TARIFF BILL IS BITTERLY ATTACKED IN SPEECH

Sen. Harrison Calls It 'Worst Conspiracy'

Republicans Charged by Dem ocrat Favoring Already Bleated Favored Ones.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The republican tariff bill was characterized by Senator Pat Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, as "the worst conspiracy that was ever concocted in the legislative annals of this government" in a speech today, opening the second day of senate debate on the measure.

Harrison said the republicans permitted Senators Reed of Pennsylvania and Edge of New Jersey to write the steel and earthenware schedules; Bingham of Connecticut, supervise the fixing of woolen and cotton rates, and Chairman Smoot handle the sugar schedule, in which he has so long been vitally interested.

"It was a case of trading and trafficking among themselves in the interest of the already bloated favored ones of their particular states," Harrison added.

Harrison's speech was the high light of the day which showed also the increased interest of the senate in international affairs. Senator Purnifold Simmons, ranking democratic member of the finance committee, read newspaper accounts from Europe stating the nations there were falling in line with French Premier Briand's idea of a commercial "United States of Europe." Simmons said the dispatches confirmed his prediction that the nations of the world would band together against the proposed American tariff policy embodied in the present bill.

Wall Street. NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Stocks moved back and forth in confused fashion today with the upward tendency finally overcoming all obstacles of the earlier trading.

United Corporation was the most active stock on the board. It was selling in blocks ranging from 1,000 to 20,000 shares at steadily rising prices. Radio, May apartment stores, Pullman, Columbia Gas, Republic Iron and Steel, Vanadium International Nickel, Baltimore and Ohio and allied chemical were among the strongest issues.

The opening was irregular then followed a rapid rally under the lead of U. S. Steel. In the second hour, prices began to break until losses were over 7 points in some stocks.

Toward noon the list again turned upward. Money was in supply at 8 per cent and when it declined to 7 per cent, buying operations took on a broader scope until the whole list had definitely turned upward.

About the only important issue remaining below the previous close was United States Steel. Sponsors of that stock evidently were trying to keep it from rising too rapidly.

General Motors, Anaconda and Montgomery Ward also failed to make much of a showing.

Standard of New Jersey was still the favorite in the oils and good buying came into Standard of New York. United Corporation led the utilities. Radio Keith Orpheum was bid up more than a point.

Two Are Injured In Dallas Church Fire

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 12.—Two men were rescued from flames that Thursday night gutted the Union Goshen Mission Hotel here.

J. S. A. Worth, 45, was overcome by smoke and had to be carried from the structure by firemen.

Kicking out a glass window and swinging by his hands from the window sill until rescued, D. L. Cates, 38, was severely burned on his arms and legs.

Both men were removed to Parkland Hospital where it was reported they would recover.

Explosion of a water heater in a bathroom on the second floor was blamed for the fire which spread so quickly that other occupants of the hotel narrowly escaped in time to avoid being trapped.

Moody Commutes Jesse Charles Death Sentence

AUSTIN, Sept. 12.—Governor Dan Moody today commuted to life imprisonment the death sentence of Jesse Charles, negro, scheduled to be executed after midnight tonight at the state penitentiary at Huntsville.

Charles was convicted of killing a white youth, Winfred Kniple, in Liberty county. Conviction was obtained on the testimony of two other negroes who claimed to have been eye witnesses to the shooting.

One of the witnesses, now dead, made a statement just before death that Charles did not shoot the youth, and that the condemned man did not have a gun at the time. He did not name the assassin, however.

The commutation was ordered because Governor Moody felt that some doubt remained as to who killed Kniple.

BOWIE, Texas, Sept. 12.—Ray Wyatt was held in jail at Montague, Thursday night following an alleged attack on his father U. L. Wyatt. Charges of assault with intent to murder were filed against him. Meanwhile, the elder Wyatt was recovering in a local hospital from cuts on the body.

DALLAS, Sept. 12.—Randolph Moore, Dallas outfielder and leader in batting, tied the all-time Texas League record for the number of hits in a season Wednesday afternoon against pitcher Jim Chaplain of San Antonio when he got three to give him a total of 241. He is certain to set a new record before the season closes Sunday.

In 1924 Ike Boone of San Antonio hit safely 241 times in 148 games and 600 times at bat for the record. It has stood since that time with hardly a threat until now. Moore has been hitting consistently all season and has been in 161 games and at bat 654 times. Dallas has played eight tie games this season which accounts for the big difference.

Approximate value of Texas production in different lines is: Farm crops $800,000,000. Livestock $200,000,000. Minerals $400,000,000. Forest and other natural resources $60,000,000.

bright hues. Beautiful homes of Spanish architecture nestle in scenes of tropical trees and fragrant flowers like lovely jewels in splendid settings.

It is a land that is a succession of pictures, if you get what we mean. It is a bit of Hawaii; a touch of the South Sea islands; something suggesting California; a hint of Florida—all blended into a region that is unlike anything in the United States. And this section of charm is in Texas. Every Texan will have a vaster pride in his great State after he has visited the unique Valley region with its citrus groves, palm trees and progressive, picturesque cities.

But while the panorama will delight the visitor, the Magic Valley is more than a mere spectacle as Marvin Goodwin of Mission will demonstrate as he pours forth a dazzling array of facts. Mr. Goodwin is one of the leaders in the wonderful development that this territory is undergoing.

He describes the Valley as 75 miles long and 20 miles wide. In the last 12 months it has shipped out 25,000 cartons of fruit and vegetables. Only 2,200 cars were filled with fruits, yet they were valued at $3,000,000. In this same period of 12 months, the Valley has produced a cotton crop worth $10,000,000.

The land is in use virtually the year 'round. Seventy-five per cent of the citrus is grapefruit and Valley grapefruit is conceded to be the finest produced in the world. The demand is greater than the supply, it being necessary to turn down one order, for instance, of 4,000 cases a week last year.

STORY OF HER CONVERSION IS TOLD BY GIRL

RANGER, Texas, Sept. 13.—A crowd that filled the lower floor of the large auditorium and sent some to the balcony greeted Miss Ora Simmons, girl evangelist, last night when she spoke on "Big Events" in addition to telling the interesting story of her experience. If doubt lurked in any mind concerning the conversion and call to the ministry of the evangelist, that doubt was dispelled last night when the conversion and the baptism of the Holy Spirit and the call to the ministry was related at the evening hour. That experience, told simply, beautifully and convincingly, stirred the great audience. It is said that that story has become a part of each life who heard it and will abide with them throughout the days.

Converted at a mourners' bench under the ministry of a cowboy preacher, in Elsinore, California, Thursday, Aug. 13, 1925, this young high school girl went home and led her father and mother to a definite understanding of sal-

"I Am sure Orgatone Is A Good Medicine Because of My Relief!"
Breckinridge Man Firmly Asserts

J. J. Andrews, residing at 109 W. Williams street, custodian of the Breckinridge court house, one of the prettiest in the state of Texas, has given Orgatone, the new medicine, a thorough trial and he is convinced that it is a preparation of unusual merit.

"Yes sir, I'm sure Orgatone is a good medicine because of the relief I derived from it," Mr. Andrews said. "For several years I have suffered from stomach and gall bladder trouble and I've been greatly annoyed with dizzy spells and pains in the pit of my stomach. I was continually bothered with gas that would build me up, I was subject to frequent constipation also. My appetite was poor and the little food I ate didn't digest properly.

"I decided to take Orgatone after reading in the newspapers of its good work. It's the truth when I say that I haven't had a stomach pain or been bothered with the annoying gas and dizziness since I began to use Orgatone. My gall bladder is in much better shape and my strength is greatly improved. I have a hearty appetite and the food I eat digests properly. In fact, I feel improved generally, since taking Orgatone."

Genuine Orgatone may be bought at Eastland at the Texas and Corner Drug Stores. (adv)

Stars Hold No Mysteries For Boy Astronomer

LAKESIDE, O.—The stars hold no mysteries for Richard Akers, whose study of astronomy and ability to converse on the subject has amazed many scientists.

At an age when other little boys are reciting "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star" . . . Richard has conquered these other worlds. Not physically, of course, but intellectually. He knows a lot about those fiery diamonds in the sky and their clock-like movements.

Richard will address the legislature of Kentucky this fall in response to a personal invitation of

Since he was six years old, Richard has scorned such things as toy trains and erector sets that he might study the heavens and the mysteries of the celestial universe.

He has pursued this hobby so relentlessly that the astronomy class at Asbury college in Wilmore, Ky., marveled when members attempted to confuse him in technical discussion of planets and stars.

He has amazed the college faculty with his ability to discuss the astronomical aspects of Einstein's latest theory. The boys astronomer has addressed high school and grade schools in Wilmore, Ky., the June graduation exercises at Asbury college, and numerous civic organizations.

His father, Dr. L. H. Akers, is president of Asbury college and has assisted the child in his astronomical studies.

Richard Akers . . . other boys may know the big league baseball stars, but he knows those in the heavens. the governor of that state, who has learned of the youth's unusual ability.

Prof. J. M. Edwards will direct the music, which begins promptly at 7:45. Let all the people come on time if possible. Friday night will be "High School Night." A large section of the church will be reserved for young people. Miss Simmons has announced that she will speak on "Thrills." This message, it is said, has attracted the attention of thousands of young people.

Backslider Are Victims of "Morbus Sabbaticus"

LONDON, Sept. 01.—A churchman has discovered a new disease called "morbus sabbaticus" which is fatal to the soul.

This disease is peculiar to church-goers says the Rev. A. V. Astin, vicar of Christ Church, Chadderton. The popular name for the disease is "Sunday sickness."

"The attack," writes the vicar, "comes on suddenly every Sunday no symptoms are felt Saturday night; the patient sleeps well, eats a hearty breakfast but about church time the attack comes on and continues until the services are over for the morning. On Monday he wakes up refreshed and does not have the symptoms until the next Sunday."

FERVENT PLEA IS DELIVERED BY EVANGELIST

Ranger, Texas, Sept. 12.—The main auditorium of the church was filled to hear Evangelist Ora Simmons last night in a heart-gripping message "It Is Jesus." For the Scripture lesson and as a basis for the message, the speaker read the story of the healing of blind Bartemaus, recorded in the latter part of the Eighteenth chapter of Luke.

Miss Simmons pictured the scene of the popularity of Jesus at this time and the relation of the disciples and the people to the blind beggar.

"When Jesus heard the cry of the beggar He stopped and Jesus has always been willing to stop at the heart cry of any person regardless of position in life. Jesus is constantly passing by in the presence of the Holy Spirit and some accept, others do not."

The speaker said that some people always wait to see just what the revival is going to be and what the evangelist or pastor is going to do before they make any effort to get in to pray and work. Just as Zaccheus climbed up in the sycamore tree to see Jesus, simply to take a distant view of Him, so people today are seeking to look from a distance at Jesus. But Jesus knew Zaccheus. He knew his name, where he lived and all about him although he had never seen him, and Jesus knows all about each one of us and we cannot hide one thing from Him. Zaccheus came down and received a blessing. The way up is always down in spiritual matters. Humility is the first requirement of a spirit-filled life. The need of the church today is to come down in humility in order that they might ascend in spiritual things.

Many hands were lifted for prayer when the earnest call was made by Miss Simmons. One came to the altar and was saved. There was evident throughout the service the presence in power of the Holy Spirit and conviction was felt, it is said, throughout the audience.

Evangelist Simmons announced last night that this evening she would tell the story of her conversion and call to the ministry and bring a message on "Great Events." How God called a high

WHY WE ARE SUPERSTITIOUS

By Mehran K. Thompson, Ph. D., Author of "The Springs of Human Action"

A few years ago I was at St. John's college, Oxford, England. One of the students I met there told me of a curious superstition. Pointing to a romantic lane across the beautiful lawn at the rear of the main building, he said, "No student would think of walking through that lane on the night before an examination. If he does he is sure to be ploughed." By "ploughed" I took it he meant that the student would fail in the examination.

Superstition is not dead. We are inclined to think that belief in charms and magic and taboos is confined to savage and ignorant people. However we are all more or less superstitious. You laugh at others for carrying a rabbit's foot, or hanging a horse shoe over the door and yet there is some superstition over which you feel a little "queer." Perhaps you don't mind starting an important business on Friday or on the thirteenth of the month but how about knocking on wood before telling your neighbor that you have escaped the flu, or the tax collector?

Just because two things happen at the same time or immediately following each other, we assume that they are necessarily connected. It is easy to confuse temporal connection with casual connection. A superstition is a mistaken relationship. For example, a black cat crosses your path or you break a mirror and you have hard luck. This looks very much like cause and effect because we take into account only those cases where hard luck does follow and ignore or forget the other cases in which nothing unusual happens.

Another reason why we are superstitious is that we like to believe in luck and assume that we can influence it by some magic. Fear of the unknown overpowers us.

And the curious part of all is that if you do believe in any of these things you get encouragement in the thought that you have done your part and luck is on your side. This creates a wonderful moral so that you have greater confidence and actually succeed. Superstition is not as silly as it seems. It is a primitive way of combating the inferiority complex.

Grapeland, Houston county, road district voted $50,000 in bonds for building the last link in a Dallas-to-Houston highway via Hunterville, Trinity, Grapeland, Palestine, Athens and Kaufman.

Work has started on a 230-mile steel gas pipe line by the Magnolia Gas company from Bruni, Webb county, to San Antonio and New Braunfels. It will have a daily capacity of 125,000,000 cubic feet.

The 28,000 carloads of vegetables and fruits shipped out of the Valley this year netted growers more than $10,000,000, according to the Donna News.

Top-worked pecan trees on the place of Charles Meurer, near Fredericksburg, raised the price of Beeville is to have a combination milk and sweet cream butter plant to cost $200,000, according to announcement there. It will

POPULAR YOUNG GIRL HAS BIRTHDAY DINNER

Miss Virginia Nell Little, a charming and delightful young student of Eastland, observed her sixteenth birthday with an informal family dinner, Thurs. at residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jep Little, who entertained as their guests Miss Frances Vickers, Miss Frances Cunningham, and Miss Virginia's grandfather, Mr. B. H. Neil, the pretty table centered in roses, seating six in all.

Miss Little has just returned accompanied by her mother from a summer spent at the private membership camp near Madera Springs in the Davis Mountains. She is one of the talented younger students in music and is also entering upon a voice culture course. Miss Little is a tall, graceful girl with dark hair and is one of the delightful assets to the younger social set.

DEMONSTRATION CHURCH OF CHRIST LAST FOR THIS SEASON

At a late moment the program announced for Thursday night to be given in Church of Christ by the Demonstration Class was cancelled and the announcement changed to that of the customary lesson with sand table demonstrations at 4 p. m. on Thursday afternoon.

Ethel Carlisle twelve years of age, presented a well worded and interesting description of the life of Moses from the time he was found a babe in osier basket on the banks of the Nile, to that period of life when he was forty years old. Every incident was wrought in fact, simile on the table, and demonstrated. From this stage of Moses' history Mary Jane Harrell concluded the demonstration and explanatory talk dealing with Moses' flight into the land of Midian where he stayed forty years. The story of the Burning Bush and of the message of the Lord for Moses to go back "and deliver my people from the Egyptian bondage" then Moses appeared before king Pharaoh and demanded the release of his people. From this point the demonstration closed. This marks the termination of a long series of successful lessons given under auspices of the Church of Christ in Evangelism for benefit of the children of any church and which have been well attended. The demonstrations will be resumed at the close of school next May. The usual Sunday morning demonstrations will be given in the church each week.

Certificates were awarded to those who passed perfectly the test in memory work which included Lords Prayer, Twenty Third Psalm; Ten Commandments; Beatitudes; and Books of the Bible; Those securing certificates were Mary Jane Harrell, Elizabeth Anne Harrell, Nelda Wood, Lurline Brawner, Ethel Carlisle, Lorraine Chambers, Mila Beth Boggsu, Bernice Garner and Howell Boggsu.

PRETTY LITTLE BIRTHDAY PARTY OF TWO FIVE-YEAR OLDS

Mary Helen Armstrong and Harry Gregg Brelsford had their fifth birthday celebrated Thursday by their mothers Mrs. J. M. Armstrong, and Mrs. Harry Brelsford at one o'clock at the home of the latter. A big white iced birthday cake topped with five twinkling candles centered a lace laid table placed beneath the handsome old trees, and over the table lovely roses trays of candies and pretty favors carried out the pink and white color motif. A sure enough plate with luncheon dishes that were delicious for children was served, with the birthday cake and ice cream for desert. One dozen children enjoyed the little party and wished their small honor guests many more lovely birthdays to follow.

5,000 GOATS ARE OWNED BY TWO BROTHERS

Goats have always fascinated me. Perhaps a suppressed boyish yearning to own a Billy may be the reason. We had sheep on our farm, horned Dorsets. They can but with any goat. But they do not possess the goat's picturesque personality.

Whenever I pass an Italian home with its inevitable nanny perched high on a rocky hill, I am envious. I have visited goat dairies and talked with breeders of milk goats. Inspired by reports of goat profits I long ago informed my family that our next move would be to a place large enough to support a goat. That may be one reason we haven't moved recently.

But at any rate I still like goats and don't care who knows it. To me they are the wise-looking and most comical of domestic animals. The ancient Greeks recognized goat character in an enduring way by modeling the first masks, which were used in classic dramas, after goats' faces. The old Greeks were smart fellows.

Therefore when my duties called me to Texas it was obvious that I would have to study the goat industry, which is of considerable importance in the Southwest. So it was that I found myself making a 300-mile detour by bus into the heart of the "sheep and goat country." My destination was the ranch of the Martin Brothers of Menard and Mason counties, extensive handlers of Angora goats, cattle and sheep.

"The Martin Brothers have about the nicest ranch homes I know of anywhere in Texas," Dean Kyle of the Texas A. & M. College had told me, as an added incentive.

If the cattle business hadn't slumped back in 1927 the Martins might not have gone into goats in time to reap the harvest of profits that have prevailed in recent years. These profits have resulted from the great demand for mohair, which is used in the manufacture of upholstery for automobiles, railway coaches, and over-stuffed furniture.

At the end of a 150-mile ride, northwest of San Antonio to Menard, passing through a beautiful rolling wooded country watered by numerous streams of pure water I was met by C. A. Martin, a big, broad-shouldered, chip with a slight German accent overlaid with a mellow Texas drawl.

Together these men operate the 18,000 acres in Menard county with 3,000 head of Angoras.

The father, Charles L., and another brother run the home ranch in adjoining Mason county, where the partnership owns 15,000 acres and runs 2,000 goats. In addition, a 6,000-acre tract is grazed under lease. Besides 5,000 goats the firm owns 2,000 head of cattle, a band of 1,000 sheep and 300 hogs. Not a huge ranch for Texas but a sizeable outfit to one used to the small-scale farming of the Middle West.

The following is a summary of my conversation with the two brothers:

They got started with Angora goats in 1918 following a slump in the cattle market. They used to handle a big bunch of steers, buying and selling. But the margin got so small that they looked around for something else. Goats have long been raised in this country but they don't become very profitable until recent years. The last three or four years there has been a land boom around here caused by the profits that Angoras have made.

"We play the game safe," said C. A., the elder brother, "don't take any chances. We don't overstock and we have cattle and sheep too, so as to diversify our interests. After the lesson learned in the cattle business in 1917 we can't afford to plunge. It was goats that pulled us through the crisis that ruined so many cattlemen.

"Three of us brothers are actively engaged in the ranching business. Brother R. E. is with Father on the home ranch in Mason county, where all of us, including my father, were born. Walter is in the bank in Mason. Rudolph and sister Ann live with the folks in Mason. We work together as an undivided partnership. This ranch here was bought in 1907.

"But come out and see the kid crop that's just arriving. That'll be more interesting than sitting here and talking about it."

We went to the corral where brown-skinned Pedro, Mexican goat herder, was gently mothering a bunch of newborn kids. Each baby kid or pair of kids, for some of them are twins, was carefully chained by a hind leg to a pin driven into the ground in front of a sort of miniature coop. There are two reasons for this, I was told: First, the young kids would get tired, lie down to rest and be lost or devoured by a sly fox if allowed to go to pasture with their mothers. Second, goat mothers do not at first easily recognize their young but do remember where they are staked. Young kids are extremely sensitive to wet and cold but, like sheep, must be sheltered in cold, wet weather.

"The climate of western Texas is similar to the native home of the Angora in Asia Minor, and the vegetation is somewhat similar, which accounts for the adaptability of the breed to this section.

"Our goats averaged a clip of 3-1-2 pounds each at the last shearing, kids and all." I was told, "And that was only a six months' clip. We have sold mohair for as high as 65 cents a pound. But even 40 cents is a profitable price. Much depends on the quality of the hair. After the second year an Angora's hair begins to get coarse, the dead hairs, or Kemp, being hard to clean out. Mohair is graded and sold according to age and quality. Our nannies are carefully culled each fall. The males that are not good enough for breeding purposes are sold fat as two-year-olds.

"A good male Angora will sell up to $150, but the average is about $40. Good grade nannies can be bought for around $7 a head, and kids will bring $3 or $4. Goats are much less troubled with diseases and parasites than sheep, though they do get stomach worms occasionally. We also have to dip them regularly for lice."

After looking at some of the mature male Angoras, fine woolly fellows with proud heads and handsome horns, we went to the house, for the day was chilly in spite of a warm sun.

"One of the reasons goat-raising is profitable here," Mr. Martin said, "is the wolf club organized by our county agent, W. R. Nisbet. Wolves used to be pretty bad. But since the club started paying a bounty of $100 a scalp, the wolves and coyotes have been practically exterminated. The gray fox is now the worst pest we have to contend with. Of course we use 'wolf-proof' fences but they don't stop a hungry wolf, although they do discourage him somewhat. We have a total of about 300 miles of fences. This alone represents a heavy investment.

"Sheep, goats and cattle make a good combination. The cattle are the fussiest and won't eat much but the grasses. The sheep will clean up weeds, while the goats love live-oak and other brush. "Don't ever get the idea, however, that goats are scavengers. That isn't true. They will eat leaves and small brush but they won't live on tin cans. You can't beat the Mexicans for handling goats. I don't know how we would ever get along without them."

Ehip Believed Lost on Stormy Great Lakes

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—With the failure of all coastguard, airplane and radio searches, the disappearance of the ship Andaste and its crew of 28 during a storm on Lake Michigan Tuesday seemed destined today to go down in history as another tragedy of the stormy Great Lakes.

With the exception of a shaggy airedale, the Andaste's mascot, which faithfully waited at the dock where the gravel-carrier was due three days ago, there were few who had not abandoned hope for the missing ship and its crew, several of whose names probably will be known.

New Policies for Europe

Copyright, N.Y. London Times.

These two members of the British cabinet have furnished new works for the European political situation lately by offering new policies for their government in its dealings with other nations.
