A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

SPEAKING OF THE DEAN LAW AND ITS FUTURE

Ninety-eight members of the incoming Texas legislature are classified as newcomers under the big dome. There is a Dean law, the most drastic statute of its kind in the South or the Southwest. Senator Gus Russek of Schulenburg is a holdover statesman. His first bill of the regular session in January will call for the repeal of the bone-dry Dean law. This is the Russek viewpoint: "Repeal of the Dean statute would be in accord with the ultimate action of the repeal democratic congress sure to submit repeal of the 18th amendment and modify the Volstead act as the party platform demands." Texas has constitutional prohibition. Many states have repealed their state enforcement acts. It is said by those who claim to know that the new house of the Texas legislature will contain a majority of repealers and that a majority of the senate will declare for repeal. All this is dealing with futures. It is useless to count chickens before the eggs are hatched out.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

Gault MacGowan, managing editor of the Trinidad Guardian, Port-of-Spain (B. W. I.), Says: "The more I see of advertising the more I am convinced that we know nothing about it. "We built up a world boom by advertising luxuries we could do without; then when the luxuries were doing all the business there was a slump in primary commodities. Naturally and logically. Everyone was buying luxuries and was learning to do without primary products. "The girls smoked cigarettes instead of eating sugar candy and chocolate; they gave up bread for rusks; they began to use artificial silk instead of wool and cotton and flannel; we use electricity instead of coal; we learned to eat canned goods instead of village produce. Thousands of people acquired a taste for canned milk instead of fresh. "What did primary products do? Instead of advertising their way to success too, they cried overproduction. Overproduction is only a child's way of saying "no buyers." "Look around and see who advertises least. It is the producer of primary products every time. They got the idea that they were indispensable and when they found they were not, they sat down and wept instead of taking a course in salesmanship. "Fortunes used to be made out of land and farming. The farmer was the one-man shop in the one-horse town. Everybody had to go to him or starve. Nowadays instead of going to the farmer it is easier to buy canned food; luxuries advertised by middlemen or importers. The farmer sits around and wonders where his customers have gone. "We can do without bread, cocoa, sugar, potatoes and practically all the fresh produce there is. But the producers 'kid' themselves that we can't. They blame economics and overproduction for lack of sales. If they advertised and packed and marketed like everybody else, they would not get left in the rush. "When the primary producers learn to keep pace in their advertising with the producers of luxury goods, the world will get balanced again. So long as the primary producers don't get together and advertise so long will they tell a hard luck tale. And so long will the world slump, because, though we all like luxuries, we can only buy them so long as enough of us earn the right to do it by selling the fruits of the sweat of our brow. AND THOSE WHO SWEAT MUST LEARN TO SELL!"

After all, a city is nothing more or less than an aggregation of citizens; some good, some bad and some indifferent. The civic life of a city is no higher than the average of its citizens. The greatest assets a city can have are cleanliness, beauty, enterprise far-sightedness, an da spirit to do the greater things. The financial assets of a city measure its prosperity. As its assets are increased, prosperity increases; as its assets decrease, prosperity shrinks. Money spent in the home city increases its assets. Money spent away from home decreases them. A moving, active spirit in everything that promotes the best interests of the home city makes better business. It is a poor compliment to the science of civilization and political economy that the only way statesmen can meet loss of revenue occasioned by a trade depression is by imposition of more taxation and an attempt to curtail benefits to disabled war veterans.

PARIS STYLES

United Press. PARIS.—Lucien Lelong and Rose Descat have gotten together on a lovely ensemble of beige and red, the former furnishing the dress and coat, and the latter the hat that sets it off at just the right degree of Parisian chic. The dress is a sport frock in beige, designed in a relief weave with a short cravat of red jersey. It has a narrow belt fastening with two buttons across the front, and the front yoke may be closed or opened, the lapels being large in the latter case and small in the former.

The coat is also beige, with wide lapels that hutton down on it near the shoulders. The sleeves fit the arms rather snugly with trimming at the elbows, either of fur or contrasting fabric, and a small collar seems to come out of the lapels and continue around the back of the neck. The hat is of red felt, dipping over the right eye and made with a narrow brim that tips up on the left side to expose the hair.

PARIS.—Among the interesting accessories of the hour are the new elbow length gloves. Of the softest antelope, they widen in a big pouch between the wrist and the elbow and are extremely smart with any dress or coat that has a plain, straight sleeve.

PARIS.—These saucy little "pork pie" hats which perched daintily upon the heads of beauties of the naughty 90's are back again. Turned up all around and often trimmed with tufts of fur, or feathers, these little hats are worn well forward, leaving the starboard and aft of the head exposed to the cruel winds of winter. Those smart women, who do not any of us are planning our Thanksgiving day with the thought of a big turkey, flanked by platters of smoking hot delicious foods all topped off with a rich pudding and coffee, that will linger on the palate in pungent memory.

HERE--- AND THERE

BY ELVIE H. JACKSON

That isn't all that is back of Thanksgiving day, by any means. Actually, Thanksgiving is a national harvest festival, fixed by President of the United States, state governors, and is a legal holiday.

The earliest harvest Thanksgiving in our country was kept by the Pilgrims at Plymouth, in 1621.

The "Romance of America" and the thrill of the exciting when relief came to those who were on that special date in 1789.

Such an extent was the impression from this experience that down through their children the children that congress recommended Thanksgiving day, the Revolution, and had a Thanksgiving day observed in 1795, for the return of peace, an act followed by President Madison in 1815.

The father of our country, George Washington, had such a Thanksgiving day in 1789, after adoption of our constitution, another in 1795, a special recognition for the general benefit of our nation.

Regular proclamations for Thanksgiving days have since been issued by successive presidents, since 1863.

Some of us are giving a thought to the retiring president, who fought for socialism, to our incoming president, Mr. Hoover, who pledged for industry.

Interest is aroused over the nomination of the president for Thanksgiving year, and women as to just what its content will be.

Each and every one who has a good mind and a good body has a reason to celebrate Thanksgiving day whether their table is laden with the weight of the turkey, and generous helpings of cranberry sauce, or whether the table holds a glass of water, a slice of bread, and a glass of milk.

Frenchmer Plar Non-Stop Hop to Brazil

Lucien Bossoutrot, above, and Jean Mermoz, crack French pilots, are ready for their planned non-stop flight from Paris to Brazil, seeking to break the distance record held by Russell Boardman and John Polando of the United States.

The Frenchmen's flight would take them along the African coast, thence across the South Atlantic. Anderson kicked goal for the extra point.

Brownwood came back in the second quarter, took away the Adcock, kicking but a few yards off catching him before he crossed the goal line. Whitehead kicked the extra point to even the score.

In the third quarter the Bulldogs came back to take the lead again when Lyon kicked to the three-yard line, where the ball was killed. Whitehead, standing far behind his goal line, got off a weak punt which carried only to the 20-yard line. Lyon ran out of bounds on the 11-yard line on the first play from scrimmage, then picked up eight more and Anderson went over for the touchdown and kicked the extra point.

The Lions, taking to the air in a desperate effort to overtake the Bulldogs, accomplished the feat when Whitehead got off a series of neat passes, the first to Galloway for 32 yards, which carried the ball down to the Ranger 48-yard line. Another pass, this time to Thomas, was good for 17 yards and a first down and then Thomas ripped off 11 yards for one of the two first downs made by the Lions on running plays.

Another pass from Whitehead to Harlow was completed, though Harlow was thrown for a three-yard loss and then Whitehead passed to Adcock, over the goal line for the second Brownwood touchdown. Whitehead kicked the goal, tying the score.

The Bulldogs came back with determination to win and carried the ball from their own 30-yard line to the Brownwood 13-yard line, where with but three seconds to play, Anderson attempted a field goal from a difficult angle, but the kick was wild. The ball was brought back to the 20-yard line where one play was completed just as the final whistle was blown.

The Bulldogs outplayed the Lions in every department of the game except in passing as the Lions completed five out of 10 attempts for a gain of 80 yards and a touchdown and had none intercepted, while the Bulldogs completed but one out of seven tried for a gain of 14 yards.

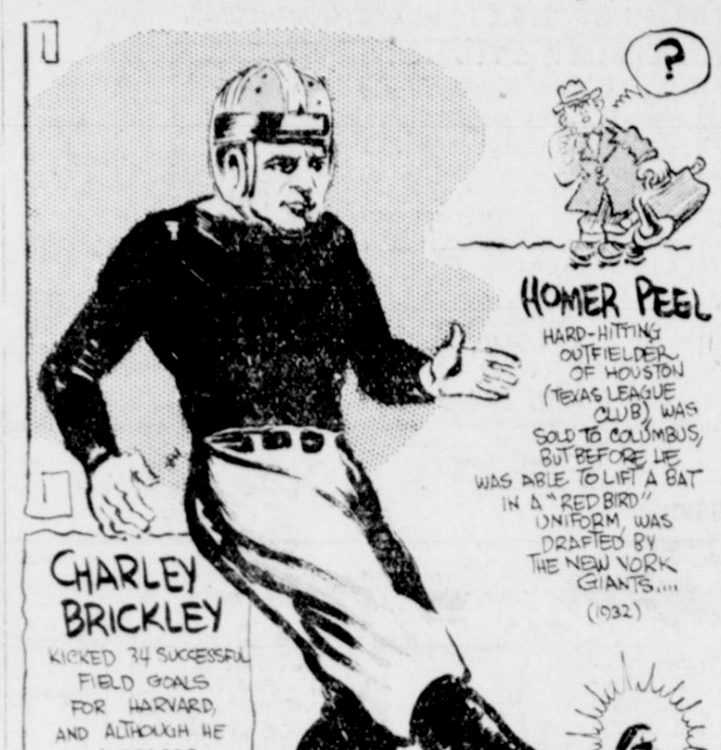

Lyon clearly outplayed Whitehead, who had trouble getting the ball off and made several weak kicks that carried but little beyond the line of scrimmage.

The Lions gained but little through the line, while the Bulldogs made practically four times as much yardage in this way as did the Lions.

The starting lineups: Ranger, Britt and P. Bray, ends; Standard and Adkins, tackles; Love and Williams, guards; J. Bray, center; R. Jones, quarters; Lyon and Anderson, halves; Jones, full. Substitutes, Cole, Mitchell and Briley. Brownwood—Galloway and Adcock, ends; Dodge and Hutson, tackles; Buzbee and Trammell, guards; Pierson, center; Whitehead, quarter; Tenge and Thomas, halves; Harlow, full. Substitutes, Crane for Harlow.

First downs: Ranger 14, Brownwood 4.

DERRICK SHADOWS

By V. MARIE STEPHENS

Back in the days when Africa was a name, and a very vague name at that, explorers began dipping and pushing their vessel on to Calcut, a location on the west coast of India. The fearless mariner, as this adventurer became known, gave Portugal something to expand her little chest of drawers. He came sailing back to his homeland with colorful tales of wealth in India, and was named viceroy of the nation while prosperity still reigned; died and was buried with honors in Lisbon long before the day of depressions.

Recently I sat in a beauty salon not many miles from Ranger and watched a brown-eyed, golden-haired little lady of 18 months suck her thumb and get a permanent wave. Her pink dress and white boots were all chocolate-colored from the candy she had been given and half eaten, half smeared upon herself; her cheeks were tear-stained from much weeping when the operator accidentally pulled her soft, baby hair; and her morale was completely shaken when, at the end of an hour or two, she emerged from wrappings, soakings, and twistings... with golden ringlets all over her tiny head. Looking at her chubby hands clutching a bar of sticky candy, I wondered how long it would be before they began mauling her nails... and her eyebrows, how long before they would be plucked to a thin, inexpressive line? What price beauty? Baby tears, wracked nerves, and panic money.

Meanwhile, prohibition agents are being shot down in cold blood and the machine gun business prospers. It is hardly safe for children to play on the sidewalks of the cities of glorious America with carloads of gangsters spinning about, armed and seeking something to kill. It doesn't seem fair that cotton heads and freckled noses and childish hands should be swept away with one spurt of fire from some fiend's fatal weapon... and still it took months and years to put Capone in prison. American people must be sure, you know. No, we must not be unjust to gangland. We must investigate and prove... while babies die from lead and officers of the law lay down their lives in vain.

He played in a dance orchestra at school and dated a different girl almost every night and could hardly manage to learn enough French to make the grade when I first knew him some 18 months ago... last week I visited in his home. You see, he's taken on new responsibilities in the form of a wife, an apartment, and a job. I didn't know what to expect for entertainment that night. I had dressed and people, some of them gay with too much drinking... he was that type when I first knew him. We sat before a glowing fire in one of the coziest apartments I've ever seen and talked about the latest books and plays and shows, while lights burned low and music droned softly in the background... and she served hot chocolate at an early hour, and I went away somewhat dazed. Yes, he'd changed since I first knew him some 18 months ago... perhaps that is because of his new responsibilities: a wife, an apartment, a job.

And life goes on!

EAGLES PROVE TOO MUCH FOR EASTLANDITES

Estes Burgamy Slips Over 76-Yard Run For Score At Abilene.

ABILENE, Nov. 19.—Yesterday's show at Eagle stadium was marked by an almost incessant flow of substitutes from both benches, a 70-yard run for Eastland's only touchdown by Estes Burgamy, the enemy's fighting and talented little quarterback.

The Abilene club played just well enough to win. It stowed up the game with two touchdowns in the second period, and played its sharpest offensive game in a drive for the third touchdown in the third quarter. Burgamy's spectacular dash to touchdown was made on the first play from scrimmage in the second half. Garrison ran the kickoff back to the Eastland 30-yard line, and Burgamy called himself for a run around the Abilene left end. He broke ground until fully 10 yards back of the line of scrimmage. Then he turned straight ahead, pulling away from tacklers. Burgamy slipped by the secondary that had moved in close for the play, and was in the clear with a crowd of five red-jerseyed players protecting him. Joe Simmons, a guard, went in and place-kicked goal for the point that left the score 14 to 7.

The Eagles lost little time in retaining their margin of 14 points. After running back the kickoff to its 40-yard line, the Abilene team shoved the Mavericks back across the goal in 11 plays for the last touchdown of the game.

Two of the Abilene touchdowns and all of its extra points were credited to the husky Middleton. Wyatt was responsible for the first counter, made early in the second period.

The longest sustained offensive of Joe Gibson's team was in the third quarter, following the final score. Taking great liberties with the domestics' left guard and tackle, Mackall and Burgamy tore off the yards, one to 12 at a clip, starting at their own 25 stripe and ending at Abilene's 27.

Until Burgamy was removed on account of injury in the third quarter, his playing was the high light for Eastland. Other all-game stars of the visitors were Carroll Allison, undoubtedly the greatest center, but showing up to rival Statler Smith for all-district honors and Ed Mackall, fine offensive and defensive fullback.

Arcadia Theatre Has Good Pictures For Coming Week

Excellent pictures have been arranged for at the Arcadia theatre, during Thanksgiving week, according to B. E. Garner, manager of the Paschal-Texas theatre, yesterday.

The theatre is offering Norma Shearer and Frederic March today in "Through", which is expected to be one of the best 10 pictures produced last year, the management stated.

The Arcadia Tuesday will offer Edmond Lowe in "Chandu, the Magician," a Fox picture which will be followed by the king of all comedians, Joe E. Brown, who comes to Ranger in the first showing in the state of his newest picture, "You Said a Mouthful." A midnight preview will be held of this picture Wednesday night at 11 p. m., which is the day before Thanksgiving and the film will begin its regular twoday run Thursday.

Garner stated some difficulty was experienced in getting the Brown film out for Thanksgiving due to the fact it is not nationally released until the following Sunday, Saturday the Arcadia sets Frank Buck's famous "Bring 'Em Back Alive" and the theatre will have a couple of real live lions in front of the theatre in connection with the picture.

Garner stated he has been booking pictures for December the past few days and has secured the greatest lineup of films for this month that has ever been brought to Ranger in one month. Among the coming attractions include "Air Mail," "Rockabye," Marie Dressler and Polly Moran in "Prosperity," Will Rogers in "Too Busy to Work," Charles Ferrell and Janet Gaynor in "Tess of the Storm Country," Richard Dix in "Hell's Highway," and many other outstanding attractions.

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE with BILL MAYES

A summary of the Brownwood-Ranger game gives the following figures, which should prove interesting:

Brownwood carried the ball 35 times on running plays, gained a total of 85 yards, lost five and was held without gain nine times for an average gain of 2-3-7 yards.

Ranger carried the ball 78 times on running plays, gained a total of 356 yards, lost 15 and was held without gain 11 times for an average gain of 4-22-39 yards.

Thomas of Brownwood carried the ball 25 times, gained a total of 60 yards, lost two and was held without gain six times for an average gain of 2-2-5 yards.

Jones of Ranger carried the ball 26 times, gained a total of 143 yards, lost one yard and was held without gain twice for an average gain of 5-4 yards.

Lyon carried the ball 35 times, gained a total of 161 yards, lost 14, was held without gain four times for an average of 4-21-35 yards.

Anderson carried the ball 16 times, gained a total of 50 yards, lost none and was held without gain five times for an average of 3-4 yards in addition to catching a pass which gained 14 yards and which was not counted as a running play.

Brownwood attempted 10 passes, completed five for a gain of 80 yards, lost three on one pass with five incomplete and none intercepted.

Ranger attempted seven passes, completed one for a gain of 11 yards, had four incomplete and two intercepted in addition to having a lateral intercepted for a touchdown and one recovered by Brownwood.

Whitehead of Brownwood punted 14 times for a total of 407 yards for an average punting of 28-5-7 yards.

Lyon of Ranger punted five times for a total of 195 yards for an average of 39-1-5 yards.

Brownwood accounted for four first downs, Ranger 14. The Lions were penalized 40 yards, the Bulldogs 20.

In tying the score, Brownwood did not eliminate the Bulldogs from the district title race, as a win from Breckenridge would leave them half a game in the lead and winners of the district title. A loss to Breckenridge would eliminate the Bulldogs and would throw the Buckaroos and Eagles night before. His glum silences had proved difficult for her ever since he had arrived but after the discovery of their mutual fondness for dancing perhaps he would be a little more responsive. As the little car started after the larger one Statlander began to shoot at her an astonishing series of questions.

"Your little boy did not come up today to see you, did he, Mrs. Averill?"

"No. The old dog was a great pet of his and we didn't want to tell him about her. It would have been hard, with guests in the house, and he not even staying home so we could lead up gently. Mr. Averill telephoned his mother and asked her to keep Bingo there all day."

"From the presence of some toys in the closet of the room I occupy, I thought perhaps I had turned him out to make room for me."

"Oh, heavens, no! I'm sorry about the toys—Rosie shall move them in the morning. No, Bingo and Nanna sleep across the hall from you."

"That is the room I've heard you speak of as the nursery? It faces the water?"

"Yes. We're not using it this week-end—the ceiling and walls were ruined by water from an overflowing tub upstairs. That's why we had to put Mr. Shaughnessey in the garage."

"Oh, then that is the room which opens on the small white porch over the central front of the house?"

Linda wondered at such persistent interest in the architecture of White Haven.

"That little balcony connects also with a room on the other side? I've observed it from the front lawn."

"One of the guest rooms—yes."

"Where Mr. Peabody is?"

"I presume the servants' quarters are upstairs?"

"Yes—over the center of the house."

"You also have rooms in the garage—may I ask—"

The interrogation was abruptly ended by their arrival at the White Haven gate. Linda swept the little car skillfully around the curve in the road and between the posts and drove up so closely behind the other car that she had to brake hard to stop in time.

on the balcony makes the horrid noise and having this one shut muffles it, at least. You have everything you want? Well—good-night. You can all sleep late tomorrow morning!"

When Tom finally succeeded in escaping Shaughnessey's garrulous friendliness and returned, tired and out of sorts, he found Linda sitting by the window toward the Sound. On the bed lay her corn-yellow velvet wrap, on the floor her wisp of a frock, and her high-heeled pumps had been kicked off beside it. She seemed to have lacked energy to proceed further with the business of undressing and when he came in simply rolled her eyes at him eloquently and made no further move. He sank into a chair and another window and for a moment weary silence reigned.

"Did you ever know such a night?" Linda gathered her energies to speak first. "Never—never in all my born days—was I so moved. He sank into a chair and another window and for a moment weary silence reigned."

"You're tired, Binks," her husband observed dispassionately. "I think they all had a good time."

"They may have for all we know anything about it—I hardly laid eyes on one of them all evening."

"Well, didn't you plan to turn them over to the female contingent?"

"Yes, of course—and I wanted them to enjoy themselves. That means I'll start in hot and get worse instead of better. Why does Fourth of July always mean such ghastly weather? And on top of it, every damned one of those men had been drinking—"

"Even your beloved Marvin?"

"Now don't you start anything!" Linda suddenly snapped from complete inertia to militant uprightiness. "He was too great all evening—implying he wasn't welcome—nasty way of talking without coming right out with what was on his mind."

"Well, look, Binks—what was the matter with him before we started? When he came downstairs he looked black enough to kill. I sort of bated to drive off with the others and leave you. Then everything seemed all right when we got there so I forgot about it till now. Anybody step on his toes before we left?"

"Hmp! Who specializes in toe-stepping around here?"

"Don't glare at me—he's not my cousin!"

"Oh, Tom, that's cruel! He can't help it. Why is Cousin Amos such a pest? I fished around a bit but I couldn't find out what it was he did or said. Every time I led back to it, Marvin got sulky. He was that way on and off all evening. I'd rather have all sorts of an explosion—made me feel queer and qualmish, just wondering. You see, I know his temper of old. He holds in too much and when he does let go—well, I wouldn't want to be in the way!"
