KEEPING TEXAS HOME FIRES BURNING

According to a bulletin issued weekly by the Progressive Texans, Inc., production by Texas cotton mills during September was unusually heavy and the increased activity brought about the reopening of three Texas mills that had been inactive...

A box factory at Waco that was closed down in September has reopened with a payroll of 60 men.

A Progressive Texans bulletin "pointed out some weeks ago" that in industrial New England eggs and butter were bringing 22 cents and 23 cents a dozen and pound, respectively, when the same products were bringing seven cents and eight cents in Texas.

Texas should be the great of all manufacturing states. It has all the minerals, all the clays. It has bituminous coal and lignite. It has all the raw materials and it is the largest producer of cotton and wool and mohair of any of the American commonwealths.

The national and state headquarters of the major parties were flooded with complaints from the typographical unions, protesting against the almost exclusive use of radio for advertising purposes. Job printers generally throughout the country entered their objections too.

Free Bridge May Hinge On An Old Indian Treaty

By WINSTON W. COPELAND. United Press Staff Correspondent. DALLAS.—Whether an old Chickasaw Indian treaty made in 1875 still is valid is the question involved in the litigation and sensational maneuvers over operation of a free bridge across Red river north of Denison, Texas.

A copy of the Indian treaty, providing that no other means of conveyance shall be operated in the immediate vicinity of the toll bridge as long as the toll bridge exists, is owned by W. J. White, part-blood Indian from the Cherokee reservation in Georgia.

According to the Indian treaty a franchise was granted to B. F. Colbert by the Chickasaws to erect a toll bridge and "that the said B. F. Colbert, his heirs or assigns, shall have the right to exclude any and all corporations, companies and persons from building any toll bridge within two and one-half miles of the said bridge; and also to exclude all persons, corporations and companies from establishing any kind of ferry or conveyance across the said river during the existence of said toll bridge."

The Indians stipulated the prices Colbert should charge should range from two and one-half cents a head on sheep, goats and hogs to 50 cents for a wagon drawn by one animal and $1.50 for a vehicle drawn by six animals. The Chickasaw nation as a separate political entity died with its absorption as a part of the state of Oklahoma in 1907. Whether the United States government treaty creating the Chickasaw nation is pointed out as giving the Indians powers to make such far-reaching construction. The present operators of the toll bridge maintain federal courts repeatedly have held Indian treaties valid regardless of their age. A provision of the United States government treaty creating the Chickasaw nation is pointed out as giving the Indians powers to make such far-reaching construction.

Inventions Aid To Cotton Crop

WASHINGTON—Higher quality standards for the southern cotton crop will be set with the increased use of devices for accurate determination of fiber features, the Agriculture Department predicts.

Technologists of the Division of Cotton Marketing, using the most improved methods, are gathering information on the length, strength, maturity, color and other qualities which determine cotton quality.

These findings, the department says, "should assist in giving an accurate basis for determining and describing the characteristics and properties of cotton fibers and for evaluating them in terms of their spinning behavior and of the properties of their manufactured products."

Among the new devices the department lists are the Suter-Webb tester, "which enables the operator to measure the length and relative length uniformity of the fibers in a single sample," and a machine for accurate determination of the strength of fiber bundles.

World Series Football Conflict Due Next Year

The baseball magnates have decided to extend the 1933 season and it will serve them jolly well right if the conflict with football certain to develop serves to cut already dropping World Series gate receipts.

The 1933 season will be started on April 12, the same date as in 1932, and it will end Oct. 1, instead of Sept. 25, the 1932 closing date.

That the World Series is certain to conflict with football on one big gridiron day, Oct. 7, and might well conflict with a second important date, Oct. 14.

This year the series was completed Oct. 2, conflicting with football only on Oct. 1, which mattered but little as compared with next year's conflict with the Oct. 7 date when football will have passed out of the preliminary stage.

One would suppose that this year's sagging gate receipts would have made the baseball bosses see the light. There were some 20,000 vacant seats at the Yankee Stadium at the second 1932 series game with the Chicago Cubs. This despite early predictions for a sell-out based on the intense natural rivalry between the Cubs and the New York Yankees.

Some of the decrease in attendance is chargeable to hard times, but this is only one reason. World Series of these years isn't what it was 10 years ago, and the baseball magnates are just kidding themselves if they say it is.

Most major league clubs lost money in 1932, and they would have lost less if they had had a shorter and snappier season. The series could then have held virtually undivided attention of the sports world and interest in the series would have been heightened with corresponding gains in box office receipts.

Some baseball men are free to point out that it isn't baseball which is encroaching into football's time, but that football is being started earlier. Granted that this is true the fact remains that football does cut into baseball interest.

So the magnates could do well to put on a shorter schedule and get the series out of the way before the collegians go into their annual football frenzies.

Hornsby Manager?

THE Sporting News is a paper printed weekly in St. Louis, and is devoted exclusively to baseball. It might be regarded as being "in the know" regarding any inside talk concerning Hornsby's possible succession to Gabby Street as manager of the Cardinals. Says the Sporting News:

"Although Sam Breadon and Branch Rickey, as well as Rog Hornsby himself, went out of their way to assure everybody that the engagement of the Rajah as player on the 1933 Cardinals was not the forerunner to his eventual elevation to the management of the team, the man on the street arched a quizzical eyebrow when the news became known.

"Somehow, the man on the street could not be convinced that the Messrs. Breadon and Rickey were not looking ahead for possible eventualities that might bring the Rajah back in charge of the team on which he won his greatest distinction as a field leader in 1926.

"This was a manifestly unfair attitude toward Charley Street, who has given St. Louis two pennants during his three years' incumbency, but you can't shoot a fan for making the first and last guess."

Shooting Stars

THERE you have it—the excitement has begun already! You know, that wherever Hornsby has gone—to the Giants, Braves and Cubs—stories of discord have followed him.

The Sporting News suggests that St. Louis fans are "guessing that" Hornsby will succeed Street, and that the fans see Breadon and Rickey getting ready for such an eventuality.

It doesn't appear that Street is going to be a shooting star.

The hike will take the troop to Leon Lake, where camp will be pitched for the night.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Mayor Bryce B. Smith tells this one: "I was a member of the party of American mayors that visited France last year.

"In Paris I was called upon to make a speech. I spoke for 15 minutes. There wasn't a bit of applause.

"I sat down and another man took the floor. He talked in French, with gestures. He was applauded at every pause.

"I joined in the applause until a neighbor whispered, 'I wouldn't applaud so much if I were you, mayor; that man is interpreting your own speech.'

"I never did learn what the fellow did with my speech. I only talked 15 minutes—he orated for an hour. It must have been good, however, for several Frenchmen kissed me when he finished."

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE

with BILL MAYES

Yesterday we wrote at some length on the value of blocking and the necessity of interference and claimed that it was this department of the game that had kept the Bulldogs on top so far this season. That and the fact that we had an excellent backfield and so far the boys hadn't become chesty and overconfident.

We ran out of space before we could call attention to John Bray at center, so the rest of the team need not feel slighted today if we bring on him a little.

John came out for center this year with little or no experience. We are not sure whether he had in the holes that have been left anything before this year. Anyway, he now has become one of the outstanding centers in the Oil Belt.

Early in the season he had trouble with his passing, but he has overcome this handicap by constant training so that a bad pass from center is almost unknown among the Bulldogs. Armistice Day we noticed one that was a wee bit high on a punt formation, but it was not enough off to make any difference, so it probably should not be mentioned. One was slightly low, but it was not enough off to cause any trouble and anyone cannot be perfect throughout the game with as many times as a center has to pass the ball and pass it right.

But Bray's blocking is where he shines. Now he passes the ball accurately and at the same time blocks in the holes where the guards come out for interference. He has developed into one of the best blockers in the Oil Belt. It was largely due to his defensive work in the Abilene game that made Wyatt look so pathetic. He learned to stop Wyatt in the first half and put his experience to such good use that Wyatt was just a ball carried that was starting places but not going anywhere.

In the Eastland game he paved the way to one of the touchdowns. Lyon punted out to the 15 or 20 yard line where Burgamy took the ball and started down the field. He met Bray and Bray's tackle was so hard that Burgamy was knocked one way, the ball was knocked another and was recovered for a nice gain and a first down. A touchdown resulted a few minutes later.

A center that can fill all his assignments must be a good passer, a good blocker and must be able to tackle along with the very best. Bray has developed along those lines as much, if not more, than any man on the team so that what was feared would be a weak position early in the season has been turned into one of the mainstays of the offense and defense. When the center passes the ball back to the backfield his real work is just beginning, because he has to plug in the holes that have been left when the guard pulls out to run interference. If the center falls down on this assignment the play is smeared for a nice loss.

The fans of Ranger will have to learn a new set of numbers this Friday to keep track of the play-ers in the Brownwood game. Since lack from center is almost unknown among the Bulldogs, Armistice Day we noticed one that was a wee bit high on a punt formation, but it was not enough off to make any difference, so it probably should not be mentioned. One was slightly low, but it was not enough off to cause any trouble and anyone cannot be perfect throughout the game with as many times as a center has to pass the ball and pass it right.

Brockenridge has it all figured out that they are still the favorites to win the district championship. They claim that they will defeat the Bulldogs which will place the district in a three way tie. Then if Ranger and Abilene play final Brockenridge will take the winner of that game and come out on top. If Brockenridge plays either Ranger or Abilene in the run-off the Buckaroos have it all figured out that they will win and then defeat the remaining team. They have adopted a slogan "We Can Beat Ranger" and are planning on doing just that thing on Thanksgiving Day.

HERE--- AND THERE

By ELVIE B. JACKSON

What about the annual roll call? The wonder comes if people who are able to live and sleep warm home, these freezing nights give a thought to the thinly clad men, women and children who are shivering through hours in bleak, wind-swept streets for one couldn't call them very well; with only thin ragged coverings for their bodies at night and equally thin and ragged garments for their covering day.

To reach such needs as these the Red Cross Roll Call opened on Thursday, Nov. 17, to continue through three days under the chairmanship of Mrs. Millie McCarty for this city, so Dr. B. Tanner, acting for J. E. Meyer of Cisco, county chapter chairman, announces.

The city of Eastland is asked to sign up 500 members in this year's membership price is $1.00 of this 50 cents goes to the annual chapter, and the balance retained for local use.

Chairman Spencer states that in addition to the above by the annual chapter, the Eastland chapter has given of its local funds relief, all the money that was available's share of the Red Cross fund of last year.

The cloth distribution is still in the way, in charge of general chairman, Mrs. W. E. Stallier, who has been assisted in the work of distribution and sewing of garments.

Want ads are cash in advance excepting made over to firms carrying accounts. Will accept want ads over telephone only regular patrons.

OUT OUR WAY

Week-end MURDER

By GABRIELLE E. FORBUSH

BEGIN HERE TODAY
The story opens with a prologue in which a murder is committed by a hoodlum named... Later he boards a train for Long Island, thinking of the pleasant week-end he is to have there. The name of the murderer is not disclosed.
The scene shifts to the Long Island home of LINDA and TOM AVERILL, married three years and with two children. They have five guests for the week-end: COUSIN AMOS PEABODY, elderly distant relative of Linda's; CAPTAIN DE VOS, handsome Belgian representing a European perfume manufacturer with whom Averill hopes to do business; MR. STAYLOR, a middle-aged man who works for the firm Averill works for; MARVIN PRATT, former suitor of Linda's; and IAN SHAW, a young, Irish writer on a lecture tour.
The house party gets off to a bad start. Cousin Amos gets into a heated argument with Shawsnessy whom he denounces as a dangerous rebel for defending Gandhi's war in India. Next morning Bunty, the watch dog, is found brutally killed. Cousin Amos, Stalder and Tom begin a game of golf. Cousin Amos criticizes Stalder's playing and infuriated, he breaks his club and departs. Linda fears there will be more trouble.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER VII
DRIVING to the Country Club that afternoon, Tom reflected that there had been no trouble for at least three hours. The dip had done them all good—cooled them off and relaxed the tension.
Through the several sets they watched—the semi-finals of a good amateur tournament—there was little chance for Cousin Amos to make trouble, though his blarney and his comments caused some suppressed annoyance to others near them. When the match ended Linda led the little group, now well baked from the sun, to the clubhouse porch where their hostess was ready with liquid hospitality.

Linda's face went white under her tan. She said, "How terrible! I forgot all this afternoon that it was one of those men!"

Somewhat to Linda's surprise, Cousin Amos did not spurn the cool drink offered him. Gradually it was borne in upon her that innocence was responsible for this. Murmuring, "Delicious, delicious! So stimulating and refreshing!" Cousin Amos grew steadily plumper, more wide-eyed and apparently more blandly indulgent. But unfortunately De Vos, not suspecting the state of affairs, helped him to a fourth glass with a jovial reference to Bacchus and the vine.
"Your remarks are ill-chosen, sir. I take them very much amiss!"
Cousin Amos drew himself up with sudden and intense dignity. "Never in my life—and I am an older man, sir, than you might suppose—have I indulged in spirituous liquor. It is an insult to the ladies present to class this cooling punch with dangerous and illegal intoxicants."
The Belgian laughed lightly. "To the ladies—to the ladies!"
Cousin Amos grew beet red, and Linda started forward anxiously. But Stalder caught between her and the angry old man, bracing pompously on his toes, and before she could reach him he spoke.
"You will not, sir, while I am present, presume to suggest that but Stalder would supply or that Mrs. Averill and her guests would accept the type of beverage with which you—and perhaps the ladies of your acquaintance—are probably all too familiar. The suggestion is, I repeat, an insult and your apology is called for at once. Your remark was unworthy of a gentleman."
HUSHED surprise fairly quivered in the air. No one had had any idea of the depths of national chapter, the balance remaining for local use.

Other memberships are: supporting, $25, and life membership, $50.
The National Red Cross has been unusually generous to Eastland county relief has not been allotted on membership basis, or what was paid into national organization, but was given strictly according to needs of our community, regardless of how the organization has been supported here.
A 100 per cent membership quota in the drive for 500 Eship land members would insure the establishment of relief for Eastland that would count and would be worth while.
It is small benefit to a family to feed them today and let them starve next week.
It is small relief to a sick child to provide medicine for the curing of its ailment, and fail to provide food to keep it alive.
It is small help to find a job for a man and then fail to give him sufficient warm clothing to enable him to keep that job, in this cold weather.
A few less motor drives, a fewer drinks of soda, and a dollar membership could soon be purchased in the Red Cross Roll Call. Charity begins at home. Turn an open ear, when the women come to your door in their house to house clean, through these cold hours and be ready with your dollar, as well as your sympathetic cooperation, when the call comes.
FIRE FIGHTING SYSTEM FAILS
By United Press.
JOHNSTOWN, Colo.—Gordon Teal has lost quite a bit of his faith in the Johnstown fire siren. Fire broke out in his garage early one morning a neighbor seeing the flames turned in the alarm—but the siren failed. Telephone operators had to summon the volunteer firemen by telephone, and before the firefighters arrived at the scene of action the garage and the Teal automobile, recently purchased, were destroyed.

never, I can assure you that you need have no further contact with Mr. Peabody."
Yet driving home with the decidedly subdued party (Linda had gone ahead with the still and Cousin Amos) Tom would agonize d uncertainty whether he would say, whether he had done the right thing, and how any woman would manage to be so kind of the older man.
Waiting in their room for Linda—Rosie had given him her message that her cousin was feeling decidedly unwell and that she would stay with him until he was more comfortable—Averill sighed over the whole situation.

FOR the first time he realized another growing cause of discontent—the rising, ominous heat, brooding more and more heavily over the still water and land.
Why didn't Linda come? He must talk to her. He had promised De Vos the old man should go and that he should go at once. It was nearly dinner time—ah, at last! That was her step—
She anticipated his troubled, half-ashamed opening sentence.
"Yes, Tom, he has to go. You can't help it. He can't either, in his way, poor old man. But you're responsible for this party and after that scene there's nothing else to do. But not tonight—no, honestly! He won't come down to dinner. He's feeling quite stretched, poor thing." She smiled a little. "I bounced him back pretty roughly, I'm afraid. I was sore, Tom! And the excitement and the sun and the alcohol have all been too much for him. I'll send him up a tray. He wants to get home anyhow—like all men when anything ails them!"
"I suppose he exaggerates his misery just as he does his good health."
"Exactly. Feels he can have proper care and attention only where his difficult case is understood. Frankly, I think his nose is out of joint, even aside from the quarrels. He's used to being an oracle and the center of every family group and we just haven't had time to kotow to him properly. It was partly that feeling that made him assert himself so violently. But he says he can't stand the train trip tonight and certainly I don't want to have him go to a hotel in town, particularly as one of us would have to go to New York with him if he did go tonight."
"Well—if he keeps to his room and gets off early enough—"
"He will, darling. I promise! He won't appear this evening at all and tomorrow morning everyone else will be sleeping late after the dance tonight. We can get him off without his seeing anyone—poor old thing!"
"Yes, I hate to bundle him off that way. But if he's suggested it himself it certainly makes it easier for us. You are a peach, sweetheart."
"Poor darling!" She kissed his hot, wet forehead. "Don't worry so, lamb! It'll be a lovely party, just as we planned, after he's gone."
"You forget Bunty."
Linda's face went white under her tan—partly from the savageness of his tone, partly because in her desire to cheer his depression she actually had forgotten this unexplained mystery.
"Tom—I did! How terrible! And I forgot—I forgot all this afternoon that it was one of those men!" Their eyes met.
"Have you decided which one?" she asked.
(To Be Continued)

Beware the Cough or Cold that Hangs On
Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.
Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchitis, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

Three Song Hits In "They Call It Sin"
The inclusion of music in the 1933 manner gives added flavor to the unusual drama of the First National picture, "They Call It Sin," which comes tomorrow to the Acadia theatre, Ranger, with Loretta Young, George Brent and David Manners in the leading roles.
This story of a girl who is still faithful to the love of a man whom she discovers to be married, carries the audience through the mazes of ultra-modern New York's night life and behind the scenes of the production of a large musical show, thus making music a vital part of the picture.
Three songs, destined to become popular hits, have been specially written for this picture. The songs are "Where Are You," written by Jay Gorney; "You'll Never Lose Me," by Juan Lossas, and "Along Came Love," by Henry Tobias.
The cast of "They Call It Sin" in addition to the popular team of Loretta Young and George Brent, has in the supporting roles Una Merkel, Helen Vinson, Louis Calhern, Joe Cavorthorne, Nella Walker, Elizabeth Patterson and Erville Alderson.

OIL INDUSTRY EMPLOYS 120,000
By United Press.
AUSTIN.—The oil industry in Texas gives direct employment to 120,000 people and 500,000 more in the state depend upon it indirectly for their livelihood, according to statistics gathered by Elmer H. Johnson, economic geographer of the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Texas. These figures are independent of the numerous filling station operators, oil well machinery workers and other whose industry is incidental to oil production. The state, he has found, produces nearly a third of the national supply of crude oil and a fourth of the world production.

A delightful talk followed, presented by Mrs. J. R. McLaughlin, in the interest of Children's National Book week and who gave an inspirational suggestion for the proper books for children's reading, and which are now to be found in the Eastland public library. Mrs. McLaughlin spoke with authority as she selected a new line of books for children's enjoyment and educational benefit, within recent weeks, in her connection with the public library, as one of its chairmen and directors. Mrs. R. D. Mahon, talented poetess, and writer, read her fine paper on literature for children, that proved as usual very interesting.
