A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

NEITHER POVERTY NOR RICHES: Remove far me.—Proverbs 30: 8.

GANGSTERS AND THEIR ORIGIN IN AMERICA

A formal report submitted to the American Bar association in national convention assembled by its section on criminology said: "GANGS DID NOT FLOURISH AND PROSPER TO ANY GREAT EXTENT UNTIL THE AD-VENT OF PROHIBITION." This report was drafted by a group of prosecuting officers of the nation. In their report they said that they "did not want to be understood as holding a brief for or against prohibition." Then in their report they hit the nail on the head with this hammer: "We simply point out what we believe to be a fact, that prohibition brought about a condition of times and customs and law, which made it easy for the gangster to obtain a large personal organization at a small risk and that it also brought about a demand for the services of outlaws such as we never have had in this or any other country prior to prohibition." Another startling point stressed follows: "Few people, if any, consider that the violation of the prohibition laws involves moral turpitude." This is the indictment return by this group of prosecuting officers who are members of the American Bar association: "With the advent of prohibition, it became apparent that despite the existence of the 18th amendment in our constitution and the Volstead act upon our statute books there was a general and wide-spread demand on the part of a large section of the American public for intoxicating liquors. . . . Strict regulations rather than experiments seem to be the keynote of the immediate future and in this we see hopeful signs of the elimination of the gangster." Away back in the early summer months, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., hurled his bolt. He demanded the repeal of the 18th amendment outright. That Rockefeller message rang around the American world. It made Herbert Hoover a states rights republican on the "red liquor issue" and Charles Curtis, his running mate, a staunch defender of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act and all the minor pro acts of federal origin. "What fools these mortals be."

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE with BILL MAYES

We have enough material to fill several columns today. In fact, after seeing the Bulldog-Eagle game Saturday anyone could take over this task for the next few days, because there would be plenty about which one could write. For the information of the many who have asked, we will state that Mr. Holloway got down with our press pass just as we had completed negotiations with H. J. Barham, Elton Mitchell and a couple of others for a ladder. Accompanying the pass was a nice little note from the Prof., saying: "Bill: I have no special regard for any editor, but I think too much of his wife to permit her husband to parade with his only pair of pants gaping in the rear from a rent caused by climbing a park fence. Holloway."

Montgomery Ward Is Demonstrating Windsor Cookers

Today at 3 o'clock a pressure cooker demonstration of Windsor pressure cookers was given at the Ranger store of Montgomery Ward for the information and instruction of the ladies of this section. These demonstrations have proved to be quite popular in Ranger in the past and large crowds are expected to be present. Each afternoon the lady bringing the largest number of neighbors with her to see the demonstration will be presented a prize by the conductor of the cooking school. A different menu will be cooked each day of the demonstrations, which will last the remainder of this week. Six different kinds of food can be cooked in these pressure cookers at the same time without the flavor intermingling and the entire meal cooked in 12 minutes. Pork and beans can be thoroughly cooked in 45 minutes and the toughest rooster can be cooked tender in 55 minutes.

LESSON-SERMON GIVEN

"Probation After Death" was the lesson-sermon subject in all Church of Christ Scientist Sunday Oct. 23. "Behold now is the day of salvation," was the golden text, taken from II Corinthians 6:2. The service included the following passage from the Bible (Revelation 2:11): "He that heareth what the Spirit saith unto the churches, He that overcometh shall not be urt of the second death." The following citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, were also included (pp. 77, 290): "Death will occur on the next plane of existence as on this, until the spiritual understanding of life is reached. Then, and not until then, will it be demonstrated that 'the second death hath no power'." To the spiritual class, relates the Scripture: "On such the second death hath no power."

'Murder Trial' To Be Conducted At Church In Ranger

A "murder trial" will be held at the Central Baptist church of Ranger on Tuesday night, at which time one of Ranger's citizens will be tried for a "murder." Churchmen from the various churches of the city of Ranger will play the roles of prosecutors, defense attorneys, judge, jurors and other attendants of the court. The "trial" is being produced in order to show the people of this community that crime does not pay and to show some of the evils of lax prohibition enforcement.

Ranger Schools To Close On Friday

R. F. Holloway, superintendent of the Ranger public school system, has announced that the schools of the city will be closed all day Friday, Oct. 21, because of the teachers' institute that is to be held in Eastland on that day. The day being a holiday, many of the school children will attend the Sam B. Dill Circus, which is to play an afternoon and night engagement. Through arrangements made by Mr. Holloway and the management of the circus 1,600 school children's tickets have been turned over to him and the children of the city will be the guests of the show management. A service charge on each ticket will be made, which will amount to only 10 cents.

Seamen Call On President Hoover

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—A delegation of unemployed seamen called at the White House today and left a petition demanding unemployment relief and recognition of Russia as a means of encouraging trade. HERE--- AND THERE

By Elvie H. Jackson

The Senator's Lady, one of the scarlet bubbles of 1932 in literary epic, one readers attention held by the misleading title. Ladies? Just what is the definition of a Lady? Whatever it is, has certainly not been applied to the author of this book, Marjorie Elker, to the leading character in this would-be far-distant modern version, extremely diluted, same George Elliott effort. Literature in our country, if this production may be included in this class, has come to a sorry pass indeed when 308 pages of a large book are given to the leading up to the present and the aftermath, a supposedly charming woman's history, that certainly does not serve as a model of chastity, or respect for the marriage vows, or respect. The effort may be a literary one, from a writer's view point, but certainly an abortive attempt on the writer's part to establish the idea of a woman, justifies the man in armor and that passion is a virtue when indulged according to nature's demands, and is not to be censured by the hasty and unthinking, until the circumstances that led to the situation in which persons would indulge their personalities are understood and these circumstances considered as justifying the actions of the lovers. Such books as this are entirely contrary to one of the divine commandments thundered through the ages, from the burning slab on that mountain, and given to Moses as a fiery night engraved by heavenly bolts of lightning, shot by the wrath of God, and levelled at all future generations through Moses the Law Giver. Usually people are prone to think that marriage is the sterling sign of purity and virginity. It is seldom indeed, and fortunately so, that the reading public (and literati), have an analysis of a genuine character novelized, with marriage as the reward of virtue to a woman who had performed all the acts of marriage without the wedding stamp and afterward married two different men by whom a stamp was affixed somewhat in postscript fashion, we must say. Had either of these liaisons of the heroine been of a far reaching, deep and tragic nature, then perhaps such conduct could be in a measure, condoned. History has given us stories of unfortunate love, and heroic sacrifice on the part of the persons concerned. Sacrifice of social position, prestige and business success. But these were instances of great and dramatic circumstances. But when we are asked to consider a personal indulgence of temperament and the need for this indulgence the legitimate excuse for the ignoring of personal char-

CALL of the WEST

By R. G. MONTGOMERY

BEGIN HERE TODAY STAN BALL accuses ASPER DELLO, timber king, of crooked practices and of checking up on his activities. Ball says he is making a check. Delo says he will personally prevent it. Upon leaving Delo's office Ball saves DONA, Delo's daughter, from kidnappers. LEE BLACK. DUDLEY WINTERS, in love with Dona, goes with her to Three Rivers to get Delo to give up the case signed. SWERGIN, Delo's hard timber boss, blames Ball for the ambush and the killing of a ranger. Dudley has taken to riding in the hills hunting for a man who tells her father she has married Dudley and shows the certificate in an attempt to scare him away. Ball comes in for food and hears of the supposed marriage. He is surrounded by posse men. He rides out and sees him escaping. He wounds, capturing him upon his return. He takes Ball to a cabin on ahead while the men place a trap. Dona is sent to a light place with men around her. Dona promises to have her horse out of camp for him that night. Dona arranges with the corral boss to have the mare ready.

CHAPTER XXXV

"YOU'RE more like yourself than you have been for days," Asper Delo smiled fondly upon his daughter. This was the first time she had been free from a worried manner since coming to Three Rivers. Dudley was sitting on the wide porch railing, looking off into the purple shadows that had begun to gather under the rim of Folly Mountain. He had been unusually quiet all evening. Dona smiled up at her father from the low stool she had pulled close beside his chair. Asper was enjoying a black cigar with his accustomed thoroughness. He chewed one end of it while he kept the other aglow constantly. His remarks were punctuated by lifting the burning end of the cigar sharply at the end of each sentence. "Do you think Swergin is on the level?" Dona put the question abruptly. Asper granted and his cigar bobbed vigorously. "Swergin's all right." "I am afraid of him," Dona said simply.

"Swergin would be a lot safer to play with than that man Ball," Dudley cut in. Dona did not answer but her hand slipped to her father's knee. She knew what Dudley was thinking about. He must have heard of her part in letting the killer escape. "Swergin is used to handling two-tisted men who are a hard lot," Asper went on. "I want you to quit Three Rivers. The Delo Timber Company doesn't need this cutting. You told me it paid poorly." Dona was very much in earnest. "And let that bully have the laugh on you!" Dudley put in sourly. "Dudley about sizes it up," Asper spoke slowly. "But we're leaving Three Rivers for good day after tomorrow." Dona looked at Dudley and saw that he was gazing moodily into the sunset. She did not blame him for being out of sorts and gloomy but she was sure he would come around as he always had. Dudley was accustomed to having girls flatter him. He was more than a little spoiled. Somehow marrying Dudley had ceased to be distasteful. It seemed not to matter much. Asper arose and stretched his big arms. "I guess I'll go in and read a bit before I turn in." He bent and gave his daughter a kiss. "Don't hurry away on account of us," Dudley spoke deliberately. Asper smiled and tossed the short butt of his cigar over the rail. He realized that things were a bit ruffled between the young couple and figured that what they needed was a little time alone to patch things up. DONA waved him good night and sat with her knees drawn up and was not eager to listen to Dudley's accusations and to make explanations to win him from his gloomy mood. Dudley sat looking away from her with a pouting frown on his lips. The red glow in the sky melted to steel blue and a single star appeared. The moon would be late in coming up. Dona looked at her watch. It was 8:20. She stirred and suddenly got up and walked to the rail. "If you must sit there and mourn I think I'll take a little walk." She knew this would only add to Dudley's fit of stubbornness. He grunted and settled farther into the easy chair. Without another word the girl walked down the steps and into the path that led down the hill. Dudley watched her go with a half smile but he did not move. Dona wandered along until she was swallowed up by the shadows. She crossed to the path leading to the corral. She moved at an easy, swinging walk with her head up and her lips parted eagerly. At the main gate she halted and peered about her. A dark form detached itself from the black wall of the saddle house and came toward her. "O. K. Lady. You'll find her around the corner," Malloy's voice came to her softly. There seemed to be a reassuring note of approval in the cowboy's words. Dona walked around the corner of the saddle house with Malloy close behind her. "You could just turn her loose. She'd find him," Malloy spoke cautiously. "I think it would be safer to lead her to him," Dona whispered. The darkness hid Malloy's smile but she was sure he would come around as he always had. Dudley was accustomed to having girls flatter him. He was more than a little spoiled. Somehow marrying Dudley had ceased to be distasteful. It seemed not to matter much. Asper arose and stretched his big arms. "I guess I'll go in and read a bit before I turn in." He bent and gave his daughter a kiss. "Don't hurry away on account of us," Dudley spoke deliberately. Asper smiled and tossed the short butt of his cigar over the rail. He realized that things were a bit ruffled between the young couple and figured that what they needed was a little time alone to patch things up. DONA waved him good night and sat with her knees drawn up and was not eager to listen to Dudley's accusations and to make explanations to win him from his gloomy mood. Dudley sat looking away from her with a pouting frown on his lips. The red glow in the sky melted to steel blue and a single star appeared. The moon would be late in coming up. Dona looked at her watch. It was 8:20. She stirred and suddenly got up and walked to the rail. "If you must sit there and mourn I think I'll take a little walk." She knew this would only add to Dudley's fit of stubbornness. He grunted and settled farther into the easy chair. Without another word the girl walked down the steps and into the

"You are prompt," he spoke in a low, even tone that made the girl's heart beat faster. "You are leaving?" Dona spoke swiftly to hide a tremor in her own voice. "Tonight. I'll break through," Stan promised. Their hands met as he took the reins. In that second both seemed rooted to the spot. Stan was the first to recover. He drew his hand away quickly and bent toward her. "I'll never forget my friendly enemy," he whispered. DONA swayed toward him and Stan bent to meet her. Suddenly a flame stabbed the darkness before them and a revolver barked. A second flame followed. With the second report Stan was on the black mare and had whirled. Like a flash he vanished into the night. Dona turned to find herself face to face with Dudley Winters. "So this is the way you work!" he snapped. Dona caught him by the arm. "Oh Dad, you can't blame me for wanting to get him out of the hills! They would hang him if he stayed." "And I suppose he doesn't deserve it! He didn't shoot your father or murder a man. That was all a bad dream!" Dudley spoke with bitter sarcasm. "He promised to leave," was the only defense Dona could offer. "You were giving him a proper lecture when I came up, I could see that," Dudley continued in high bad humor. "I asked him to go and not to come back." There was an honest catch in Dona's voice. "Well, I've had about enough!" Dona caught his arm. "Please, Dad, don't be angry! I'm willing to do anything you say now." Dudley was somewhat mollified but he was far from satisfied. His pride was hurt more than his heart and that required a lot of mending. He let her cling to his arm going down the hill and finally he spoke. "I suppose you want me to be about this business?" he said deliberately. "Wouldn't it be better for both of us?" Dona asked simply. "I'll do it," Dudley promised suddenly. "But I'm to have some say around here from now on." Dona pressed his arm. "You may have all the say from now on," she promised. They walked on in silence for a space. "I'll hold you to that promise tomorrow," Dudley declared at last. (To Be Continued)

Free From Pain Thanks To

For years I suffered agony with pains in my stomach, and with heart burn, caused from gall bladder trouble. It had been over fifteen years since I had been able to see the shape of my ankles they had become so badly swollen. About four weeks ago I started using CRAZY CRYSTALS, and free now I am perfectly easy, and free from pain. The swelling in my feet and ankles has almost entirely disappeared. I would like suffering people everywhere to know about CRAZY CRYSTALS.

WASHINGTON.—The lowest mortality rate ever recorded in the United States was established in 1931 in which El Paso led the principal cities of Texas in showing the greatest decrease, the bureau of census of the department of commerce announced. The mortality rate for the entire nation, exclusive of Utah which did not report, was 11.1 per 1,000 estimated population. The total number of deaths for the nation was 1,318,111. This rate is the lowest since the bureau began gathering this data in 1900. Although El Paso showed the greatest decrease, 17.7 per 1,000 inhabitants in 1930 from 20.6 in 1928, it was tied with Galveston for the highest death rate of the principal cities included in the report. Each had a date of 14.8. Galveston's rate for 1930 was 14.1. Beaumont had the lowest rate with 10 per 1,000 population as compared with 11.2 in 1931. Fort Worth was next in line with 10.5 as compared with 11.0. Other cities were: Houston, 10.9 and 12.2; Dallas, 11.1 and 11.5; Waco, 13.1 and 14.0; San Antonio, 14.6 and 16.00. In the nation at large, the urban death rate was higher than the rural but the decrease in the urban rate from 1930 was .4 as compared with .2 for rural sectors and from 1928 was .1.4 against a decrease of .8 for rural regions. The urban death rate in 1931 was 11.9, in 1930, 12.3 and in 1928 13.3 while the rural rate for these years, respectively was 10.2, 10.4 and 11.1. The total number of urban deaths for 1931 was 703,691 to 614,420 for the urban population. Part of the greater death rate in cities may be attributed to the fact many persons from rural areas die in city hospitals, the report pointed out, and no attempt is made by the bureau to allocate the certificates to the residences of the dead person. Saturday evening a great number of their friends called on them at the hospitable Clark home, and afterwards the Guptons and host and hostess were entertained in the home of a friend.

Sunday noon, Mrs. Clark had a few close friends of the Guptons in for informal Sunday dinner.

West War Carnival Plans Many Features.
The carnival to be staged by the West Ward school P.-T. A. on Saturday night of this week in the Charlotte Hotel building will be one of those outstanding entertainments for which this association has been noted in the past. Additional booths are being arranged that will present weird attractions in "Room of Horrors," to be hosted by Meses. Lippard, Utz, Pearson, Atchley, Stewart Harris and John Hart.

An attractive food booth is to have wares in charge of Ernest, C. B. Wood, Gage, F. O. Hunter, S. W. Kitley and Herring.

Unusual and unique decorations are being arranged by Mrs. O. O. Mickle, assisted by Meses. D. S. Eubank, J. J. Tabelman, Bargsley and Chester Woods.

Announcement is made that a turkey will be given away at the end of the carnival.

The list of nominees for king and queen of the carnival for West ward school will be announced later. Vote for your favorite at a penny a ballot and make some little boy and girl happy.

Honors Frances Ann Crowell.
The attractive home of Mrs. Frank Crowell was open Saturday afternoon to the friends of her little daughter, Frances Ann Crowell, whose eighth birthday was charmingly celebrated in a pretty party.

Games were played in the early part of afternoon, and at close of a happy time the little guests were served delicious refreshments from a table laid in embroidered linen, beneath an artistically decorated electrolier, with pendant, black and orange streamers, extending to corners of the table, forming a canopy, over the four-topped white-iced birthday cake, topped with eight orange roses, holding five black tapers that threw their pretty rays over the eager young faces.

Many beautiful gifts were received by the little honoree, from her friends, Louise Jones, Betty Mae Jones, Julia Parker, Patsy Sparks, Amy Ruth P'Pool, Julia Brown, Eloise Johnson, Dorothy McGlamery, Kathleen Collie, Mava Lou Crossley, Elaine Crossley, Emalee Hart, Mary Nell Crowell, Lyndell Lynch, Wood Butler, Pete Pegues, Thomas Marlow, Billy Hoffman, Glen Ray Roper, Frances Ann Crowell.

Mrs. Crowell was assisted throughout the afternoon by Mrs. Guy Parker in her pleasant duties.

Miss Davenport Entertains New Sunday School Class.
Miss Maurine Davenport was hostess to the first social meeting of one of the new Sunday school classes of the Methodist church, entertaining with a Halloween party, at her home Friday night. Halloween colors obtained in decorations, and all the little guests were in masquerade costume, the ghosts, pirates and clowns having a royal good time in the games arranged by the young hostess, the teacher of the class and known as junior intermediate Bible class.

Blindfold game, a Jack-o-lantern romp, bobbing for apples, and ghost play, made a full evening of fun with the crowning climax in fortunes told by a real gypsy (Miss Loraine Taylor), seated in the interior of a dusky tent, lighted by a blue flame, and with the gypsy kettle over the tripod, from which issued mysterious prophecies.

Halloween refreshments of popcorn balls, doughnuts and iced punch were served and at close of evening, and boxes of candy were awarded for high and low scores kept by points on games played, and going to Ann Clark, Olivette Killough, and consolation to Jean Johnston, and Edith Rosenquest.

Tallies for scoring were de-rated with cats and witches in orange and black.

The dining table was centered with a pumpkin head, the red light from eyes, nose and mouth, streaming over the encircling wreath of corn, autumn foliage and maize, one of the pretty Halloween decorations for the party.

Those entering the dining room were received by ghosts, the light dimmed and the personality of newcomer guessed.

Those present: Ann Clark, Olivette Killough, Edith Rosenquest, Jean Johnston, Jenny Tolbert, Katherine White, Marjorie Yeager, Eileen May, and Maxine Coleman.

Junior Missionary Auxiliary.
The Junior Missionary Auxiliary of the Baptist church held their usual session Saturday morning in the church classroom, opening proceeding with an assembly song service, "In the Garden," "I'll Go Where You Want Me to Go," and "I Need Jesus."

Devotional from the Twenty-Third Psalm was conducted by Mrs. J. P. Truly, and chain prayers requested by members of auxiliary.

The Intermediate Girls Auxiliary and Royal Ambassadors held a combined session with Bible study from eighteenth chapter of Matthew, verses 18-21, presented by director, Mrs. Truly.

A round-table discussion based on text, "Love Thy Neighbor as Thyself," brought some interesting statements from members.

The Sunbeam band opened their session with Lillian Lee Bishop presiding and a missionary study, "Christmas Day in China," conducted by the director, Mrs. Lee Bishop.

A personal service report was presented by Frances Laverne Darby, the period closing with a song group by the children.

Present, Geraldine Terrell, Verne Ella Allison, George May Bishop, Beulah Drake, Cecil Seale, Billy Ruth McMillan, Marzelle Wright, Frances Lane, Katrina Lovelace, Valera Richardson, Claude Williams, Junior Owen, Charles Paul Williams, Ray Vox, Robert McFarland, and Dorothy Jean Nabors, greeted as a new member, and Grady Ned Allison, and directors, Mrs. J. P. Truly, Mrs. Lee Bishop, and Miss Irene Williams.

Announcement was made that next Saturday would be the fifth Sunday or luncheon day, and each one present asked to bring a small lunch. A social hour will follow the luncheon period. Each member is entitled to bring a guest.

Thursday Study Club Next Program.
The Thursday Afternoon Study club will present a timely program at their meeting this week, when "Politics" the theme of the program, will be represented in divisions, suggestive of the real game that dominates our country.

Now that we are on the eve of a national election and so many interests in both state and United States politics involved in the daily thinking and existence of citizens, this program will possibly develop in the discussion several new views and ideas.

The program proper presents Mrs. W. E. Collie, as hostess and leader; "The Political Boss," Mrs. W. H. Mullings; "Taxation," Mrs. W. P. Leslie; book review, "More Merry-Go-Round," Mrs. Grady Pipkin; "Walter Lippman," Mrs. Art Johnson. Community clubhouse, 3 p. m.

Working For Charity South Ward P.-T. A. Busy.
A timely play and one in keeping with the present Halloween season is busy in the making by the South Ward Parent-Teacher association and will be presented in "Ghosts House" on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 4-5, at the high school auditorium for the benefit of charity.

This most worthy effort is in care of the casting committee, Miss Reva Seaberry and Meses. J. Frank Sparks, Austin H. Furse and Virgil T. Seaberry, who are engaged in selecting the material from local amateur players suitable to the various roles.

Mrs. J. M. Armstrong, president of the P.-T. A., is devoting much time and thought to make this benefit for charity the success it deserves to be.

All those engaged in the play preparation are reminded that the director representing "Ghosts House," arrives in Eastland today from the headquarters of the dramatic company in Kansas City.

Busy days are come again, and rehearsals will be the theme song for the next few days.

Nettopow Group Plans Halloween Party.
The Nettopow group of Camp Fire Girls planned many pleasant events at their meeting Friday afternoon in room four of Junior high school, when the informal session was opened by Helen Rosenquest, vice president.

Much interest was taken in the Camp Fire exhibit the group is arranging for Civic League flower show and enthusiastic plans were made for their Halloween party set for Friday night from 7 o'clock to the merry hour of attending the school festivals on the square.

The Nettopows were busily engaged preparing part of the grounds next to the residence of their guardian, Mrs. Tom Harrell, which will be the scene of their Halloween merry making. This preparatory work was completed Saturday morning. A new member was cordially greeted in Gladys Gates. Others present were Alice Jones, Frances Lane, Mary Jane Harrell, Nora Frances Mahon, Doris Lawrence, Ruby Lee Pritchard, Lucy May Cottingham, Ouida Jane Harbin, Katrina Lovelace, Mildred McGlamery, Helen Rosenquest, and guardian, Mrs. Tom Harrell.

Worth While Lecture To Be Given By Mrs. Bryan At P.-T. A.
Mrs. Gid J. Bryan, an outstanding and fluent Bible student will extend an interesting message to every mother who attends the P.-T. A. meeting of Hodges Oak Park Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Bryan, who has gained wide recognition for her fine ability as a speaker, will aid every parent who hears this address to be given in connection with the program under the leadership of Mrs. E. C. Byars.

The president would be greatly pleased to have a 100 per cent attendance at this program, arranged for the benefit of all parents.

Meeting Of Co-Workers Club Postponed.
Members of the Co-Workers Home Demonstration Club are asked to note the postponement of the meeting previously announced to be held at the home of Mrs. J. C. Carothers, Tuesday afternoon.

This postponement was made necessary through out-of-town visits made by several of the members.

The hostess and date of the present outlined program will be made at a future date.

Informal Dinner Honors Rev. and Mrs. Nichol.
An informal dinner delightfully complimented a group of guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Lanier, Pine street, Sunday, naming as honor guests, the Rev. and Mrs. D. W. Nichol.

The dining table laid with pretty lines and appointed with amber glassware, afforded an attractive setting for the serving of a chicken dinner with ices. Covers were laid for the Rev. and Mrs. Nichol and sons, David Jr. and Charles, and Miss Verma Castleberry and Mr. H. B. Hair and Gilbert Jr. and Mary Allen, children of the host and hostess.

Ranger Guests Leave For Eastern Star Golden Jubilee.
Mrs. Rolly Gordon, Mrs. Homer Hodges, Mrs. J. G. Williams, Mrs. H. V. Stokes, Mrs. W. R. Clardy, Mrs. Ben F. Rigby, Mrs. A. J. Baum, Mrs. A. J. Bartruce and Miss Ann McEver, left this afternoon for Fort Worth, where they will attend the Grand Chapter of the Eastern Star Golden Jubilee, which will cover the remainder of the week.

All business sessions will be held in the auditorium of the First Baptist church while social features will be given at the New Masonic Temple.

This convention program promises one of the most successful and largest attended occasions of its kind to have been held for several years.

The guests from this city will extend their visit through Friday.

Mrs. Robinson Entertains With Pretty Saturday Night Party.
To the calendar of Halloween parties previously announced came a very pretty one Saturday night, when Mrs. George Robinson, entertained the Senior Class of Colony High school and friends, with a well arranged Halloween feature at her home, Spring road.

Only flowers used in decorations were a profusion of orange cosmos made more lovely with sprays of fern intermingled amid the golden hues produced from the deep rich pedals.

This appropriate color theme was given further emphasis in the table appointments and refreshments served.

"Stock Market" was the outstanding diversion for the evening hours, together with two contests.

The delightful hostess passed refreshments to the following party guests: Meses Thelma Thompson, Valeta Elkin, Marnie Lee Davis, Marguerite Cooksey, Frankie Robinson, and Meses. A. Miller, J. P. McClung, Otis Anderson, Curtis Thompson, Rayford Dooly, Claud Stuart and Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Cooksey and son, Doyle, Mr. Robinson and little daughter, Miss Caroline who entertained with several piano numbers during the party.

The hostess who is a popular teacher at Colony and Mr. Cooksey are sponsors of the senior class at Colony.

I'm Glad It's 1932
miles in winter. Just think, and those horses weren't equipped with speedometer either.

During the German war of 1870-71, France organized a pigeon post. The number of postal pigeons employed was 363 of which No. 57 returned with dispatches. Say that would be bad and what I don't know about pigeons would fill a big book.

I also found that France possessed a form of money transmission service as early as 1827 but for nearly 200 years the post office was the same thing delivered to the payee, whether it was coin or paper. Now imagine having to send bundles of pennies or silver and greenbacks instead of issuing our form of money orders? Wouldn't that be bad? It was not until 1817 that this transmission service became a money order service.

I noticed that the postage stamp was adopted in France in 1849 under Napoleon III, and at that early date France organized an excellent system not only of transmitting but also insuring articles of declared value. And in 1880 France created postal savings banks.

Our own money order system was first established in 1864 and our registry system in which many improvements have been made, first attained a degree of excellence in 1860. In fact I found that there were many, many interesting things to be learned about postal systems here and in foreign countries.

We constantly hear talk of our postal deficit. Well I found that was no new thing. However in 1882 a surplus of $1,394,388.92 was shown. After the percentage of deficit began to decrease. But nine years previous to and 21 years after 1869 there was a deficit. It went on to say that no doubt partly because of natural adverse conditions, because of the extent of its territory, entailing expensive service over little known routes, and the development of the western half of the United States, our postal service could not be expected to pay its way.

Other countries of lesser size and with well improved roads and settled countries could naturally provide postal service cheaper.

As late as 1869 the mails carried nothing but written or printed matter. Now almost anything is sent through the mails. Merchandise, and even day-old chicks are only two of the many things which may be sent in our handy and safe parcel post service.

In fact I found that we postal employees now, work under the most highly perfected system and the most favorable conditions ever to be had in the whole system of any postal department. I imagine that would be true of any work in any field.

Which all only proves that in order to enjoy our present we should read the history of the past and thank our lucky stars we are living in 1932, and in the U. S. A.
