THE HEADLIGHT LAW
Our legislators, Austin tells us, are fixing to do us poor taxpayers a good turn, as soon as they can get together and repeal a law. It is the headlight testing law, and it gyps the people of Texas out of $300,000 annually, without adding anything to the state's tax funds or exerting the slightest influence on the headlight situation in Texas—which is admitted just about the worst situation imaginable.

BATTLING FOR FREEDOM OF THE PRESS.
Four years ago Senator George H. Lommen introduced in the Minnesota legislature a bill known as the newspaper suppression bill. Lawmakers of both houses enacted the Lommen measure and the governor of Minnesota signed it. What happened is ancient history. Advocates of freedom of the press made a target of the bill, newspapers pounded it until it became a political issue and then its doom was sealed. Now Senator Lommen has changed front. On the opening day of the Minnesota legislature he introduced a repeal bill and a companion bill was introduced by a house member. It is said that the repealer will win in both houses, and Governor Olson, the farmer-labor leader of Minnesota, has promised to sign it.

REDISTRICTING GAME IN OKLAHOMA.
Governor William H. Murray of Oklahoma knows where to locate snags in the political legislative stream. In his message to the legislature he recommended that congressional redistricting of the state be deferred at this session. There are said to be 10 potential congressmen in every one of the old districts and for the present Governor Murray has other political fish to fry. In the near future the fur will be flying under the big dome and congressional, senatorial and legislative districts may be mapped out and then again, there may be a deadlock, or one branch of the legislative department of government may decline to accept the pet bill of the other branch. All this would lead to the election of three congressmen-at-large in the elections of 1932.

POWER COMMISSION DISPUTE
The shrinkage affects the appearance, palatability, nutritive value, and the quantity of meat available for serving.
In the last four years the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture has been accumulating meat-shrinkage data in connection with the nation-wide co-operative study of the factors that influence the palatability of meat. There seems to be a close relation; that is, when meat is roasted from start to finish in a very hot oven the shrinkage is greater than when the meat is first seared at a high temperature and then finished slowly with the temperature rapidly reduced. For example, if, after searing ribs have been seared in a hot oven, the temperature is rapidly reduced so as to finish the cooking very slowly, the shrinkage of the meat when rare is only about one-eighth of the fresh weight; whereas if the roasting goes on to the end in a hot oven the shrinkage is about one-fourth of the fresh weight.

Wesson Oil And Snowdrift To Be Represented Here
Carl N. Roberts, in charge of a group of representatives of the Educational Department of the Wesson Oil and Snowdrift people, is in Eastland in the interest of his company, and with his party will probably remain here for the better part of a month.
Mr. Roberts is a territorial representative and has with him Jack Turner, Mrs. Betty Freeman and Miss Minnie B. Wiginton, both of the Home Service Department. The young ladies of the party will call on the housewives of Eastland residents and discuss their product with the housewives, and will conduct demonstrations with them if desired, showing in a concrete way the merits of the product they represent.

Frogs In Hawaii Rank As Livestock
Frog culture is a newcomer to the livestock industry in the Hawaiian Islands. The Extension Service of the United States Department of Agriculture recently organized two boys' 4-H frog clubs to encourage frog farming.
After studying the market for frog legs and learning that the Honolulu market alone could handle 6,000 pairs of frog legs a week at 20 cents a pair, the Extension Service organized clubs in west Hawaii and on the island of

WASHINGTON LETTER
BY RODNEY DUTCHER
WASHINGTON—Women are more valuable than men in Liberia's domestic slavery.
The International Commission of Inquiry, which investigated slavery and forced labor in the African republic, reports that between 1912 and 1920 the redemption price for female slaves was about $30 and that for men about $15, but that since 1920 the price for women has been $30 and that for men has remained the same.
Domestic slaves become such under the "pawning" system which is officially recognized by the Liberian government but which the commission severely condemns. In return for money, human beings, usually child relatives but often wives or mothers, are given into uncompensated servitude for indefinite periods and with little chance of redeeming themselves.

Woman Pawns For $5
Pawns may be repawned by the holder, and the commission found persons remaining in pawn for 10, 20, 40 years or for life. One woman had been in pawn six years for the sum of $5. Instances are cited where, in order to pay government fines or taxes, many natives pawned wives, sisters or children for from $15 to $40.
Late in December, the State Department sent a scathing note of censure to the Liberian government which is supposed to have caused the resignations of President King and Vice President Yancy. Secretary Stimson said the report established the direct criminal participation of Yancy and many other officials in shipment of forced labor to Fernando Po and said King was aware of the various practices.
The note mentioned evidence of torture and the "pawning" system. Liberia has promised to clean up, it said, but had done nothing in that direction and guilty officials remained in office. Stimson virtually threatened to break off relations.

Man Prisoners Tortured
The "basket punishment" was a favorite punishment and amusement of soldiers guarding the road workers. A big basket loaded with earth and heavy stones was lifted by four soldiers and placed on the prisoner's head, the prisoner then being ordered to walk. Many men were killed when their necks were broken, according to the evidence, and others received fatal injuries. A large number of deaths from beatings were also reported.

Asked by Chief Miller to explain his possession of a pistol and a black domino mask at the time of his recapture, he remarked that "it does look bad, don't it." He said that he was at a point where he "had to do something." He hadn't missed any meals, he said, but had "postponed" a few.

Cotton Goods Production In Texas Decline
AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 23.—Production of cotton goods by Texas mills during 1930 declined 28 per cent from the 75,465,000 yards turned out in 1929 to 54,204,000 yards in the year just closed, according to the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Texas.
"Sales of cotton goods in Texas amounted to 48,174,000 yards, compared to 70,134,500 yards in 1929," the Bureau's report said. "The margin of production over sales was approximately 6,000,000 yards in 1930 as compared to 15,960,900 yards in 1929."

Sley Used In Pioneer Days Given To U. of T.
AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 23.—Miss Laura Lewis Giles of Manor, sister of Representative Eugene Giles, has presented the archives of the University of Texas with the sley used by her grandmother, Harriet Jordan, in weaving cloth for her family when she first came to Texas in the early days of the republic. This family came from Virginia, through the old Southern route via Tennessee, and settled on Walnut Creek, where the old Jordan home still stands, a memorial to the part this family shared in the making of Texas.

Ewin Hail And Melody Men At The Lyric Soon
Ewin Hail, Brunswick and Victor recording artist, with his melodious tenor, Bill and Weidon, Burk, crooning guitarists, will open a limited engagement at the Lyric theatre soon according to an announcement made today by L. A. Burke, manager of the Lyric.
These entertainers, well known for their records and their radio appearances, play and sing popular songs in their crooning style. Hail is the featured soloist and the two other artists play guitars. They have appeared in many of the larger theatres and have become popular as the newer type of trio.

Demonstrator To Use Blue Bonnet Butter
The Blue Bonnet Butter that is to be used by the demonstrators for Snow Drift and Wesson Oil, who will be at the Cash Grocery and Market and the Piggly Wiggly all day Saturday serving waffles, is made by the Ideal Creamery from sweet cream produced in Eastland county mainly, sometimes, however, it is necessary to import cream from neighboring counties in order to supply the demand.
Mr. Knight who owns and operates the Ideal Creamery here is justly proud of the product he has made famous throughout this section and in fact most of Texas. This butter which is put up in attractive cartons holding four quarter pound sections is sold by nearly every grocery store in Eastland and Eastland county.

Taxi Trip Is A Clue To Robbery
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 23.—A taxi driver from Tulsa, Okla., is in Birmingham, land, Sidney Givens, negro, in jail. He was arrested after he attempted to cash a $100 money order. A negro woman and the taxi driver also were arrested. The money order, postal inspectors said, was written on one of the 164 blanks stolen from a Los Angeles branch post office.

HEROES ARE MADE—NOT BORN.

"Oh, about 50, I suppose," she said at last.
"Fifty—good lord—about 50?" He appealed suddenly to Gooby. "Is she in her right mind and all?"
Gooby thought a moment and gave it as her opinion that she was.
"Say, let me tell you something, Miss Defective-Delinquent, or whoever you are, I'm just 27 years old."
"Twenty-seven!" Ginger was amazed. "Why, you're not so old as Eddy Jackson."
"I'm not so old as a lot of people," he said moodily. He dropped the cover on his pad of paper and tossed it upon the table. Then he reached firmly into his portfolio.
"Miss," he said to Gooby, "can I bother you for a little nice hot lather?"
"Lather?" echoed Ginger.
"Yes, mean plain soap and water? I didn't know they used lather in—Gooby, a bowl of soap and hot water, at once."
"I'm going to shave off this damned beard," he said. "Me and grandchildren! Humph!"
"I didn't mean to hurt your feelings," said Ginger gently. "You don't look exactly old but—Biblical. That's it—Biblical. You look like all the disciples at the last supper—except Judas, of course," she added politely.
"Thanks," he said grimly.
He accepted the pan of hot water and the cake of soap from Gooby, and then, doggedly, before the limped blue eyes of Ginger Ella, eyes which melted swiftly from boundless amazement to ir-repressible laughter, he shaved off the silken black beard.
By the time he had finished she was quite doubled up in her chair with mirth, and Gooby was chuckling largely into the bowl of raisins.
"They all wear them in Paris," he explained, patting his face with a handkerchief. "It's quite the rage."
He wiped his razor and put it back in the portfolio. Then he replaced the pad and pencils.
"Are—aren't you going to finish my portrait?" she queried humbly.
"Not if I've got to hear any more about Defectives and Delinquents," he said stubbornly. "No dinner's worth it."
"I won't," she promised. "Not a word. Do finish it. I'm quite keen to see how you think I look."
So he tipped back the kitchen chair, hoisted his knee and went on with the drawing.
"You're not bald, or anything, are you?" he asked suddenly.
"Bald! Certainly not."

...Accused as Busch Heir's Kidnap... but she has a slight mole beneath her right eye which puts her among the physical defectives. Now does one?"
Ginger shook her head. She could find no words to make reply.
"And if one—like myself—a poor but joyous artist—elects to fare through the countryside, worshipping nature with his eyes, and trying with his small abilities to reproduce its beauties for others, perhaps not so observing, should one say that he is a dependent being, does not that pay for his dinner with cash instead of with the talent God gave him?"
"I was just dumb," sighed Ginger.
He settled down to his work in good earnest. "No, you were right," he said cheerfully, and a smile shot through the shadows of his gray eyes. "I am a financial flop. I really am hobnobbing through. When I was a kid I was all for art. I wasn't so bad, since we in our candor may admit our virtues."
"I get prizes, and medals, and scholarships and was sent to Paris—and I'll tell the world I wasn't too bad. I was good, but it isn't enough to be good. You have to be able to sell yourself. I wasn't. I thought when I came back people would come flocking to my door, saying, 'This man who has painted the famous fighting figures of all Europe, must paint my little son on his kiddie car.' Or, 'This man who has painted a golden passion into the pure heart of a lily must see if he can find some unsuspected emotion in my inmost soul.'"
"If you'd just take off that red rag a minute," he said ingratiatingly.
Ginger flushed violently and jerked it off. "I just put it on to be sanitary when I'm cooking."
She shook her head with nervous impatience, and her hair flew into a bright cloudy tangle. He smiled.
"Nice," he said and went on with his drawing. "Very nice. I'll put the rag on in the picture because it's how I saw you first, but I like you better without it."
Ginger leaned toward him over the table—closer and closer. Her eyes looked not at his work on the pad of paper, but into his face, a thin tanned face, with big gray eyes that seemed swimmingly dark with shadows.
She twisted her hands together on the table and tipped her small face back flower-like in order to gaze more fully into his eyes.
"Gosh," he said, "I can do you in black and white with my big eyes that seemed swimmingly dark with shadows."
He leaned forward suddenly and touched the tip of his chin tilted up toward him. His hands were burned brown by the sun. "And pink," he added, laughing.
Color swept the cream face. She gave a little nervous laugh and drew herself up with prim dignity, smoothing her hair.
The artist went on with his work. "You see, these chaps who make a living writing about us Defectives, Defectives and Delinquents," he said cheerfully, "overlook a few minor considerations. There is talent, for one thing. There is art. And there is beauty. "Now when you come to these sublime abstractions, no rules hold good. Who, for instance, in estimating love, would hark back to possible dependencies, delinquencies or even defects of character or person? When one loves, one does not say, 'Ah, but he is dependent on his hands for his daily bread, if his hands should be cut off, he would be dependent on me.' Nor does one say, 'I love her,

...Rabbi Declares Science Hurts Civilization... BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 22.—Modern science is producing an economic emergency detrimental to the progress of civilization according to Rabbi Abraham Novak of Cleveland, national chaplain of the Jewish War Veterans of the United States.
Rabbi Novak was here recently to address the Buffalo Post and made that assertion at the installation of officers.
The rabbi commended the work of scientists, but said civilization and culture were not keeping step and, as a result, an unsafe and unstable economic status was evolved.
Age of Airplanes
"We have new means of communication and transportation," the rabbi asserted. "The age of airplanes is just around the cor...ner. Scientists are busy finding new sources of supply to replace exhausted ones. The age of tomorrow will be an age of synthetic food. The miracles of today are greater than the miracles of the Bible.

"But are we better, happier, wiser than our fathers? What is it all worth?"
Defects in System
The Jewish chaplain pointed out what were, he said, some defects in the present system. He said millions of people still were underpaid, despite great progress in the application of science to industry; and that because of this application thousands of independent store owners "were being crushed to the wall by large chain stores."
"The disparity between the rich and the poor is becoming greater. Of what good is education if it but shows us how to get more wealth and be greedier?"
"If demagoguery continues, our democracy will fail. It is even being said that communism holds the answer to our industrial problems."
"I sometimes wonder if we shouldn't call a holiday in science and wait awhile."

...Farmer Battles Owl In Ontario... COURT RULES HUG NOT WORTH $10,000... BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 22.—Is the mental distress caused by a friendly hug worth $10,000?
A Supreme Court jury here decided that it was not, in returning a no cause of action verdict in favor of John Hogan, locomotive engineer.
Miss Agnes Ager told the jury the hug and kiss were stolen last July 3. Hogan agreed to the date, but countered that it was a friendly embrace and returned in a friendly way.

...French Plan Rail Centenary... PARIS, Jan. 22.—The French State Railways are planning the centenary of the first Paris railroad which united the French capital with Saint Germain en Laye in 1837.
This railroad was inaugurated with elaborate ceremonies, and members of the royal family were present, but honors were also accorded to the engineers, financiers, and even the humble workers who had made the rail road possible.
The same attitude will be observed at the centenary celebration in 1937.
A veritable railroad museum is to be assembled in Saint Germain in connection with the centenary. It will include certain relics of that first line, all revealing the progress made within the past hundred years. The Paris-Saint Germain railroad was originated, financed and constructed by Saint Simonians, that bizarre religious sect with brilliant disciples which had railroad construction as one of its principal dogmas.

...Centenarian Recalls 4 Wars... PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—In a little one and a half frame home in Kensington lives the nation's greatest anachronistic figure—Mrs. Mary Ann Williams.
At 87 she has poignant memories of four American wars. For her husband, Dr. John M. Williams, fought with the famous Moore's Maryland militia in the War of 1812; one of her sons served with the Union forces in the Civil War; a grandson saw service against the Spaniards in '98; and her grandson died in the service of the Republic during the World War.
She is the oldest of nine widows of veterans of the War of 1812 still receiving pensions, according to records of the Federal Government.
Her husband told her of the activities of the red-coated soldiery of Britain when he watched the National Capitol at Washington go up in flames. In the other struggles she knew the anguish of speeding her loved ones on their way to the front.
She has few complaints to make and the only thing that bothers her is her rheumatism. That'll be the death of her yet, she predicts.
She married Dr. Williams when

Texas Boy is Healthiest

...Texas Boy is Healthiest... "MY little son, Leo Boyce, had 'My whooping cough," says Mrs. Sam Heyman, 3700 Haynie Ave., Dallas. "He was having a hard time until I heard of California Fig Syrup and got him some. The first few doses regulated his bowels; brightened him up marvelously; even seemed to ease the coughing spasms a great deal."
"I have since used Fig Syrup with my boy during colds or upsets. It has been a wonderful help to him; has assisted in making him the strongest boy you see—perhaps the healthiest one in our neighborhood."
For more than fifty years, mothers have praised California Fig Syrup, leading physicians advise its use with bilious, headachy, constipated children, or to keep the bowels open during colds or children's diseases. Children love its rich, fruity flavor. It tones and strengthens weakened bowels; helps make children robust.
Look for the name California when buying. That marks the genuine.

Text: Luke 4:1-13. And Jesus, being full of the Holy Ghost, returned from the Jordan, and was led by the Spirit into the wilderness.

Being 40 days, being tempted of the devil. And in those days he did eat nothing; and when they were ended, he afterward hungered. And the devil said unto him, If thou be the Son of God, command this stone that it be made bread.

And Jesus answered unto him, saying, It is written, That man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God. And the devil, taking him up, into an high mountain, shewed unto him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Jan. 23, Jesus Tempted. Luke 4:1-13.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of The Congregationalist. If Jesus was in all points tempted like we are, as a later New Testament writer asserts, the temptations of life were not confined to one period.

The temptations that are recorded at the beginning of the ministry of Jesus, commonly called "the temptation of Jesus," seem to be recorded because of their symbolic meaning.

Proved His Humanity. The temptations that assailed the Master were probably all like the temptations that assailed even saints and prophets in their periods of strain or discouragement.

The first temptation lies in the realm of the consciousness of Jesus of his relationship to God and his call to the Messiahship.

It may have been the voice from without or the voice from within, but it said, "If thou art the Son of God, command that this stone be made bread."

I have been taking Kruschen Salts for nearly 3 months. I have continued taking one teaspoonful in warm water every morning. I then weighed 217 pounds, was always bothered with pains in my back and lower part of abdomen and sides.

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks costs but 85 cents at Eastland Drug Co. and drugists the world over. Take one-half teaspoon in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast.

The second temptation appealed to the sense of power and authority. From the mount Jesus surveyed, in actuality or in imagination, the kingdoms of the world, and these came the voice assuring him that if he chose he could attain to world supremacy.

The spirit that makes a man a prophet, directed in other ways, may easily make him a material force in the world, and the spirit that makes a man a savior of men, displayed in the realm of selfishness, may make a man equally dominant, and even tyrannous, over his fellows.

The third temptation was not altogether dissimilar from the first. It was a temptation to test his special place in God's favor by a risk that he had no right to take.

By common sense and sound spiritual faith alike repudiated the wisdom of any such course. It is in taking care of ourselves that God's care is manifested.

Had Clear Vision. This was that every temptation Jesus met and conquered. He never made a show or a parade of his religion. He never used his religion for base or unworthy ends.

From the temptation of Jesus we may learn much concerning the nature of temptation, and we can also appreciate the philosophy of wrong when the way of right, if we would only seek it, is fairly well defined.

Doomed To Hang, He's Writing 11-Year Supply Of Letters To Make Mother Believe He Lives to read newspapers. Then came the supreme court decision that the slayers must die. How then could the deception be continued as the mother would expect letters from her son.

The crime for which the trio must die took place while they were fleeing after robbing the Manitou (Kan.) State Bank. Spending westward into Colorado, they were pursued by Undersheriff Coral A. H. Kham, whom they shot.

French Adopt American Plan Of Auto Controls

PARIS, Jan. 22.—France, as the largest manufacturer of automobiles in Europe and second largest in the world, has adopted the American arrangement of foot pedals and gear-shift in an effort to standardize the operation of motor cars and make it possible for anyone who can drive one car to operate any other.

Until recently, there existed 17 different arrangements of pedals and accelerator, foot and hand controls. Now there is but one, the standard set by American car producers, and it is expected that within another three years all of the other foreign makers of motor cars will follow suit.

The standardized method is for the steering wheel to be at the left, the gear-shift in the center, the left pedal the gears, the right pedal the brake, and farther to the right the accelerator.

The French Automobile Standardization Bureau is still at work on hand controls for spark and fuel. The next step will be to reduce the number of different sizes of rims and tires.

The German signboard, a standard triangle, was also adopted as a road bearing for the rear fenders of cars bearing four-wheel brakes.

Furs Turn Pale At Fashions Demand That They Lead (By FRANCES PAGET)

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—If the spring season is destined to have a colorful phase, furs are determined to share in it. Since there are certain demands for the fur trimmed coat, novelty in the coloring of pelts used and the blending of fur and fabric have value.

Retires After 65 Years NEW BRITAIN, Jan. 22.—After 65 years in Folk Lane, S. C., service with the Saxons special Level Company, the Saxons special Level Company has decided it is time to close its doors.

What a world of grief it saves you

We know a seed house that proves each season's crop of seed in their own trial gardens before they offer them to the public. Flowers and vegetables grown from these seed must measure up to definite standards, or else the entire crops from which the samples were taken are burned.

We know a manufacturer of dry batteries who tested a new product two years before he sold a single battery to a single dealer.

We know a manufacturer of an antifreeze solution for automobile radiators who spent two years testing his product under all conditions before he said a word in advertising about the merits of his goods.

We know a manufacturer of household pharmaceutical products whose self-imposed standard of purity and efficacy is even higher than that laid down by the United States Pharmacopoeia and the National Formulary.

If you mentioned their names you would recognize them immediately. You probably would say, "I plant those seeds," "I use that battery," "I use that anti-freeze," "My medicine cabinet contains those products."

The four instances cited are typical of every reliable manufacturer in America. Millions of dollars are spent annually to develop, to improve, to standardize, and to take the guesswork out of merchandise. Other millions of dollars are spent in advertising to tell you about them.

All of which is to say that in putting your trust in advertised merchandise you save yourself the bother, the expense, the disappointment—the danger—of experimenting and discovering for yourself which make of soap, breakfast food, radio tubes, lingerie, gasoline, tea, electrical devices, stationery—or what-not—gives you the most service for your money.

The news columns of this paper keep you informed of the latest international, national and local happenings. The advertisements keep you informed of the newest, most advantageous, most reliable merchandise that America's most progressive makers are producing.

Nebraska's Rivers Exact Opposites

By UNITED PRESS KEARNEY, Neb., Jan. 22.—Nebraska's largest stream is its latest. One of its smallest is the mightiest. They are the Platte and the Big Blue rivers.

The Platte, broad and shallow, offers no high banks and swift currents for hydro-electric development. The Big Blue, narrow and rushing, has 13 hydro electric plants. Over eight million kilowatt hours are produced annually by its plants.

Impresario Jailed After His Concert

By UNITED PRESS BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 22.—Cuba's impresario, Andrew Bonard, 25, is in trouble because his dollar-a-seat concert was an "artistic success"—and a financial failure.

Only 146 persons attended his music revue presented by a 60-piece orchestra with Bonard as leader; and 125 of these were admitted on passes. Lacking money to pay a bill, Bonard pawned for $5 a $60 clarinet he had borrowed from a music shop and was arrested on a charge of petty larceny.

Log Crews Defy Death In Spring Drives To Mills

"Jump for your life!" cries the boss of the log-driving crew, as three of his bold river "cowboys" are threatened with destruction before the avalanche of tumbling, jerking, churning logs riding on the lap of a river rushing at flood-tide.

MOM'N POP

Driving the millions of logs down the rivers of the north, now swollen to a mad turbulence by the accumulated snows of winter, and riding the slippery mass on the lap of the flood, requires rare skill and superhuman endurance.

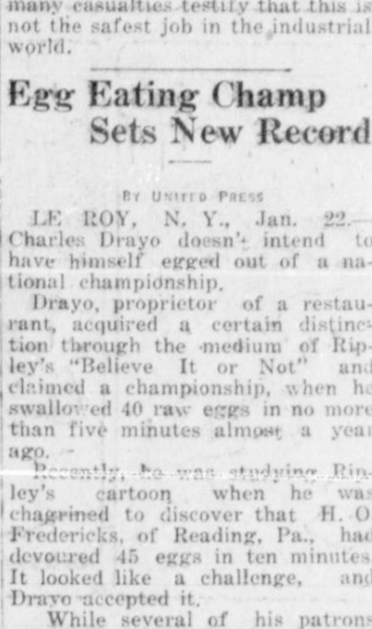

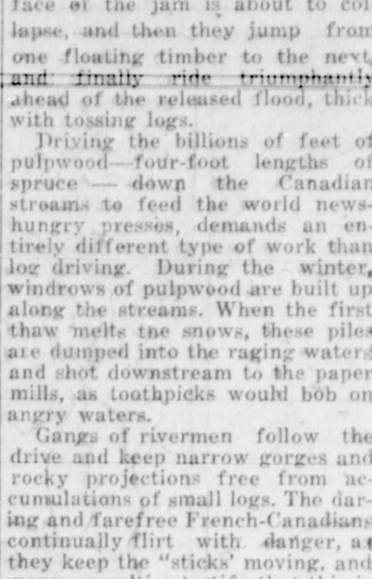

For sheer daring, attained only by years of experience, these rivermen are unparalleled. Whether you watch the big show from a safe vantage point on the bank or get out on the spinner, slippery sticks and flirt with disaster in a hand-to-hand combat with death, you are sure to agree there's nothing like "herding" logs.

Although the mechanical age has contributed greatly to elimination of drudgery in the big woods, by providing powerful track-laying tractors which snake trains of logs from the heart of the forest to the river bank, and a multiplicity of other devices, still the log drive provides the cheapest way of delivering the season's cut to the mills.

The biggest task of the log harvest is performed in the very teeth of bleak winter. Driven by whining gales from the Arctic, the snow in the forest drifts deeper and deeper until it becomes necessary to keep the powerful snowplows moving daily to blaze a way for the log trains. The river, down which the big drive will be made, has frozen with a mantle two or three feet thick. Even at high noon, when it is supposed to warm up a bit, the thermometer seldom registers above zero and often it settles at 10, 20 and sometimes 30 degrees below.

But the enthusiasm of the crews does not lag. If anything, the tempo of the camp seems to increase, since now man and beast alike must work fast to keep from freezing.

boiling-hot coffee. Just as soon as the logs have become thick enough on the river to carry the heavy loads of logs, tractors and teams start transferring timbers from the heart of the forest sideways to the banking grounds on the river bank, where they are carried away by spring freshets. This log-transferring task is not the least dangerous of the many adventures of the lumberjacks.

At best, every detail of logging is fraught with peril. Every man knows well that his life depends, not alone on his own watchfulness and dexterity, but also upon the care and skill of his fellows. Even where horses are used, they must be trained to perform their tasks with a high degree of co-ordination.

Only the most skilled river riders are given the post of honor—and of danger, too—at the vanguard of a drive. It is the duty of these men to guard against jams, or, if they are inevitable, to break them up before the entire drive becomes hopelessly stranded. This is the hardest sort of work. Often the men toil knee and hip-deep in icy water all day.

Experienced log drivers, possessed of the sure-footed agility of the mountain goat, are able to dodge out of danger, even when it sweeps close. Tolling diligently until the last possible moment to break the jam, they wait until the career has been his tendency to flout the rules. The Old Kid hasn't been on his good behavior all those years. He has seen wild nights, in fact has often been the main reason why the nights were wild. He has been a clown on the field, entertaining as many people with his queer abdominal catches of fly balls as he has pleased with his great playing.

He has a pair of amazing electric legs that start carrying him swiftly here and there as soon as he puts on a uniform, and his never-ending chatter is a tonic for frayed nerves.

The Old Kid is a fighter, too. Once when Heinie Zim came slambang into Johnny Evers, with spikes a-flying, the Rabbit brought one up from the floor to the Dutchman's chin. But if he has fought on the mound he also has proved himself no mean hand at battling with taxi drivers, cops or speakeasy bouncers.

There is only one Maranville. And just sit back and watch him go this year.
