GOVERNOR OF TEXAS TO HAVE TRYING TERM

By GORDON K. SHEARER, United Press Staff Correspondent. AUSTIN, May 17.—Texas' governor for the next two years will go down in state history as one of its most famous executives or one of its greatest failures. No medium verdict will be possible on the governor of Texas for 1933-1934.

One view held here is that the next governor faces an almost impossible situation. The other view is that he has the greatest opportunity that has come to an executive in many years.

Speakers and Meeting Place of Bar Association

MARTIN W. LITTLETON - Former Texas lawyer who is one of America's most famous lawyers

GUY A. THOMPSON - President, AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION

The setting for the annual convention of the Texas Bar Association which will be held May 19, 20 and 21 in Mineral Wells, and the principal speakers for the meeting are shown above. All convention sessions and entertainment features will be held at the Baker Hotel, one of the South's finest resort hotels, and Guy A. Thompson (upper left), president of the American Bar Association, and Martin W. Littleton, one of the country's most famous lawyers and an ex-citizen of this state, are scheduled as the two principal speakers.

SAYS SENATE NOT READY TO ADJOURN NOW

House Will Be Ready By June 4, He Says Today.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—A summer session of congress is almost certain, Speaker Garner said today. The Speaker said he had conferred with Senators Watson and Moss and Representative Snell, Republican, New York, and the three were of the opinion a summer would be necessary. "The House will be ready to quit by June 4, in my opinion," Garner said. "However, it is extremely doubtful if the Senate will be."

TAX PROGRAM IS DESIGNED BY THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, May 17.—An intensive program designed to dispose of the billion dollar tax bill within a fortnight was announced today as the Senate defeated a second attempt to increase income and surtax rates.

The Connally amendment increasing normal rates to 4 and 8 per cent and fixing the maximum surtax at 55 per cent on incomes of more than $1,000,000 was rejected, 46 to 31. Chairman Smoot of the Senate Finance committee announced a program of six night sessions a week.

Former Eastland Woman Buried At Cisco Today

Mrs. J. B. Ammerman, 75, of 3537 Travis avenue, Fort Worth, died in a hospital in that city Saturday night. Mrs. Ammerman headed the Central Union of the W. C. T. U. in Fort Worth and was also state parliamentarian of the Daughters of the American Revolution. She was installed as a state officer by Frances E. Willard, and until her illness was an active worker.

ONE DIES IN DALLAS FIRE EARLY TODAY

Firemen who fought the blaze for 30 minutes, found the charred body of John B. Middlebrook, 60, in the second floor hallway of the building.

Eastland Will Be Represented At Texas Bar Meet

Eastland will be well represented at the convention of the Texas Bar association at Mineral Wells this week. Hon. J. E. Hickman, chief justice of the court of civil appeals will be one of the principal speakers at the convention program. Associate Judges Funderburk and Leslie will attend the convention. A number of Eastland attorneys are planning to attend.

Hindu Riots Are Still In Progress

GREAT OAKS FROM LITTLE ACORNS GROW

Travis county democrats made history in the convention which sent delegates to the Houston gathering. They placed the delegates under the unit rule and they gave iron-clad instructions for their representatives to call for the abrogation of a two-thirds and the substitution of the majority rule in the nomination of candidates for president and vice president of the United States. They gave positive instructions for John Nance Garner but they told it to the American world that they looked upon the two-thirds rule as a monstrous handicap and the curse of American democracy.

Arizona is one of the newest states. Arizona has a democratic governor, two democratic senators and a congressional representative. Arizona democrats sent a delegation to the democratic national convention instructed to initiate a move for abolishment of the two-thirds rule for nomination of a presidential candidate and to support the candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York.

Regardless of who shall win the presidential nomination the two-thirds rule should be abrogated in order that peace and harmony and victory shall come to the democratic party in the campaigns in the years to come. Travis county democrats are to be congratulated. They did not falter. They flayed the way for democrats everywhere under Southwestern skies. Thirty-six years ago the democrats of Texas abrogated the two-thirds rule and they gave to the state Charles A. Culberson who became the greatest of governors and later one of the ablest and wisest leaders as an American senator that the republic has ever known.

AN UPHEAVAL IN THE BUCKEYE STATE

Ohio is the birthplace of the national Anti-Saloon league. Ohio has been controlled by the drys for many years. Indeed, the republicans and the Anti-Saloon leaguers walked hand in hand in many winning campaigns. Then Robert J. Buckley materialized in 1930 and ran as a democrat calling for the repeal of the 18th amendment. He was elected. This was a decided shock to the republicans and created a nation-wide sensation in political circles.

In the election of delegates Tuesday Gov. George D. White, democrat, made a clean sweep and will have the united support of the Buckeyes in the democratic nominating convention. President Hoover won republican delegates to the national convention. Regardless of all this the two greatest surprises furnished by the Buckeye republicans came in the nomination claimed by David S. Ingalls for the republican gubernatorial nomination and Attorney General Bettman as the party nominee for United States Senator. Ingalls, as under secretary in the Hoover cabinet, ran on a single issue. He called for the repeal of the 18th amendment. His supporters claim his nomination. Bettman ran as a repealer. His nomination is said to be assured. There was a dry candidate in the field against Ingalls and a very popular dry in the field against Bettman. Ohio democrats led off in 1930 when they elected a wet senator and George D. White, a dry democrat, governor. Now Governor White, acclaimed the favorite son of the democrats, is for a nation-wide referendum, after having been for years opposed to any change in the pro laws of the nation. And think of the upheaval in the major cities of Texas.

SENATE AND HOUSE TAX MEASURES

A billion dollars must be raised to meet an extraordinary deficit before the close of the fiscal year and a saving must be made in appropriations of $250,000,000 in order that the federal budget may be balanced. Income tax payers are interested. A compromise measure reported to the senate boosts the income tax rate to three per cent on the first $4000 taxable income; six per cent on the next $4000; and 9 per cent on all above $8000. The house surtax schedule was retained except that brackets were added to the higher income to boost a maximum of 45 per cent on income to boost a maximum of 45 per cent on incomes over $1,000,000. Reductions in personal exemptions voted by the house from $3500 to $2500 for married persons and from $1500 to $1000 for single were retained. There are to be nuisance taxes galore. All this would have been avoided if the house had accepted the sales tax proposal which would have added $650,000,000 to the billion dollar figures required to meet the deficit to balance the budget "and to preserve the credit of the nation." Really, the republicans were lucky when the democrats captured control of the house of representatives. If the G. O. P. had won control then the responsibility would have been an administration responsibility and handicap in the campaign.

SUMNERS FOR THE DEBENTURE PLAN

Rep. Hatton W. Sumners of Texas has revised the old scheme of export debentures for farm products as a remedy for agricultural conditions created, he contends, by an arbitrarily sliding tariff. The sliding export debenture plan was killed by an American congress in the days of the lame ducks after the president had promised a veto. Now many republican senators and representatives from the West are clamoring for the plan which had the endorsement of the national grange. By the way, the president of the national grange, a republican dry, was defeated for the United States senate in the Ohio primary by a republican wet and this too by a very large majority.

WHERE SMITH TOOK IT ON THE NOSE

Peter Witt of Cleveland is a very noted Ohio democrat and in days ago was a lieutenant of Newton D. Baker and the lamented Tom L. Johnson. Witt is a Smith enthusiast. He had been a power in Cleveland politics. He went out to capture six delegates in the three congressional districts in that city pledged to the candidacy of the New York stopper. His slate was smashed to fragments. Governor White won the delegates, with the understanding that if Governor White failed on the fourth ballot and the deadlock continued, Newton D. Baker of Cleveland will be trotted out to break it. This is the open season for smashing deadlocks and stoppers as well as the plans of the bi-partisan board of control with headquarters on Manhattan Island.

That Little "Forgotten Man"!

HERE--- AND THERE

By ELVIE H. JACKSON

By many years, Eastland has lacked of a county library, and several starts have been attempted by various federated clubs of the city, to install the nucleus of an Eastland county circulating library in our county courthouse. But these efforts never reached any climax other than a genuine attempt, but no realization. Such a movement is now on foot and with fair promise of success, through the efforts of the Eastland County Federation of Women's Clubs, spurred to take this necessary step for the benefit of rural schools, through the personal efforts of its president, Mrs. J. M. Perkins, in her office of Eastland county chairman, Better Homes in America. The federation voted to support this project, in co-operation with the Better Homes, Eastland county work, at the opening of the federation season, last fall. The project has been kept before them at their monthly meetings in the interim. Welcome news came that Ranger clubs will have a large collection of books to contribute to the Eastland county library and that these will be taken to the all-day county federation meeting Saturday of this week, when the North Star club will sponsor the assembling of federations from Coleman, Callahan, Brown and Eastland counties, at the club's headquarters a few miles north of Rising Star. Mrs. W. A. Martin of this city is providing several large boxes in readiness for these book collection gifts. Children's classics are especially desired. The Better Homes work is being pushed with vigor, throughout the county by Mrs. Perkins, and over eight counties of the eighteenth district by the chairman in charge, Mrs. W. K. Jackson. Eastland county's Better Homes week, resulted in the addition of 90 books to the library for colored citizens, a library established by the committee in last year's campaign. The funds from free will offering for library, given jubilee singers concert night, will be invested by Mrs. Glenn Stire, and E. C. Satterwhite, chairman of fund, in a much needed Webster's unabridged dictionary for the use of the colored school children.

The 1920 club of Ranger will entertain with a breakfast at 9:30 o'clock Thursday, and will have a program "Original Essay Day". The president of the club, Mrs. A. H. Allison, has extended an invitation to Mrs. J. R. McLaughlin and Mrs. J. M. Perkins to attend, the

Costello Band To Play For Dance At Golf Tourney

Ray Costello and his famous Rhythm Rustlers, has been booked to play at the dance to be given at the Ranger Country club in connection with the second annual invitation tournament.

Qualifying rounds for local golfers will start on Saturday morning, May 21, and will continue until Thursday, May 26. Match play will start Saturday and the finals will be played on Sunday.

A bridge tournament for the ladies, a chicken barbecue and a Calcutta pool will be features of the tournament.

Prizes totaling $250 have been purchased and will be distributed on Sunday following the closing of the tournament.

Invitations are being mailed today to golfers in this section of the country and it is expected that approximately 300 will take part in the tournament. Regardless of the score they make, registration fees will be nominal and will include the barbecue, the dance and the bridge tournament for the ladies.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer
WASHINGTON—The sudden, almost last-minute attention accorded federal unemployment relief by Democrats and administration forces is to be explained in about the same way as nearly everything else that anyone does in Washington.

Broadly speaking, nothing much has been accomplished around here in the last year or so unless the accomplices were scared into it. Fear has brought about the moratorium, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the general rush of politicians into the wet camp and most of the spectacular things that have happened on the floors of Congress.

Gestures Expected
When politicians find voters everywhere looking at them with an unusually cold and fishy eye and then find unemployment increasing at a time when it ordinarily diminishes, relief funds running out, the unemployed getting demonstrably madder and even an official spokesman of the conservative American Federation of Labor warning of revolt if there is no federal aid, it is natural that they should at least make a few gestures.

Without trying to estimate the significance of the announced impatience of the A. F. of L. one may say that it rudely shocked some zealous here who assumed that organized labor's patience was inexhaustible.

Voters Revolt Feared
E. P. McGrady, who has been legislative agent for the federation on Capitol Hill for years and usually acts as its spokesman at congressional hearings, actually told the LaFollette-Costigan subcommittee that if Congress adjourned still ignoring the unemployed he, personally, would "do nothing to close the doors of revolt if it starts."

There is no great fear here of a violent revolution, but there is much fear of a voters' revolt. McGrady is a middle-aged, intelligent fellow, ordinarily conservative in utterance, who has the respect of most members of Congress as well as those interested in labor. He is an ex-soldier. He recently returned from a tour of the country, reporting growing resentment among hungry men and women.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

THAT manufacturers who are persistent advertisers are the ones who enjoy the greatest business. They don't overlook the fact that a business cannot succeed without the aid of advertising.

Modern manufacturers realize that they must tell about their products through the printed page, not once in a while but all the while, or nobody will know them.

It takes persistent advertising to make people know a product and not forget it.

Quality, well advertised, is the world's best seller. People know well advertised lines and want to know them better.

Truthful advertising is the power that keeps the wheels of business moving. When advertising stops, the wheels stand still and business is dead.

People demand well advertised products. A concern that can't meet the demand of the public is at the end of its business life. Only the manufacturers who are persistent advertisers will survive for years to come, will break a business.

The present world trade depression is largely, though not wholly, psychological, and the problem is how best the world can be restored to a normal condition. Many of our politicians seem to think that it can economize itself into prosperity, while most of the rank and file think that we should pay some little attention to making better business for all.

Leaders Lose Patience
The union movement in this country have lost their patience after coming down here repeatedly to appeal to committees to do something to stop millions of our people from starving, only to be met with utter indifference on the part of the administration and other members of Congress," he said.

April is a month when a pick-up in business is always anticipated, he pointed out, but the seasonal upturn failed to develop this year. Naming off the large cities, he showed that complete unemployment in the building trades now ranged from 52 per cent here to 75 per cent in New York, 73 in Philadelphia, 60 in New York, 59 in Birmingham and so on. April unemployment increased over that of March by 12, 16 and 28 per cent in some cities.

Want Bread Through Work
LOCAL unions meet in 29,000 centers each fortnight or month, McGrady said, "and it is safe to say that 70 per cent of the time of those meetings is taken up denouncing those who could and will not give relief."

"We want bread and butter through work, but if we are not going to get it through work the American people are going to get it anyhow, and they have pretty nearly reached the end of their patience."

I have drawn the curtain to show what the conservative working men in this country are thinking of behind closed doors, in their meeting halls, and in every one of those meeting halls there is a very good representation of soldiers in the late war, and they feel more bitterly about it than the rest of the members. In 17 states, in recent weeks, I have addressed tens and tens of thousands of hungry men and women who want to know why this condition is allowed to go on.

"As far as I am concerned personally I am not going to come any more before this Congress to beg for relief. We, too, have lost our patience and we might as well let the other fellow handle it and be responsible for what is going to happen, because something is going to happen."

A motion was carried to have the chamber of commerce appropriate $10 a month to the Second Monday fund for the purpose of providing cash prizes in the horse races and for the bronc busting contests.

Ben Whitehouse made a report on the Oil Belt Sheep and Goat Raisers association and announced that a sale of the wool and mohair would be made in the near future. Dates have not been set for the sale as yet in order that some information on the market and the price of wool might be obtained.

He also reported that the Colony community night school, which has been conducted for the past 13 weeks, would end next Thursday night. Home made ice cream and cake is to be served at the final meeting, he said, and he urged as many Ranger business men as possible attend.

Roy Gilbreath, vice president, presided in the absence of W. D. Conway, who is in California, where he went to attend the Broadway of America association convention.

Directors and visitors present were Roy Gilbreath, J. E. Meroney, C. E. May, Ben Whitehouse, W. C. Hickey, Morris Leveille, E. H. Meigs, H. C. Anderson, H. P. Earnest, Dr. P. M. Kuykendall, Tom Carpenter, A. J. Ratliff, John Hassen, Charlie Moore and R. V. Galloway.

As Windy landed on the ground the happy Tinnies gathered round and Copy cried, "Hurray for you. You've turned a real neat trick."

"You picked wee Duncy off just right, when he was hanging from his kite. And then you brought him safely down. The whole brave stunt was slick."

"Oh, thank you," answered Windy "I am quite at home up in the sky 'Twas fun to take this plane around because it rides so nice."

"I had to pedal all the time so I could make the strange thing climb. I might have had a bad tailspin. That almost happened twice."

"But I remembered what to do. And, say, would anyone of you be pleased to take a ride with me? If so, just hop right in."

"I won't stay up so very long, because the wind is rather strong." Then Copy shouted, "I will go," and hopped in with a grin.

When he had had his ride around, the plane came right home established as he, during the time, when they had to have seen high, he shouted, "Goodness from the sky! When 'way up near like this, how far a lad."

WHEN they got back they saw a sight that both with awe, at Copy," Scouty cried, "A carpet beater's chest." "Tis well that he's in said Windy. Then they both began to roar."

The play man, too, thought fun to see the little fellow just a bit he shouted, "beater, Copy boy."

"Then you can beat me. 'Twill make me happy. And, too, you'll be beater. That should fill with joy."

(The Tinnies do some in the next story.)

The shoes are made of rice straw which is braided into a boot that covers the entire hoof, with strings that tie around the horse's fetlocks.

Eastland misses Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Fagg, who have definitely located in Abilene. However, their week-end visits to their son, Charles, and his wife, allow friends to keep in personal touch with them.

Can't something be done for the Whiteaway park? This big square of desolate rank grass and weeds in the heart of the city is the first landscape that eyes of strangers and visitors take in as they arrive in Eastland at the depot, directly opposite this gaunt memorial of much money spent in the past by the Civic League of Eastland on its upkeep. Fully four wagon loads of rock were dug out of the premises before a dozen wagon loads of dirt was hauled to fill holes and eventually several more wagon loads of dirt to surface the ground and prepare for grass seed sowing. But money ran out. And so!

Corpse Frees a Man

By United Press.
HOUSTON CITY, Miss.—Like a character from fiction, Roy Ed Smith has emerged from the past to return here and, in-murdered a man, whose name never has been recorded.

despite valiant efforts of and Smith, no corpus de-ould be found and authori-fused to hold him.

"I'll stay around these for a while in case you find dy and want to indict me," said and he went back to a near Driver, Ark., where he been working.

aded by a guilty conscience, surrendered to officers at la, Ark., with the story that rdered Fred Davis, an itin-orker, near here, in April, because Davis threatened to p the daughter of a friend.

body of Davis never was re-ed, nor did anyone ever hear uch murder. And, despite ndy confession, Smith will a free man, according to r Zach Powell, because of r obvious—a corpus delicti has been established.

"I see the point. You want to go ahead. Well, I don't know but what you're right," Waring said slowly. "They danced with each other. That I'm sure of. And they had a brief tete-a-tete. I must admit I felt like a blooming spy."

"Sorry, old man, but it couldn't be helped. It was in a good cause," his employer reminded him. "That's that. She's had a chance to talk with him and see him again and decide that their little flurry is over. That was what I wanted to be sure of. Well, now I'm satisfied."

"Good." But Waring's tone was dubious and Heath glanced at him irritably.

"Out with it, man. If you've something to say, say it and be done with it."

Waring stared reflectively out across the roof tops.

Oil Enriches City's Coffers

By United Press.
OKLAHOMA CITY.—Almost $1,000,000 has gone into Oklahoma City's coffers from city-owned oil wells in the adjoining field.

But the revenue cannot be used to pay the mayor's salary, or to pave streets and defray other municipal expense. It must go to civic parks and playgrounds.

After the vast Oklahoma City field, comprising now more than 800 wells, 225 of which are within the city's limits, was discovered Dec. 4, 1929, the city owned much oil property in Trosper park. It sold leases to oil companies. A year later royalty checks began to come in.

Today the city has an oil income from 12 leases. City Auditor's records reveal total payments of $941,368.33.

Through permits to wells drilled within the city, an additional revenue of $219,940 has accumulated. Each permit costs $1,000. The original cost was $10.

Oil lease payments this year total $138,604.22.

Of the 12 leases, Ash Can lease has been the most lucrative. It has paid the city $46,180. More than $15,000 has come from the Pet House lease. Both are in the city dump area.

LESSON-SERMON GIVEN. "Mortals and Immortals" was the lesson-sermon subject in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, May 15.

Romans 8:16 furnished the golden text: "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God."

The lesson-sermon embraced the following verses from the Bible (Romans 8:8, 9): "So then they that are in the flesh cannot please God. But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you."

Included in the service were the following citations from pages 250 and 255 of the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Mortal body and mind are one, and that one is called man; but a mortal is not man, for man is immortal. . . . The senses represent birth, an untimely and death as irresistible, as if man were a weed growing upon a flower withered by the sun and nipped by untimely frosts; but this is true only of a mortal, not of a man in God's image and likeness."

the MAN HUNTERS BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY
SUSAN CAREY, 20 and beautiful, has become engaged to ELEANOR HEATH, her former employer. She is secretly in love with BOB DUNBAR, millionaire's son whom she met at business school. Heath sends Susan's aunt south to recuperate from an illness and the girl is grateful to him. BEN LAMPFMAN, Susan's rejected suitor, shoots himself after wounding Heath. He recovers and goes away. Bob tries unsuccessfully to see Susan but she does not know this. He sees her at the theater one night with Heath and becomes angry. DENISE ACKROYD, debutante, wants Bob for herself. Susan meets Bob at a masked ball and he makes love to her. Denise interrupts.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLII

THE two men faced each other across the shining expanse of mahogany. Heath was seated, his fingers playing nervously with the ivory handled paper knife. Waring strolled up and down, hands in pockets.

"But tell me what happened!" Heath demanded impatiently. "If what you believe is true they should have come to some understanding that night. I've heard nothing. Everything has gone as before."

Waring shrugged. "I've told you all I know," he explained. "Maybe I've been all kinds of a fool to mix into this at all. But you asked me and I only told you what I knew."

"I'm grateful to you," said the older man stiffly. "I know I can trust you. That's why it seemed a good idea to have you take her to that party. But if they met and if nothing happened why then—" He raised his brows inquiringly.

"I see the point. You want to go ahead. Well, I don't know but what you're right," Waring said slowly. "They danced with each other. That I'm sure of. And they had a brief tete-a-tete. I must admit I felt like a blooming spy."

"Sorry, old man, but it couldn't be helped. It was in a good cause," his employer reminded him. "That's that. She's had a chance to talk with him and see him again and decide that their little flurry is over. That was what I wanted to be sure of. Well, now I'm satisfied."

"Good." But Waring's tone was dubious and Heath glanced at him irritably.

"Out with it, man. If you've something to say, say it and be done with it."

Waring stared reflectively out across the roof tops.

"It's nothing except that she seemed a bit excited as we drove home," he said lamely.

Heath laughed aloud, relieved. "Is that all? Well, I can see nothing in that. Any girl might be excited coming home from a big party. No, no, you're getting to be an old woman." He clapped the other affectionately on the shoulder. "I appreciate your solicitude, old chap, but honestly, I think it was pretty much wasted. Your imagination was working overtime."

"I hope you're right," Waring muttered.

"I know I am," said Heath heartily. And on that note the conversation ended.

"Why do we wait any longer?" Heath asked Susan that night over a table high in a city restaurant. The city lay far flung beneath them, a spangle of lights to north and south.

His complacency was momentarily disturbed by the look she flashed at him. There was something unsettling about that look. "She behaves as though she were afraid of me," the man thought in surprise. He was very gentle.

"Your aunt's coming back on Saturday, isn't she?" he went on. "Well then, why couldn't we have a very quiet ceremony the following Monday and sail from New York next morning?"

With an effort Susan managed to keep her hand from trembling. Steadily she said, "All right. I'll arrange it that way."

The man liked her quiet response. Triumphantly he thought of Waring's hints and fears. Waring had been wrong. The girl was perfectly willing to marry him quickly and go away. That did not look as though she were nursing a broken heart.

That night as Susan brushed her hair before Rose's dressing table she told herself it would be better this way. She would go away, see new sights and new faces, and be cured of the fever which had possessed her so long. Aunt Jessie would be pleased. Everyone would be. There was no use postponing it any longer.

Lifelessly she told Rose, "I'm going to be married Monday."

"My dear!" Awe-struck, the other girl laid down the orange stick she had been using and gazed at Susan. "Try to sound a little more cheerful about it. It's not a funeral, you know!"

Susan summoned a smile. "I know. I didn't mean to seem gloomy. I'm tired, I guess."

"You poor kid, you," Rose hugged her. "Let me send out that beige suit with the fox collar I was telling you about. It's just your size and the style will be perfect for you. That will save your shopping and I can have it charged. You certainly can't," finished Rose robustly, "be married in any of your old things."

Susan agreed without enthusiasm. It was kind of Rose to go to so much bother for her. Of course she should look well for the ceremony. It would be nicer if she could feel excited and happy about it as brides were supposed to feel but since she couldn't she must at least try to look the part.

THE suit was delivered the following afternoon and with it came pumps of snakeskin and stockings of sheerest silk. Rose had even chosen a tiny turban to complete the ensemble. It was fashioned of myriad small velvet flowers in pale fawn shades.

"Try them on, lovey," Mrs. Milton commanded. Susan obeyed. Listless as she was she could not help a feeling of satisfaction at the effect produced by the new outfit. She looked to herself, slim, straight and remotely elegant as the mannequins sketched on the pages of Vogue.

"You surely are a picture," Mrs. Milton told her, wiping away a sentimental tear. "When I was a girl we thought we weren't married right unless we wore white satin and a long veil, but I declare, no one could mistake you for anything but a bride this minute. Listen, dear, there's the doorbell," she went on rapidly. "My hair's a sight so you go. There's a good child."

Susan flung open the door, prepared to speed some luckless vendor of books on his way. Could she be dreaming? There before her stood Bob Dunbar.

"May I come in for a moment?" he asked coolly. "But I see you were going out. Perhaps I can walk along with you."

"I wasn't going out," answered Susan, confused. "I just tried these things on." She bit her lip, annoyed at having made this naive admission.

"All the better then because I want to talk to you for a bit," the young man repeated.

Susan led him into the comfortable Milton living room. She put up a hand to remove the little hat but Bob stopped her.

"Please don't take it off," he begged. "It suits you. Do you know you look marvelous in that turnout?"

"Thank you," said Susan gravely. She was feasting her eyes on the precious outline of his lean face, crested with unruly fair hair.

"Sit down, won't you?"

"I do much better standing," said Bob. "I've had the deuce of a time finding you. Why did you stage an escape scene that night of the ball? You didn't even leave a Cinderella slipper."

"There was nothing else to do," said Susan gravely.

"I don't see that," he muttered. "I had only just found you. There wasn't any point in running off like that."

Susan twisted her hands and tried to avoid his eyes. "You mustn't talk that way," she said rapidly. "I can't let you. It's not right."

His laugh rang out. "Who says it isn't right?"

"I do."

"Look here, my girl!" With a single long stride he was at her side. He dropped to one knee, bringing his face on a level with Susan's. "We've got to cut out this nonsense. We're wasting time. I thought we settled all this that night."

"Nothing was settled," Susan said, trembling at his nearness. She could catch the scent of expensive
