Muleshoe Benefits From Storm While Other Areas Suffer Very Severe Damage

Tornado strength winds, that might have actually been small tornados, heavy rain and hail struck spasmodically over the Muleshoe Trade Area Thursday bringing much needed drought relief to many farmers and crop ruin to others. Heavy tornados struck the State Line area. Rains ranged from less than 1/4 inch to over three inches in some areas, an official 17 hundreds of an inch of rain in Muleshoe itself.

However, Muleshoe's dryland farmers received much needed moisture. Some fields suffered rain damage and will have to be replanted, but most agree that the rain's benefit will far offset what damage there was when cotton harvesting time rolls around.

The main force of the storm was felt in the Farwell-Bovina areas along the New Mexico-Texas line where the tornado struck with its fullest force about 6 p. m. Thursday.

Witnesses reporting to the Parmer County Sheriff's office stated the funnel ranged from 50 to 150 feet wide at the base when it tore into Parmer County. It dissipated about five miles northwest of Bovina.

Although the tornado itself did not strike the town, heavy force winds raced through its streets tearing off several roofs in the business district, breaking windows and cutting off electric power, according to Mayor Boyd Gilbreath. Very heavy water damage was reported, both in the town and to fields.

Closer to home, heavy hail destroyed crops in fields in the Lazbuddie area. Heaviest destruction reports come from the area immediately south of Lazbuddie.

Earth, a few miles north of Muleshoe, received heavy rains but suffered little wind or floor damage according to both the police department and mayor's office.

Lariat and its near by communities were struck by heavy rains, hail and high winds. Incomplete reports say there was some spotty hail damage to crops. However, several crops were washed out completely and others partially.

Water washout damage was much more serious in the immediate Sudan area where a great many fields are completely gone, necessitating replanting, according to George Arnold, vice president of the Sudan First National Bank.

Baileyboro south of Muleshoe was also struck heavily by the torrential rains which are reported to have washed out several fields surrounding the small community.

In the area along the state line, an estimated $20,000 damage was done to the Albert Dolburner farm just west of Farwell where the twister killed about 20 head of cattle and severely damaged farm buildings.

A Bovina resident, Earl Riley, was caught in the funnel while driving along FM 1731 near Bovina. The force of the wind forced his car backwards more than twenty feet into a field. He was unharmed.

Parmer County Young Demos Plan Activities

Parmer County Young Democrats met this week at the Hub Community to elect a new secretary for the organization and discuss pre-election and convention tactics.

The group, under the direction of Leon Smith Jr., vice-president, elected Debra Bullock to the secretary post and voted to hold an ice cream fiesta and "42" party following the next monthly meeting scheduled for July 11th at 8:30 p.m. in the Hub Community Building.

In other action the group discussed the possibility of taking a booth in the commercial tent of the forthcoming Muleshoe Jaycee Fun Fiesta-Circus.

Roger Gorrell, Bailey County attorney was appointed the group's representative to contact and work out details of the booth's location with the Jaycees.

It is possible the booth will take the form of a "rest area" with free coffee and refreshments where tired circus viewers may sit a bit to catch their collective breaths.

The organization which has been steadily growing in liberal strength has been becoming more and more active in past weeks, and plans to become more so as election day draws nearer, according to its officers.

Today it is probably the strongest liberal element in the entire Muleshoe trade area.

Resigns

Joyce Hicks, personal secretary to County Judge Glen Williams has resigned her position with the county. No replacement has been announced. She plans to go to work for the Bobo Insurance Agency.

July Celebrations Coming To Muleshoe

Committee plans are being formulated today by most Muleshoe area clubs to assist in the successful presentation of two major entertainments in Muleshoe during July.

The two huge projects will be the production of the annual Muleshoe Area 4th of July Celebration on the 4th and the Muleshoe Fun Fiesta - Circus scheduled to open here July 13-19.

Both projects have a past history of success and are expected to be more successful this year. Both have added attractions for the fourth coming productions.

Thursday approximately 40 businessmen and club representatives from throughout the Muleshoe trade area attended a Jaycee hosted luncheon to hear details of the coming Fun Fiesta-Circus.

This year the Fun Fiesta - Circus will be operated in a similar manner as last year, but with the additions of a circus and huge commercial - industrial display tent.

No extra admission charge will be made for entrance to either. The only charges will be a 25 cent gate admission and costs of various rides.

The circus, about which full details are still unknown, will include animals such as elephants and trained horses as well as clowns and a trapeze act. The circus will be about 40 minutes in performance, according to the Jaycees.

It will be located in the same 2 1/2 ft. by 60 ft. tent as the commercial-industrial exhibit. This week the Jaycees are contacting both retail-commercial businessmen and area clubs in an all out effort to include everyone in this major community effort to provide entertainment for Muleshoe area residents and bring surrounding area residents into the Muleshoe trade area.

Last year between 5 and 6,000 persons attended the Fiesta. This year plans are being made to handle between 7-8,000 persons from over the High Plains Area.

Businessmen are being asked to plan display for the commercial exhibit. Costs of commercial booths measuring about 10 by 10 ft. is $67.50 for the six nights and two afternoons run of the fair. This brings the cost to about $11 per day, plus incidentals.

Several have already signed up, according to the Jaycee reports. Local social clubs and organizations are being requested to take carnival concession booths.

They will cost $25 each for the run of the affair — $10 less than last year's $35.

Thus far three booths have been sold. The Muleshoe High School Cheerleaders Club has taken the "Glass Pitch", and the Muleshoe Home Demonstration club has taken the "Penny Pitch". Both were operated by the same groups last year.

Boy Scout Troop 634 has taken the Tic Tac Toe booth.

You Think You Have Problems

Have you tried phoning the Muleshoe Elevator recently? Proves most interesting. Their number is 5940.

When the phone is answered a sweet young person says, "No, you have the wrong number this is 5940." You immediately apologize and try again.

After you've dialed four or five times and kept getting the same wrong number, sweet young thing becomes progressively less sweet, and understandably so. Next one tries the operator. After lengthy explanations she tries it. Same thing happens and the sweet-young-thing is now even less sweet. Still young though.

After the operator tries three or four times sweet-young-thing obviously just gives up, takes the phone off the hook and that's that.

Phone company says its a crossed line somewhere. What this is leading up to is that the first load of grain in Muleshoe was brought into the Muleshoe Elevator at 8:15 p.m. June 9. We also know its bushel weight was 59 pounds and that its moisture content was 9 percent. What we didn't know was who brought it in. We still don't. Hope the phone company gets it all straightened out before press time.

The second load of grain to make the record here was brought to the Shirley-Anderson Elevator at Lazbuddie. It was recorded at 3 p.m. June 10. According to Joe Moore, manager, Smith's load had a test load of 60 pounds and a moisture content of 14 percent. Since the elevator's phone was working we can also report that the grain belonged to Jack Smith.

Bride-To-Be Deserves Picnic

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

The Bride-to-Be will be entertained with showers, luncheons, teas and coffees galore. So how about giving a picnic for her with a delightfully different menu, one on the sophisticated side?

For this we suggest serving curry-fried chicken breasts with chicken and a cold rice salad enlivened with slivers of crisp green pepper and ripe red tomatoes. For dessert, frosted petit fours. This picnic can be on your porch or patio, the chicken served warm, and the rice salad and petit fours served cold. The method of preparation makes it deliciously crisp.

CURRY-FRIED

CHICKEN BREAST

1 cup flour
2 tablespoons curry powder
2 tablespoons salt
1/2 cup milk
4 whole large broiler-fryer chicken breasts, halved
Vegetable oil

Stir together the flour, curry powder, monosodium glutamate, salt, and ginger in a large pie plate. Beat egg in another pie plate; add lemon juice and milk and mix well; don't worry about curdled appearance. Rinse chicken and drain lightly; do not dry. Roll chicken pieces in flour, dip in egg mixture, and then roll again in seasoned flour. Let chicken stand about 30 minutes; coating will be moist — roll in flour again. Have vegetable oil 1/2 inch deep in 2 skillets (13-inch size). Heat to 375 degrees. Add 1 chicken piece to each skillet, skin side down. Cook until golden brown on one side, about 10 minutes. Turn; cook until done through and brown on other side, about 10 minutes. Drain on absorbent paper. Makes 8 servings. Note: Large chicken breast will take up all or more of the seasoned flour mixture given. Be sure to use our directions for frying the chicken — uncrowded and in a generous amount of oil — so the breasts will cook through in a short time.

Why Do People Hate?

EDITOR'S NOTE: One of the oldest and most troublesome problems of mankind is irrational prejudice. More and more thoughtful people today are worrying about uncontrolled hostility in the modern world. Here is what one expert has to say about what causes men to hate each other.

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor
NEW YORK (AP) — People are prejudiced because they are afraid.

That, as far as Selma G. Hirsh is concerned, is the crux of the matter.

"Prejudice is the conversion of fear into hate," Mrs. Hirsh defines. "The American variety of prejudice, though it may seem more respectable than alcoholism and criminality, is not really very different from either of these. For all may be, and frequently are, flights from one's self and one's fears."

Mrs. Hirsh, who is special assistant to the executive vice president of the American Jewish Committee, became an authority on the subject in a book "The Fears Men Live By" which she wrote in 1955. It's an interpretation of the authoritative, five-volume "Studies in Prejudice," which brought together the results of years of research by scientists into the origins and nature of the prejudiced personality.

These scientists found that "in countless ways fears experienced at the age of 4 may be seen shaping the thoughts and guiding the acts of the 40-year-old," says Mrs. Hirsh.

"When the study came out, I threw up my hands. 'My God,' I said, 'does everyone have to go into analysis?'" She grins as she recalls her reaction.

rel. 2 Adults and 1 Teenager to operate.

MILK CANS: Three 10 Gallon Cans are placed at the rear of the Booth to accommodate three players at one time. Each player receives 3 balls for 25 cents and throws the balls into the can. Players win a Major Prize for 3 out of 3 into the can and an Intermediate prize for 2 out of 3 into the can. 2 persons to operate.

ONE BALL: Three bottles are placed on the ground at the rear of the Booth in pyramid style. Players receive One Softball for 25 cents and must knock all 3 bottles over to win a major prize. 2 adults and 1 teenager to operate.

SHUFFLE BOARD: Tables have 6 Bowling Pins suspended at the far end of the table. Players receive 3 metal pucks for 25 cents and slide the pucks down the table flipping the pins over. For six pins up players win a Major Prize and 5 pins up win an Intermediate Prize. 2 or 3 persons to operate.

ADD PANS: Numbered muffin tins mounted in a frame with each cup of the pan numbered from 1 to 6. Players receive 6 balls for 25 cents and must attain a total score of Under 12 and Over 22 to win a major prize. 2 or 3 adults to operate.

7-11: Three individual hopper type tables to accommodate three players are set in the Booth. Each hopper has a series of squares numbered from 1 to 6. Players receive 2 balls for 25 cents. Players must attain a score of 11 to win a Major Prize and 7 to win an intermediate prize. 2 to 3 adults to operate.

WINKIE POLE: Three inflated Winkie Dolls on a Pole at the rear of the booth. Players receive 3 Bean Bags for 25 cents. Player wins a major prize when 3 out of 3 are knocked off Pole. When 2 Winkies are knocked off pole a Winkie is prize to player. 2 to 4 adults to operate.

WINKIE POLE: Three inflated Winkie Dolls on a Pole at the rear of the booth. Players receive 3 Bean Bags for 25 cents. Player wins a major prize when 3 out of 3 are knocked off Pole. When 2 Winkies are knocked off pole a Winkie is prize to player. 2 to 4 adults to operate.

Then she realized that behavior can be affected, although the underlying attitude or prejudice isn't changed.

"Laws deal with behavior, not attitude," she points out. "They are not to reform the masses, but to protect the few".

She sees at least one bright hope. "The highly prejudiced personality is strictly conformist. If the most important people feel a certain way or do a certain thing, the prejudiced often fall in line, even if they hate every minute of it."

WANT TO PUNISH

The more prejudiced people, says Mrs. Hirsh, can't accept frailties in themselves or their parents. They're always idealizing. In the Studies' interviews they always remember mama as all a mama should be. They always describe what their parents had given them in material comforts and physical care.

Yet the story of their childhood is told with shrill resentment: their brothers and sisters were preferred, although they were far more amiable; at school, bright though they were, they were bullied by teachers; boys less worthy always won the girls they admired.

As adults, therefore, they felt they must punish others as others had once punished them, says Mrs. Hirsh. Because their early experience had made them sure of nothing but the certainty of failure and misery, they can find security and a sense of belonging by pointing to all those around them who don't belong, who are outsiders.

Because of their insecurity, they perpetually exaggerate the importance of authority, and in fact, the scientists speak of them as "authoritarian" personalities.

ADVICE TO PARENTS

"Moderation and flexibility are the keys in parenthood," says Mrs. Hirsh. "It takes more energy and time to use them than to have rigid rules or no rules at all, but it pays off with your child."

"He should be allowed to grow up at his own pace and mature at his own rate. A child who is pushed becomes fearful and uncertain of his own capacities. That's the key to developing faith in himself. A child given that is less apt to go around attacking people".

As the mother of two girls, aged 15 and 19, Mrs. Hirsh knows all the problems. "But I don't understand why parents are so frightened of their children today. They don't seem to have the capacity to say 'No' to them. I think it's one of their big problems."

God-natured Mrs. Hirsh makes it clear that although she's a devoted mother and makes a point of putting herself in her daughters' place when an issue arises, she's no doormat.

"In my home when the kids say 'But everybody's doing it,'

I say 'Not everyone is doing it. You're not.'"

A friend of her younger daughter is permitted to go anywhere she wants, Mrs. Hirsh relates, but her parents won't drive her. "The father is president of a big company, the mother has a Ph. D. in something or other. They tell her 'Your grades are bad so we're not driving you. But if anyone else will take you, you can go.'"

What point are the parents making?" puzzles Mrs. Hirsh.

"I think the middle and upper class, the better educated parents are more guilty of this. Middle class delinquency is a growing phenomenon. Look at the Long Island debutante party in which a house was wrecked or at swastika - painting parties in which even some Jewish kids participate, in pure rebellion."

The child who has never had any limits to what he can do is going to have many sad experiences and becomes constantly fearful, she says. At the other extreme is the over-disciplined, over-protected child who suffers from lasting insecurity, the kind of personality who either looks for a scapegoat in later life or develops a dependency on strong leaders.

County Agent Gives Cotton Production Tips

Most of the factors that determine whether you produce quality cotton are in your hands. These include: variety, planting time, insect control, water, fertilization, defoliation and harvesting. Weather is the factor over which you as a farmer have little control, says county agent J. K. Adams.

Variety is the first step in a quality cotton program. Choose a variety that has inherent good "mikeability." Also, one with built-in earliness. In this area, earliness is all important. Some early varieties are Paymaster 101-A, Gregg, and Rilect 90, according to information from Levon Ray, Agronomist at the South Plains Research and Extension Center, Lubbock. These varieties are recommended for late plantings (after June 10) on the South Plains, says Ray. In the northern part of the Plains, these are "the" varieties to plant because of the short season, according to the agronomist.

If cotton is planted after June 10, look for mike values to start falling. With cool weather and early frost, mike can fall even further.

Varieties with herbicidal properties of producing high mike cotton are several. Among these Ray lists Paymaster 101-A, Gregg, Lockett 88-A, Tex. Austin and Bluffmaster. Varieties with lower mike heritabilities under irrigation include Northern Star 511, North Star 5 and Western Storm-proof. Under dryland conditions, these varieties have good mike.

The agronomist says in some years — when growing conditions are "just right" — Lockett 88-A will fall into the discount bracket at the high end of the price scale. Ray also points out that readings tend to run higher on dryland cotton than irrigated cotton.

Water — and its proper use — is an important factor. Research data from Shelby Newman, also an agronomist at the Center, shows the more total water put on cotton, the lower the mike. His research shows one 26 or 27 inches water is received, a mile yields shows a marked decline with more water. A 6-inch preplant irrigation, two 4-inch summer waterings, plus the "normal" 13-inches rainfall brings the total water applied to 27 in this. More water than this brings the mike reading down, Newman emphasizes.

Business men and farmers are more and more coming to recognize the value of steel as a construction material because of its longer lasting quality and its clean appearance. There are no termites in a steel building as there might be in a wooden structure and the new types of steel are rust-resisting and need no upkeep. Then the most important feature is that it is fire proof and offers security against loss.

If you are planning to build any type of structure, see Mr. Bass and let him explain to you the advantages and economy of using steel in place of wood or cement blocks. There will be no obligation for an estimate.

Yarborough in Washington

Dear Fellow Texan: The Anti-Poverty Bill, one of the major priorities facing the House and the Senate, has been ordered reported out favorably by the House Education and Labor Committee.

I am a member of a special Senate Committee working on this bill and support it as a co-sponsor.

As presently planned, the poverty bill calls for a Federal Job Corps for young men and women between 16 and 21. It would establish residential centers for voluntary enrollment to provide these youths with education, vocational training and other useful work experience. In most cases, high school graduates would not be allowed to join. This job corps is intended to help young people with less than high school training. About 40,000 enrollees would be sought during the first year to be divided between 200 small conservation camps and about 20 residential training centers.

Another part of the bill calls for work-training programs for young men and women 16 to 21. The Federal government would cooperate with state and local agencies and private, non-profit organizations to develop work-training programs.

this start we hope for great growth and a productive future for millions no now making their contribution to our society.

As a member of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, I have been especially concerned by the Post Office Department's action in cutting back its parcel post and window service.

The problems caused by the curtailment of window service are particularly acute. Whole metropolitan areas are left without any means of stamp or money order purchase after regular business hours. This strikes right at the needs of the great majority of people, whose jobs prevent them from getting to the Post Office until evening or Saturday afternoon.

My constituents, quite justifiably, expect more service, not less, with continuing improvements.

Mail Is A Big Business in Texas

There are 68 post offices in the United States with annual receipts of $5 million or more. Four of these cities are in Texas, in what is designated by the Post Office Department as the Dallas Region. In fiscal 1963 annual receipts in Dallas totalled $25,295,718; Fort Worth $8,231,835; Houston $18,153,996; San Antonio $7,739,170. Austin was not far behind with $4,292,750 in annual postal receipts while El Paso was sixth with $3,137,809.

NO IRONING—New all-cotton slacks that never need ironing are good news for wives and mothers. These Sta-Prest slacks by Levi Strauss are guaranteed to give top wash and wear performance.

DAY AND NIGHT—The luster and luxury of ribbed cotton ottoman makes a fashionable day coat that can also double for evening wear. Styled by Weatherbee, it has the added feature of Zepel rain and stain repellency.

This indicates something of the size of the problem when a post office window is not open. The mail from my constituents asks why the Post Office Department cut back service after the raise in rates. During hearings of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, I asked Postmaster General John A. Gronouski the same question. The answer is that curtailment of these important services saves $8.8 million a year. This is only one-fifth of one per cent of the total post office budget of over $5 billion. But I believe this savings is at the expense of mail users. A slow-down in mail is certain to be costly to the taxpayer. I intend to work to bring about an improvement in the situation. Postmaster General Gronouski has indicated that his effort was merely to save money and the White House has expressed an interest in seeing better service.
