Outlaw and Two Officers Killed In Gun Battle

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 30.—The career of Dick Gregg, outlaw wanted by officers throughout the South, had been ended today by two highway policemen who also lost their lives in a gun battle near here late yesterday.

The policemen killed were Ross Darrow and Lincoln Bowline who shot it out with the outlaw after he had stopped to question him. Darrow stepped on the running board of Gregg's car, he received full volley of shots from Gregg's revolver.

Bowline, seeing his companion killed, immediately opened fire. As Gregg fell, fatally wounded, he killed Bowline.

Gregg's companion, Bob Dyer, was held for questioning today. He said he had no police record here. Dyer said he lived in Pawhuska.

Not recognizing Gregg, Darrow and Bowline had stopped to question him regarding a minor accident he had back along the highway.

Gregg had a long police record behind him. He was an escaped convict from Pawhuska where he was serving sentence for bank robbery. He was sought in connection with the holding of the people's State Bank at Wichita, Kan., 20. Officers, for several months had been trying to arrest him to face charges of robbing a bank at Centralia, Okla. last year.

Fate of 73 Is Unknown After Wreck In Fog

Passenger Steamer Collides With Oil Tanker, Sinking Immediately; Captain Goes Down With Ship.

By GEORGE D. CRISSEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Aug. 30.—While the screams of terror-stricken passengers mingled with the hoarse roar of fog-horns, the ancient steamer, San Juan, sank in the Pacific, fifty miles south of here early today, exacting an estimated death toll of more than 50 persons.

At 11:59 last night the San Juan, enroute from San Francisco to Los Angeles, collided with the S. C. T. Dodd, an oil tanker. Five minutes later, the vessel went to the bottom, filling the sea with the 45 passengers and crew of 45.

Answering the frantic SOS calls sent by the San Juan before the wreck killed its power, was the McCormick lumber carrier Munami.

The Dodd, which was not seriously damaged, stood by and with the Munami launched lifeboats. Twenty-seven persons were snatched from the choppy, fog-shrouded waters by the Dodd, and 10 more were saved by the Munami.

The fate of the remaining 73 persons aboard the San Juan is unknown and it is feared that many, and possibly all of them, drowned.

It was a happy, gay crowd that walked up the gangplank late Thursday taking advantage of the low fares offered by the 47-year old San Juan for a trip between the two principal ports of California.

Through a dense fog that hid the heads of Queen Kate, the ship was piloted by Capt. Adolph F. Asplund, temporary commander, who followed the tradition of seafaring men and went to the bottom with his ship.

Southward the San Juan went until it collided with the Dodd about 12 miles off shore near Pigeon Point, a desolate bit of coastline 50 miles from San Francisco.

A thick fog blanket hung over the California coast at the time of the crash and, was the cause of the greatest tragedy of the Pacific in many years.

The horror filled minutes that followed the crash saw the happy band of vacationists, most of whom were bound for vacations in Southern California, turned into a panic stricken mob.

Many of the passengers and crew, it was learned through radio dispatches, had retired for the night and it was feared many perished almost at the same time the waters swirled above the sunken vessel.

But along with the scene of tragedy and panic, there was heroism. One picture the gray Capt. Asplund standing on the bridge going to his death with the ship he was piloting so that its regular captain could go on vacation.

The veteran of the sea came from retirement to favor his friend, Capt. Winkle. Three years ago Capt. Asplund left the sea and sought a home in the exclusive Ingleside Terrace residential section.

He had amassed a comfortable fortune and left with his 22-year daughter, Carolyn.

"Daddy never had an accident of any sort. I know he is safe," she told the United Press and no one told her to tell her of a crisp message that crackled out from the Munami:

"Asplund down with ship."
There was a tragic similarity between the ending of the old San Juan, which was built in Chester, Pa., 47 years ago and the death of Capt. Asplund, who first went before the mast in his native Sweden 53 years ago.

Asplund had sailed the seas, in wind and in storm, for 50 years. He went to sea when 12 years old.

A good ship in her day was the old San Juan. After the war she earned her original purchase price each time she made a round trip to Central America and was the sort of craft sailormen liked—a ship singularly free from trouble. And a good sailor was Asplund. This tragedy was his first accident.

League Council Meets to Face Limited Agenda

First Collaboration of British Laborites Is Important Phase.

By HENRY WOOD
United Press Staff Correspondent
GENEVA, Aug. 30.—England's labor government began its first active collaboration with the League of Nations when the League Council convened here today for its 50th session.

This fact in itself was considered of more importance by League members than any of the items on the British council's agenda.

With the British foreign minister necessarily playing a more or less dominating role as member of the council, League activities are influenced and limited largely by the policy and personality of the English representative.

During the present session of the council as well as the Tenth League assembly, which opens next Monday, League members expect to be able to judge accurately what changes in policy will be brought to the League by Foreign Minister Henderson who replaces Sir Austen Chamberlain.

Of scant importance The meeting which opened today will, aside from the above fact, have very little importance in itself.

This is due to two reasons. First, with the League Assembly convening next Monday, the council prefers to leave all important decisions to that body.

In the second place, the membership of the council will be changed during the first week of the assembly when three new non-permanent members are elected, and the present body prefers not to bind the future membership by any unnecessary decisions.

As a consequence the meeting will be devoted largely to liquidating minor questions that must be disposed of before the assembly meets and in referring to the latter and the more important questions.

The three members of the council whose term expires this year are Poland, Roumania and Chile.

Of these three, Poland at the time of her election was accorded the right of a "semi-permanent" seat and it is expected

Nitroglycerin And Blasting Powder Explode

No Injuries Reported; Explosives Stored in Mine Shaft Near City.

Special to The Telegram:
CISCO, Texas, August 30.—A blast that shook windows over a large section of Cisco, broke out a few mindow panes and, according to reports, threw sleeping people from their beds in the vicinity occurred about 3:30 this morning when 10 quarts of nitroglycerine and two kegs of blasting powder stored in an abandoned mine shaft on the Kincaid farm two miles northeast of Cisco let go from an undetermined cause.

The explosive was the property of John Kliner, Cisco oil operator, who had stored it in the old shaft. The blast blew a crater about 20 feet across and rained dirt and gravel over a wide area.

No one was hurt so far as could be determined.

Mrs. J. E. Kincaid, whose home is about 1,000 feet from the old shaft, reported that she was shaken from her bed by the detonation.

An investigation was being conducted today to determine the cause of the explosion if possible. Rocks dropping from the roof of the cavern in which the nitroglycerin was stored, was advanced as a probable cause although there was opinion that mercenary actions on the part of unknown persons might have been responsible.

Referendum Asked On 18th Amendment

ST. PAUL, Aug. 30.—Congress was asked today in a resolution adopted by the 30th annual encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars to pass legislation for a national referendum on the 18th amendment.

The resolution was adopted only after the most heated fight ever waged at a veteran's convention.

For 15 minutes the auditorium became a bedlam with delegates from all parts of the country yelling and shouting and pushing forward to the front of the hall with demands that they be heard.

National Air Show Continues

Chamberlin Wins Event; Lady Mary Heath Fights for Life After Accident.

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, CLEVELAND, Aug. 30.—With Lady Mary Heath fighting tenaciously for life, the national air show went on today. There was a shadow of gloom over the airport on account of Lady Heath's accident. Her condition was announced as still "very critical" but she had regained consciousness and had a chance to recover.

Precautions were taken to prevent another accident, Lady Mary's having been the first of any consequence since the air races started. Her plane fell through the roof of a factory yesterday.

The field was kept cleared of all planes except those actually taking part in the events under way. At the far side of the air-ports where air mail and passenger planes come and go, they were allowed to clear the field before others took off.

Clarence Chamberlin, trans-Atlantic flyer in a monoplane of his own design, won first place in the race for ships of 215-220 cubic inch motor displacement. His average speed for the 60 miles was 114.8 miles per hour. R. W. Brown, New York, was second with a 112 average.

It was the second heat of the race, the finals being on tomorrow's program. Chamberlin will compete with Verne L. Roberts, Moline, Ill., who won yesterday's race.

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, CLEVELAND, Aug. 30.—Rebellion flared in the ranks of women fliers today when Mrs. Opal Kunz, New York society woman and one of the derby fliers, demanded that women be permitted to compete in all men's races.

She made the demand to Cliff Henderson, director of the races. "There are only two or three events in this show in which women may compete," Mrs. Kunz said. "Six of us have transport licenses but cannot fly with 19-year old boys who have been flying only a short time."

"When Miss Marvel Crosson was killed in the desert and when Lady Mary Heath crashed it was ghastly but we carried on like men fliers. I will not compete in a meet where there is sex segregation. This is a matter of deciding the future of women in aviation."

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 31.—Bob Holt, recently completed a 60-day federal sentence in the county jail, was arrested soon after on a charge of stealing "Joe," mascot of the jail. Officers alleged that Holt took the dog with him as he left the jail.

Riots Continue In Palestine

Fourteen American Students Reported Surrounded by Unfriendly Arabs.

By JACOB SIMON
United Press Special Correspondent.

JERUSALEM, Aug. 30.—Fourteen American students of the art school at Haifa, together with 15 students of other nationalities, were reported today to be surrounded by unfriendly Arabs along the Palestine-Syria border where they were halted during a bicycle tour through Syria.

The American consulate general here appealed to the British military authorities to lend their aid in transporting the boys to safety. It appeared that the boys set out on their expedition before the Arab-Jewish riots broke out here a week ago and knew nothing of the danger which awaited them along the roads.

The rioting continued in several points in spite of the British reinforcements which continued to arrive in Palestine hourly. But the troops seemed to have the situation well in hand and additional forces were being dispatched to every point where new uprisings threatened.

A new outbreak was reported from Acre today and the British immediately rushed a detachment of marines to the city to quell the rising and to establish a military center there for northern Palestine. A British corporal told the United Press correspondent that British troops killed 12 Arab rioters at a village yesterday when the Arabs attempted to loot and plunder Jewish homes. There were no military casualties.

It was reported from various sources that Bedouins continued to gather at the frontier in small numbers and that they were encamping themselves. Troops from Haifa were on a steady march to all points which seem to be in danger.

The Ksfina colony was reported to have been burned to the ground, it was said, and that Dr. Israeli, director of the hospital there, had been killed. The dispatches failed to state when this occurred.

The City of Jerusalem was being patrolled by a double guard today as a precautionary measure against a recurrence of the tragic incidents last Friday after the prayers at the Mosque of Omar.

A number of American families, which began to evacuate Jerusalem, when the trouble between the Jews and the Arabs first broke out just a week ago, arrived safely at Jaffa today, aboard the steamer Canada. The steamer arrived here under a naval escort. Most of the American families were from Jerusalem.

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 30.—The first representation of the troubles in Palestine occurred here today when an Arab was beaten nearly to death by a crowd of Jews in the Jewish quarter after an argument over money.

An American missionary in Jerusalem, an eye witness to the initial conflict which resulted in the bloodiest religious war seen here in years, said today that the trouble which had been smoldering for a decade broke into flame with the destruction of a football.

The missionary, who refused to disclose his identity, said a group of Jewish boys had been bouncing a football off an Arab's garden wall. The irate Moslem captured the ball and hacked it to pieces. A quarrel ensued and one of the boys was killed.

"The following day," the missionary said, "the authorities tried to divert the funeral from passing the Arab quarter. The Jews resisted. Several casualties resulted. These two incidents started bad blood brewing."

"Last Friday I saw a group of Arabs chase several Jews out of St. Stephens gate, but hearing those who were slower of foot."

"Afterward they began to ambush cars along the Jericho road in the vicinity of the Mount of Olives, knifing and clubbing Jews, but not molesting others."

"I saw one driver dash his car down a steep precipice rather than be captured by the Arabs. Two Arabs stopped me and asked me what religion I belonged to. They did not molest me when I told them I was a Christian, but vowed to decapitate all Jews."

Glee Club Will Sing in Comedy Play 'Aunt Lucia'

Next Thursday and Friday nights 25 business men of Eastland are going back to the old college days and sing a number of the old time college songs to open the college comedy, "Aunt Lucia."

This glee club will be one of the feature attractions of the production, and is something different from features which have been staged in amateur shows of the past.

Some of the songs to be sung are "Collegiate," "Bula, Bula," "Show Me the Way to Go Home," and "In the Evening by the Moonlight."

The members of the glee club will rehearse tonight in the basement of the First Methodist church at 7 o'clock.

6 Jurors Are Obtained From Venire of 200

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Aug. 30.—The special venire of 200 men was exhausted today with only six men selected on the jury to try the sixteen textile strikers on murder charges.

At 11:40 a. m., the court ordered an examination of a second special panel of 300 was to begin.

Objections to convicting a defendant of murder charges on circumstantial evidence permitted 10 veniremen during the morning to elude jury duty.

The first lineup of the trial resulted from an attempt by Arthur Garfield Hays, chief counsel of the American Civil Liberties Union, to question a prospective juror.

The venireman, B. F. Gathings, Jr., said he thought all the defendants were guilty. Hays jumped to his feet and placing his hand on Sophie Melvin, 19 year old defendant, asked if Gathings thought she was guilty. Judge Barnhill rapped for order before the prospective juror could reply. "Only one question at a time," he said.

Hays was inclined to argue but the court explained the law allowed only one at a time to question jurors.

BOULDER, Colo., Aug. 31.—Commander Edward Ellsberg, United States navy, hero of the sinking of the sunken submarine, S-51, received a degree of doctor of science at the summer commencement of the U. of Colorado.

Doctor Takes Witness Stand In Afternoon

Helms Chants Song in Courtroom; Ranger Capt. Tom Hickman Testifies.

The defense in the Helms sanity hearing rested at 2:20 o'clock this afternoon after testimony of Dr. F. S. White, Wichita Falls, had been given.

Dr. White is head of a private hospital at Wichita Falls and was formerly superintendent of state hospitals for the insane at different times at the following cities: Terrell, Austin, San Antonio and Wichita Falls.

Dr. White's answer to a hypothetical question propounded by R. L. Rust, defense attorney, based on the facts recited in the question, if these facts were true, was that Helms was of unsound mind.

Defense testimony in the Helms case was interrupted this morning by agreement of the attorneys, to permit two witnesses from Dallas and Ranger Captain Tom Hickman of Ft. Worth, to testify out of their order that they might return to their work.

Jack Gorman, chief jailer, and J. H. Heffington, assistant jailer at Dallas testified for the state. They said that, in their opinion Helms was sane.

Witnesses for the defense testified that, since Helms was affirmed he had lost it in everything and no longer himself clean.

Ranger Captain Hickman, a witness, said that he had Helms since December, 1928, he met him in the Young Jail following his arrest in connection with the Cisco hold-up. He said he believed Helms is sane.

An order signed by Helms and given to Hickman, which stated that Helms sold two automatic 45-caliber pistols taken off him when he was captured at Graham, to Hickman for $25.00, was offered as evidence. Hickman testified that he paid the Dallas county jailer $25.00 for Helms and that Helms told him he wanted the money sent to his wife and children.

Hickman said that he saw Helms talking to his father, J. C. Helms, in the Dallas jail and that Henry was crying.

Horace Coon, steward of the Huntsville prison called by the defense, gave a detailed description of "death row" at Huntsville and said that Helms, when he was there, was treated just as other prisoners in that ward were treated. He said he had never seen Helms and Marshall Ratliff talking with each other.

Testimony in the Helms sanity hearing was resumed this morning when Mrs. Nettie Helms, wife of the accused, who testified Thursday, was recalled to the stand by Helms' counsel for the purpose of tendering to the state letters she identified as having been written by Helms and received by her through the mail. Counsel for the state did not read the letters nor offer them in evidence. They indicated, however, that they might offer them later, and the defense reserved the right to be heard on the matter should they be offered.

Rev. H. E. Bolley, pastor of an Assembly of God church in Dallas, and for twenty-two years a minister, testified for Helms. Mrs. I. C. Cade and Mrs. Ollen Price, Dallas church workers, also testified for Helms. These three witnesses testified that in their opinion Helms was insane. They based these opinions upon their observation of Helms in the Dallas county jail where they often visited him and other prisoners for the purpose of talking to them about their spiritual welfare.

J. J. Parker, assistant jailer at Dallas, called by the defense, testified that Helms, while in the Dallas jail, was judged by the "Kansas court" organized by the prisoners and that as such he kept the cells in his portion of the jail clean, it being one of the rules of prisoners' court to see that the inmates kept their cells clean.

Parker on cross examination by the state said he believed Helms was sane while he was in the jail.

Helms appeared in court this morning with a fresh haircut and shave. He had also changed the blue shirt he wore for a fresh uncertainty and interest attaches to the successor to Chile. Up to the present time Paraguay and Bolivia are the only two active Latin American members of the League who have not had their turn on the council.

LEAGUE COUNCIL MEETS

Ordinarily, under agreement amongst the Latin American members themselves the place would go to one of these two.

The situation, however, is now complicated by two other facts. In the first place the pending dispute between Paraguay and Bolivia makes it exceedingly hard for the League to choose between these two without creating the impression that it favors one or the other in this dispute.

In the second place there is a marked tendency on the part of Peru, now that the Tacna-Arica dispute is settled to return to the League.

As a consequence should the latter send a delegation to the coming assembly, it is considered highly probable that she would be elected to the council. This would be not only in recognition of her turn to active League collaboration but also of the fact that she accepted pacific settlement in conformity with League principles of the Tacna-Arica dispute.

South American Seat.
The consequence the greatest of the disaster was that the ship was wrecked at 8:20 a. m. that it had changed its direction to put to port and would stand by so long as there was any chance to be of assistance.

When it is determined beyond a doubt that the Munami cannot do anything further, it will start for Wilmington, Calif., where she was bound when the SOS call of the San Juan was received.

While the Munami and Dodd were steaming for ports, two coast guard cutters, the Shawnee and Tahoe, left San Francisco for the vicinity of the wreck to take up search for survivors and for bodies.

At 7:30 a. m. PST, no reports of bodies being found had been received. At that hour previous reports of 37 being known safe were confirmed through the Mackay-Federal radio.

True to their calling, were the sailors of the Dodd and Munami, braving the perils created by dense fog and a choppy sea, they launched tiny lifeboats and with frantic speed pulled members of the crew and passengers of the San Juan aboard.

As the rescue work continued, the winds abated and the sea calmed somewhat but the blanket of fog hung on.
Because the two ships departed, giving up the hunt, little hope was entertained for the missing persons, although it was possible that some reached the isolated and barren coast line.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 30.—The passenger liner San Juan, bound from San Francisco to Los Angeles, collided with the oil tanker S. C. T. Dodd almost on the stroke of midnight and plunged to the bottom of the Pacific a few minutes later this morning.

The San Juan carried 65 passengers and a crew of 45.

Twenty-seven persons were rescued by the Dodd and 10 by the lumber carrier Munami, first to answer SOS calls.

Fate of the remaining 73 is unknown.

The Dodd advised San Francisco radio stations at 5 a. m. that she had abandoned the search for additional survivors and was proceeding to San Francisco, 60 miles to the north.

A thick curtain of fog hung over the Pacific and along the shoreline when the wreck occurred. Due to poor visibility, rescue work by the S. C. T. Dodd and McCormick liner Munami was hampered.

A thrilling story of a mighty struggle against overwhelming odds was related in the brief radio dispatches that crackled from the ships stand by to the Mackay federal radio station here.

A choppy sea was reported during the early morning hours as sailors in small boats searched the disaster strewn patch of the Pacific for the passengers of the ill-fated San Juan.

Captain Adolph F. Asplund, 65, true to the traditions of seafaring men, went down with the San Juan of which he was the temporary commander.

Going to sea when 12 years of age, Captain Asplund acquired a comfortable fortune and retired three years ago, buying a home in Ingleside terrace, an exclusive residential section near the Pacific where he lived with his daughter, Carolyn.

The other day, the daughter told the United Press, the White Flyer line called her father and asked him to take command of the old San Juan while the regular captain was on vacation.

Unable to withstand the temptation to put to sea again, in command of his own ship, Captain Asplund accepted the assignment and late Thursday took the San Juan out through the heads of Golden Gate—and sailed to disaster.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 30.—A thrilling drama of the sea was enacted today as efforts from rescue ships pulled 37 persons from the Pacific ocean, in which they were cast when the White Flyer liner San Juan was rammed shortly after midnight by the Standard Oil tanker S. C. T. Dodd.

The San Juan sank immediately after the crash, which took place in a dense fog at sea off Pigeon Point, 50 miles south of San Francisco.

The San Juan, passenger ship on the San Francisco-Los Angeles run, carried between 65 and 70 passengers and a crew of 45.

Fate of the remaining passengers and crew was unknown at 3:45 a. m. It was believed that a heavy load of life would be certain.

Twenty-seven of the rescued are aboard the S. C. T. Dodd, The McCormick steamer Munami, which answered SOS calls from both ships rescued 10.

The S. C. T. Dodd, bound from Baltimore for Richmond, oil storage port on San Francisco bay, was commanded by Captain H. P. Bleunchen of Oakland, California.

A passenger list of the San Juan was not available at 4 a. m. A. E. Gillespie of the Los Angeles and San Francisco navigation company advised the United Press that tickets were sold at various branch offices throughout the city, and in view of the late sailing of the ship would not be reported in complete form to the main office until the branches open at 8 a. m.

He continued his singing, repeating at regular intervals, the words, "Ain't Gonna Sing No More," and "Aye, Captain."

Suffering with his conscience and from the wounds inflicted by members of the posse that ran him down following the hold up of the First National Bank of Cisco, Henry Helms has become insane, in the opinion of Bert Ashby, formerly associated with counsel for Helms in perfecting his appeal to the higher court.

after conviction for his part in the Cisco robbery, testified in the sanity hearing before Judge G. L. Davenport Thursday.

Ashby said that from his observation of Helms and his dealings with him as his attorney, he was thoroughly convinced that when Helms saw the last ray of hope that his case would be reversed fading the load on his conscience became more than he could bear and that he began weakening. The witness told of trying to keep him interested in the appeal of his case after the filing of the second motion for a rehearing, and how his efforts were almost wholly in vain.

J. C. Helms, father of Henry Mrs. J. C. Helms, Henry's mother, Mrs. Nettie Helms, Henry's wife, and Ashby were the four witnesses that testified for Helms Thursday. Each testified that, in their opinion, Helms was insane.

Helms' father and mother, in long drawn out direct and cross examinations, gave detailed accounts of Henry's life from the time he was 5 years of age to the present. Henry, they testified, had always been peculiar and unlike the rest of the children. He never liked to stay at home and many times left home and had to be hunted and forced to return. He suffered greatly with his head, which appeared to hurt him more severely when he was worried. Being out of employment always worried him greatly, they said.

Henry appeared to like to handle guns, they testified, but never owned but one, that a six-shooter that he worked a farmer's crop for when he was about 13 years of age. J. C. Helms denied that Henry was an expert shot with a six shooter and declared that if he knew much about shooting one he learned it just prior to the Cisco hold-up.

J. C. Helms testified that Henry took dope while he was in prison. Attorneys for the State questioned him closely on this point. He said that he saw the place in Henry's arm where the needle had been used and reiterated the statement that he knew that he took dope.

Mrs. Nettie Helms, the accused man's wife and a frail, delicate woman, shed tears as she told of how Henry had changed; how his strength had wasted away and his mind weakened since his conviction for the Cisco robbery.

Henry was always good to her and the children, she stated, except that he would often leave home without telling them where he was going nor when he would return. A number of times he did this and only returned when his father hunted him up and brought him home. Mrs. Nettie Helms is a sister of Louis Davis one of the robbers. Davis was fatally wounded at the time of the holdup and died shortly afterwards in a Fort Worth hospital. Helms was a day laborer and for some time before the Cisco hold-up worked at a glass factory in Wichita Falls.

During the cross examination of Bert Ashby, Judge Rust, attorney for Helms, objected to Ashby answering a question propounded by the state in which County Attorney James asked Ashby if E. V. Allen, who is under death sentence for robbery with fire arms in connection with the First State Bank of Carbon hold-up, and whom Ashby had testified occupied an adjoining cell to Helms in the Dallas county jail, was "putting on any crazy stunts."

Addressing his remarks to the court Jones said that the state contended that since the Pete McKinzie insanity trial, Allen, Marshall Ratliff and Helms, and possibly others had been planning and scheming sanity pleas. The court permitted the witness to answer the question, which he did in the negative.

Oklahoma City
Citizens Stage
Pajama Parade

BY UNITED PRESS

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Aug. 30.—The North Carolina newspaper editor who introduced the pajama fad to this heat-prostrated world would have hung his head in shame today had he seen the parade of his comfort-minded devotees held here last night.

Ten thousand of the local citizenry, assembled mostly because of unfavorable advance notices issued by Oklahoma City ministers, saw 29 boys and girls, clad in shockingly decent night clothes, pass single file behind a 10-piece brass band. Sixteen of the paraders were under 10 years of age.

Policemen, stationed along the route to arrest the first person even suggesting indecency, were needed only to direct traffic.

As a grand finale, Art Mix, self-admitted movie star who resembles Tom Mix, presented Gladys Thompson, 16, with a $10 bill for wearing the "pajama costume most appropriate for street wear." The costume was black and gold and looked like it was patterned after a sailor's uniform.

The six young men wore loudly striped pajamas over woolen suits. Had it been daytime they would have smothered under the rays of an Oklahoma sun.

The parade was sponsored by a group of merchants operating along Oklahoma City's newly installed "white way."

Bobby Jones to Be

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif., Aug. 30.—This promises to be by all odds the most picturesque and entertaining of amateur golf championships.

The air of camaraderie and gaiety at Pebble Beach on the eve of the tournament has not been equalled in the 33 years that amateur golfers have been competing for the title.

Whether next week's championships develops into one of the greatest from a competitive standpoint depends of course upon what one of the five opponents he must face at match play to win his title is able to do against Bobby Jones.

The Atlantan is taking on the leading English contenders in a practice round today, the four-some including Cyril Tolley, British amateur champion; Eustace Storey, the popular young chap who wears silk gloves to protect his hands, and Francis Ouimet, who first broke up British golf supremacy in the historic play-off at Brookline 16 years ago.

Late to Marry

BY UNITED PRESS

BUTTE, Mont., Aug. 31.—When Edward W. Williams, 29, armed with a marriage license, started in quest of Mildred Lucile Warren, whom he confidently expected to marry, he was just a few minutes late. Miss Warren had married Van Bumgarner, 23, who had taken her with him when he applied for a license.

It was the first time on record in Butte that two licenses had been issued to two men to marry the same girl on the same day.

The TRAINING TALENT

By ELEANOR EARLY © 1929 NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
MOLLY BURNHAM, charming and wealthy has suggested a trial engagement. The fiance on approval is BOB NEWTON, who happens to be the widower's husband. Molly's dearest friend, Molly, is not in love with Bob. But she is very much in love with his little daughter, and the only way, apparently, that she can keep the old man from marrying her, is to prove how ruthless he is. Bob, who has already called at Molly's flat with a policeman, to demand the surrender of Little FA, who lives with her. After a fracas has subsided, Molly asks to return the next day, when they may discuss matters amicably. Then she proposes the trial engagement, with the stipulation that the experiment shall be kept secret until such time as they decide to marry. She suggests a period of three months as the minimum time required to ascertain the practicability of marriage.

GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XLIV
 Eventually Bob had agreed to trial engagement. He had begun, immediately, however, to be very nervous. Molly had seen of a painting she had seen in Florence. As though she were a genius, and waved a magic wand, Bob procured a very copy. It was La Maddalena, the Dolci.

A usual conception of Magdalen, as Molly had seen them in the galleries, were of older women with tragic faces. But Bob had painted a young girl of high school age, who had a face as sunny as a summer day, and was so young, and so beautiful, intense child. Her eyes were dark and passionate, and her hair full, and fashioned for a girl of her age. There was a holy light in her eyes, and it had been transfused into a great love. Such a girl had never lived in any age. And Molly thought of her. And she thought of the girl of the picture. She had seen the original. She had seen only two other girls like her. The first was the daughter of the Countess of Correggio's Virgin Adoring Baby.

Bob had found the Magdalen for her, and he had not been able to get her. He had been told that she was in the hands of the Countess of Madonnas. He had been told that she was in the hands of the Countess of Madonnas. He had been told that she was in the hands of the Countess of Madonnas. He had been told that she was in the hands of the Countess of Madonnas.

Feel Ten Years Younger, Says Ranger Visitor

Fullerton Hardly Knew that It Was To Have A Well Day Before Taking Orgatone.

Before I took Orgatone I knew what it was to feel but now I don't know what to feel. I feel ten years younger than I really am. Interesting statement was made by a Fullerton representative a few days ago in the Fullerton Pharmacy by Mrs. E. Fullerton of Borger, Tex., who is taking her sister here in her car.

"You're seeing a lot of Newton these days, aren't you?" she asked. "Well, you've deserted me," she bantered, "and I've deserted you." "You've turned me down," he reminded her. "But, just to show there's no hard feelings, I'm going to tell you something, Jack Wells is getting in town tonight. He's ducked the reporters in New York and he's kept out of sight since he returned from Europe. There was a story that he'd taken an apartment in Greenwich Village, but nobody could locate him. Anybody who had a tip this afternoon, he has a reservation on the Merchant's."

Samoan Leader To See Hoover

NEA Los Angeles Bureau

hardly the thing to banish even an unofficial fiancé, in order to receive an old sweetheart. Particularly when the two were friends, and the affair would undoubtedly result in embarrassing complications.

"No," she said. "Please don't. It's awful sweet of you, Red. But—well, I never told you before, but Jack turned me down flat, just before he went to Italy. Oh dear, it's awful to talk like this. The operators listen—I know they do. Besides—no, please don't. I don't want you to. That is, I do, really, only you mustn't. There are other reasons. I can't talk about them now. The operators listen, I tell you. Anyhow it's horrible to discuss your private affairs over the phone. I think you're foolish to try to get an interview. Jack will be awfully nasty, if you ask him anything personal."

"I won't put my foot in it. Don't worry. Go ahead and spend a nice jolly evening with Newton, if you'd rather. Has he been throwing any more lamps around? Or trotting cops in on you?"

"Please, Red!" she besought. "Be careful what you say. I can't talk any more now. I promised Rita I'd take her for a ride in the swan boats, and the poor child's been waiting for hours. Don't mention my name to Jack at all. I'd rather you didn't—truly, Red."

Molly expected Bob that evening for dinner. It was the first time he had failed to keep an engagement. She waited for some time, expecting him every moment. But he had not come by the time dinner was over, and he failed to telephone during the evening. She wondered, disconsolately, if he were drinking again. And reflected that she might have let Red bring Jack around, quite as well as not. If Bob was going to break dinner engagements with her, then surely she had a right to entertain whatever friends she chose.

The evening dragged interminably. She wondered if Jack and Red were together, and what they were doing. She speculated as to what had brought Jack to Boston, and whether or not he would try to see her. Probably he would ask Red about her. She wondered if Red would tell him about Bob. And then she thought of Mrs. Bulwer-Eaton, and wondered if Red would dare to ask Jack questions about her. She was still wondering when the telephone rang.

"Hello, Molly," he said, and his voice still had that tender timbre that thrilled her so outrageously. "Yes," she said, striving for control. "Who is it, please?" She felt as though she might faint, or cry aloud, or do something altogether nonsensical and hysterical.

cause she had not let Jack come, and now it was too late. She would wait until 10 o'clock. If Bob had not come then, she would telephone the hotels, and locate Jack. Or perhaps Red Flynn would call, and let her know where she might reach him. Dear Red! It was like him to try to patric up things.

When the servants had gone to bed, she went to the kitchen, and looked in the refrigerator and the pantry. She would prepare supper herself for Jack if he came. She remembered the day of Ruth Wood's funeral, when she wanted to cook dinner. That was the night Dopey Dan shot her, when she was on her way home from the florist's. Lots of water had flowed under the bridges since then. That day was the turning point in her whole life. How nice it was, getting things ready for Jack! They were going to have steak she remembered, and mushrooms—and, of course, she was to cook them herself. Now she had a woman to cook her food, and a man to serve it. Almost anybody would think that would make life pleasant. But it didn't.

"I shan't tell Jack I've a butler," she decided. "It would simply annoy him."

But she had better tell him, she decided, about Bob. Better tell him right straight off. Bob was being a perfectly ideal fiancé. While he played the game, she must. Besides, it was much safer to tell the truth. Goodness, next time she saw Jack, she and Bob would probably be married.

She covered her face with her hands, and began, quite suddenly, to cry. The door bell rang, and still she cried. Then she remembered that Natsu had gone to bed. She must make herself presentable.

She dabbed her face with powder, and looked at herself in the glass. Her nose was red and swollen, and her eyes were puffed.

"If it's Bob," she thought, "he'll think I've been crying because I was worried about him."

In 1928 Louisiana ranked first with production of 136,320,000 pounds, an increase of 10 per cent over the preceding year, while Texas production climbed 79 per cent—from 66,896,000 to 100,828,000 pounds.

Krishnamurti Explains His New Position

OMMEN, Holland, Aug. 30.-Truth cannot be reached by following a particular road or by a special organization. This was the reason given in an interview with the United Press by Krishnamurti, the "modern Messiah", for the dissolution of his famous organization, "Order of the Star of the East."

A sensation was caused when Krishnamurti announced to the members of the Order, attending the international Camp Conference here, that he had decided to disband his organization. He told the United Press that there was no cause for maintaining the Order.

"Spiritual life is organized or imposed as a faith, dies," he declared. "People who think they can attain safety or truth by an organization are mistaken. Truth can only be reached through the inner forces."

Here the United Press correspondent pointed out that other people might form organizations similar to the "Order of the Star of the East," but while admitting that this might be so, Krishnamurti declared that the matter would not concern him.

"My task is only to rid people of fear, not to form other religions or sects," he said. "I founded my organization to make people better, to help them to prepare themselves for their tasks. Only a few understood me and they do not need any organization. These friends will continue my work and ideas more intensively and will fight the danger of untruth. They are bound by mutual friendship. I have given up the order after careful consideration."

"The preparation of my ideas will be in the hands of my friend D. Rajagopal, The Star Publishing Trust and the Eerde Foundation for the management of the Eerde Estate, near Ommen and the yearly camps will be maintained, and the Ojai Camp Corporation, California, the Rishi Valley Trust, India and the Amphitheatrum Trust, Sydney, Australia will also be continued."

"I think we are entering a new era," she continued. "Future generations will understand Krishnamurti's ideas better and realize what they mean. Krishnamurti has given a clear example of logical consequence by disbanding the Order."

FAIRFIELD, Aug. 29.-The hearing in Judge H. Fountain Kirby's court, in which officials connected with the stopping in Dallas of the Kober-Tramel prizefight Aug. 8 are to show cause why they should not be held in contempt of court, has been postponed until Sept. 9.

Jack Faces Big Job In Role As Fight Promoter

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.-It begins to appear that Chicago is destined to appear for a promoter's war which will put in the shade the three-cornered battle of last year when Paddy Harmon, Jim Mullen and Mandy Malloy tried to outdo each other with leading fights.

The central figure in the coming year is Jack Dempsey, the former heavyweight champion who has decided to enter the promotional field here this year.

Dempsey has contracted to act as promoter for the Chicago coliseum during the coming winter and in so doing he has taken upon himself a man-sized job.

Despite his admitted popularity as a fighter, Jack must now prove that he is a good enough promoter to take a building which seats 13,000 at best and compete with the new Chicago stadium which can pack in better than 25,000.

Already Dempsey has signified his intention to stage fights at intervals of two weeks from the first of October until the latter part of November. But he has not given any invitation as to whether he has signed any leading matches.

Right now, the belief here seems to be that Dempsey will go over as a promoter in his first few fights because Jack himself is a drawing card, even though he is in the non-combatative role of promoter. But the question is asked, "what will Dempsey be as a promoter if his first few fights do not prove a success?"

Jack distinctly is handicapped, since his building seats only half of the stadium capacity. That fact means that Harmon will be able to pay the ordinary run of fighters more in the hopes of building up a real drawing card for a big fight.

OIL NEWS

LULING, Texas, Aug. 30.-The Penn well on the Manford farm last night was flowing in steady heads about fifteen minutes apart.

At a depth of 2,418 feet the well came in on Wednesday. It is believed that the bit struck a crevice and that production is really coming up from the E2-1 sands here. The oil is similar to that in the Bruner field and that of the newly discovered Dars Creek field.

PALESTINE, Tex., Aug. 30.-After turning to salt water when it was drilled deeper, the Todd A-2 well has started producing again as a result of its having been plugged back to the first depth.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 30.-The Cushing district of Payne county, north of Cushing, has been revived with the drilling in the Shaffer Oil Co. No. 1-Little Chief. The well flowed 427 1-2 barrels the first 24 hours then increased to 517 barrels after deepened to 3,522 feet.

Three wells in the Oklahoma City field produced more than 8,000 barrels Thursday and production of the thirteen wells in the entire field reached 54,442 barrels.

new locations in the Oklahoma City area and indications are that more will be started within the next few days.

St. Louis pool topped the Viola line at 3,295 feet and drilled to 4,126 feet, then flowed 218 barrels for six hours. The well is averaging forty barrels an hour today.

Greater Seminole area showed a slight decrease in production Thursday, compared with Wednesday. Total output for 1,655 wells Thursday was 364,283 barrels.

HOUSTON, Aug. 30.-Activity in the deep sands area on the south side of the Humble field is marked. In this section Marland Oil Company's No. 1-Warner is drilling around 2,300 feet and will probably be a completion the latter part of next week. Their No. 1-Sezenaux is being worked over.

Humble and Valley No. 2-Woodley at Raccoon Bend in Austin county, which came in Tuesday flowing 400 barrels is now making around 800 barrels on three eights inch choker.

LULING, Aug. 29.-Oil production in the Luling territory was increased when the Penn well on the Manford farm, four miles south of here, came in with an estimated flow of 900 barrels of 38.50 gravity

Ranger Tells of Some Thrilling Man Hunts in Texas

(Special Correspondent)

Mr. McCollum, who came to Texas from Georgia, fifty years ago, is the only person left of the Texas Rangers when the chief duty of the organization was to protect the state from Indian raids and desperados.

McCollum enlisted in the army in 1874, when a company of one hundred and fifty men was sent to Stephenville and the Indian Territory. He was discharged at Burnett, Texas, in 1877 by Major Jones who was then in command. McCollum, then 24, was discharged as it might be valuable to him later. About three years ago Mr. McCollum sent his discharge to the U. S. War Department as proof of service and was receiving a pension.

McCollum, during his four years of service had to furnish his own clothes, horse and six shod and for his wages received $40 a month and had no thought that he would later get further compensation.

McCollum, a man of modest means, who is not given to boasting of his experiences, when interviewed on Friday, talked interestingly of those picturesque days of frontier life.

A few days after his enlistment his company started westward, he said, in search of a band of Indians who had recently raided that country. While never actually engaged in an Indian fight, Mr. McCollum had the experience of hearing bullets from Indian guns shatter the tent in which he was sleeping when the Redmen suddenly in the darkness of the night came upon the Ranger camp where Abilene now is, the savages yelling and shooting in an effort to stampede the horses which were grazing near the camp. This they succeeded in doing, but as most of the animals were loaded, the Indians got away without a few of them. The next morning the rangers sought the trail of the Indians as the savages

FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH IS FOUND; FROZEN FAST TO THE SOUTH POLE

CHICAGO.—They sent Sergt. Jack Brady to investigate the quarrel between Thored Rosen and Phalo Platz, the eminent youth restorer, one of them—it makes no difference which—had a studio in Canal street near the origin of Milwaukee avenue.

"These birds claim they can make old men young, and we think that you ought to go over and see about it," said Lieut. Felton.

"What do you mean like that?" inquired Sergt. Brady, taking off his star.

"Nothing personal," hastily explained the lieutenant. "There seems to be some sort of disagreement between these lads, and the neighbors—most of whom are old people—are complain about the racket."

So Sergt. Brady pined his star back on and proceeded to the fountain of youth in Canal street. He had no difficulty finding the place. It was a dingy one with windows filled with yellow pictures of old Doc Platz, who had been an old man at 25 years of age and now was approaching second childhood at 73.

The place was also evident to the ear, for sounds of armorer in two piping voices floated out to the street.

Sergt. Brady entered and found Messrs. Platz and Rosen facing one another across a bowl of yarb

Champ Cows in Their Class

The two champion producers in the dairy world are said to be Queen Bessie Pieterje Ormsby, above, Holstein-Friesian cow owned by R. V. Rasmussen of Deerfield, Ill., and Sophie's Emily, below, Jersey cow owned by W. R. Kenan, Jr., of Lockport, N. Y. The former's production record, extending over four lactations, totals 705,475 pounds of milk and 5366 pounds of butterfat. She is also dam of a champion herd sire. Sophie's Emily holds a nine-year production record of 7030 pounds of butterfat and 143,348 pounds of milk. She is well on the way of breaking the lifetime production record of her granddam, Sophie 19th of Hood Farm.

They have captured Mexico—yes, even Portes Gil, president of Mexico, has fallen for it. A scrimmage between two picked teams of players of the University of Mexico, where it was introduced this year, he expressed strong approval of the game and even posed with a cameraman took their picture. The arrow indicates Gil. The Mexican team is scheduled to play Louisiana College this fall.
