The versatility of the band. which was organized in 1923, keeps in great demand throughout the year, with the boys even being summoned back to keep engagements during the summer months.

And Director Lawson Hager's group is already off to a busy start this fall. They opened during the Labor Day weekend at Old Abilene Town, playing for the International Cowboy Campfire Cookoff. A heavy week faced them during the West Texas Fair, as they played in the opening parade on Saturday, Sept. 7, and for each performance of the fair's rodeo.

The Band will be a feature attraction at Six Flags Over Texas on Sept. 21, which has been designated Hardin-Simmons University Day, and numerous other appearances

Rain Welcomed By Farmers

The three inch rain in Eastland County has been a very welcome sight to city dwellers and farmers alike.

Some areas have reported as much as five inches with excess moisture all over the county. We have needed the moisture very badly, but by the same token, we need plenty of sunshine now. Peanut growers are especially glad of the rain, but unless the sun shines soon. will face problems with mature peanuts coming off the vines underneath the ground and remaining there and diseases involving peanuts will worsen. After the needed rain, the sunshine will be a welcome sight in order to see the peanuts grow and mature properly. Mr. De Gordon, county agent for Eastland County, has reported that many stock tanks are now catching the needed water, but there is no report of flooding or erosion.

Mr. D.G. Fambrough of North College street reported as of 7:00 a.m. Wednesday morning that he had received 3.20 inches of rain since Sunday

Last Thursday we received 35 of an inch, Friday .05, Saturday a trace, Sunday .25, Monday .59 and as of 7:00 a.m. Wednesday 1.94. We officially received 3.18 inches of rain since last Thursday according to James Dabney at U.S. Weather

The Lake Leon had not risen very much as of yet, but should come up some four or five inches now that the Leon River

Desert Water Supply Corp. continue to serve its customers

Steering Committee Chairman Ronnie White had a sympathetic audience but not much promise for Lake Leon Water, in his appearance before the Eastland City Commission -

Monday evening. Mr. White told the Commission about preliminary plans for the water system, but learned that in fact there is no surplus water available from Lake Leon to feed such a project. The Cities of Eastland and Ranger are the only inities which can sell water from the lake through their systems, due to requirements made during the original arrangements with the Eastland County Water Supply District which was formed by the two towns to build the lake in the early

The concept for the Desert Water Supply Corp. apparently began several months ago when several residents in the area southwest of Eastland began wondering if a system couldn't be formed to provide treated water to a number of rural residents, much as has been done with systems now in operation at Carbon, Morton Valley, Olden and Staff. These systems purchase their water either from Eastland or Ranger.

Somewhat "like Topsey", the Desert System grew and grew, eventually to encompass potential water customers all the way to Clyde in Callahan County, which has had a serious water shortage this summer.

Chairman White was told that the Eastland County Water Supply District apparently pumped "above its capacity" this past summer through July, and it's highly unlikely that many more customers could be added, without extensive expansion of the treatment facilities. The District took major steps this past year to increase its delivery capacity, and will to the best of its ability.

No Surplus Water

Launches Big Year

Residents in the Eastland-Ranger Water District pay water taxes and will do so until the retirement of the original dam endebtedness sometime in the 1980's.

In their search for water, Mr. White and several of his neighbors began asking about getting water through the Eastland system, and was informally told then that perhaps they could, but no major 300-customer project was anticipated.

In talking with Farmers Home Administration officials to secure financing for lines, pumps, storage tanks, etc., the project apparently blossomed into a much larger undertaking.

The Eastland Commission told Mr. White that it might be recommended that he report back to Eastland might be able to serve a few customers near its city limits, but could not under any circumstances furnish water as far away as Callahan County. (Many Eastland water customers live outside its city I imits and pay a premium for the water).

There is some likelihood that the City of Cisco might be able to serve those near its city limits, and might or might not be able to furnish water to the Callahan County customers. Mr. White indicated that he would report these things to the planned system when another meeting is held Tuesday, Sept. 24. This is also deadline set for persons who want to make application for the system.

White said that they've learned that the corporation is going to have change its name, probably to West-Ward Water System, because there's already a Desert Corp. chartered by the state.

Many details are yet to be worked out, and these will be discussed at the Tuesday, Sept.

24, meeting to be held at the Harrell Fine Arts Auditorium at Cisco Junior College. Some 125 of the 331 people who have paid $100 as water applicants were in attendance at the last meeting.

Leon Decker of the Abilene engineering firm of Yeatts and Decker told the stock holders that it would be 90 days before their preliminary engineering work was completed. He estimated that water costs initially would be about $12 per month for a minimum of 2,000 gallons. John D. Isenhower, head of a committee of Putnam area residents interested in the program, told the group that water is a vital need in that Callahan County center. He pledged his group's cooperation n any way needed to expedite

Charles Henderson, head of the Farmers Home Administration offices in Eastland, suggested to the group that much work would have to be done before FHA approval could be expected. A rural community water system at Staff in Eastland County was built after six years of work, he added urging patience. Attorney Dewey Cox of Ranger, who is handling legal details of the corporation, reported that the charter for the organization should be ready by the Sept. 24 meeting.

Charles Clark reported 1. 4 permanent officers and directors are to be elected at the coming meeting. Ronnie White of Eastland has been serving as president, with Fred Brown of Eastland as vice president. Clark is the secretary-treasurer. and David Kerr of Cisco and Richard Robinson of Eastland are directors.

The corporation proposes to obtain FHA financing through a long term loan and possibly a grant to built a pipeline of some 35 miles.

Ranger Junior College used a potent ground game and a defense that stood strong when necessary to score a 23 to 13 victory over Cisco Junior College in the 15th annual Peanut Bowl football game Saturday night at Maverick Stadium in Eastland. A capacity crowd saw the contest. After a scoreless first quarter the Rangers struck twice in the second quarter to hold a 13-0 halftime lead. Cisco came back throwing and promptly socred a touchdown as the second half began. The Wranglers then got possession again and drove to the five-yard line of Ranger before bogging down. In the fourth, Cisco scored once and Ranger made a touchdown and kicked a field goal.

Halfback Joe Doakes, Fullback Charlie Taylor, End Vernon Wells and Ouarterback Junior Gonzales were the top offense guns for the Rangers. while OB Mark Nash, Ends John DeWitty and Mike Andress, and HB Jerry Robertson were among the Wranglers showing up best on offense.

In the defense department, LB Mark Urquiga and Tackle Greg Nickerson were outstanding for Cisco while Defensive Back David Crow and Lineman Mike Patterson and Joey McWilliams were showing up well for Ranger. In the first quarter, Ranger had one mild threat, driving to the Cisco 15 before a penalty and a 12 yard loss forced a punt over the goal. Steve Bolton recovered a Ranger fumble early in the second to give the Wranglers an opportunity from the 25 yard line. QB Nahs was
