Walton on Education

Mr. T. A. Walton of the A. & C. Co. has let it be known that the national outlook in Texas will be brighter when the cost of raising the youth of the state is reduced as an investment rather than an expense. His theory is that when compared with the cost of education, the cost of raising a child is negligible. Unanimously adopted.

2000 tons of bone, uncounted human skulls and skeletons, has been brought to Houston from St. Petersburg, Fla. by the steamer Medmenham. The human remains, which were converted into bone black.

A story of a czar's slaughter of people through the years, and carnage of death when his empire was overthrown—such ghastly scenes as these gripping skulls with them to the bone heap, and stand the mind if they could.

D. S. Switzer, for Many Years Teacher and Official in Texas Educational Institutions, Buried Today.

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 20.—Last rites were said in Dallas and Weatherford today for D. S. Switzer, 85, veteran Texas educator, who died at his Oak Cliff home here Monday. After brief services here this morning the body was sent to Weatherford for burial this afternoon.

Born in Spartanburg, N. C., Aug. 10, 1844, Switzer had taught in institutions of learning in many Texas towns. He came to Texas following the Civil war and was the first president of the Greenwood Masonic institution at Round Rock, near Austin. Then for six years he taught in a private school in Comanche.

Switzer was president of Granbury college for 15 years and in 1899 ascended to the presidency of Weatherford college, a position he held until 1902 when he moved to Itasca to become president of the Switzer's women's college for 10 years. After giving up his post at Itasca Switzer came to Dallas and assumed management of the Switzer college of music and expression.

The educator is survived by his wife, Mrs. Rebecca Switzer, six daughters and a son.

Shell-Shocked Soldier Kills Young Woman

San Francisco, Aug. 20.—A shell-shocked war veteran faced arraignment today for killing Miss Egan Ashmun, executive secretary of the American Red Cross here.

While hundreds were passing in and out of the radio show at the civic auditorium yesterday, David Lizarraga, 35, plunged a knife into the back of Miss Ashmun's neck.

Lizarraga ran away but was captured after a short chase.

Miss Ashmun was talking to Paul Palasky, a friend, when Lizarraga asked for money. When Miss Ashmun told him to go to her office later he pulled out a knife and stabbed her through the back of the neck, severing the jugular vein.

"Help, help! Some one help me!" she shrieked. Scores of witnesses rushed around her. She was placed in a truck and taken to a hospital where she was pronounced dead.

It was reported that Lizarraga had acted strangely on several of his visits to the Red Cross office to receive remittances.

Body of Man Is Found at Wink

WINK, Texas, Aug. 20.—The body of W. H. Douglas was found in a local undertaking establishment today pending receipt of word from relatives on its disposal.

A coroner's inquest resulted in a verdict of suicide.

A neighbor identified Douglas as the man who had borrowed a wash basin from him Friday.

Douglas' throat had been slashed and when found the body was badly decomposed. A rusty razor was found near the body.

'SUN GOD' STILL ALOFT; REFUELS

BUTTE, Mont., Aug. 20.—Zooming over the crest of the Continental divide, the Spokane Sun God, transcontinental nonstop endurance plane piloted by Nick Mamer and Art Walker, appeared over the Butte airport at 9:30 a. m. today and started circling while the refueling plane piloted by R. W. Wilson landed to receive a load of gasoline and oil.

FOREST CITY, Ark., Aug. 20.—A 50-year-old father was in jail today after he had killed an 18-year-old youth who was charged with a statutory offense against the slayer's daughter.

The father, C. D. Summers, killed T. K. Priett, a neighbor, in the corridor of the courthouse here late yesterday after the youth's trial had been postponed for the second time.

The daughter, 18, saw her father follow the young man from the courtroom into the corridor and fire the fatal shot.

A coroner's jury recommended that Summers be held without bond and a first degree murder charge filed.

Priett was returned here to stand trial after he had fled to Pontiac, Mich.

Swiss Fliers Are Still Missing

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The silence of the broad air-reaches above the Atlantic ocean today enshrouded the two young Swiss fliers, Oskar Kaesser and Kurt Lussler, as they supposedly flew onward from Lisbon, Portugal, to New York by way of Halifax.

Nothing had been heard from the courageous youngsters—Kaesser is 22 and Lussler 21—or their plane, the Young Switzerland, since it circled Terceira Island in the Azores at 4 p. m. (1 p. m. EST) yesterday and darted away to the northeast.

Body of Woman Flyer Is Found

WELTON, Ariz., Aug. 20.—The body of Marvel Crosson, entrant in the women's air derby, was found in the desert brush near here today.

Her plane was reported to have hurtled to earth in a tail spin late yesterday.

Death overtook the Women's air derby of the 1929 national air races early today when the body of Marvel Crosson, 25, one of America's best known feminine pilots, was found near the wreckage of her plane in the wild brush country six miles north of here.

A searching party, which had spent the night beating through brush more than ten feet high, reported the discovery of Miss Crosson's body to the sheriff's office.

Miss Crosson was found about 200 feet from the spot where her craft crashed, indicating she had jumped.

Her parachute was not opened and it was believed that it either failed to work or that she left the ship too late to permit it to open.

The body, searchers said, struck the ground with such force as to make it almost unrecognizable. The plane was demolished.

Miss Crosson was born in Warsaw, Ind., on April 27, 1904. Her father is Ester E. Crosson and her mother was christened Elizabeth Wynan. Marvel has an older brother, Joseph, and a younger sister, Zelma.

The three children were reared on a ranch and attended a grade school near Minneapolis. Mrs. Marvel was graduated from the Logan county high school in Sterling, Colo.

While still a child, she was fascinated with the accomplishments of a barnstorming aviator named McMullen who flew in an old-style "pusher" airplane at the fair in Sterling. In 1922, the family moved to San Diego, Calif., and the many airplanes operated there prompted Marvel and her brother to buy one of the surplus planes then being sold by the United States army. It was in this plane that Marvel and her brother learned to fly.

In the spring of 1923, the brother made his first solo flight, after which he helped Marvel. Both developed rapidly and soon after entered the aviation business.

In 1925 the commercial possibilities of aviation in Alaska, where aerial transportation is used often when all other forms are useless, led Marvel and her brother into the north. Joe worked as a transport pilot. Marvel kept busy in commercial work, exhibitions and as an aviation executive.

In Alaska, she developed into such a competent pilot that her brother persuaded her to return to "the states" to make a name for herself. Numerous accomplishments reached their climax when the girl established the world record for altitude for women. On June 28, 1928, Marvel was officially credited with 23,996 feet.

Dr. Snook To Be Executed On Nov. 29th

Motion for New Hearing In Trial for Murder Overruled—Case On Appeal.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 20.—The death sentence was imposed formally today upon Dr. James Howard Snook, murderer of Theora Hix, his college girl inamorata, and November 29, the day after Thanksgiving, was fixed as the date for his execution.

Sentence was pronounced by Judge Henry L. Scarlett after the jurist overruled a motion for a new trial. The motion alleged, among other things, that the jury which convicted Snook last week "was actuated by the spirit of the mob."

Dr. Snook was calm. "Stand up," said the court. Snook arose and faced the court. He was dressed immaculately.

The courtroom was crowded and the spectators rose in their seats to see him.

"Have you anything to say as to why sentence should not be passed upon you?" the judge asked.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 20.—The gates of the state penitentiary swung shut behind Dr. James Howard Snook today, 15 minutes after he had been sentenced to death for the murder of Theora Hix.

The former university professor, American pistol champion and club man, was assigned No. 60636 and a few moments later was locked in death row where four other men are awaiting execution.

Dr. Snook will be electrocuted shortly after sundown on November 29, the day after Thanksgiving. He stood, heavily manacled, before the gates of the penitentiary, 12 minutes after Judge Henry L. Scarlett imposed sentence.

In the bull pen where his handcuffs were unlocked, Snook turned to Sheriff Harry T. Paul and said:

"Thank you for your kindness, sheriff." He was then led down a long gray corridor to deathrow. There guards searched him, minutely examining each article of his apparel. He had $4.45 in his pockets. It was taken, a guard telling him: "You can spend this later."

Snook's cellmates are Joseph B. Locke of Portsmouth, who killed his mother-in-law, and Arthur Maul, Akron youth, who shot a policeman.

As the doctor entered the row, Maul stepped forward.

"Hello, doc," he said. "Welcome."

Snook shook hands with both men. Because of a heavy wire mesh between them, he couldn't shake hands with two negroes, one of them a preacher, who also are awaiting execution. There are four bunks in the cell, two "lowers" and two "uppers." Locke and Maul take precedence so Snook was assigned to an upper.

Locke showed the doctor how to raise and lower the bunk. Snook watched with interest and chatted.

Snook will be "ressed in" later. His photograph being placed in the rogues' gallery and his fingerprints in the Bertillon records.

His first meal was to consist of beef fricassee, whole wheat bread and ice water. For his evening meal, he will eat fried bacon, mashed potatoes and gravy, whole wheat bread and tea.

A crowd waited at the gates as Snook was taken in. An industrial movie cameraman ground out pictures and newspaper photographers snapped cameras.

Mavericks Begin Practice Sept. 2

The Eastland high school Mavericks will begin football practice Monday, Sept. 2, according to Coach Gibson, who was in Eastland Sunday and Monday after returning from a vacation trip. Coach Gibson will attend the Rockne-Warner coaching school at S. M. U., Dallas.

Football candidates are asked to call at the high school for their shoes.

Clear State Tax Situation Today

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 20.—The Texas state tax situation was cleared today with the statement of State Comptroller S. H. Terrell that the 30 cent state ad valorem tax rate was fixed on calculations based on conditions July as provided by law.

Gov. Moody had previously asked a delay in fixing the tax rate to get figures based upon conditions Aug. 1. At that time, Gov. Moody contended that figures based on Aug. 1 could legally be used.

Terrell said this morning that the Aug. 1 computation was made as requested by the governor. "But it was not used in fixing the state tax rate," he added.

The meetings of the state tax board were held this year behind closed doors in the governor's office, varying the previous open-session plan.

One state tax rate remains to be fixed. It is the school tax. The board is to meet Wednesday to fix that.

Mrs. Virgil T. Seaberry leaves tomorrow for Ft. Worth to visit her mother the next ten days, Mrs. Carrie Slaughter.

THIS HAS HAPPENED MOLLY BURNHAM, with a couple of shows on Broadway, and more money than she knows what to do with, decides to ask JACK WELLS to marry her. Molly and Jack have been sweethearts of sorts ever since college days. But Molly has made money, and acquired fame, while Jack sticks to the same old rut.

Following a rather hectic evening, during which BOB NEWTON and RED FLYNN alternately make love to her, Molly decides to get married and settle down. Bob is a widower of her dearest friend, a girl who left her small daughter to Molly, as precious heritage. Red is a newspaper man, with an invalid mother on his hands. Molly knows she has no moral right to encourage either of them. But she happens to be one of those women who, all unconsciously, aid men on.

At midnight, on an impulse, she calls a taxi, and catches the late train for New York, to see Jack—and ask him to marry her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXV

Molly's heart was beating excitedly. She ran in to kiss little Lita goodby. And, scribbling a note, left it under the coffee pot. Then she ran downstairs to get a taxi.

They met at a little restaurant. Molly was waiting when Jack reached there, reading a newspaper at the table in the corner. The censors, unable to padlock the theater, had ceased their activities. But Molly noticed that a woman's club in Flatbush had passed resolutions the day before, condemning "Sacrifices as tending to corrupt the morals of youth."

"Idiot!" she thought. "Mr. Durbin would be glad, though. The publicity, he declared, had fallen off, and with it the sale of tickets. But they were playing to a full house each night. And the advance sale was nothing to worry about."

Neither were the royalties. Molly had bought herself a squirrel coat at the August sales, and paid $1,000 for it, marked from $1,500. She spent her profits riotously, although Red tried constantly to curb her extravagances. It was glorious to have plenty of money—particularly for a girl who used to count herself lucky if she could see a dollar bill in her purse.

Jack greeted her ecstatically. It was not surprising that she should be in New York, since she had two shows playing there.

"It's great to see you," he declared warmly, holding her hand in both of his.

"You're looking adorable," he told her after he had ordered for them. "Take off your hat. I love to see your hair."

"You look pretty good yourself," she declared. "Busy, Jack?"

"Rushed as the devil," he exclaimed. "I guess I'm getting the breaks at last, Molly."

"Making money?" she prodded. He smiled mysteriously.

"I'm on the track of a nice little fortune," he confided. "Nothing's clinched yet. But it's as good as settled."

"How's Mrs. Bulwer-Eaton?" she demanded. "Well, Mrs. Bulwer-Eaton," he began.

"She's a wonder!" he pronounced solemnly. "I'd like to have you meet her, Molly. You'd like her a lot. And I'd certainly like to show you her garden. You'd be crazy about it. Last season, you'd re-modelled it."

"I'm not a gardener," she laughed rather mirthlessly. "Maybe you'll let me draw up plans for your place, when you get around to building. All successful playwrights do have places, you know."

Their sausages arrived then, piping hot and savory. Molly decided not to press until Jack's ravenous morning appetite was satisfied.

"I've something to ask you," she announced, when the last waffle had disappeared. "Shoot!" he commanded. "I ought to be getting up to the office pretty soon."

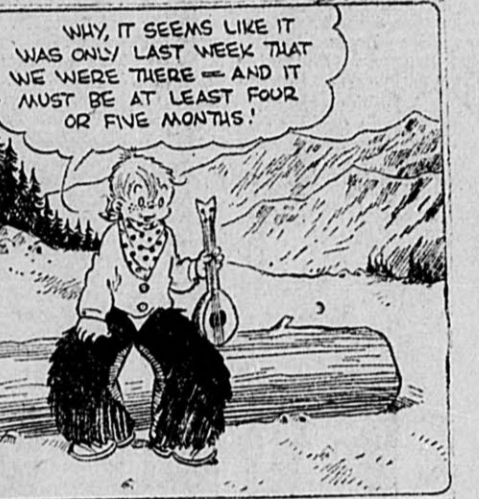

"Now you've earned my style!" she pouted. "It's very important. You mustn't hurry me. Besides, I'm embarrassed."

"You're blushing!" he accused. "Maybe I am. I feel like burst into a blood vessel," she admitted, blushing. "Look at me, dear. Will you marry me, Jack?"

MOM'N POP

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

"But you have your career." "I've had it," she contradicted. "My dear, you'd never be satisfied without the plaudits of your public."

"Don't talk about my public!" she cried. "The word makes me sick. I tell you, Jack I hate my public!"

"But adulation is the bread of life to you, honey. Excitement. Crowds. Praise. Your name in the papers. Why, Molly darling, you eat it up! You couldn't get along without it."

"Couldn't I! Try me and see," she invited.

"Dearest, you can't marry a poor man. A woman hasn't any respect for a man who can't take care of her."

"You told me that before," she reminded him. "I've had plenty of time to think it over. Besides, you said you were on the track of a nice little fortune."

"Yes—on the track," I didn't say I had it. I haven't been exactly a flop, Molly. I've made a little money. But, good lord, I couldn't support your manag-

"But I can," she pointed out. "And what would your smart friends think of me?" he demanded. "You'd pay the bills. And I'd be a . . . Molly, I'd feel like a rat!"

She pushed the breakfast things away, and putting her elbows on the table, propped her chin in her hands.

"No more arguments!" she bullied playfully. "Will you marry me darling? Or won't you?"

Her sparkling eyes anticipated his avowal. Now, surely, he would come, and kiss her on the lips.

(That was why she had chosen the furthest, most secluded corner in the room.) He would put his arms around her. And tell her he loved her. And say she was the most wonderful girl in the world.

And then, some day, the time might come when he would want to marry her. When he would give anything in the world to have her.

And then—oh, she'd let him come crawling on his knees. That was what she'd do! She would scorn him, as he had scorned her.

"Oh, God, I love him! I love him so! Jack! Jack! Why did you leave me, dear!"

For weeks Molly avoided Bob and Red. She changed her mind about sub-letting the apartment, and taking a place in the country. She even changed her mind about being a hermit. She would be a man-hater instead. She'd treat them like the dirt beneath her feet. She'd make them pay and pay for all the misery they caused women.

She devoted her days largely to little Rita. And her evenings to a round of gaiety. She met new men. She went to night clubs, and dances, and to the theater.

Sometimes she thought of the anthology of tragic love she meant to compile. She read a great deal of verse, and copied the mournful fragments that pleased her.

Then she had another idea. She would gather the tragic tales of the world's great lovers—Isolde and Tristan—Dante and Beatrice—Faola and Francesca—Anthony and Cleopatra—Abelard and Heloise—why, they were all tragedies! And she would write of them tenderly and understandingly. For the exquisite delight and pain of all women who had loved and lost.

She went to the library, and came home with her arms full of books. And that evening, while she was reading them, Red came, unannounced, to call.

C. U. CONNELLEE CELEBRATES HIS HONORABLE BIRTHDAY WITH FAMILY DINNER TOMORROW

The founder of Eastland, C. U. Connellee, will celebrate his birthday in an informal way tomorrow having as his guests for 12 o'clock noon dinner, his daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. John Graves of Dallas, his good friends Mr. and Mrs. George McQueen of Ft. Worth and Miss Monetti Klnbr of Dallas. Other covers will be laid for Mrs. C. U. Connellee and any who may drift into this hospitable home at this time.

Afterwards the little party will adjourn to the big cool lawn and friends may drop in and make their little call at this time.

On account of a great tragedy in the life of one of Mr. Connellee's closest friends, plans for a formal dinner party were dropped and instead a real family dinner arranged for the household and those indicated.

When Mr. Connellee came to Eastland there was no Eastland in the sense of a town or city but merely a handful of roughly constructed houses and a store. With his own hands C. U. Connellee helped build the first substantial store in Eastland, cutting the way through the dense forests from Ft. Worth and dragging great logs fastened with chains to horses which they pulled across the plains woods and streams to this town which he called Eastland.

As Mr. Connellee sits on his cool veranda and looks out over the landscape he can easily picture the changes brought to our city year by year, and each one a larger and better growth.

The beautiful Connellee home is built on the old historic spot where his first residence stood for many years. Mrs. Connellee has entered into all kinds of plans with her husband, with understanding, and given them the assistance of an intelligent and capable young woman. The home has been the scene of many beautiful events, several of which have honored Mr. Connellee in the years ago. That fortune may continue to smile and bring content and happiness is the wish of Mr. Connellee's countless friends and admirers.

JUNIOR EPWORTH LEAGUE BEAUTIFULLY ENTERTAINED

Miss Lucile Brogdon, South Seaman street, was house hostess to the Junior Epworth League of the First Methodist church at the recent meeting held at 8 o'clock.

Worth More to Her Than All the Money in Ranger

That is What Mrs. O. A. VanCamp Has to Say About Orgatone—Suffered 10 Years.

"I wouldn't take all the money in Ranger for the good Orgatone did me," said Mrs. O. A. VanCamp in a recent conversation with the Orgatone representative at the Paramount Pharmacy and who resides at the Sim Camp, box 177.

"I suffered from nervousness and indigestion for ten years," she continued, "and what I ate caused me so much misery that I just hated for meal time to come. Gas would form and swell me up and press against my heart and make it flutter and palpitate until I would almost faint. I just had to almost starve myself to keep away those awful feelings and I know my blood got awful thin as I was getting weaker and losing more flesh every day. I became very nervous and couldn't sleep at night hardly any and I would get up in the morning feeling all out of sorts and had so little energy. I just had to drag myself around all day long. I frequently had colic pains in the pit of my stomach that made me suffer agonies and I'll just tell you I was such a sick person that I felt I had little to live for, but I just held on."

"I guess I would have kept on going down hill if a friend of mine hadn't advised me about this Orgatone. She was relieved of conditions similar to mine and her ailments described my case almost like I was telling it myself so I got Orgatone and right after the first few doses my appetite began to come back and I started eating again. It wasn't long before I stopped having those bad feelings after eating and I didn't dread going to the table like I used to. Then I built up right along and the color came back to my face and I seemed once more to have my strength and energy; I just felt better in every way and friends of mine who saw me three weeks ago are all astonished now when they see the remarkable improvement. I just tell them exactly what did it and I am now always talking about Orgatone and recommending it to everybody that is sick and run down, because personally, I wouldn't take anything for the good it's done me and I think I ought to let everybody I can know what a wonderful medicine it is."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret remedy but a new scientific bile treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulant drugs manufactured by one of the world's greatest laboratories and sold in Eastland, exclusively by the Texas and Corner Drug Stores, phones 345 and 588.
