EASTER... and Its Glorious Revelations!

Easter reveals in its magnificent glory the supreme resurrection of life. Let us hear Nature as she lingers over her brood and comes forth to reverberate in her appealing, signifying, and promising tones to all ears, that she has won victory o'er the lands of a clay mound and has come forth in like appearance unto life and infinite beauty. Yet, these only present themselves as symbolic terms to the life that met death at the cruel hands of Pilate, who was lowered beneath the tomb, and who came forth the redeeming agent to save the souls of men from eternal perdition.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS

A Philadelphia department store executive the other day announced that the America of the future will be a nation of players instead of workers.

Men will work three hours a day, he said, and play the rest of the time. There will be no hurry, no nervous strain, no rush, no poverty, no business depressions—everything, in fact, will be pretty nearly ideal.

The present is, perhaps, a rather unfortunate moment to be getting predictions of that kind. There are a good many millions of Americans today who ask nothing more of the future than that it give them a job—any kind of a job, with long hours and poor pay, if necessary, so long as it supports them.

But the interesting thing about it all is that there is a large measure of truth in this Philadelphia's forecast.

That fact makes the existing depression more exasperating than any previous one; but it also makes it easier for people to tighten their belts and look to the future.

We are, right now, so far from the ideal state described above that we have around 8,000,000 unemployed. Yet it has been growing more clear every year that there is no solid, material reason why every item on that glittering program cannot be turned into a reality.

It is technically possible, today, for the nation's workmen to produce enough of everything, necessities and luxuries together, to go around, without working at anything like full capacity.

At the moment, that means misery, unemployment, want. But it can be translated into a tremendous opportunity. Sooner or later we shall find out how to turn our unparalleled productiveness—the cause of most of our trouble today—into a genuine asset instead of a liability.

When that day comes, a program like the one outlined here will go into effect easily and naturally. It is physically possible right now. All that is needed is the proper kind of planning, the right kind of directing genius.

To be sure, the job won't be done overnight. But we need to cling to a realization of the fact that it can be done. A hope like that can make the business of waiting for prosperity a whole lot easier.

DARK DAYS PREDICTED FOR THE IRISH FREE STATE

Well, the latest is that shadows of civil war are hovering over the Irish Free State—and all Ireland for that matter. President Edward de Valera won control of the government. His first act was to repeal all military laws for the protection of peace and liberate from Free State prisons all persons convicted of conspiracy against the Cosgrove government which had brought peace and prosperity to the people. His next act will be to withhold allegiance and land annuities from England. That is, he is going to abolish the oath of allegiance to the British crown and retain the land annuities which were paid under the late Cosgrove government to the British government. In other words, De Valera, American born, is going to break away from the British empire and establish an Irish republic.

Ireland had 700 years of hell. Under the reign of William T. Cosgrove as president it had 12 years of peace and prosperity. Now De Valera is in the saddle. Will there be another reign of hell and bloodshed and starvation as the fruits of his leadership and domination of the Free State?

ROGER BABSON'S PROPHETIC VOICE

Roger W. Babson has an understudy. He has taken the American world into his confidence as a prophet of optimism. He predicts that a fair share of prosperity will return in the year 1933, that it will show its face this spring, that it will be a slow traveler during the summer months, speed up in the fall months, and in the winter and spring of 1933 it will exhibit itself in regular form. Another apostle of optimism is Capt. Robert Dollar of San Francisco, who at 80 started a round the world liner service in the face of critics and completed in his 87th year a world winner with the verdict that "the world is a fine place if you want to work." He began working 77 years ago in Scotland at a salary of 50 cents a week. Depressions? He has faced a dozen. His verdict is "the world is gradually crawling out of the slump." His argument, "I have been through six or seven of them and can generally predict their course. We are on the upgrade. Have confidence and work. Good times are heading this way."

The dining room is the most inefficient part of the house, an architect says. And if this depression gets any worse, it may become totally superfluous.

An Ohio woman was awarded a divorce because she found lipstick marks on her husband's shirt front. Just another argument in favor of red silk shirts.

And now Chicago presents a "crooner" murder. Well, Chicago has always been first along those lines.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

THAT there is much need in many cities of a spirit of community cooperation between business men.

Problems of business can be handled more efficiently if there is a mutual interest displayed. Business men must fight collectively for prosperity and success.

Business men can't be cold in their service to the public and suspicious of each other and expect to increase trade for the city.

There should be a friendly spirit not only between business men, but between business men and the public.

Lack of community cooperation on the part of business men has done more than any one thing to make dead cities out of live ones.

The public has a very definite preference for those business concerns who make themselves a living part of the community.

Business men who sit down to watch and wait with critical eye to see what will happen are community debtors. They try to get something out of the community without putting anything into it, and by so doing not only ruin their own business, but their neighbors as well.

Bank Failures Show a Decline During February

AUSTIN.—Indications thus far point to a relief of tension in the banking industry by the emergency banking measures that have been taken, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. A more optimistic attitude has resulted, it is evident, from the meager data available even now, the Bureau's report said.

"Bank failures, as reported by Broadstreet's, declined sharply in February, only 109 being recorded for the four weeks ending Feb. 25 as against 225 for the preceding 28 days," the report continued.

"The average amount of money in daily circulation declined by $103,000,000 during the month from Feb. 6 to March 5. Much of this impressive decline can be credited to the 'anti-boarding drive,' but most of it probably represents a reduction in the till money reserves of commercial banks. During the same period, member bank borrowings from the reserve bank fell off slightly. The steady outflow of gold apparently is being checked, also, as a net result of some $11,000,000 in gold being registered for the week ending March 9, the first weekly gain since Dec. 23. The reversal of the gold flow appears to be the result of a marked weakening in the French, Belgian, and Dutch exchange rates, accompanied by a phenomenal rise in sterling quotations, the latter rate reaching $3.72 on March 8.

"All of these developments suggest a marked improvement in the general banking situation. The mere existence of the Reconstruction Corporation as a source of emergency loans appears to have had a powerful psychological effect on commercial bankers. It would be expected, therefore, that an increasing amount of new bank credit would be made available which should bring about a general decline in short term money rates and the long expected improvement in the high grade bond market. This trend should be materially assisted by the reduction in the New York Reserve Bank's discount rate from 3 1/2 per cent to 3 per cent (effective Feb. 26), and by the apparent resumption since the first of March of reserve bank open market buying.

"The banking situation in the 11th district, although showing but little change over January figures, apparently does not reflect this general improvement. Total debits to individual accounts are down markedly; time deposits have grown somewhat at the expense of demand deposits; borrowing from the reserve bank has increased slightly; and loans extended and government bonds held have shrunk to some extent. The probable explanation of these trends is that the Reconstruction Corporation was not able to organize its machinery in the southwest in time to make itself felt in February. If this assumption is correct, a distinct improvement in 11th district banking data can be anticipated for the present month.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NCA Service Writer

WASHINGTON — There are more angles to this process of "soaking the rich" by taxation than meet the eye. First, of course, you have a general desire in Congress to balance the budget by raising revenue. Then, as always, you find strength divided between those who would spread the necessary taxes indiscriminately and those who want to put as much of the burden as possible on the people who have the most money.

Would Check Fortunes

AND when you reach the present proposals of a maximum 65 per cent surtax on the very highest in estate and gift taxes, you find among the most vigorous proponents not only those who want to raise money from the wealthy but those who believe in this as a social measure to check the accumulation of huge fortunes which they regard as a menace.

And among those who would redistribute wealth through taxation are those who would go easy on high incomes, restricting the effort to the estate and gift taxes. Once such measures become law a game starts between the government and the plutocrats which resembles a pastime long enjoyed by the government and the bootleggers. Just as the bootleggers find chemical means of defeating the latest government attempts to make alcohol unfit for consumption by putting nasty doses in it, so do the millionaires and corporations find new ways of evading taxes especially imposed at them. Both alcohol diversion and tax evasion become gradually harder as the government develops new concoctions and plugs up unforeseen loopholes.

Mellon's Attitude

VERY few millionaires are sympathetic with the theory that their wealth should be redistributed by taxation. Mr. Andrew W. Mellon himself has been one of the most emphatic among those denying that any social necessity exists for breaking up large fortunes.

And the manner in which Rockefeller and Ford have turned properties over to John D. Jr. and Edsel Ford has furnished a shining example for other multi-

Speakeasies Dodge No Drink Buying

RENO, Nev.—Although liquor prices in Reno have been standardized, operators of various places have found a way to meet the pinch of competition by giving customers more for their money.

Free drinks provided the way out. Just now that sort of thing, reportedly, is worrying the gentlemen who organized the speakeasies and clubs a few years ago.

No drink for less than 50 cents was the basic principle of the organization. The price was the same, no matter whether in an alley "joint" or an elaborate uptown club.

In the old days, when the "racket" was good, free drinks were rarer than sunbonnets in the divorce colony. The bartender "bought" when such an act stimulated buying from the other side of the bar.

Many of the larger night clubs are still chary of drinks on the house, although one is forthcoming, competing with elaborateness, have become exceedingly liberal. Many of the small places, the operators will admit privately, would like to sell straight drinks for 25 cents each, but cannot and stand in with the ring. Therefore, the liberal drinks on the house

For Sheriff

W. A. (Kid) Hammett, constable of Precinct 2, who is a candidate for sheriff of Eastland county.

W. A. 'Kid' Hammett In Sheriff's Race

To the Voters of Eastland County, Texas: I am announcing myself a candidate for the office of sheriff of this county. In doing so I fully appreciate the responsibilities resting upon the shoulders of the man entrusted to this office.

To you who know me, I feel that I do not need an introduction but to you who do not know me, I have this to say: I was born in the State of Georgia, March 8, 1869. At the age of 23 years I came to Texas and located at De Leon, Comanche county, Texas. I have spent the remainder of my life of 40 years in Eastland and Comanche counties. During my entire life I have tried to make a good citizen, as to whether I have succeeded in this, I invite the voters to investigate my conduct both in private and public life. At present I am serving as constable of Precinct 2, Eastland county, to which office I was elected in 1930, this being the only office I ever ran for. However, I was elected once to the office of constable at De Leon, without asking for it.

In coming before you I realize that I am asking an expression of your confidence in me, and if you see fit to give me your vote and influence I assure you that no act of mine will cause you to blush or regret the fact that you did support me. The office of sheriff belongs to the citizens of the county and I am asking you to employ me to conduct the affairs of that office for the next two years, and if I am selected I shall not lose sight of the fact that the office still belongs to you, and that I am your hired servant, and will to the very best of my ability conduct the affairs of that office without fear or favor, and at any time that

Gift Tax Coming

WHATEVER the rates may be, this Congress will enact a gift tax to prevent evasions of estate taxes. There are various methods of evading "death taxes" and the higher the rates the more attempts are made to work them. But the loopholes grow fewer.

Gifts made in contemplation of death were originally made taxable, but the government couldn't ever prove to a court that any gift was made in such "contemplation." So a law was enacted providing that any gift made within two years of death should be considered "contemplative." Federal courts held that unconstitutional, so now comes the outright gift tax.

If the maximum death tax rate of 65 per cent goes through, with the gift tax, however, there is the possibility of a rush of multimillionaires to unload their millions before the law takes effect, delaying the public benefit for years.

An Argument Against

AN insistent argument used against the high surtaxes on incomes is that they drive the wealthy to put their money into tax-exempt securities. Under a supreme court decision, the federal government can't tax state and municipal issues. The House once adopted a constitutional amendment to cover that, but it died in the Senate.

Now Congressman LaGuardia of New York, insurgent tax fight leader, says no valid objection is involved because any rush for tax-exempt securities will give the states a better market for their bonds, lower their interest rates, increase their income tax collections and create employment through expansion of public works for which the bonds would be issued.

WASHINGTON CIRCUS

BY DAVID WRIGHT

Washington, March 26.—Ernest Roosevelt's victory over E. Smith in the New Hampshire democratic pre-convention primary was regarded here as indicative of more defeats to come for the party's 1928 candidate. The size of the vote—fewer than 30,000 having been cast by party throughout the Granite State—the result was considered significant. The "stop Roosevelt" slogan, pushed by the Smith manager, had been heard in a stammer in the past, but for the time being it has a washout (if you may my metaphors).

Some very astute newspapermen in the City of the Great Claim have discovered that Senator Borah and not the president is responsible for the appointment of Judge Benjamin N. Cardozo of New York to the United States supreme court. According to this, the president was getting ready to name another Judge Parsons as Holmes' successor. Borah, it is said, threatened to raise questions if the appointment were to specifications, and Mr. Hoover remembered what happened to late Judge from North Carolina who failed of confirmation. The report going the rounds is that Mr. Hoover had three candidates in mind when Borah stepped into the picture. The three were under consideration were those of Federal Judge William P. Stone of Los Angeles, Associate Justice D. Lawrence Grover of the strict of Columbia court of appeals, and Federal Judge Orin L. Stone of New Mexico, an appointee of the late Dr. Harding, it is said that when Borah checked the qualifications of these three gentlemen and found that Phillips had his legal training by a "respondence" course given by a new defunct Lincoln-Jefferson university of Hammond, Ind., there was a mighty road of protest.

Deponents further aver that what went straightway to the White House and was closeted with a president. The senator impressed upon Mr. Hoover that the whole country would subject the mole to a most critical inspection.

The Newfangles (Mom 'n' Pop)

The dime-a-dance girl

By Joan Clifton

BEGIN HERE TODAY Ellen Rossiter, beautiful 20-year-old, loves Larry Harrowgate, young artist. When he becomes engaged to another girl Ellen agrees to marry Steven Barclay, 57 years old and wealthy. Her impoverished family is indebted to Barclay, who has been married before. Scandal accompanied his Mexican divorce from Leda Grayson, dancer. To avoid talk Ellen and Barclay are secretly married.

They drive to his Long Island home, deserted except for Ferguson, the butler. Here Barclay suffers a heart attack. Louis Symes, Barclay's lawyer, arrives with doctors and nurses. Barclay dies at dawn. Symes tells Ellen her marriage is not legal because papers proving Barclay's divorce have been stolen. Ellen yields all claim to Barclay's fortune to avoid scandal. She believes she must keep her marriage secret to protect Barclay's honor and her own.

She learns Larry Harrowgate is Barclay's nephew. Heartbroken, she returns home. Larry seeks her out, tells her that his engagement is broken and asks her to marry him. Ellen has the courage to tell him of her marriage to his uncle. She goes with Larry to meet his mother. A butler appears. It is Ferguson.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLVI For an instant Ellen thought she must faint. A feeling of nausea swept over her and her arms dropped to her sides. She fell back weakly, helplessly. Larry was at her side, his arms around her. "Water! Bring water," he called frantically.

Ferguson brought a tumbler and the distracted Larry palmed the girl's face. He held the water to her lips. Still bewildered, still in a world of half-consciousness, horribly frightened and sick, Ellen drank it. Larry half-carried her on an adjoining bedroom, settled her on a frilled chaise longue. She knew that he was beside her, his hand held her hand, that he was fanning her. But Ellen could only lie still, her eyes closed, her breath rising and falling unevenly for a long time.

"He didn't tell you," she whispered after a while, without opening her eyes. "Who told me? What?" Ellen looked up then and saw that Larry was kneeling on the floor beside her. Mrs. Harrowgate was there, too. "What came over you?" the older woman inquired curiously. "It must have been the heat," Ellen managed to say.

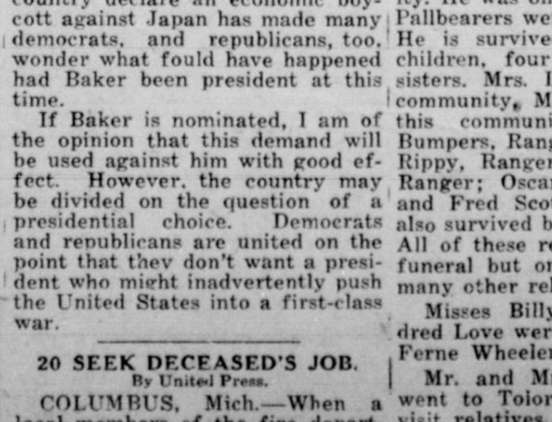

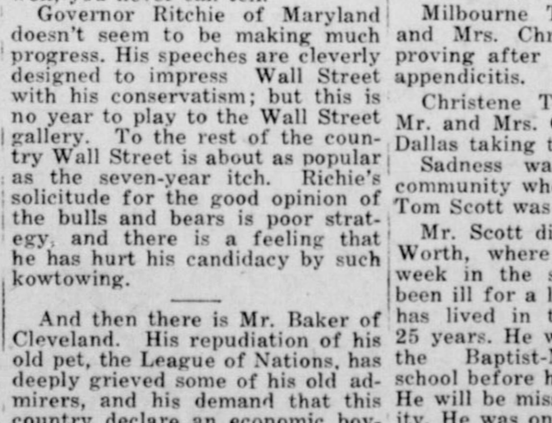

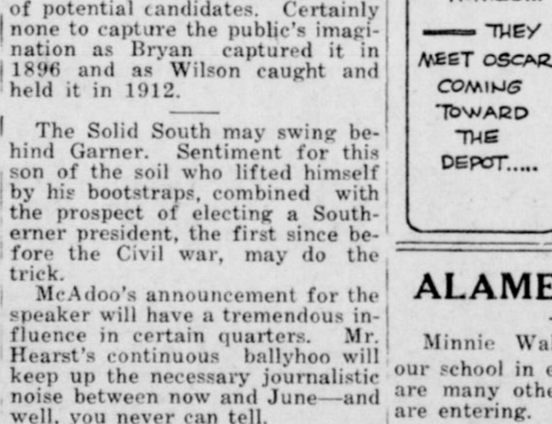

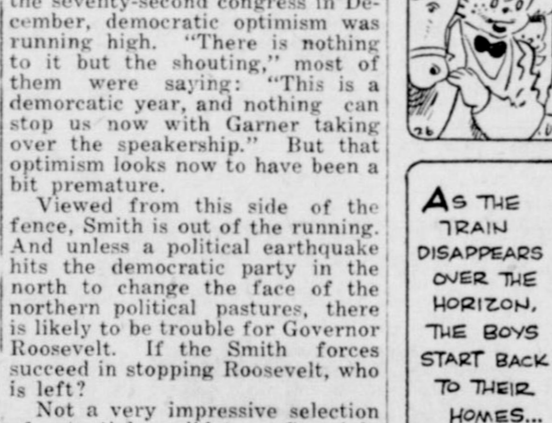

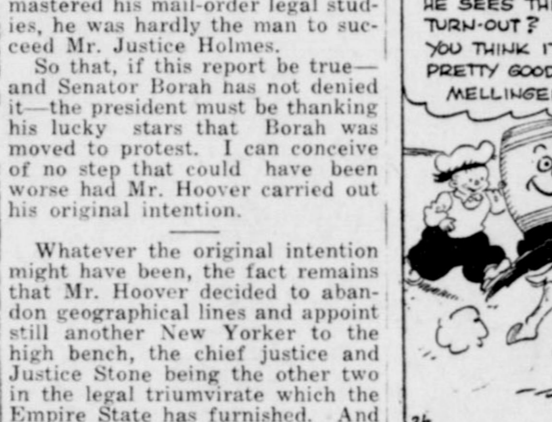

"That room is a roaring furnace," Larry said sharply. "It was all I could do to keep from passing out myself." "I'm all right now," Ellen announced shakily, sitting up and smoothing her disordered hair. "I'm sorry to have been such a lot of trouble."

"No trouble at all," Mrs. Harrowgate assured her politely. "I can't tell you how sorry I am though that it had to happen." But Ellen felt confident that her concern was affected. She looked from Mrs. Harrowgate to Larry. There was nothing artificial in his anxiety. How she loved him! How impossible cruel that something which had happened long ago might make him cease to love her. If she had only told him everything that day in the studio and had not held her breath to the wild hope that Ferguson had not recognized her. But she knew there had been recognition in those cold eyes. What did he mean to do? Even as she was wondering the butler entered the room. He carried a pair of gloves.

"I believe these are yours, miss," he said, advancing toward her. Ellen's heart beat violently. She tried to brace herself for anything the man might say or do. She stared at him with growing panic and tried to read his face. There was nothing there to read except servile impersonality. Larry reached to take the gloves but Ferguson, quicker, dropped them in Ellen's lap, turned and left the room, his back stiff and inscrutable as his eyes had been. Ellen drew a long trembling breath. "You don't care much for Ferguson, do you?" Larry observed. "I don't myself. He's so quiet he gives me the jimmies."

Alamo Was Named For Mexican Troop

By United Press. SAN ANTONIO.—The Alamo, Texas' shrine of liberty and the site of its Thermopylae, did not receive its name from the cottonwood tree, but from a band of Mexican soldiers. Ancient and historic archives of the old San Fernando cathedral here support this origin of the name "Alamo," the Spanish word for cottonwood. Early in the eighteenth century, a squadron known as the "Compania Volante del Alamo de Parais" (The "Flying Squadron of the Alamo de Parais") was organized at Alamo de Parais, Coahuila, Mexico. The squadron acted as a guard, or "escorta," of the Mission San Antonio de Valero, according to Rev. Eugene Sugraves, C.M.F., here. Soldiers of the "Compania Volante del Alamo" were so gallant and popular that the mission they defended became known as "El Alamo."

Voice Japan's Peace Plans

By [Name]

Attempting to save the wounds of war-battered China, these three Japanese leaders have been playing important parts in peace negotiations. They are: Foreign Minister Kenkichi Yoshizama, above, who says friendship between the two nations can be restored as soon as China abandons its "anti-Japanese" policy; Manoru Shigemitsu, lower left, minister to Shanghai, and Lieutenant-Gen. Kenkichi Ueyeda, lower right, of the Japanese army.

Early each morning two of the men make the rounds of the city's big markets, collecting vegetables which fail to pass the inspector's practiced eye.

Today there are 141 families, nearly 700 men, women and children living there. But for every citizen, there is a roof, no rent, free food, free wood and free water.

The town is healthy. Its "hospital" is closed and city health officers watch over the depression's victims. There's even an orchestra which helps to maintain the spirits of the city.

And "Mayor" E. A. Hanna, 73, sits on the city hall steps (a Twin Falls, Idaho, apple box) and contemplates his city with pride.

Several hundred employees of the Memphis Park Commission didn't get their salary cut on March 1 as planned because someone in the department "forgot" to handle the matter. Then 10 per cent pay reduction will become effective April 1.

'Mayor' Sees Town From An Apple Box City Hall

LOS ANGELES.—Prosperity is just around Alameda and 85th streets, down by the Los Angeles River, where shacks and tents cluster up a boggy lot.

The town has just accumulated during the past six months, inhabited by desperate men, ousted from their homes, out of work and hungry.

With their hungry families they moved onto a huge lot, built crude shanties, erected in bitter irony a sign, "Hoover Town," and sat down in misery and want to wait out the depression.

PROFESSIONAL DISTRESS NERVE STRAIN—MENTAL ANGUISH Doctors and their social duties sometimes have a hard time making connections, and often are the despair of their family and friends. It may not be generally thought that the modern Doctor takes the case of the patient as much to heart as the old family physician, but those who live close to Doctors will tell you a different story. The Physician who tries to divert his mind, or fulfill social obligations, with a seriously ill patient in his thoughts, is a very absent-minded theatre companion or bridge partner. The Doctor expecting a momentary summons, is not free from mental strain or wakeful nights. When he finds the case beyond human or scientific help, only the immediate family grieves more than the Doctor. Of course it is up to the Doctor not to show distress, and to keep nerve strain under leash, but modern Physicians take their profession seriously, and want just as sincerely to make and keep you well as the old-fashioned general practitioner. SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY NEA Service Writer JUST as the modish woman of today adds that 'well turned out' look to her general effect by the careful choice of her costume accessories, so the clever housewife may increase the popularity of some dish that is more wholesome than, welcome by the deft use of some extra material which plays the part of the accessory.

The food accessory differs decidedly from the garnish in that the accessory is not merely ornamental. Nuts, dates, raisins, coconut, candied fruit, jelly—these and many others combine happily with the most nutritious economical dishes. And they add food value and interest to the combination with relatively little expenditure of either time or money.

The carefully chosen food accessory should not be regarded as an extravagance and superfluity. If two or three chopped dates added to the children's cereal will make the dish a treat instead of a morning 'bone of contention,' it surely cannot be termed extravagant. Especially since the dates add about 100 calories as well as food iron to the dish of cereal.

'Dressing Up' Baked Apples... Chopped nuts or raisins or both combined with baked apples, materially increased the food value and assure the apples a cordial welcome. A spoonful of jelly is an attractive variation if put in the cavity left when the core is removed from the apple. Of course the jelly does not add as much nourishment as the nuts and raisins contribute. Cup custards and plain cornstarch puddings gain much by a sprinkling of chopped nuts. Two tablespoons of chopped English walnuts furnish 100 calories of

Swedish Prince May Buy Plane

LONDON.—Prince Lennart, who renounced his rights to the Swedish throne in order to marry a commoner, took his first flying lesson here. While waiting for the necessary period of domicile to elapse before they could be married here, both the prince and his fiancée, Miss Karin Nissvandt, visited the Stag Lane airfield, toured the airplane sheds and engine shops, and then went for a flight in a light plane piloted by J. Buckingham, one of De Havilland's test pilots. Within a few minutes of their landing, the prince, who showed great enthusiasm for aviation, was again in the air, this time handling the dual controls to get the 'feel' of the machine. It was then arranged for him to take a series of lessons, and it is expected that after the honeymoon a light airplane may form part of the equipment of the old castle on Lake Constance.

Chaliapin To Produce Talkie

PARIS.—Feodor Chaliapin, the great Russian basso, has just completed and confirmed plans for a talkie debut to be made in England this summer by a British film company in a play written by Paul Morand, produced in French at the Comedie-Francaise with great success. Rumors have been circulating on both sides of the Atlantic that the celebrated singer would perform in a movie with Charlie Chaplin and in confirming his movie debut, Mr. Chaliapin made it plainly understood that while he and the great comedian were staunch friends that Mr. Chaplin was neither playing in the movie with him, nor did he have any financial interest in the venture whatever. The morand script for the Chaliapin debut is based upon a Don Quixote theme which the French writer has worked out in collaboration with Comte Jean de Limmur, director. While Paul Morand has had many of his things adapted to the screen, this is the first time he has written a complete scenario. Versions of the movie in French and English are to be made with a well known Paris and London comedian in the role of Sanchi Panza. Mr. Chaliapin has decided to accept a concert tour of the United States beginning in November, which will mark his first visit to America for the past several years.
