A NATION'S SYMPATHY

Probably no parents ever received such universal sympathy as the world is according its most famous young couple today. The Lindbergh baby has been kidnapped. And while the public is always eager to help a lost child find its way home again, somehow this case is different. It is Lindy's baby that is gone this time. And anything that happens to his household is very personal to millions of Americans.

People who applauded enthusiastically when the famous aviator reached Le Bourget on his famous flight to Paris in 1927, are suffering with him now. They aren't thinking of him as a daring explorer of far skies this time. Just as a young father whose little boy has been kidnapped.

They aren't remembering Anne as the fearless girl who matches her husband danger for danger. Quite suddenly she is only a young mother who is afraid that her baby is crying for her.

The world has always given the Lindberghs applause. Now it is giving sympathy. Swift, Warm, Genuine. It has watched for them in dangers many times. Now it is watching with them. The Wall Streets and Main Streets and all the other streets that make their criss-cross way up and down the nation echo with voices that wish that they could say some consoling word. Little boys who almost have come to believe that Lindy's adventurous wings are their own, and their fathers and mothers and sisters are hoping desperately and prayerfully that Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., will come home soon, unharmed and well.

Every man and woman who has paused outside a nursery door and listened to the soft breathing of a little child understands how frightening unreal an empty crib must be. Nurseries are such familiar places. But the world is so strange to a little boy or girl. The trees are so tall. The roads run so far.

Economic conditions and warfare in the streets of Shanghai aren't half as momentous as the fate of a little lost boy. If sympathy and interest and a desire to be of service add courage in a time such as this, Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh have the satisfaction of knowing that the heart of a whole nation are suffering their sorrow pangs with them.

COLONEL CAPONE TO THE RESCUE

Colonel Alphonse Capone, on his way to the Leavenworth penitentiary for 11 years, offered a reward of $10,000 for the safe return of the Lindbergh baby and the capture of his kidnappers. Colonel Capone knows the value of publicity. He is very indignant. He has children of his own. This is his lament, "It's the most outrageous thing I ever heard of... I know how Mrs. Capone and I would feel if our son was kidnapped and I sympathize with the Lindberghs. I will give $10,000 for information that will lead to the recovery of the child unharmed and the capture of his kidnappers. If I were out to jail I could lend assistance. I have friends all over the country who could aid in running this thing down." In this instance the heart of Colonel Capone is in the right place. Kidnapping of a child is an infamous crime; there is no penalty too severe, and this regardless of the social position of a family. There is no difference in the enormity of the offense—whether the victim be the child of the powerful and the opulent or the poorest ditch digger in the land. Imprisonment would be like slapping a heavyweight pugilist on the cheek. New York lawmakers now in session are going to enact a statute which would make kidnapping children a capital offense punishable by death in the electric chair. Virginia is to enact a similar statute. Why not the legislature of all the 48 states?

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

Text: John 14:1-18.
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for March 13.

CARBON

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of The Congregationalist. In the last lesson we saw the Master washing the disciples' feet, teaching them through his act the lesson of humility, and rebuking the selfish ambitions that led them to quarrel about matters of place and preferment.

A very different atmosphere surrounds this lesson. Here Jesus is the minister of comfort to those whose trouble and disappointment he foresees. The very lack of spiritual discernment on the part of the disciples was bound to make many perplexing and trying experiences through which they were about to pass.

They had staked their faith upon the establishment of an earthly kingdom, in which they anticipated that they were going to have places of power and responsibility. That dream was about to pass.

J. R. Craighead, who was stricken with paralysis two weeks ago is reported improving.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Reed of Carbon, with Mmes. Hazel and Kilgore of Cisco, were visiting Mrs. H. C. Pelfrey in Breckenridge Wednesday.

Mrs. Alice Gray of Fordyke, Ark., is in Carbon visiting relatives and friends. Mrs. Gray was formerly Miss Alice Grubbs and made her home here once with her sister, Mrs. Lee Poe.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Dingle, were in Gorman Sunday.

Mrs. J. C. Tucker and daughter Miss Verta Mae and Mrs. Jack Abbott were Ranger visitors Friday.

Miss Emma Parks of Pleasant Hill is visiting relatives here.

Judge C. L. Garrett of Eastland brought his mother home Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Garrett makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. W. T. Stubblefield.

Herman Courtney had the misfortune of losing his car by fire Saturday night. It seems the car caught on fire while driving from his home to Carbon, and was a complete loss.

F. J. and Conner Stubblefield, with their little sons, Jack and Billie have returned from the Fat Stock Show at Fort Worth.

Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Crossley were visiting their son, Emmett and wife in Rising Star last week.

Miss Leonia Gott visited home folks in Clyde Sunday.

Clyde Brymer and wife have returned from a visit with his parents at Plainview.

E. H. Boyett, W. A. Tate and D. N. Taylor were business visitors in Gorman Tuesday.

The Baptist ladies met Monday and Tuesday observing the week of prayer, rendering a program each day.

Rev. Roland C. King and wife are the troubadours into the atmosphere of the eternal and abiding. The one great reason why we may rise above our perplexities and our troubles is the assurance that, no matter what comes, God's love and God's care abide with us.

Jesus does not argue about this. He does not present facts and reasonings to uphold or prove it, he takes it rather as an assumption of spiritual reality. "If it weren't so, I would have told you," he says. There are things, he suggests, that are at the very foundation of life and of goodness.

He is equally specific in defining the effect of this faith upon himself and upon his place. He is going to prepare a place for the disciples, but he will not be separated from them. He is seeking to lead them in the way that he himself is going.

We must read these words in the light of the declaration of Jesus, "I am the Way, and the Truth, and the Life." He personalizes in his personality and presence the divine realities which every reader of the Old Testament associated with the Eternal God.

Our lesson expresses the fact of the Incarnation as a practical, rather than a theoretical, doctrine. This relationship of the divine to God through the earthly Jesus, who is leading the way, as associated with the practical manifestation of religion in good works.

Faith and communion are expressed in prevailing prayer, and in the prevailing power of righteous living. If we live in close communion with Jesus we become the sharers of his holiness and his power.

my life, with the exception of the time I was in the United States army during the World war.

During the next few months, and before the election, I shall try to call upon as many of the voters as possible in the interest of my candidate, but on account of the duties of my office, it will be impossible for me to call upon all of you. In case I am unable to see each of you personally before the election, please accept this a personal solicitation of your vote and influence.

Respectfully,

W. H. (Bill) McDONALD.

"America" and "Stand Up For Jesus" were sung. Scripture verses were called for and a number of children responded with their favorite Bible verse.

The groups then met in separate divisions. Mrs. Parker told the primary children a story of the mill children having a happy day at the carnival, and the scripture lesson was taken from John 3:5-11.

Mrs. Stubblefield told the Juniors a story of "A Visit With the Virtuous" in which all the vegetable tables talked and told of their industry and how they were taken care of at harvesting season.

The Junior Boys and Girls World Club planned a membership drive. Ernest Jones, Jr., was named captain of the Racers. He named Rae June Stubblefield as his co-captain. feeling the beginning of a great fear.

Bert and Myra had stood in the middle of the small room, lips upon lips, bodies pressed together, clasped close in each other's arms. They had been oblivious of her presence, oblivious of everything except the burning flame that enveloped them.

Was that what Steven wanted? Was that what she had promised to give him? She could never, never kiss Steven that way.

She waited a long while before rapping on the door. When she entered Myra was sewing a towel and Bert had returned to his painting. Ellen glanced a little foolishly from one to the other.
