Four Indicted For Robbery Of Frankston Bank

PALESTINE, Tex., Jan. 24.—Indictment charging three men with the robbery of the Frankston State Bank, December 10, were returned today by the Anderson county grand jury. Two of the men charged were sentenced at Conroe this week for the robbery of the First State Bank at Montgomery. The men indicted are William Quinn, John Elz and Joel Terrell. Quinn and Elz each received nine year sentences for the robbery of the Montgomery bank. Quinn was taken to San Angelo tonight to face another charge. Terrell is in a Fort Worth hospital recovering from bullet wounds received in a battle with police when he was captured there.

Missouri State Prison Riot Is Quelled When Four Convicts Are Shot And Captured By Guards

A group of incorrigible prisoners at the state prison seized three guards tonight in an attempted break for liberty. The guards were disarmed and held hostages by the band of mutinous convicts who engaged in an exchange of shots with other guards stationed in watch towers. The rioting broke out in cell-house number 1 quartering 473 men. The number of men participating in the uprising was not definitely known by prison officials outside the main walls. Ninety-five of those confined in that building had been put there after a riot last March, in which prisoners refused to work and attempted to destroy machinery in the shop. The guards seized were Frank Wehmyer, O. S. Douglas and D. C. Bailey.

Guy Robinson Also Hurt At Cisco Saturday

Both Men Are Taken To Cisco Hospital For Medical Treatment Saturday Morning.

Injuries sustained when the gate valve on the control head of a gas well on the Martin lease, one mile northeast of Cisco, blew out early Saturday may prove fatal to M. J. Bourland, welder, of near Eastland. Guy Robinson, who was working with Bourland on the well at the time, was less seriously hurt. He sustained cuts and bruises. The well is owned by the Texas Public Utilities company. There was about 1,200 pounds pressure on the valve at the time of the blowout, it was reported, and this pressure was being gradually released. Bourland was taken to Cisco for medical treatment. He sustained a fractured left ankle, a fractured left leg, a compound fracture of the right arm, a fracture of the right elbow, internal injuries and severe shock. Bourland's home is on R. F. D. No. 5 near Eastland. Robinson also lives at Eastland. Bourland is a nephew of Lon and Lee Bourland who live a short distance from Eastland and is a brother of Leo Bourland who lives here.

Chamber Commerce Secures Copies Of Commission Report

The Eastland Chamber of Commerce has secured a copy of the complete report of the enforcement of prohibition laws of the United States made by the National commission of law enforcement and observation, and the complete report of the special committee to investigate communists activities and propaganda in the United States in accordance with House Resolution No. 220. Anyone interested in these two reports can see them by applying to the local Chamber of Commerce.

Crime Wave Is Thought Broken Up By Officers

A small crime wave in Eastland county is thought to be broken up with the arrest of two men in Fort Worth Saturday afternoon and the recovery of one car in Cisco. On Friday, Jan. 16, the showrooms of the Levee-Maher Motor company in Ranger was broken into and two cars were stolen. One was located in Fort Worth Saturday afternoon by Chief Detective Jackson and Brock Owens and Luther Helms were arrested on two charges of robbery and one of burglary. On Wednesday night a store at Scranton was robbed and during the robbery the car bumped into the corner of the store and a hub cap was knocked off, which was later found by the officers. A car which was stolen in Ranger was found in a garage in Cisco with one hub cap missing and a quantity of walnuts in the car. Walnuts were reported stolen in the Scranton robbery and a good circumstantial evidence case is being worked up by officers. Owens and Helms have not been connected by the officers with the Scranton robbery.

Meeting Is Held To Form Program For Community Club

E. H. Varnell, Cisco vocational agent, Tom Graves and Kent Word, of the Shady Grove community, met at Cisco Saturday afternoon to work out a year's program for the community club at Shady Grove. The club meets Saturday evening before the second Sunday of each month. It has been in existence for three years. One item in the program calls for the growing of a community supply of high grade grain sorghum seed each year. Shady Grove is about seven miles southwest of Eastland. During the past three years the community had had a community fair each year and has had exhibits at the county fair.

Five Killed And Twenty Injured In Wreck Of Suwanee Special; Every Car Of Train Turns Over

HELENWOOD, Tenn., Jan. 24.—At least five persons were killed and two score injured today when the "Suwanee Special" crack Cincinnati to Florida flyer of the Chattanooga-New Orleans & Texas Pacific Railroad leaped the rails and piled into a jumbled mass of wreckage two miles south of here. The dead: H. A. Lindle, Somerset, Ky., engineer Charles Sexton, Sunbright, Tenn., fireman; Mrs. L. O. Cowzell of New Terrace and Tampa, Florida; Mrs. Charles E. Reinhardt, San Diego, Calif., and Mrs. J. O. Markley, Cleveland, Ohio. One survivor said the first intimation he had that the impending crash was when "our car seemed to fly into the air and we passed the locomotive of our own 400 feet beyond where the wreck" and bore the extricated dead and the injured to Chattanooga. Other wrecking trains came from nearby Southern Railroad headquarters. First reports from survivors indicated the train was traveling at a fast clip down grade but that it rounded a turn safely before leaving the track. Every car of the train left the rails and turned over. Tracks for several hundred feet were torn up.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 24.—Mrs. Myrtle Blackledge, who lost $50,000 of a prominent Chicago politician's money in a faro game swindle, submitted her resignation today from her $7,500 a year position as collector of internal revenue. Resignation was contained in a telegram sent by Mrs. Blackledge to the commissioner of internal revenue in Washington, D. C. She gave no explanation of relinquishing her post but was preparing a statement which was planned to issue later.

Animal Killed With An Ax By Man Who Owned It

C. Coley Surrenders To Police On Charge Of Negligent Homicide.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 24.—C. Coley, animal trainer, today faced charges of negligent homicide and his circus lioness was dead following the killing of Viola Friesen, 2 last night. Coley lives with the Friesen family and staked the animal in the yard. Late yesterday the baby followed her brother, Harry, 16, and her sister, Sarah, 13, into the yard when the latter went to bring in clothes. The lioness struck down the baby, dragged her to its kennel and crushed her head in its jaws, despite frantic efforts of the brother and sister to beat the animal away with sticks of stove wood. They aroused the neighborhood with their screams. Not until Coley rushed out of the house and killed the lioness with an ax could the child's body be rescued. The baby still showed signs of life and was rushed to a hospital where she was pronounced dead a few minutes later. The claws of the lioness tore the baby's jugular vein. Coley blamed a red sweater worn by the baby for the attack. The lioness was considered tame and had been a pet of the Friesen children. The animal originally had come from Mexico. Coley surrendered to police voluntarily.

For GINGER'S SAKE

in the little town of Red Ash, Iowa, was too unexciting for Ginger Ella Tolliver, so she had the idea of organizing a Country Club and thus save the younger set from complete boredom. Accordingly she arranged the purchase of the Mill Farm, a 10-acre tract with an ample house on it, and she engaged the Jenks Brooks and his wife, blind Benny Brooks, as chaperons.

The club was to be exclusive. No dogs allowed—and no children. Ginger's intimates, all of them, were to be invited. Ed Thrush—Edgar Jackson, Wesley Meeker, and Gus—Ginger and farm house. Ginger proceeded with a real overhauling in which all high school kids of Red Thrush assisted. Furnishings were donated.

Ginger greeted the purpose to a good time. And one while the rehabilitation of old house was going on, Ginger was in the kitchen of her home, cookies, assisted by Gooby, cook, when a stranger called.

She looked up and offered to do a sketch of her. Thinking he an elderly man, she began to draw him for his apparent lack of ambition. But he was only 27, when he had shaved off his hair and was a young man. He was a painter and he was an accomplished artist, for he made a fine drawing of Ginger and asked for the privilege of doing her in color some day.

breath in her throat, lips parted, Ginger bent over drawing. There was her tilted, there her putting pursed-up and the sweep of the curly that shadowed but could not the glint of gold in blue. Look, Gooby!" she cried. "Why look like me—almost."

Gooby looked and marveled. "Could you maybe then," she said, "make a picture of me that look like me?"

"On a mystery," Miss Phil lets feed anybody any time whatever and anything I like."

"I haven't yet. It's really rare sport. On warm nights I roll up in my blankets and sleep out in the open—under the stars. See the moon come up—and then go down. See the night creep away and the dawn creep in. Hear the crickets say good night and the robins good morning. Wake up with my face cool and damp and covered with my night air. It's rare, I tell you. It's the only genuine joie de vivre there is."

He sat down gratefully to the bountiful repast the admiring Gooby had placed before him and for a few minutes devoted himself to it in complete silence. Ginger looked on. There was a smoldering shadow in her eyes that meant business, but the artist did not know Ginger Ella.

"I got the idea from a couple of college girls back East," he went on. "I was driving down with a chap from Boston to New York and they struck us for a lift. They were hitch-hiking for the week-end. But they weren't broke. They wore good clothes and had plenty of money. So we asked them what was the big idea anyhow and they said they stayed bottled up with chemistry and Greek for just so long and then they had to break loose for a private course in joie de vivre. I must say they were full of their subject."

"Were they—pretty?" inquired Ginger with marked concern.

He stole a glance at her averted face. "I really didn't notice," he said. "It was their spirit I liked, their joie de vivre. They taught me a lesson."

"Perhaps I should have gone to college after all," said Ginger thoughtfully. "But they don't teach joie de vivre at Wesleyan. Just Bible history and English literature, et cetera."

"And Dependents, Defectives and—"

Ginger interrupted him with a light laugh. "Oh, please," she begged.

He busied himself cheerfully with his food once more.

Ginger fingered the cloth of the table and glanced up at him occasionally with reflective eyes.

"Did—uh—you say you were going to stick around town for two or three days?" she inquired casually.

"Did I say so?"

"You said something about doing me in color—if you stuck around—"

"Ah, so I did. He hesitated. "I wish I could arrange it. I'd like to."

"You would be willing to forego your joie de vivre for a day or two, wouldn't you?"

"Oh, no. I wouldn't. I'd keep it with me." He looked full into her innocent eyes. "I have a hunch it mightn't be so hard to do."

"If you could do one or two portraits in town—for money—"

"I'd adore it," he said eagerly. "That's really the objection—"

His voice trailed away into silence. Ginger went straight to the kitchen telephone and called a number. "Mrs. Updike?" she inquired. "Oh, hello, Mrs. Updike. This is Ginger—Ginger Ella. At Doornodee."

She turned to give the artist a

VIRGINIA NEIL LITTLE

High School

Weather Forecast—For Eastland High School and vicinity. Generally fair, blue skies, happiness and rejoicing. Next six weeks will be clear.

Cause: Finals over, only twelve failures in high school. Schedules all arranged. Let's go!

High school has been such a busy place this week with all of the students registering, arranging and "stewing" over schedules that one could picture a bee-hive with each teacher and each student as busy as two bees.

We have already had a thorough spring house-cleaning of our brains to relieve us of all superfluous material that was lodged there during "cram" week, that we may have room for all that is to come this semester.

Now that the spring semester has started we all feel like taking a deep breath and yelling "fore!" with a determination to drive straight toward the mark of success and exemption.

The students are all happy to have Mr. Ward, our most highly esteemed principal with us in school this semester.

Mr. Ward is always so helpful and sane in his advice to the students, that we missed greatly his inspiration and encouragement.

Mr. Palm, principal pro-tem, during Mr. Ward's absence filled the position most creditably, but he is entirely too valuable in the classroom to waste his time serving in the capacity of principal.

Scientific research has proved without a doubt that any one who suffers an attack of typhoid fever always enjoys the compensation of physical rejuvenation afterward. If when stricken with this disease your eyes are dull, cheeks sagging, step slow, shoulders stooped and hair straight, upon a recovery from this malady the patient realizes a marked physical change and without an exception is more handsome than before.

Mr. Ward is enjoying all of these physical benefits from his recent spell of typhoid fever except curly hair; however if one notices closely "ringlet" signs of that change can be detected.

Thirty-two freshmen accepted our kind invitation of last week to enter high school this semester.

Up to the present time none of them have been injured permanently. Several have suffered of physical exhaustion because of the counten and mental servitude demanded of them by the upper classmen.

Due to the financial depression tickets to chapel exercises have been sold to this group of freshmen at greatly reduced prices. The freshmen seem to appreciate this consideration. Even strong unsophisticated freshmen must eat.

Hal Dean Allen was found fast asleep Wednesday morning on the steps leading into Principal Ward's office. Hal Dean was waiting to have his schedule arranged so that "floods" would not conflict with his English.

By FRANCES PAGET

Copyright, 1931, by Style Sources

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Apparently the dress characterized by the light top and black or other dark color lower section is to remain another season.

It is one of the holdover ideas from fall, and even at that time it was a Vionnet dish "warmed over," but at none of these other times has it been so securely established as a favored style.

As an interpreter of the irrefragable black-and-white or one-and-whole-vogue, it is at its best—just is, from the angle of practicality. It is in great demand on either of these two combinations, made with any one of the varied designs in which the characteristic bodice yokes can be cut, of white and the rest of the frock in the dark color.

Not only are the shapes and outlines of these yokes, which always include the top of the sleeve, widely assorted, but the area itself of the light section varies in size. Sometimes it covers just the top of the shoulders, or else it extends clear down to and sometimes below the waistline, worked out in deep points, or round or square scallops.

This a great deal more will grow out of this present popularity as a result of the promotion of contrast in colors, is on its way to being raised. One of the best ideas of a recent resort collection, for example, was a series of dresses of jersey with a deep yoke of flat crepe that evoked into scarf ends. This yoke contrasted in color with the jersey and the life from heavy to light in both color and texture completely "magic," the dress and suggested it as a true idea for spring and for summer, too.

The idea does not seem as merely one linked to just dresses, but has been developed to fit in with jacket-costume plans. The contrast idea is accentuated by repeating the color of the dress-yoke for the jacket, thus effecting a stronger contrast idea in the whole costume.

GOOD-BYE BOGEY MAN

A BUSINESS MAN MET A FRIEND ON THE STREET THE OTHER DAY. "HOW'S BUSINESS?" HE ASKED. "ROTTEN!" EXCLAIMED THE OTHER. "WELL DON'T WORRY, IT WILL PICK UP SOON." AND THAT IS THE TROUBLE WITH MOST OF US. WE'VE ALL BEEN SHOUTING HARD TIMES AND DEPRESSION FOR SO LONG THAT WE DON'T KNOW A GOOD THING WHEN WE SEE IT. TOO MANY OF US HAVE GOTTEN THE IDEA THAT THE WORLD IS GOING TO COLLAPSE THE DAY AFTER TOMORROW.

THE MORE SENSIBLE OF US HAVE QUIT CALAMITY HOWLING. WE'VE PUT OUR HEADS TOGETHER. WE'RE STARTING TO BUY THE THINGS WE NEED. WE ARE BOOSTING BETTER TIMES. CONDITIONS ARE GETTING BETTER. LET'S KEEP THEM SO.
