Just Treatment Assured

While British bombers are pounding Berlin so that its residents are reported panic-stricken, with 500,000 having fled to Poland, Nazi propaganda is aimed almost solely at warning the German people that peace would be even more perilous.

where it will do the most good. "Unconditional surrender" is an essential bulwark against making an appeasement "peace" before the Axis militarists have conceded defeat.

That is a positive and useful assurance. Perhaps an indication of readiness to listen "increase within Germany more specific terms can be given. The Nazis, as usual, are working from the basis of fear.

Hull Won't Be Hasty In Shaking Up Staff

By JACK STINNETT WASHINGTON—The capital in wartime: Some of the big guns have been blasting away recently at the State Department, with consequent rumors that our eldest statesman, Secretary Cordell Hull is about to shake up his staff.

Washington workers who eat in the Navy cafeteria, where the great French chef from New York is now making the meals something completely out of this world's old stew, have one big kick.

THE LONG NIGHT By Eleanor Atterburg

Chapter 10 At quarter six that morning the Japanese radio was still broadcasting, in perfect English, warnings to evacuate the post, to surrender all arms. At ten minutes to six all the nurses gathered in the hospital's tiny office suddenly heard a terrific explosion. Then at once the station went silent.

later the radio operator brought the good word. "Guess we smeared them that time," he grinned. "Boys are on their way back. We wiped out that little nest!"

heavy coat and racing toward the field. When three more planes took fire and then another of the outlying buildings, Bette too grabbed a coat and raced out.

Paramount To Wage Own War Against Hitler

By ROBBIN COONS HOLLYWOOD—From a Paramount bulletin: "With 'The Hitler Gang' Paramount won't be interested in making money. This picture will be its contribution to the war effort and the peace effort. Already budgeted at nearly $2,000,000, it may not even earn its negative cost."

Scott was allowed to get up that afternoon. Sue hovered over him like a lovely white moth while they settled him in a wheelchair, moved him close to a window where he could look out onto the open square.

So it happened that Scott was one of the first to sound the alarm. Bette heard him shouting when she came from the kitchen with the first truck of supper trays.

It's going to be out-and-out propaganda (which is the reason Paramount is professedly dubious about its box-office wallop) and it's going to dissect the Reich's gangster clan for the enlightenment of the war and post-war world. But with facts, they say, and nothing but facts—plain, unvarnished, documented.

"Fire! Fire!" she heard him call and rushed into his room. Yanking at the blankets that swathed his knees, he was trying to get up. "Scott! Please! You aren't to get up yet."

So he fiercely he spoke, Bette could only stare up at him, amazed and a little frightened at the fury in his face. Then he looked down at her more gently. "Promise me you'll stay under cover until I get back?"

Buddy De Sylva, the executive producer, got the idea from seeing the Nazi propaganda film, "Oom Kruger," story of the Boer leader who fought the British in South Africa. "Oom Kruger" was a masterpiece of Goebbels distortion, being a version of the story which would inflame any audience against the English, provided the audience didn't know the whole truth. Why not, De Sylva argued, make a movie about the Nazis, the private lives of their leaders, their background, their rise to power and their purpose? And why not get them one better by telling nothing but the truth?

After that, she learned later, he'd gotten permission to do some investigating on his own. With nothing but a pistol, a rifle and a (Continued On Classified Page)
