A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

AFRAID YET TRUSTING: Be merciful unto me, O God: Mine enemies would daily swallow me up: for they be many that fight against me. What time I am afraid I will trust in thee.—Psalm 56: 1-3.

BIG CAMPAIGN IN NORTHEAST SEEN

There is to be tremendous campaigning in the Northeastern states until the eve of election day. All the big guns of the republican party are scheduled for speaking engagements. Ogden L. Mills, the ablest of the administration leaders as well as the most resourceful, will do most of the heavy cannonading. Pat Hurley has finished his speaking engagement in Oklahoma and the West. Curtis has been sent to the Rocky Mountain states and the Pacific coast. Roosevelt will make his 3500-mile swing touching Pennsylvania, Ohio and the border states and many of the old South states east of the Mississippi river. Garner, who made his stinging reply to the Hoover gold standard address, is booked for many speeches and will be kept on the go day and night. An army of democratic senators will shell the political woods. Next week Alfred E. Smith will cover New England and New Jersey and make his final address to the democrats and independents of the Empire state of the East in the city of New York the day before the balloting in frosty November.

ON WITH THE BATTLE

They are reminded that Texans are expected to raise a sum of not less than $150,000 for the national committee to be used for legitimate campaign purposes in the debatable states of the Northeast and the West and the Pacific coast sections—states erstwhile republican which can be carried by the democrats in November if funds are afforded for legitimate organization and educational purposes until the coming of election day when the verdict of the voters of all the commonwealths will be returned and followers of Jefferson and Jackson and Grover Cleveland and Woodrow Wilson are hoping that the reins will be placed in the hands of those who are the leaders of the party of the people and pledged to ever guard the rights and the interests of all the people regardless of class or condition or sections or creed or calling. ON WITH THE BATTLE.

Now the battle will be on in earnest in the debatable states of the Northeast as well as the nation over. Republicans are determined to make the most desperate battle of their lives for control of the government. They are sending out their heavy guns. They are sending out their pop guns. Their wealthy followers who are among the kings of finance are sending in their checks to the campaign chest.

Advice is offered by the government on how to raise everything—except the mortgage.

Something for City Fathers to Think About

BY BRUCE CATTON

One of the most startling bits of recent news is a little announcement that came not long ago from the National Education Association. Someone in that organization did some figuring and found out that while it costs $300 a year to keep a man in prison, it costs only $100 a year to keep a child in school. The nation spends about a billion and a half a year on its 500,000 prisoners; it spends only two million and a half to educate its 26,000,000 school children. It would be a good thing if that information could be placed before every American public official who has anything to do with school budgets. It is the most eloquent preaching against cutting such budgets that could possibly be imagined. Educated men and woman do not often find their way into penitentiaries. There are exceptions to this rule, of course; but any social worker, police official or prison warden can tell you that the youngster who goes through school and gets a decent chance to train and broaden his mind is not very apt to become a lawbreaker when he grows up. The great recruiting ground for the underworld is the place where youngsters break off their schooling before they have had enough of it to profit by it. That, of course, is only another way of saying that the public school system is about as good a crime preventative as we have. And it is an amazingly cheap one, all things considered. It is, at any rate, infinitely cheaper than our prison system, which is no preventative at all. These times demand strict economy in government. No city or state can afford any unnecessary expenditures. But this money we spend on our schools is not an unnecessary expenditure, nor is it an expenditure which is unduly high. Compared with that other little item—the cost of taking care of criminals—it is very low indeed. The school budget, in short, is just about the last place to wield the blue pencil. One hundred dollars a year per child, invested now, can save us $300 a year per criminal a little later.

Man Travels From Wisconsin In Buggy To Make Fortune

HOUSTON.—It was A. H. Hause's last chance, so he clucked to his 23-year-old mare, Lucy, and clattered southward on a 1,700-mile buggy ride to Texas, where oil lay underground. "I'll be back with $100,000 or they'll send me back in a box," he told his relatives when he drove away from their honey creek farm in Racine county, Wisconsin. That was April 18, 1931, and Hause had in his pocket three cents and a postage stamp. Fifteen months later the ancient equipment rolled into Conroe, booming oil town. Hause had $1,900. Hause, who is 70 years old, performed the feat by working for farmers and filling stations along the route. It was tough going, he relates. The thing that kept him going, he says, was the thought of barrels and barrels of oil lying under his 50 acres near Conroe. Now things are looking up. The land is leased. Drilling is scheduled. Lucy the mare has a comfortable stable with a clover field close at hand. Hause says the day is not too far distant when he will return to Wisconsin with the promised $100,000.

Trvael Club Report

The Ranger High School Travel club held its regular weekly meeting at 2 o'clock Oct. 26. Mrs. Wagner, club sponsor, took charge of the meeting until some seating arrangements were made and some few members paid their club dues, then the meeting was turned over to President Jim Hicks. The social committee reported that they had been thinking as to whether the club would be able to have a Hallowe'en party, and ask for some discussion on the subject from some of the other club members. Most of the members were in favor of having a party, but the club decided to wait a week or two and have another type of party, as so many of the club members had already made plans for Hallowe'en. There will be further discussion on the subject at the next meeting. E. M. Bowen gave a very interesting talk about two fishing trips he made during this past summer. He told about two weeks that he spent on the Palo Pinto, and advises anyone not to go there with the intention of catching fish, because it rains every time you set out a line. E. M. also told about going down to the Clear Fork of the Brazos, and of some waterfalls that he saw there. The cheers that E. M. received from the club show that everyone enjoyed his talk thoroughly. The president, Jim Hicks, appointed a new program committee, Barefield Thomas, chairman; Catherine Barker, Mary Ramsey, and Dorothy Lee Ames. This committee will prepare a program for the next meeting. —Forrest Lyon, Reporter.

This column is used as a feature and should not be construed as representing the editorial views of the paper. The expressions contained in the column are the views of one individual and do not reflect the policy of the paper. A few years ago I saw the skeleton of a merman in Hot Springs, Ark. He was a tiny little fellow about two feet long with the head of an old man and the body of a sea-animal with the exception of perfectly formed arms and hands. And as I gazed at the bony creature in the glass cage, I determined to never do anything out of the ordinary like living in the bottom of the ocean all my life or going back to nature in any fashion for fear I would be put in a glass box someday and stared at. The man who can't step out of the rut of existence and do something a little better than the average person isn't worth a thing to the world, but one must necessarily know when to stop lest one be hailed too odd and be stared at. It's a problem: to be or not to be extraordinary.

Do you give for the joy of the thing or do you feel the urge of duty and grumble for days over the gift? Do you fill your mind with numerous unimportant questions about whether the needy one be worthy of your aid or a professional beggar forever asking favors of the world? It is your privilege to give, you who want for nothing to eat and wear. I saw an old woman fed and clothed this morning; an old woman with darker skin than yours and mine, who spoke a language I did not understand. But beneath her shabby coat beat a heart as lonely and sad as yours or mine might be, and her feet were wet because her shoes were worn thin, and her hands were knobby and rough from much work . . . and she had a soul. I saw her make the sign of the cross and bless the giver who put warm shoes on her feet and gave her warm food to strengthen her . . . and I saw her smile. And I forgot to wonder whether she might be worthy, because she had been made happy and I had, too.

I know a man who decided he wanted a wife, and since he couldn't find one that suited him among his female acquaintances he inserted an advertisement in a matrimonial bureau magazine. And far off in a little town in another state a girl who was lonely, too, and wanted a man answered her ad. An exchange of pictures was accomplished and a correspondence carried on for eight months, and then the man thought it about time to go to see the little lady in person. So he packed his best suit and turned love-ward. And it worked! Six days later they were just plain Mr. and Mrs. and happy as could be. Today they own all sorts of things in the line of a home, car, baby, rose bushes, and canary birds . . . and they're still happy. Much happier in fact, than another couple best suit and turned love-ward. (Continued on page 4)

Text includes: 'THE BLACK PANTHER "Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the great animal painter, Paul Bransom . . . inspired by the natural ferocity of "Bagheera," the black panther in the famous "Jungle Book." "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes. No raw tobaccos in Luckies—that's why they're so mild. WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes. "It's toasted" That package of mild Luckies.

HERE--- AND THERE

By ELVIE B. JACKSON

Patience is a great virtue. If we are naturally impatient by nature then is the time for us to study nature, and its fulfilling of the promise of the four seasons. The sturdy oak that drops its leaves, little heads that smell beneath its boughs, on the rich dark earth.

But in that little hull is the germ of life. Soon, winds sweep the leaves and dust over the little brown shell, and through the months of fall and winter, the covering grows deeper and deeper, spread by nature's kindly fingers. The sun penetrates further into that mound of earth, and dew moistens, and the rains soften the field from outside interference, and when the gentle days of spring come with balmy breath of flowers and growing things, a tiny shell bursts, a fine green sprout pushes up through the earth, and a new oak tree is added to the forest.

When we are beset with annoying conditions and circumstances, if we would just allow that little germ of resistance to outside conditions to spring into being and struggle up, through the covering of discomfort, ill humor, and annoyance, and reach the light of the cheerful sunshine of trust in our Heavenly Father, and a determination to overlook, and overcome, then a new growth would spring into being in the day that

CALL of the WEST

By R. G. MONTGOMERY

BEGIN HERE TODAY

STAN BALL accuses ASPEN DELO, timber king, of having men shoot who attempt to check up on his activities. Ball's father is making a check. Delo tells him he will see personally that he does not. Upon leaving Delo's office Ball saves DONA, Aspen's daughter, from kidnapers and tells her he is STANLEY BLACK.

DUDLEY WINTERS, in love with DONA, goes with her to Three Rivers to get her father to give up his wild fight with Ball. Dudley plans for a party and gets a certificate signed. Ball is accused of killing a ranger and of a number of crimes. He is supposed to have ambushed Delo and wounded him badly. DONA has to tell her father that she had to follow in order to quiet him and get him to give up the hunt. He agrees, but backs out when the office is robbed. The posse surround Ball. They are headed by SWERGIN, Delo's timber boss, who has taken a fancy to DONA.

DONA joins the hunt and is captured by Ball after attempting to shoot him. He takes her to a cave. Swergin discovers the cave while Ball is outside and captures him, rescuing DONA. Swergin's men start to lynch Ball, but DONA steps in and saves him. He takes her with him, but lets her have his horse to ride to camp. She returns at that night and Dudley follows her. He tries to shoot Ball, but misses. DONA is contrite and tries to marry him. Dudley has been riding by himself a great deal. DONA agrees to marry him that evening. They ride out and DONA, who knows now she cares for Ball, leads him to the cave. DONA thinks Ball has left, but Dudley finds five coins. DONA discovers activity in Pass Creek that she is sure her father does not know about. She decides to ride over the next day.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVIII

DONA was up early and down to the corral before the rest of the camp was stirring. Malloy was nowhere in sight so DONA saddled the roan herself. She galloped up the slope toward Pass Creek.

She met the sunrise as she cantered out at the top of Pass Creek divide. The world below her on each side was hidden in a misty shadow. Only the ridge was aglow with the golden splendor of the sun.

DONA sat on her horse and looked down into the valley she was about to enter. She was sure adventure beckoned to her, sure that she would soon know the secret of all the trouble in the Three Rivers country.

The trail was rough and unused for a half mile. Then several trails joined it, apparently coming from above, but from different angles, and it became a beaten path way that showed recent heavy use. DONA pushed on along this path way for another half mile. She began to grow uneasy as the trail widened. She would be sure to meet someone on so well marked a road.

With a sudden feeling that she was about to come upon another rider she pulled out of the trail and took to the timber. This made the going slower.

She came to the edge of the clearing she sought, guided to the spot by the roar of a truck motor. The timber had become so heavy that it was impossible to see any trail marks or landmarks behind her. DONA thanked her luck that she had always had a keen sense of direction.

A stone rattled below and a branch snapped. DONA turned the roan and slid from sight over the pass. Someone was riding up from below and it might be Swergin.

THE roan trotted along eagerly while DONA watched behind her. A stone came rattling down into the trail from above and she glanced up the hillside. She caught a flash of a black horse and the wide Stetson hat of a rider. Her heart jumped wildly and she strained her eyes, but the rider had vanished above her.

DONA urged the roan a little faster and listened for sounds from above. She had the advantage in a race if she chose to let her horse out because she was on the trail and the man above was in the rough timber.

The rattling of stones from above became very distinct as her pursuer put his horse to a gallop to keep abreast of her. DONA's eyes suddenly lighted up. If that was Ball she would show him that she could not overtake her. She hated him thoroughly as she remembered how he had looked as he promised to stay out of the country.

DONA spurred the roan smartly with her quirt. He leaped down the trail and the race was on. They thundered out into a meadow and crossed it like a sweeping stampede. DONA caught sight of her pursuer breaking from the timber behind and to her right. He was bending over his horse's neck, urging it on. The black horse was flying along with an easy stride that made DONA sure Ball was pursuing her.

Into the timber the roan plunged while the black came clattering after. DONA smiled as she realized that her horse was equal to the black if not a little faster. She bent forward and urged the big fellow on.

The roan laid his ears back and let his stride out a trifle. Only a horse born and bred to the hill country could have kept his feet at such a pace on a rocky trail.

They shot out into another little meadow and DONA glanced over her shoulder. The black was still on her right, but was losing ground. DONA ducked low and used her spurs. The cowboy on the horse was pulling a rifle from under the flap of his saddle.

After that the race was real. DONA forced the roan to his fastest pace and held to what cover she could pick without leaving the trail. Her pursuer had ceased to try heading her off and was following along the beaten path. His horse, with solid footing, had ceased to lose ground. Strive as the roan would, he could not get away.

The camp was not so far away and that made DONA feel hopeful of escaping. There was one more clearing to cross and she entered it lying flat on his best speed. Behind her the black shot out into the open as he gave chase.

THE rider who was pursuing her rose in his stirrups and raised his rifle. A bullet cut the dirt close to the roan's heels. DONA's lips drew tight and she strained forward as though to help her horse. Another bullet cut the dust on the other side. These were warning shots and aimed to stop them, but she did not stop.

The third shot did not loosen a spurt of dust and DONA felt the roan falter. Her heart beat wildly and anger blinded her as her horse lurched to one side. The man behind her saw wounded the roan. The big horse pounded on but his stride was broken and rough and he was having trouble in breathing.

DONA cased up in her saddle and prepared for an attack. It was certain that her pursuer would overtake her now.

Another shot rang out, close behind this time. DONA did not look back but she knew her horse had been hit again. He broke and staggered, then, before she could clear herself, he plunged forward and fell.

DONA swung one leg loose and could not free the other. The roan hit the ground and rolled over screaming pain shot through his right side, then a swirling dizziness swept over her and all was still and blank.

Lost 20 Lbs. of Fat In Just 4 Weeks

Mr. Mac West of St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I'm only 28 yrs. old and weighed 175 lbs. until taking one box of your Kruschen Salts just 4 weeks ago. I now weigh 155 lbs. I also have more energy and furthermore I've never had a hungry moment."

Fat folks should take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it's the SAFE, harmless way to reduce excess of thousands of men and women here.

For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen Salts at any drug store—the cost of a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back.

Looking Backward Martha Dorcas Class Entertained

A Hallows'en party that started backwards was the novel form of entertainment offered by the Martha Dorcas class by their hostesses Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Virge Foster, Mrs. D. C. Hawley, Mrs. D. J. Jobe, Mrs. W. C. Marlow, and Mrs. O. O. Mickel, who entertained at the Foster home.

Guests entered at the kitchen door and were met by Mrs. Hawley and served immediately with the refreshments of pimento cheese sandwiches pumpkin pie with whipped cream topping, nut shell mint filled and hot coffee by Mmes. Mickel and Hawley, who conducted them through a dark hall, where they were attacked by ghosts, who laid iced (water) cold hands on their elbows, and shoved them into the living room.

No backward arrangements were noted in the decorations how-tsoever of 'mums and roses, and Hallows'en symbols, in silhouettes, attached to draperies and used in other ways.

Games were the diversions, one, the piecing together of a recipe, from separate letters hidden under various objects, brought Mrs. Mickel; high score favor, a tiny bible. Spelling small words backwards, was another diversion and guessing number of peanuts in a bowl had favor a Hallows'en toy awarded Mrs. C. H. McEel.

Contrary to the usual custom, the business meeting was held last, and conducted by Mrs. W. E. Coleman, president.

Plans were made for a dinner to be given by the Martha Dorcas before Thanksgiving, under chairmanship of Mrs. W. C. Marlow and committee.

Friendship pledges were exchanged at this time. The next meeting was announced for Wednesday, Nov. 16, with Mrs. J. L. Winklemann, house co-hostesses will be Mmes. Snider, Cook, Kimble and Cross.

Dim Lights and Appropriate Games Add Fun to Delightful Club Affairs... Young and old alike enjoy reveling in the zest of this colorful celebration, Hallows'en, where witches lend their black art and where there is contagious pleasure and a few shivers of excitement in games played in spooky atmosphere.

Many new gadgets and appropriate ideas were offered Wednesday afternoon when members of Child Study Club No. 2 entertained with one of the most attractive parties of the season, naming as honor guests members of Child Study Club No. 1, with the home of Mrs. F. E. Jacobs, Young street, serving as a most delightful place where true hospitality reigned.

Gay orange and black afforded a striking combination which played an important part in the room decorations. Chrysanthemums, fall's favored blossoms, with clusters of cosmos filled bowls and vases attractively arranged throughout the house. Care was taken by the artistic decoration committee composed of Mrs. Elmer Kozers, chairman, assisted by Mrs. George Rhoades, Mrs. Max Ohr, and Mrs. Onis Littlefield, that the color tones from the profusion of flowers sounded their notes in a harmonizing manner with those used in game appointments.

After the list of guests had been graciously greeted by the receiving committee a game of "Getting Acquainted" was the opening program feature. Music which is essential to all charming functions was included on the entertaining program, with Wallace Avant playing the "Fleur Song," accompanied by his mother, Mrs. W. R. Avant. A beautiful solo covered the second number when Miss Mary Elizabeth Campbell sang "Glow Worm," with Miss Belva Dixon at the softly toned piano.

A well received duet selection was given by young Misses Estelle Smith and Helen Jacobs. Mrs. W. W. Jarvis, a pleasing expression teacher, gave a very clever and indeed appropriate reading.

The popular Rhythmettes, who have appeared from the stage of the Arcadia theatre and aided in many programs during the past few months, offered a group of splendidly received songs.

A pretty and graceful tap dance was added to the program by the talented young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Henry, Dorothy, who spent several weeks of delightful study at Dallas this summer, and a present dance student.

C. Patterson, and chairman of flower show, Mrs. James Horton, and group of hostesses who will assist throughout the two days of show.

Musical programs have been arranged for afternoon and evening of Friday and Saturday afternoon by program committee, Mrs. Joseph M. Perkins and Mrs. Art H. Johnson.

A brilliant hour of music will be presented Friday night by Wilda Drago, artist-musician and student.

Saturday afternoon's musical program will be of unusual variety and interest.

Additional prizes have been presented the league for awards in flower show classification.

These include, a dozen hyacinths and a dozen tulip bulbs and one dozen packages of flower seed from Robert Nicholson Seed company of Dallas. One dozen 2-year-old rose bushes from H. E. Cannon Rose & Floral company of Arlington, Texas.

The Eastland Daily Telegram offers a special prize of one year's subscription to the paper, and Better Homes and Garden magazine gives a one-year subscription.

Mrs. W. E. Stallier will have a both display in domestic science arrangements, cakes, pies and breads, any sales of which brings a percentage to the Civic League.

Ladies Enjoying Ward's Cooking Demonstrations

Judging from the increase in attendance at the afternoon cooking demonstrations in session on the second floor at Montgomery Ward and company this week, the housewives of Ranger are awaking to true realization that now is the opportune time for new menus prepared in the most economical manner possible.

Each afternoon Lynn Harmon, who is not only extremely pleasing in manner but who is sincerely interested in giving you the very best methods and suggestions for time and fuel saving. A special program will be offered Saturday afternoon when the school will be brought to a close. You are cordially invited to attend.

Masks On! Because Hallows'en is Here Many ideas and very unique ones will be accentuated beginning this evening, when several clubs and organizations entertain with the yearly Hallows'en celebration.

Guests will be admitted to Young school auditorium this evening at 7 o'clock, where an admission of 10 cents will be charged adults and five cents children and students of the school. This fee entitles you to every feature covering the entire program which will truly entertain and delight you during the hours which are sure to go winging.

The main program of the occasion will start promptly at 7:30 and will be presented from the auditorium stage. The high point of this particular feature will be that of the crowning of the king and queen.

The darling little Miss Jane Lauderdale will be the queen and Master Elmer E. Moore Jr., the handsome king. Immediately following the program the rooms and booths will be opened. In a weird manner a lot of surprises will await the guests. The coal-black and orange with autumn tones will reveal their glory in the massive decorations.

Prepare to attend the entertainment and enjoy the gala association with light-hearted ghosts and colorful spooks.

Church Hallows'en Party Among Evening's Affairs. According to this evenings calendar of social happenings, the Hallows'en spirit will be revealed and in full evidence at various entertainment each having been carefully planned to furnish guests with varied and spooky hours of diversion.

The city will be invested with spooks and brightly clad persons the remainder of the week, since one of the ward schools scheduled their holiday frolic for Saturday evening.

This evening at 7 o'clock, the Sunday school classes and Junior Christian Endeavor of the First Christian church are to meet at the church strictly at the appointed hour.

This party was formerly planned for Friday night, but was recently changed to this evening, and all members are asked to note the time and place, together with the hour.

COOPER CARNIVAL TONIGHT

A delightful Hallows'en program will entertain students, parents and friends at Cooper school this evening, when the P-T-A. presents their annual Hallows'en carnival.

Every detail has been taken into consideration to make this event one of the best of the season. Every teacher of the school together with the P-T-A. president, Mrs. Felton Brasher, have given their time and co-operative efforts to furnish a complete hour of entertainment.

The many who are interested in spending a very happy and pleasant hour an invitation is extended to you to attend.

Ranger PERSONALS

Miss Gloria Sheppard of Breckenridge is visiting here this week, the guest of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cross and family left today for Breckenridge where they will make their home.

TYLER, Texas. A roof-top nightwatchman is something new for this city, but the innovation already has had its results.

A watchman employed by a local theatre following explosion of a stick of dynamite on the roof, saw a man attempting to enter a department store several buildings removed from his perch, and nabbed him.

The man gave his name as Harry Suggs, said he had served several prison terms, and made a written statement to Cliff Hudson, city detective, that he participated in two recent burglaries here. An accomplice was implicated, and is the object of a police hunt.
