One Killed And Two Injured In Speedway Race

Paul Marshall Dies of Injuries Received When Car Crashes Into Retaining Wall

SPEDWAY, Indianapolis, Ind., May 30.—Paul Marshall, Indianapolis, mechanic, in Deussenberg No. 36, in the annual 500 mile speedway race, died this afternoon of injuries suffered when the car hurled a concrete wall and rolled from the track on the 44th lap.

Never before in the history of the speedway has there been such a succession of crashes. The bad luck started in the first lap when Chet Gardner struck a retaining wall and a broken wheel resulted.

High powered racing machinery has been beating a veritable tattoo upon the retaining walls since, with six machines figuring in one pile-up. One car, the eight-cylinder Maherali driven by Cuccinato, raked the wall, for an eighth of a mile, but continued in the race.

Fifteen machines were out of the race at the end of 150 miles leaving 23 in the running.

Leo Sykes, mechanic for Frank Farmer, suffered the third serious injury in the race when he was thrown from the Betholins special on the 71st lap as it crashed into a retaining wall after blowing a tire.

SOLDIER, SLEEP

The resolution indorsing the Federal Farm Board was adopted in the light of criticisms recently made by the United States Chamber of Commerce and after Carl Williams, member of the board, had addressed the convention explaining the work and aims of the farm board.

Williams said he regretted that there had been any occasion for conflict of opinion as between the farm board and the farmers on the one hand and certain business interests on the other but the board expected criticism and if there were none it would think it was not on the right track.

ORGANIZED LABOR WINS IMPORTANT LEGAL VICTORY Organization of workers has been upheld by the supreme court of the United States. Collected bargaining has been upheld by the supreme court of the United States.

Of course a corporation has the privilege as well as the legal right to employ non-union workers to the exclusion of union workers.

This happened when the supreme court sustained an injunction restraining the Texas and Pacific railroad, a branch of the Southern Pacific system, from interfering with, intimidating or coercing its clerical employees in selecting their representatives in labor disputes.

According to Washington correspondents the controversy was regarded as of great importance, not only to labor but to the railroad because it presented to the highest court for the first time the question whether an injunction could be issued under the railway labor act of 1926.

Rail employes unionists asked for the injunction against the officials of the rail company and a federal judge, a democrat appointed to the bench by Pres. Woodrow Wilson, issued an order joining the company officials from interfering in any way with the affairs of the members of the rail union while its members were strictly within the law.

This decision so important to all concerned was announced by Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes. It was not a "yellow dog" decision. It was a knockout for the "yellow dog" contract and the "yellow dog" contract in a West Virginia case, Chief Justice Hughes' seat on the supreme court bench.

Mayfield declared his opposition to a proposed State bond issue of $300,000,000 for roads, asserting that the interest would be $162,000,000 and the present revenue from gasoline and other sources will give ample funds without a bond issue.

feed for themselves and for all the other State institutions, by making cotton basking out of low grade cotton for the cotton farmers and binder twine for the wheat farmers of the State, by manufacturing automobile license plates, road drags, and other materials used in the construction of highways and school furniture for the schools of the State, the penitentiary system can be made self-supporting where it is now located.

On the subject of taxation, the speaker said that over one half of the taxable wealth of the State is escaping taxation and that the tax burden which should be borne by it is being carried by the farms, ranches and homes. He demanded a modernization of the tax system that would make taxation fairly distributed and he emphasized taxation of intangible assets of public service corporations. The railroads for 25 years have paid on their intangible assets and other public service corporations should do likewise.

L. Overby, president of the Texas State Bank of Eastland, presented the speaker. Mr. Overby declared that Senator Mayfield was so well known to Eastland county that no introduction was needed. The 88th district courtroom was filled and a number stood throughout. Laughter at Senator Mayfield's good natured thrusts and applause at his position on the issues were frequent.

and cheerful despite his 101 years. Henry Tolbert Morgan, Oklahoma's oldest Civil War veteran, harked back today to the days when he was a mule skinner in the Confederate army. "Reckon as to how a mule skinner wouldn't have much show in war now, but I can remember when they did back in Dixie," he said.

ST. LOUIS, May 30.—When Confederate veterans gathered here today to take part in memorial day ceremonies and pay homage to their dead comrades, a woman who was staunch defender of the gray played a part in the activities. Mrs. Hannah Shields, the only living woman member of the Confederate Veterans' Post camp here, was a former nurse and intelligence attaché.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—A veteran who nearly a decade ago dropped a rose on an army casket and thus selected its occupant to symbolize America's unknown dead came forth from civil life today to join with patriotic organizations here in honoring the "unknown."

PARIS, May 30.—The graves of 20,000 American soldier dead and of nearly a million French and British comrades, were decorated today in the most elaborate Memorial Day ceremony that has occurred in Europe since the war. Cemeteries of Gen. Sheridan, Gen. ITA The presence in the battlefield cemeteries of Gen. John J. Pershing, several hundred gold star mothers and war widows and several hundred veterans of the fighting 27th division lent added impressiveness.

LONDON, May 30.—The Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack waved today over the graves of 800 American soldiers buried in the British Isles while Americans, Britons and Canadians joined in tribute to their memory.

Memorial Day services were held in every large city in Great Britain and Ireland. Where American consular representatives could not attend, British officials placed flags on the graves of the soldiers of the Republic.

Ocean To Ocean Hiker Passes Through Here

Perkins started from Maine with George Edwards, a companion, on his hike across the continent. The two separated, Edwards taking a northern route and Perkins choosing the southern route. He left Portland without a penny and expects to collect a $1,900 award when he reaches Oregon.

He carries with him a 45 pound pack and letters from mayors and secretaries of Chambers of Commerce in the cities he has visited on his way. He says that when he reaches Oregon he will return to Maine and collect a $1,900 award when he reaches Oregon.

Wife And Mother Slain; Husband And Woman Held

AHSTABULA, O., May 30.—Mrs. Maude Lowther, 22-year-old domestic, confessed to police here today that she shot and killed Mrs. Clara Smith, 28, from ambush near here last night, by prearrangement with Mrs. Smith's husband, T. L. Smith, Ahstabula contractor, after they determined to "get her out of the way."

Mrs. Lowther was arrested after Smith repudiated an earlier story that three men had killed his wife and admitted he and Mrs. Lowther arranged to kill Mrs. Smith so they could "run away together."

Police said they found the revolver with which Mrs. Smith was slain, concealed in the girl's room at the home of Seymour Hubbard, prominent Ahstabula business man, where she was employed.

The gun was purchased by Smith Saturday, according to police. He gave it to Mrs. Lowther Tuesday, and they fled 6 p. m. yesterday as the time for Mrs. Smith's death, police said he confessed.

Smith fled his wife and two children, one of them an infant, into a truck, on the pretext of taking them to Austinburg, a village 10

LONDON, O., May 30.—A concerted attempt of 45 convicts to escape from the state prison farm here today, was frustrated when guards shot and killed the ringleader, Sam Mazlo, 30, of Youngstown.

Most of the prisoners were recently transferred to the farm from the state penitentiary at Columbus after rebellion broke out following a cell-block fire in which more than 300 convicts lost their lives.

The convicts had been causing trouble for two days, W. F. Amrine, farm superintendent, said, and he had issued orders to guards to shoot to kill in event of an uprising.

Mazlo was attempting to break the lock on his cell when he was shot, it was said. A guard warned him twice and fired when he persisted.

Funds For Cisco Federal Building Available Dec. 1

CISCO, May 30.—Representatives of the Cisco Chamber of Commerce have just returned from a conference with John W. Philp, fourth assistant post master-general of the federal government, and Ferris K. Heath, assistant secretary of the U. S. treasury, authorized to announce that funds for the construction of the federal building promised Cisco will be available December 1, 1930, according to a statement issued today from the chamber.

Immediately after that date it was stated, the treasury department will proceed through the usual routine for the purchase of a site, the drawing of plans for the building and the immediate construction of the same. This, it was declared, is definite assurance that Cisco will receive the federal building for which funds were appropriated some time ago. The appropriation for Cisco is $95,000, to be expended in the purchase of a site and the construction of a building. Breckenridge, it was also announced, will obtain its promised federal building under the same plan and at the same time that Cisco is given its building.

Hearing On Cisco Receivership Is Passed To June

CISCO, Tex., May 30.—Hearing on the receivership application filed by a bondholders committee against the city of Cisco has been postponed until about the middle of June, according to an announcement of the city attorneys who received word of the postponement Thursday morning.

The hearing was due to come up at Amarillo before federal Judge James C. Wilson today. In postponing the hearing, which will probably take place at Abilene, Judge Wilson stated that he will not have time to hear the application while at Amarillo and that it would be some time about the middle of June before he would have the time. He expects to be in Abilene. He communicated this information by telegram to the attorneys for the bondholders committee in Dallas and the Cisco attorneys here.

Believe Capture Of Jake Fleagle In Mexico Near

DENVER, Colo., May 30.—Of all the members of the notorious Fleagle gang that once terrorized Western Kansas and Colorado, only one has escaped the law. The capture of "Little Jake" Fleagle in Mexico, the last of the gang to evade officers, was believed near today.

It was two years and one week ago today that the Fleagle "wolf pack" descended upon Larned, Colo., shot to death two bankers, robbed the First National Bank, and fled with another bank employee as their captive.

Later this employee and a Kansas physician who was called to tend the wounds of one of the outlaws were shot down in cold blood some distance from the horseless "horse ranch" of the Fleagles near Garden City.

Other robberies and depredations have been laid to the Fleagle gang, and slowly they have been run down, tried and convicted.

He Wouldn't Squal

IT seems many, many years ago that the 1919 world series baseball scandal was revealed to the shocked customers of the national pastime. The names of the Chicago White Sox players who were banned from the game forever have been almost forgotten. Time has shrouded the circumstances in forgetfulness.

He Won't Quit

THE seven men who were chased from the big league ball parks with him have scattered to the four winds. Now and then one of their names bobs up in the paper as running a tailor shop, working in a garage, driving a taxicab. But the name of the eighth man, persistently is repeated because he will not let it die.

His Brilliant Game

YOU probably already have guessed correctly who the man is—Buck Weaver. In the series of 1919 he played third base for the White Sox. And what a game he played!

"I am innocent," he says. "I have new evidence to prove that I had no hand in that crooked series. I played the game the best I knew how."

Washington's sensational Senators, leaders in the 1930 American League pennant race, and Philadelphia's Athletics, 1929 world champions, met today at Philadelphia in the openin-double header of a 4-game series expected to determine the pennant prospects of the two rivals.

AMONG THE MAJOR LEAGUES

Brooklyn gained a tie for the lead Thursday, defeating New York, 4 to 1, in the only National League game of the day.

HORST WALTHER, German newspaperman, watched Sharkey at work the other day in the training camp at Orangeburg.

After the workout some of the boys asked Walther what he thought of the sailor. "I think nothing," said the German, "as is better so," by which he probably meant that he thought plenty, but wasn't going to pipe up with it.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

Text: Matt. 26:31-46

Then saith Jesus unto them, All ye shall be offended because of me this night: for it is written, I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock shall be scattered abroad.

But after I am risen again I will go before you into Galilee. Peter answered and said unto him, Though all men shall be offended because of thee, yet will I never be offended.

Jesus said unto him, Verily I say unto thee, That this night, before the cock crow, thou shalt deny me thrice.

Peter said unto him, Though I should die with thee, yet will I not deny thee. Likewise also said all the disciples.

Then cometh Jesus with them unto a place called Gethsemane, and saith unto the disciples, Sit ye here, while I go and pray yonder. And he took with him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, and began to be sorrowful and very heavy.

Then saith he unto them, My soul is exceedingly sorrowful, even unto death: tarry ye here, and watch with me.

And he went a little further, and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me: nevertheless, not as I will, but as thou wilt.

And he cometh unto the disciples and findeth them asleep, and saith unto Peter, What could ye not watch with me one hour?

Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak.

He went away again the second time, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if this cup may not pass from me, except I drink it, thy will be done.

And he came and found them asleep again: for their eyes were heavy. And he left them, and went away again, and prayed the third time, saying the same words.

Then cometh he to his disciples, and saith unto them, Sleep on now, and take your rest: behold, the hour is at hand, and the Son of man is betrayed into the hands of sinners.

Rise, let us be going; behold, he is at hand that betrayeth me.

June 1st, 1930. Mass at 8 a. m. This is the Sunday within the octave of the Ascension. The gospel read in the mass today is from St. John XV. 26-27; XVI. 1-4. It refers to the coming of the Holy Ghost the Third Persons of the Blessed Trinity. Christ calls the Holy Ghost the Paraclete, that is the Comforter because he was a comforter to the Apostles who were sore distressed at the departure of Christ when he ascended into heaven. The Holy Ghost took the place of Christ for the Apostles. He taught them, imparted his graces to them, and assured them of his assistance for all time. He was their consoler in all their tribulations, by keeping up their spirits, by strengthening them, and by infusing heavenly peace into their

Officers Are Investigating Jake Selling

KANSAS CITY, May 29.—Activities of alleged narcotic and liquor rings were being investigated throughout the southwest today by federal and state authorities.

Of primary interest was the federal grand jury investigation under way in Topeka of sales of poisoned Jamaica ginger which allegedly caused thousands of cases of paralysis in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas. Indications were that conspiracy charges would be filed involving persons and firms in many southwestern cities, as well as New York and Boston. Shipments of alleged poisoned "Jake" were being traced by the federal authorities.

At Springfield, Mo., federal narcotic agents were probing an alleged dope ring, said to extend over all of southern Missouri and Arkansas. Six persons were arrested yesterday and a quantity of morphine was seized.

A federal grand jury at Muskogee, Okla., brought indictments naming two Holdenville druggists and four others on charges of selling sub-standard Jamaica ginger. The jury continued its investigations today.

In south central Kansas, ten farmers stood to lose their property because of alleged violation of the liquor laws, revealed in a series of raids in Sedgwick and Reno counties recently. The farms were to be sold to pay the revenue fines and costs of trial.

The Topeka grand jury also was to consider the case of E. C. Miner, Ford county, Kansas, county attorney, charged with accepting

A STRANGER moves to your neighborhood. You observe him but with no immediate display of interest. You are an established, getting along very nicely before he came.

But you do not avoid him. For reasons not entirely unselfish for him to reveal himself. Possibly he may add something to your and business life. Possibly he will take a highly respected place in your community. He may even become one of your intimates. It is

So you note his manners, talk with him, and form an opinion. When it comes up to your requirements, you accept him, and often he will welcome addition to your group of friends.

It is with exactly the same attitude that the intelligent newspaper regards the advertisements of products new to him. These are his civilized enjoyment. They may contribute to his comfort, and his civilized enjoyment. They may contribute to his comfort, and his success. In many ways they may prove valuable. she had been wearing, probably, although Phillipa could not recall having seen it. Exact to guess that it belonged to Natalie. Gingerly Phillipa picked it up and dropped it on the violets. She wiped her fingers fastidiously. The handkerchief had been wet. Phillipa couldn't help wondering if Natalie had left it in the room as a warning. It would have been an effective touch had Alan found it, she thought.

Over the handkerchief she threw a piece of paper. After that, she opened the window. An elusive faint trace of perfume hung in the air. It might be the odor of the violets, though Phillipa did not believe that it was. More likely, it was the perfume Natalie used, she conjectured. Alan might recognize it.

She opened another window and only when the room had grown chilly, did she close them. She had been, for several moments, indifferent to the change in the temperature. For she was warm with the excitement of a scheme that had popped into her mind all of a sudden while she was thinking of Natalie's visit there.

She was working it out with magical ease. She could tell Alan that Natalie had come in after he telephoned, and that she did not know what she wanted to say until she said that Natalie had acted as though she'd come to renew the quarrel.

The rest—well, there was always a chance that any plot would fail. But this one was worth trying out. She took up the letter from Bernadine and scanned it carefully. Yes, it could be done!

She got up and started to lock the door. . . . better to get her own things. She went out and got what she wanted. Back in the private office she locked the door, with as little noise as possible.

Then she flew to Alan's desk and seated herself there. She began her work with infinite patience. Should Alan interrupt her? He was not likely to, but should he—she would not say that she'd locked herself in for a little cry.

It did not take long, with all her care, to complete her task. She held the finished product up before her and studied it with growing satisfaction and elation.

Certainly Alan would not discover what she had done, she assured herself. "It's fortunate that I could pick a bum stock that would fit in the same space," she reflected gloatingly. "This is just as sure as the other way it's in reverse," she laughed. "Phillipa, you're to be congratulated!"

As a craftsman, she was indeed to be congratulated. Where Bernadine had written the name of the stock she wished Alan to buy for her, Phillipa had written one that she knew to be unsound. But not too unsound; that might arouse suspicion. And there was only the slightest roughness of the paper to show what she had done; except to one who might scrutinize the handwriting closely and detect a difference.

"And who is going to do that?" Phillipa asked herself complacently. She was preparing to go back to her own desk, when she noticed that she had worn her eraser down considerably between cleaning it and using it.

She sat down again at the desk and opened a top drawer of it, from which she took a new eraser. It was not a kind that she liked; that was why she'd come for her own, but it would have been a damaging oversight to provide no evidence that the substitution of names had been made at Alan's desk—where Natalie had sat alone so long!

Satisfied, now, Phillipa went to type furiously on some neglected statements. She left Bernadine's letter in a drawer of Alan's desk. They were not to buy the stock she wanted until the following morning. Phillipa felt she had done other point upon which to congratulate herself. Had Bernadine followed the usual procedure and directed Alan to buy when the stock was a certain figure, it would have been difficult to substitute another and pick one that was unsafe.

But, with a definite time set for the buying, it was easy for Phillipa to carry out her plot. Should Alan not come in the next day before ten o'clock she would see that the order was executed. She preferred Alan to handle the letter and have no doubt of its genuineness before its instructions were carried out; then he could attach no blame to her for failing to detect the tampering. But it would be even more certain to go through if he did not know about it. For a moment Phillipa changed her mind and wished that she could carry out the order immediately.

Well, it didn't matter, one way or the other. Bernadine would be loaded with some worthless stock, and Alan would be wild. Phillipa hoped he wouldn't remember how often and how vehemently she had vowed to keep him away from Natalie. But it was not likely that he would suspect her when every suspicion would point toward Natalie.

She left the office early, to go directly home, on the chance that Alan might call. She felt well pleased with herself. (To Be Continued)

Theological College here, and looking forward with enthusiasm to a position which will pay only $1,200. The man, Edward Spier, a Hebrew convert to Christianity, will be ordained in the Hollywood, Cal., Lutheran church in July. Spier's interest in Christianity began 12 years ago when Miss Mena Detling, a protestant, suggested he attend her church. Spier, then the owner of a construction company in Wilmington, Del.

"Several months passed and then my father learned I was attending a gentle church," the young bible student said. "The question which followed caused me to leave home and go to Los Angeles."

Spier was employed as an architectural engineer at a yearly salary of $7,500 when stricken with Bright's disease. For three years he has been bedridden and when he recovered he enrolled in a Los Angeles seminary, later coming to the Western Theological Seminary at Midland College.

His inspiration for the past twelve years had been the woman who invited him to her church. She has been Mrs. Spier for 10 years.

Eastland County Bathing Beauty Revue On June 14

An Eastland county bathing beauty revue will be held on the night of June 14 at 9 o'clock, officially opening the Lake Cisco swimming pool—the largest pool of its type in the world.

Eastland is invited to be represented in the revue. In fact, each store is invited to select a girl to represent the store. There is no entry charge for contestants, the merchants merely being expected to provide a bathing suit and an appropriate badge bearing their name.

The winner will be known as Miss Eastland County and will be awarded a handsome prize.

After the revue, there will be a banquet for the young ladies and a special dance will be given in their honor. Ray Judia and his Arcadians will play.

There will be no charge for the public to attend the bathing revue and it is hoped to have many thousands present. A horseback platform over the pool in front of the spectators' stands will be erected. A news reel will be made of the scene, it is announced. At least four bands will play.

Further information may be obtained at the Eastland Chamber of Commerce.

As French Greeted Gold Star Mothers

American Gold Star mothers, pilgrims to the battlefields of France where their hero sons were killed in the World War, are pictured here as they arrived on a tender at the Chebourg pier, where French officials were gathered to greet them. These mothers are the first contingent from the United States who will make the trip. Sons of many of them had stepped onto the same pier 13 years ago with the A. E. F.
