believed it thrilled Natalie.

Furs and hats, the money that would buy them, had seemed to her conscious mind the only difference between her and Natalie.
While all the time she had been subconsciously feeding on the bitterness of knowing that she could never reach Natalie's plane. To be her equal she must drag Natalie down.

She desired this consciously, but she forgot, for the moment, that no one could lower Natalie, but Natalie herself. She was lustful to see Natalie branded, to see the "fine lady" whose only sin heretofore had been jealousy, accused and convicted of criminally indulging that jealousy.

But she dared not utter a word to further the expose. She turned first hot, then cold, why impatience as Bernadine continued to stand staring at the letter.

She wanted to cry out: "Of course you didn't write it. Don't you see? Natalie did it!"

Perhaps her avid eagerness communicated itself to Bernadine, for the latter suddenly looked over at her. Phillipa felt the penetration of her glance. It brought her up sharply, warned her to guard herself. Bernadine, if no one else, might suspect her, she thought.

For it was plain that Bernadine knew someone had changed her letter.

Phillipa remembered, now that her mind was functioning more normally, that she had no reason —that is, no reason that she wanted to appear to Alan or Bernadine
—to be waiting there.

"Is that all, Mr. Converse?" she asked to cover herself. "He's not sorry for her. How in name, could she have such a costly mistake?"

Bernadine came over, the letter held out before her. "I hate to say it," she began; "but I didn't write all that is in this letter, Alan."

Alan's brows flew together.
"What's wrong with it?" he asked tensely. He had been observing her while she pored over the letter, watching the expressive changes of her features. He was certain she had made an important discovery.

"The name of the stock I wrote has been erased, and another put in," Bernadine answered flatly.

Alan took the letter, almost snatching it. "Are you sure?" he cried.

"Yes," Bernadine replied. "And Alan, it was done after I mailed it, for I dropped it in a box myself on my way home from the club. I wrote it there, to get it to you in plenty of time, so I wouldn't have to speak of the tip over the telephone. It wasn't out of my hands until I dropped it in the mailbox."

Alan's face was white. "But couldn't you have been so tired and wrote the wrong stock, Bernadine?" he appealed helplessly.

"I tell you I didn't, Alan. Someone has done this, and it must have been right here in your office. Oh, who could it have been?" she added wildly.

gaze.
"You do not seem to suspect
me?" he remarked bitterly.

"Alan!"
For a moment silence. Then:
"Thank you, Bernadine," he said quietly. For her voice had carried complete conviction of his honesty, as well as deepest reproach for his doubting her faith in him.

"But you see, don't you, how I might have taken advantage of your tip?" he pressed on.

"Yes, but suppose you had wanted to play it yourself; would that have made it necessary to leave me out?"

"No," Alan had to agree.
Bernadine sank into a chair.
"Someone with a motive did it,"
she said. "But who? And why?"

"Well," Alan's lips were grimly compressed—"if it was done by anyone in my employ, I'll find out who it is." He reached out to touch Phillipa's bell.

"Wait," Bernadine extended a hand to stop him. "Hadn't we better talk it over a little first?"

"But I wish to ask Miss West who had access to the letter," Alan said.

"Miss West herself is an employee here," Bernadine reminded him.

Alan hesitated.
"Yes, I know," Bernadine said;
"it will be horrible to put them
under suspicion one by one.
Wouldn't it be better to try to think who could have done it?"

"But I must know who had the letter," Alan insisted.

"I suppose so," Bernadine agreed, and Alan pressed the bottom.

Phillipa, prepared for the summons, was outwardly calm when she entered the office. She knew that as long as the guilt had not been fastened upon any one person, she as well as all the others, must come in for a share of suspicion.

She felt she could go through with it safely. For an instant or two, when Bernadine stood at the window with the letter, she had been afraid her work was so clever Alan would not believe Berna-dine's statement that she had not written it as it was.

She was glad to have that point cleared up, and Alan started on the investigation that must naturally follow.

"Miss West," he began abruptly. "There is something wrong with Mrs. Lamont's letter; I must know who could have handled it after it arrived at this office."

"Why, I had it, Mr. Converse," Phillipa replied levelly. "It was brought to me, and I left it in here, in your desk."

"Was it taken out again?"
"I don't think so."
"Well, then. Was anyone in here?"

Negro Evangelist Predicts Two Will Die; They Drop Dead

By UNITED PRESS

SWEETWATER, Tex., June 2.—Scotts and jeers directed at the Rev. E. N. Haggins, negro evangelist, by members of his race here had turned to awe and respect today. Prophecies that he was "moved by the spirit" to make two blacked and two blacks were dead in the manner he said they would die.

The evangelist came here a week ago to open a revival after he was "moved" to cancel four meetings scheduled in California.

"Unless the negroes of Sweetwater turn to the Lord at once, some of them will fall dead," he had predicted from the pulpit.

Stutus Riley, workman, dropped dead in the negro business district Saturday night, two hours after Laura Mathews suddenly expired while ironing.

"No ordinary heart trouble killed those negroes," the evangelist avowed. "The Lord killed them."

He said it had happened before, and explained that after he was "moved" to say at a service in Houston, Pa., that a woman in the congregation should join the church and none came forward, one of the women became ill and died shortly.

WITH THE TEXAS LEAGUE

The Shreveport Sports, holders of fourth place in the Texas League standings, gained ground on Wichita Falls, Houston and Beaumont Sunday by winning two games from Dallas while the three leaders were splitting their double headers.

The Sports defeated Dallas 11 to 9, and 8 to 2. Shreveport won the first game in the last half of the eighth inning when three runs were scored, enough to offset a one-run lead held by the Steers.

Tuerto, Sport spittler, held the Steers to seven well-scattered hits in the aftermath.

After Thormahlen, making his debut with Fort Worth, had defeated Wichita Falls, 12 to 8 in the opener, the Spudlers came back to win the nightcap, 5 to 4. The Cat's last inning rally fell one run short of tying the score.

Houston and San Antonio split two pitching duels, 2 to 1 and 2 to 3. The Indians scored one run in the seventh and last inning of the second game to win when Hunt, Buff centerfielder, made a wild throw.

Former Eastland Driller Tells Of Life In Persian Oil Camp

O. W. Bryant of Masjid I Suleman, Persia, and formerly of Eastland, is spending part of a six months vacation in the city. He was a resident of Eastland for five years, being employed by Root & Rhodes as an oil well driller, which position he now holds with the Anglo-Persia Oil Company.

Bryant left Eastland in 1922 and secured a position with the English-owned oil company as a driller in Persia. This is his second vacation in the past six years.

He says that he likes his work in the Persian fields, though he is glad to get back to an American city occasionally.

Drilling in Persia is much the same as drilling in Eastland county, he says, though the first year he was there the rigs were of an obsolete type. The company for which he works hires about 250 English and four American oil men, the remainder of the work being handled by natives, who do the harder jobs and the work that requires little special training.

In the camp are tennis courts, golf links, swimming pools and many forms of outdoor recreation furnished by the company. Motion pictures once a week have recently been added.

Bryant says that he had little difficulty in learning the language and that he learned more the first year than he had learned since.

The trip to and from the camp is rather difficult. After leaving London one goes to Marseilles, crosses the Mediterranean Sea to Beyrut. From there a 24 hour trip by motor car is made across the Persian desert to Bagdad. Most of the trip across the desert is usually made at night when it is not so hot, but the journey becomes monotonous. One stop is made at a rest camp built around the old Roman wells, which have been a source of water since the days of the supremacy of Rome.

From Bagdad the trip is made by train to within a short distance of the camp and the remainder of the journey is made by car again. Modern motor buses similar to those in use in this country are used in crossing the deserts.

The camp at Masjid I Suleman is composed of brick bungalows and is situated almost at the edge of the desert in the mountains. The field is similar to any American field and is about 16 miles long and six or eight miles wide. The wells are drilled to a depth of about 2,500 feet and the oil is carried by pipe line 180 miles to the coast to a refinery. From there it is carried by tankers to the oil centers of the world.

Bryant says that the climate in Persia is not bad but that the temperature sometimes reaches 120 degrees. In the summer there is no rain and after a rainy period of about three months the vegetation becomes green and stays for several months. All plant life sprouts and grows in the winter and dies off in the summer. Occasionally he gets off to trips to Bagdad and other towns, though he did not though he was very content about the cities.

Burlap Prices Strengthen
Prices on spot burlaps here this week rose 5 to 10 points above last week's levels due to a fair inquiry for goods in the local market.

Futures were also up 5 to 10 points above the previous week's prices in Calcutta. Although there was little actual buying in the futures market the interest shown by prospective buyers accounted for the stronger tone there.

We are off of burlap; our last suit bagged at the knees.

The big hip-slapping contest at the sailing of the Bremen caused Joe Skulley to remark: "It ain't safe in this country to carry bottles on the hip no more, unless we git to using this here scatter-proof glass. A guy never knows when these Prohibitionists will slap him on the hips, kick him in the pants or fire a shot across his bow, and he hates to git disfigured that way."

LITTLE BOY IS STRUCK BY A CAR SATURDAY

RANGER, Texas, June 2.—Gale, the 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Ervin, sustained a broken arm and a broken leg Saturday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile driven by W. B. Morton of Birmingham, Ala., who declared the accident was unavoidable.

The accident occurred on Strawn road. The boy was taken to the West Texas Clinic and Hospital.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Fire claimed the lives of six persons, a mother and five children, at Glen Eclair, a nearby amusement park, yesterday. William Morley, a one-armed man, jumped from the second floor of the family's burning home and escaped. The dead: Mrs. Foley, 40; George, 15; Linda, 11; Gordon, 8; Ellen, 5; and Bessie, 3.

CLERKING POSITION—Young man, 22 years of age, desires position as clerk in an art store where an opening exists requiring appreciation for intelligence with personality, desirable to beauty, have a permanent knowledge of character as regards buying public and a thorough knowledge of outdoor photography, desire to locate at once in busy town or city, also in California districts. Write at once to Randall Entwistle, 292 West 5th St., Bloomburg, Pa.

A case of dislocation of personality. We wrote Randall, before somebody else grabs him.

"Deep cuts on the chin, a slashed ear, painful chest injuries, and other bad lacerations, were suffered by L. C. Furginson, of Hamilton, R. F. D. 8, last Saturday night when he was sideswiped by another car. Flying glass caused most of the trouble. One of Furginson's teeth was also knocked out."

Aside from that he's practically intact.

AMONG THE MAJOR LEAGUES

The St. Louis Cardinals made their initial eastern appearance of the season by opening the second inter-sectional series against the Phillies at Philadelphia today.

The Philadelphia Athletics climbed back into the American League lead Sunday by winning their eighth straight game and their fourth in a row from Washington, 9 to 6.

Brooklyn increased its National League lead to three games by defeating the Phillies, 10-2. Adolfo Luque pitching his fifth straight victory.

The Chicago Cubs rolled up their fifth straight victory and went into second place by handing Pittsburgh a 16 to 4 defeat. Hack Wilson hit his 15th and 16th home runs.

Cardinals twice, 5-4 and 7-1. Two of Heilmann's hits were homers.

Breaking their 4-game losing streak the New York Giants took a double header from the Boston Braves before 46,000 fans, at Boston, 9-4, and 16-3.

A triple play helped the Boston Red Sox break a 14game losing streak and win from the New York Yankees, 7-4.

Cleveland replaced the Yankees in third place by winning from Detroit, 3 to 2. Mel Harder, Indians' 20-year-old rookie, winning his sixth game of the season.

Walter Stewart was hammered out of the box as the Chicago White Sox won from the St. Louis Browns, 8 to 5.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—General Herbert M. Lord, former director of the budget during three administrations, died at his home here today. He was 70 years old.

INSTALLATION OF O. E. S. OFFICERS LARGELY ATTENDED
 Over 150 visitors witnessed the beautiful installation of the local chapter Order of the Eastern Star, held in Masonic Temple, Saturday evening, May 31.
 The Temple was arranged as a garden with white trellised fences, entwined with pink rambling roses and the gateway to the East was marked with standards filled with lovely hydrangia blooms that trailed the floor, masses of roses, gladiolus, vine, larkspur and sweet peas were used throughout the room in great profusion.

 The ceremony was opened by the entrance of the officers of 1929-30, all garbed in white. Sixteen presented the beautiful drill of the Order.
 The retiring Worthy Matron, Mrs. George E. Cross, opened the program with a few words of welcome followed by "America," by the assembly.
 Presentation of Our Flag in the East—Mrs. Bertha McGowan, of Olden.
 Violin Solo "Serenade," Miss Eda Lindsey; Mrs. W. T. Root at the piano.
 Vocal Solo "The Star," Miss Wilma Beard; Miss Ruth Bagley, at the piano.
 Piano Solo "Nocturne in F," Miss Ruth Bagley.

The retiring Worthy Matron presented her farewell address after which Mrs. D. J. Fiensy presented her Past Matron's Jewel—The Star within a square, set with twelve tiny pearls and four blue sapphires, with a gravel in a chain of the Chapter.
 J. H. Khars, Worthy Patron, presented a handsome engraved belt buckle, also the gift of the Chapter. Mrs. Fiensy then presented Mrs. Cross with a beautiful bar pin, in white gold, in memory of the days they worked together in the Chapter.
 Mrs. C. E. Sikes presented Mrs. J. A. Beard, faithful organist of the Chapter for a number of years, a beautiful hand painted plaque, the work of Mrs. Ida Smitham.
 Mrs. Frank Tucker, presented Mrs. Cross with a beautiful plaque on behalf of her appointed officers.
 Mrs. L. J. Lambert, presented Mrs. Cross with a set of ice box dishes on behalf of the Kitchen Committee.
 The retiring officers were presented with small luster ware baskets for faithful work by the retiring Matron.
 The installing officer, Mrs. W. Z. Outward, was presented in the East, and conducted the installation ceremony in a beautiful and unflattering manner.

Mrs. George E. Cross, Deputy Grand Matron of Texas, Section 4, District 3, was presented in the East and given Grand Honors.
 During the obligation of the incoming officers the lights were lowered, and as Mrs. D. J. Fiensy was presented at the altar for installation as Worthy Matron, they were lighted again. Four little boys, Joe Sparks, Bobby Stire, John Price and Jack Cross, garbed in military costume of blue and white, wore honor guards and as the Worthy Matron was conducted to the East they followed and saluted her in military manner. Miss Wilma Beard sang appropriate words of welcome to the new Worthy Matron.
 Other officers for the new year are:
 J. H. Khars, of Olden, Worthy Patron.
 Mrs. Carl Page, Associate Matron.
 Mrs. J. W. Thomas, Conductress.
 Mrs. C. E. Sikes, Associate Conductress.

Puppy Is Not Jealous of An Adopted Kitty
 RANGER, Texas, June 2—An illustration of affection of an unusual type is given by the Spitz dog owned by Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Longley. The little dog has adopted a Persian kitten and the mother her own little puppy and the kitten at the same time.
 There is not the slightest bit of jealousy between the pup and the kitty.

Constable Charged
 DALLAS, Tex., June 2—Charges of assault to murder were filed against Constable Jim Dancer of Oak Cliff following a raid on an alleged dice game Sunday in which Ollie Wheeler, 21, was shot and critically wounded. The complaint was signed by the brother of the wounded man, G. D. Wheeler. The constable made bond of $2,000.
 Dancer said he raided the game when he received three complaints from residents in the Eagle Ford district, five miles from town. When he approached the box car where the game was in progress, he said, several men started to run and he fired into the ground to scare them. A short time later Wheeler was brought to a Dallas hospital with a bullet wound in his hip.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 2—Six men who chased a young Jew into a synagogue here last night and captured him before worshippers were aware of the kidnapping were the object of a police hunt here today. The young man, who was not identified was followed into the church by the men who seized him and carried him to a large sedan outside of the building.

World's Largest Tire To Be In Eastland Tuesday

Twelve feet high. Four feet wide. Tread, sidewall and bead weigh 877 pounds. Frictioned fabric weighs 289 pounds. Tube weighs 125 pounds. Wheel weighs 600 pounds. Yoke weighs 2000 pounds. Total weight of tire and yoke is 3900 pounds. Value of the tire is $5,000.

Tomorrow the largest tire in the world will be on exhibition in Eastland, being brought to our city by States Service Corporation, well-known Goodyear dealer, who will have the giant casing at his place of business, on South Seaman street, at 11:20 a. m.

The intensely interesting tire was built by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio, and is on a tour of several states in this section of the country. It has been in many sections of the United States, and has been exhibited in Canada, causing no end of amazement at the Toronto Exposition last fall.

The rubber giant, which is 12 feet high and four feet wide, was built under the combined supervision of the chemical, tire design and research divisions of Goodyear's development department. It takes three-quarters of an hour to inflate the mammoth casing to a pressure of only three pounds. Its value is placed conservatively at $5000.

It might be interesting to note that the valve is the only item of standard size in the entire tire, which is a replica of the Goodyear All-Weather tread Supertwist Cord Tire, the measurements being in exact ratio to measurements of the regular size tire.

Goodyear is the largest rubber concern in the world. Early this year it finished the largest artificial naval oil cases—Owen J. Roberts of Philadelphia.

ONCE UPON A TIME

Paul M. Warburg, internationally known banker, a former graduate from a school in Hamburg, Germany, accepted a position with an exporting firm. His duties included sticking labels on stockings and other merchandise.

a special vulcanizer to cure the rubber. Otherwise the giant pneumatic was built under normal operations.

Will there ever be occasion for the use of a tire the size of the giant to be seen in our city tomorrow? A prominent manufacturer of airplanes, when he saw the tire on exhibition in his city, stated that the day was coming when huge airplanes would require tires of just such dimensions.

Goodyear originally planned to construct the tire even larger, but the engineers in charge of the work were restricted in their program by the fact that some bridges over which this tire pass on its tours of America, Mexico and Cuba, clearance of only twelve feet. The tire is mounted as to a bus of special design a load carrying capacity approximately 60,000 pounds. months' time was required building it.

Warm Baths Rest Tired Nerves And Bring Relaxation

THE other day I took a short train trip, and as it was a two-hour ride, I said to my companion, "I think I will take a nap. It will do me good."
 The girl smiled enviously. "Oh, Miss Hale," she said, "if only I could sleep during the day time—how happy I would be! Do you mean to say you can actually sleep here in the chair car?"
 I nodded, and she sighed, "You are a lucky person."
 I put my head back, and soon fell asleep. When I woke up refreshed my companion looked tired and there were deep lines under her eyes. Again she said, "You are lucky! I tried to take a nap but it was no use."
 All of you who have trouble sleeping in the day time have my sincere sympathy. But I wonder if the difficulty is not more mental than physical. Probably you try so hard to sleep that you defeat your purpose. Try this method, the next time you have a chance to take a nap: Drop down on a couch and close your eyes, but do not try to go to sleep. Just relax, and let your hands and feet go limp. Think of pleasant things, but do not try
