Seeing as how there will be a mass meeting Monday night for the purpose of discussing the nomination of candidates in the city election, reminds me that I have a candidate in that race and I most certainly want his name discussed in that mass meeting.

If anybody will place a four-bit wager with me, I'll forecast in advance who the speaker at the mass meeting will be. Allow me two errors for unforeseen circumstances and I'll hit it to a tee.

I wouldn't take a chance on forecasting the actual nominations, because it would be quite risky. Chances are they'll vote to ask Steel Neely to return to our midst and be our mayor.

Without seeming to change the subject abruptly nor simultaneously claim credit for it, I would like to call your attention to the repairs being made to the railroad crossing where the E. W. F. & G. crosses the highway east of Eastland.

I am somewhat disappointed about the Bill Murray rally here tomorrow. I thought Alfalfa Bill in person was to be here until just a day or two ago.

Well, enough of this tripe (note proofreader, the word is tripe, spelled with an "e," and not trip), and I shall be off and away to the main draw, there to see the usual sights.

Poverty Town's Happy "Mayor"

Several Los Angeles families, ousted from their homes, banded together several months ago and moved into shacks they built on vacant land near the outskirts of the city.

MASS MEETING CALLED

There will be a mass meeting at the court house in the county court room at 8:30 p. m. on March 21, to discuss the nomination of suitable candidates for city commissioner.

It was a dry victory, but the unexpected strength which the wets showed in the vote to take up the Beck-Linthicum resolution in the House caused Representatives Charles Linthicum (left) of Maryland and Representative James M. Beck (right) of Pennsylvania to congratulate each other.

The death penalty was not asked. If found guilty as an habitual criminal as the indictment charges, McGonegal may receive the death penalty or a life sentence.

It acquitted of the murder, he must return to the state prison to serve a 50-year term given him at Texline for murder in 1915.

The unemployment committee of the American Legion, met in the offices of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce this morning at 9 o'clock and were assigned work in various parts of the town.

Several of the members of the committee will continue their work of securing jobs Saturday, by which time the entire town is expected to be thoroughly covered.

A mass meeting has been called for Monday night, March 21, at 8 p. m., in the county court room at the courthouse for the purpose of discussing the nomination of candidates for vacancies on the Eastland city commission which are to be filled by election April 5.

The familiar bully-beef tin is about to make way for a scientific food tablet in the British Tommy's pack.

CHARLESTOWN, W. Va., March 18.—Harry F. Powers, "bully-beef" killer, accused of hanging or strangling five persons, is scheduled to die on the gallows tonight.

ARREST MADE IN ROBBERY OF BOX CAR

Chief of Police Jim Ingram of Ranger today arrested Oran Ashcraft, 20, of Ranger on a charge of burglary and theft and recovered 159 suits of men's silk underwear, alleged to have been stolen from a box car in Ranger.

The merchandise was addressed to J. C. Penney company at Breckenridge and was in a car on the siding of the Jake Hamon railroad when the car was broken into.

The arrest was made before the goods were recovered, Chief Ingram said. He had clues that pointed to the alleged culprit and made the arrest and then searched a house where he was staying.

COTTON AND WHEAT TO BE DISPOSED OF

Hyde made the announcement after a meeting of the cabinet. He said that probably some of the $200,000,000 accruing to agriculture under provisions of the reconstruction finance corporation, would be used in the campaign.

Hyde emphasized that it would be practically impossible for the government to lend any of this $200,000,000 to the farmers direct as some have desired. His idea was that it could be used, however, to arrange either long or short term credits abroad for the disposal of surplus crops in foreign markets.

WHAT IS AMERICA GOING TO DO?

Col. Arthur Brisbane, who uses the columns of hundreds of newspapers over the nation to advertise California and (formerly) Florida real estate through his widely syndicated daily column, recently paid a visit to Al Capone in his jail quarters. The ex-king of the underworld swelled with a vast pride when the editorial director of the Hearst chain of papers interviewed him at length on the Lindbergh kidnap case. The newspaper colonel was interested in knowing just how his underworld majesty would go about securing the release of the Lindbergh child if he was freed.

There was a time when men, without elaborate systems of legal procedure and complicated laws, laid down homely rules of conduct in the interest of the common good and observed those rules. The stretch served by many a predatory ruffian in those days was a short one with a limb at one end and a neck at the other. Law enforcement was a short and sweet process. There wasn't much time nor opportunity for delay and none for loopholes in the simple code. If a man was a criminal he was an outlaw and that was all there was to it. There wasn't any such thing as a maudlin sentiment. Newspaper colonels didn't visit glorified gangsters in the plush-lined seclusion of a jail apartment and discuss sensational crime cases. The ranks of the outlaw weren't appealed to for go-betweens to do what the officers and the citizens could not do. Whenever such a situation arose and the representative of the law couldn't do anything about it he had his breeches smoked and a new regime moved in with fire and brimstone in its soul. Any smart-aleck with a lust for mayhem could get all the trouble he was looking for but he found out daddurned quick that the people ruled. There was plenty of mischief and enough devilry of the bloody variety to make life excitable but there wasn't any such thing as a compromise between those that did it and those that stopped it.

In contrast to that day of the supremacy of the law and the honest elements what do we have? A gang of outlaws invades the privacy of one of America's most prominent homes and kidnaps a sleeping child. As if that was not enough outrage against the sovereignty of the people the felonious rascals taunt the baffled authorities and offer their own agencies to solve the mystery—for the price. The amazing honeycomb of crime beneath the sovereign will of 120,000,000 people clutches the babe in a putrid grasp and dares the law to do anything. Out of the sordid maze a couple of low-browed gentlemen are put forward who offer to slink around in the subterranean passages and attempt to contact the criminals with a promise of immunity and full compensation.

That kidnaped baby is one of the most fearful menaces that ever faced free America. Its return alive and well isn't the concern solely of one family, but the concern of every American of honest heart and mind and a love of home and the patriotic blood that has been spilled in defense of American liberty and institutions since the first expiring bodies crumpled on Concord green. Yet the felons are threatening to get away with it, to set a precedent for a nefarious trade that even before the sensational Lindbergh case, had reached alarming proportions. Parental love for a child, in this instance, cannot be condemned in sympathy, but the fact stands out as glaringly as white on black that if the kidnapers of this child are permitted to go scot free and filthily recompensed, there will be hardly a home in America on which a cross-mark will not be placed. The ancient practice of impaling the heads of decapitated criminals upon poles by the market gate from which their staring eyes could look down in fearful warning upon incipient outlawry would be none too severe a penalty in this case.

What is taunted America going to do about it?

GOVERNOR STERLING AND COUNTY AID.

Governor Ross Sterling served four years as chairman of the state highway commission. In his campaign for the office of governor his main proposal was a huge bond issue. Now he would ban county aid in highway building that is, he is an advocate of relieving counties from the requirement of paying money into state highways. His viewpoint is that the people of Texas should not vote any more county or district bonds to be invested in highways in the state system of roads. Now his theory is that Texas highway funds and federal funds should be sufficient to finance all highway construction without county aid. In other words, the Pennsylvania slogan goes: "Those who use the roads should furnish the money for their construction and maintenance," via the gasoline tax route.

Now why should the gasoline tax payers be compelled to throw a large chunk of their money to the big chest of the state school fund? Why should a man be taxed twice for the same cause?

MAYOR PINK LOGAN VOTED OUT OF OFFICE.

Port Arthur, one of the fast growing cities of Texas, speaking through the ballot box, changed the form of municipal government by adopting the city manager plan to replace the present commission form. The vote for the change in the charter was overwhelming. Mayor J. Pink Logan was automatically ousted. He was not a candidate for the new council. In a statement to the press he said he had favored the city manager form of government for years. In the city election last year he scored a comeback. Why not a city manager form of government for every progressive city?

Why not consolidation of county-city units wherever it is possible in Texas or elsewhere.

Why duplication of servants or taxes or high costs to the taxpayers when a consolidated government would keep money in the pockets of the people and make it possible in time to bring about simplicity in local government, efficiency in local government, and all at a low cost to those who pay the price?

A STORY OF JUNGLE JUVENILE SAVAGES.

Three Dallas boys, said to be news sellers, did not like the smell of a fourth boy. They tied his hands, they saturated his ragged clothing with gasoline, they applied the torch, and then they vanished. Their victim died. Now the Dallas police are investigating the case. They hope to capture the young savages. Death by fire is agonizing. Now how would it be possible for the punishment to fit the crime?

Sarajevo Is Still Suffering Effect Of The World War

SARAJEVO.—This small city to which the spotlight of the world ever returns as the spot where the World War began, reaped a gruesome harvest from that conflict, according to figures recently presented at a women's pacifist meeting here.

It will be remembered that the Drina river was the scene of the first war operations between Austria and Serbia. According to the pacifist organization's figures, that part of the Drina province on the right bank, comprising 15 election districts, now numbers 21,236 fatherless children, 6,183 war orphans, 8,735 dependent children of war invalids, 9,824 undernourished and an additional 856 which starved, while 917 were morally corrupted. If the 17 districts on the left bank are added, it was declared that the total of unfortunate children would exceed 100,000.

It won't be long before members of the League of Nations committee at Shanghai are reporting that there has been a difference of opinions between the Japanese and Chinese.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON.—Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, foremost political independent in American public life, is the hero of one of the most extraordinary single-handed legislative accomplishments ever achieved.

With the Norris Lane Duck amendment at last passed and on its way to state ratification and insertion in the Constitution, the Norris anti-injunction law passed by enormous majorities and the Norris Muscle Shoals bill up again under unusually favorable circumstances, this is certainly Uncle George's big year and no other member is offering him any competition.

Others Mass Efforts

PREVIOUS constitutional amendments—those for prohibition and woman suffrage, for instance—have been put over by mass action and propaganda of strong groups, the names of members of Congress attached to the legislation being merely those of the men who sponsored it.

But now one man's efforts are changing the Constitution. Norris hammered away year after year, fighting for a thing that was obviously right—making Congress more quickly responsive to popular will and destroying the evil of the "lame duck" system.

A Hearty Blow for Labor

NO heartier blow was ever struck by Congress for the rights of American labor than when it passed the Anti-Injunction bill by votes which were nearly unanimous in both Houses.

The Real Heroes of Shanghai

While big shells whined overhead and fires added to the menace, Red Cross workers, Catholic nuns and other volunteers risked death to rescue 5000 civilians from the ruins of Shanghai's Chapei sector, which was bombed for days by the Japanese. This picture was taken at the height of the dramatic rescue effort.

Frank Sparks Is Candidate For Judge 88th District

We are authorized to confirm the report that Frank Sparks, of Eastland, is a candidate for judge of the 88th district court. He is 38 years of age and has been a resident of Eastland county since his discharge from the United States army in February, 1919.

It is said of Mr. Sparks that he has a high conception of official duty, and a fearless disposition to rely on his own judgment and stand by his convictions. As county attorney he demonstrated his ability to compete successfully with the best legal talent of the county, and made a record as prosecuting attorney probably unsurpassed in the history of the county. At this particular time it is not amiss to recall the economical administration of his office. The records disclose that Mr. Sparks, as county attorney, was able to turn into the county treasury excess fees amounting to approximately $3,600, which is the only instance of such an incident.

In authorizing the above, Mr. Sparks said: "The 88th district court, formerly the old 42nd district, has been presided over by such men of talent and outstanding characteristics as Judges Truman Connor, Calhoun, Lindsey, Thomas, L. Blanton, Joe Burkett, E. A. Hill, and its present incumbent, Judge Elzo Been. This court, as an institution of long standing and many interesting traditions, has spread upon its minutes the history of Eastland county, with its alternating periods of progress and retrogression, political turmoil and tranquility, prosperity and depression, and I have long entertained an ambition to serve as its presiding officer."

"I have a deep conviction that our county and state offices can and must function on a basis of strictest economy and efficiency. I know the district judge can do much to promote such a program of economy without impairing the efficiency of the courts and without jeopardizing the rights of litigants. I do not look forward to the office of district judge as a comfortable place of repose. I am not ready for repose. I would regard it as a workshop wherein I can offer all the energy of the best years of my life to the application of the fundamental principles of right and justice to the conduct and business affairs of men. I regard it as such an honor to serve our country in time of peace as in time of war, and I covet the active support of all who hold me worthy and competent to serve as their district judge."

Claims A Bandit Victim Record

PEIPING, China.—An all-time record for length of captivity in a bandit camp in China is believed to have been set in the case of the Rev. Bert Nelson, an American missionary, who was captured Oct. 5, 1930, and is still held by bandits within 100 miles of Hekow.

The American legation here has received no word whatever from Nelson for several months. It is not even known certainly whether he is alive or not. But his last letter was sent in the autumn of 1931, and said that he was in fairly good health and had been set to work to teach bandits leaders English.

It is probable that Rev. Nelson also is teaching the bandits western games, as the Scandinavian mission to which he is attached sends the bandits tennis balls, rackets and nets, basketballs and volleyballs with complete equipment, as a part of the ransom they demanded.

The mission paid over $10,000 silver in cash to the bandits at ransom, but after receiving the money, the bandits decided to keep both Nelson and the money.

Nelson's brother, Rev. Daniel Nelson, has been active since his activity in seeking his release, but without success.

Year Round Gardens
Twenty-one club members are special year round garden demonstrators for the county, with 290 other club members as co-operators in the work. These club members aren't satisfied with just the spring and early summer gardens with a few vegetables planned to have at least three vegetables growing the year round and during much of the time as many as 18 different varieties and some times more. The plans are made with different kinds of vegetables growing, not all the leafy ones at one time and all the starchy ones together. The gardens are planned to supply the family with both fresh and canned vegetables during the year. The following statements are remembered throughout the planning:

- To supply a family of five persons for one year with fresh and canned vegetables, the garden must produce at least 2912 lbs. of vegetables.
- In planting the garden you can roughly estimate that one pound of vegetables can be harvested from one foot or row.
- The demonstrators and cooperators have record book in which they make the garden plans and keep record of all work, expenses and receipts. At the end of the year they have a complete financial report of the family garden. These reports are compiled at the end of the year by the demonstrator and given as an annual report for the club.
- The hot bed is another part in the garden plan and program. This is used for growing the early plants for the home and neighbors. These plants are protected from the cold and then transplanted to the garden, giving an early supply of the vegetable crop.
- The demonstrators and cooperators study the diseases and methods for preventing and ridding of them. These methods are practiced by all and by doing so the gardens are at least 50 per cent better.

- The following club members are special demonstrators for the 4-H Girls' Clubs and the Home Demonstration Clubs: Leno Lovick, Alameda; Kitty Sue Lewis, Okra; Lucille Sheridan, Pleasant Hill; Alma Walker, Cook; Lorene Hays, Flatwood; Nora Shingleton, Bullock.
- Home Demonstration Club Members: Mrs. Lillian Neal, Eastland; Ranger; Mrs. L. Hazlow, Carbon; Mrs. N. B. Gray, Grapevine; Mrs. Young Gregg, Elm; Mrs. J. Turner, Flatwood; Mrs. L. A. Lowrance, Reagan; Mrs. Walter Easter, Friendship; Dothan; Mrs. W. E. Clements, Kokomo; Mrs. O. Bowen, Colony; Miss Doyle North Star; Mrs. Lee Burkhart, Cook; Mrs. Floyd McCormick, Bass Lake; Mrs. J. R. Lanham, Nimrod.
- MARCH GARDENING HINTS: This is the month in which to plant vegetables that will not stand frosty morning. Squash, cucumbers, okra, corn, peppers, pole beans, butter beans, and the like should be planted now. It is also good plan to make another planting of the short lived vegetables that were planted in February such as radish, lettuce, English peas, bush beans, mustard, and the like.
- New Zealand spinach, is a hot weather spinach that will grow successfully when the weather is hot and dry. It is one of the few leafy vegetables that will grow in July and August. The seed should be planted this month or next in rows 20-30 inches apart, thinning the plants to 18 inches growth; hence considerable space must be allowed for each plant. The tender growing 'hoos' are the edible part of the plant. These should be removed often enough to keep the plant stimulated into growth. There is marked similarity in the appearance and taste of the New Zealand spinach and the winter or

- Sticking English peas into the garden in late April or early May is a good plan. The peas in the garden should be ready to pick when the second crop of corn has developed. The peas in the garden should be ready to pick when the second crop of corn has developed.
- Mulch the berry row with a layer of straw, or cotton gin refuse, or any other material that will hold the soil in cultivating.
- To prevent tomato from becoming crowded and spindly, you can make a rare cold frame by forking the soil and boxing in a small area on the south side of one of the windings in the yard. If some window sash is not available, can dip light muslin into the water and use it to cover the top of the frame. The plants should be tacked on one side of the frame and attached to the other so that it can be rolled up each morning to illuminate the bed. Where there is limited area to be planted, the plants may be transplanted in cans, one plant to each can.
- It is not too late to set varieties of cabbage, I suggest that you set plants of the Jersey Wakefield variety. It matures quickly and will be before hot weather begins. maturing varieties such as Dutch and Danish Ball Head are not desirable varieties for planting. Remember that cabbage thrives best in a manured soil.
8. Davis Perfect cucumber is a good variety to plant for cucumbers are 7-9 inches when mature and the seed is very small. The flesh is crisp and of excellent quality. For higher quality of pickle cucumbers should be picked 5-6 inches long.
9. The new vegetable tendergreen takes the place of spinach in dry weather. The oblong green leaves are green in color and have a mild taste. The leaves are prepared for the table as spinach, mustard or green beans.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

DEATH ON THE CROSS

John 19:17-22, 25-30. The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for March 20.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Director of the Congregationalist. One does not speak of the death of Jesus on the cross as the most "glorious" event, for other men have died upon the cross and other men have suffered similarly cruel deaths. Nor is the significance of the death of Jesus found only in the fact that he was dying for our sake. Other men have suffered martyrdom through cruel and terrible forms of death.

What makes the death of Jesus on the cross significant above other tragic events in history is the relationship of that incident to the whole life and mission of Jesus, to his ministry on earth, to his teaching and the fellowship of his disciples which in the Christian church has been built up into an organized body of witnesses to his name and to his power. The momentous place of Jesus in the purpose of his death and all that it has meant to mankind. His martyrdom is supreme among the martyrdoms of those whose lives have been sown in the seeds of truth and of progress.

The cross of Jesus, also, finds its significance in that law of sacrifice illustrated in all humanity's experiences of trial, renunciation, and martyrdom. That law of life, so amply illustrated in the story of the race, has never been explained.

Jesus himself continuously emphasized in his teaching the law of purpose of sacrifice, but he never explained its meaning, nor why it should be necessary. In the world such as ours love is inseparable from sacrifice, and all that Jesus was and all that Jesus did, as reference to the eternal love of God.

Equally certain, from every survey of life and history, is the fact that sacrifice is the only way to the greatest force in human progress and is inextricably associated with the power of salvation. Those who rallied upon Jesus as a savior upon the cross said sneeringly and triumphantly: "He cannot save." There was a measure of truth in the contemptuous saying. Jesus could save others only by giving himself.

Again, and again in the history of humanity, men and women have died to save others only by giving themselves. Sometimes it has been true in a physical sense, they have given their physical life for others. Sometimes it has been true in a moral sense, they have given their lives for others. In the history of the world, men and women have saved others only by the giving of their lives in obedience to a long course and demand of sacrifice.

It is these experiences of life that find their inspiration in the death of Jesus himself. The cross on which he died, in the gloom and darkness of a terrible hour, has become a light, illumining the lives and lives of men and women, and pointing the way not only to God but to humanity's highest goal of peace and triumphant living. It is through sacrifice that we find the highest life and the way of Christ's cross is the way to the noblest attainment.

Mother of 7—Still Young

THE woman who gives her organs the right stimulant need not worry about growing old. Her system doesn't stagnate; her face doesn't age. She has the health and "pep" that come from a lively liver and strong, active bowels. When you're sluggish and the system needs help, don't take a lot of "patent medicines." There's a famous doctor's prescription for just such cases, and every druggist keeps this standard preparation. It is made from fresh laxative herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. Just ask for Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. Take a little every day or so, until every organ in your body feels the big improvement. The next time you have a bilious headache, or feel all bound-up, take this delicious syrup instead of the usual cathartic. You'll be rid of all that poisonous waste, and you haven't weakened the bowels. You'll have a better appetite, and feel better in every way. The constant use of cathartics is often the cause of a sallow complexion and lines in the face. And so unnecessary! Would you like to break yourself of the cathartic habit? At the same time building health and vigor that protects you from frequent sick spells, headaches, and colds? Get a big bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin today. Use often enough to avoid those attacks of constipation. When you feel weak and run-down or a coated tongue or bad breath warns you the bowels need to be stimulated. Give it to children instead of strong laxatives that sap their strength. It isn't expensive.

Teacher Gives Old Age Rules

By United Press. PARIS.—M. Mareschal, oldest school teacher in France, allowed himself to be interrupted on his 100th birthday as he was setting out on a 10-mile hike with an 80-year-old friend, to give his rules for longevity. He was anxious to be off on his jaunt, but recommended the following tenets in his doctrine: "Live normally. Never get mad. Be gay. Get up between 7 and 10 a. m. Eat breakfast in bed or in the kitchen. Drink wine. Eat lots of snuff. Sleep when and where you feel like it, and take a bath every day." The secret of longevity, he said, lies in these 10 terse commandments: "There were no school palaces or gymnasiums," he added, "like youngsters have now. We had basements, or a backroom in the town hall. Our system wasn't so great, but we taught all the families for years, back in 1853, and we did a mighty good job of it, too. Come back in 25 years or so and I'll tell you some more."

Spanish Prince Many Seek Job In United States

PARIS.—Altesse Royal Infant Philippe d'Orleans de Bourbon, 45-year-old son of Princess Eulalie de Bourbon, aunt of ex-King Alfonso d'Orleans de Bourbon, is soon to seek a job in aviation, engineering, or anything else that he may find, or be offered. He is tired of being royalty, even ex-royalty, and wants to work and earn his own living. Prince Alfonso is the brother of Louis-Ferdinand, who, with his wife, Princess Marie de Broglie, own the historical and palatial Chateau Chaumont, once occupied by Diane de Poitiers, Catherine de Medici and Madame de Staël, only three hours distant from Bourges. Alfonso has three sons, Alvaro, Alonso and Ataulfo, the first two of whom are soon to marry their cousins, Beatrice and Marie Christine, daughters of the dethroned King and Queen of Spain. Ataulfo is 15, while his brothers, Alvaro and Alonso, are 22 and 20, respectively. The wedding of Beatrice and Alvaro is to take place in July, at Montainebleau, while Marie Christine must wait until she comes of age three years hence. Alfonso is her fiancé, having at work on his engineering studies in Zurich, Switzerland. Infanta Eulalie, mother of the adventurous prince, may possibly accompany her son to America, or come over later with his wife and youngest son. Should the family become installed in America, it would mean that Beatrice and Marie Christine and their fiancés would doubtless become frequent visitors to the United States, as well as would the king and queen. Princess Eulalie says she would "adore to visit America," but feels that she is too old to travel around the country.

Texas Farmers Hold 36 Million Bushels of Corn

AUSTIN.—Texas farmers still had on hand 39,584,000 bushels of corn March 1, the March crop condition report for the state, issued hereby the joint federal-state crop and livestock estimate service said. This represented 42 per cent of last year's crop, and indicated a heavy factor of carry-over feed for the production of this year's crop. The estimate said that the farms held 21,591,000 bushels, or 36 per cent of last year's crop; 7,466,000 bushels, or 13 per cent, of last year's wheat; 831,000 bushels of barley and 3,000 bushels of rye. The report said winter conditions prior to March 1—and prior to the severe freeze of March 9-11—was unusually favorable. Moisture was plentiful. "Wheat is making good growth," the report said, "and moisture supplies are ample. Acreage sown last fall in Texas was 3,768,000, or 1 per cent less than in the fall of 1930. The 7,466,000 bushel supply of wheat on hand is far in excess of the carry-over of a year ago, then estimated at 1,908,000 bushels. The national wheat supply on hand on farms now was estimated at 207,323,000 bushels, and of corn, 1,103,691,000 bushels.

Polar Bear Presents Zoo Tenth Cub

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Sultana, the only captive polar bear in the world to raise cubs to maturity, astonished zoo experts again this week by emerging from her cage with her tenth cub. Victims of their mother's neglect, cubs in other zoos throughout the world die before they are a few weeks old. Sultana's first cub was born in 1919 and still is alive. Although Sultana is 23, Director Edman Heller of the Milwaukee zoo believes she may live to have more cubs.

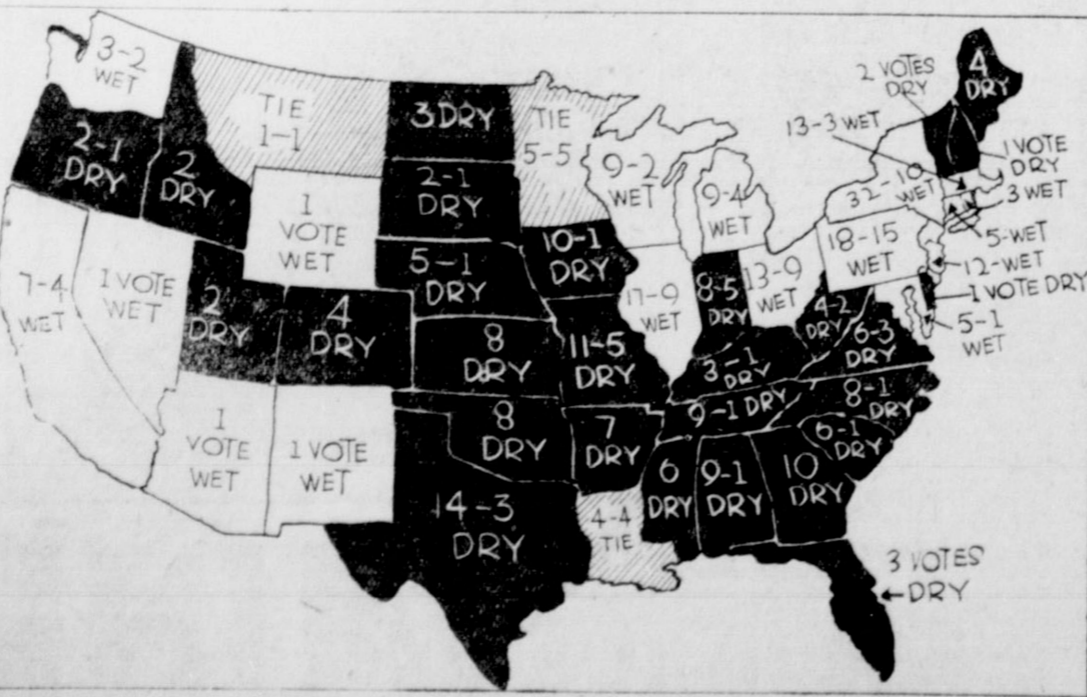

Gopher Starts A Legal Battle

TOPEKA, Kan.—The wiseness who spend their spare moments sneaking into homes and have scored another grand slam. This time the teapot tempest swirls around the pocket gopher, a little rodent-like animal that is no more than a disappearing flash of brown to the casual observer. The question before the house: Is the gopher a fur-bearing animal? If so, does a farmer have to get a 830 trapper's license to attempt extermination of the pest for which counties pay cash? Paul R. Wunsch, Kingman county attorney, notified that if a gopher is a fur-bearing animal, a trapper's license is required to catch it. Walter Griffin, assistant attorney general, looked around and found a statute making an exception of the gopher in providing for the number of traps which might be used in catching fur-bearing animals, which apparently makes the gopher a fur-bearing animal under the law.

The paper is discolored, and many pages are thumb worn, but the print still is readable.

How Congress Vote Mapped Prohibition

When congress voted on a proposal to bring the Beck-Linthicum prohibition amendment out of committee in the first wet-dry test of importance since 1917, representatives lined up as shown in sketch map above. The Beck-Linthicum resolution, still locked in committee, would amend the eighteenth amendment to allow state control of liquor. Wets piled up a surprise vote of 187 to bring the proposal before congress. They were defeated by 227 dry-voting congressmen. The eighteenth amendment originally was adopted in the house by a vote of 282 for and 128 against.

HISTORIC MEAT PACKING CASE IN HIGH COURT

WASHINGTON.—The historic case of the Chicago meat packers will be revived late this week in supreme court. The nation's highest tribunal will be asked to decide whether changing economic conditions, particularly the enormous growth of the chain store food business since 1920, justify altering the decree of 12 years ago, which forbade the "Big Five" of the meat packers, to deal in unrelated food products. Although the court less than a year ago handed down a decision considered inimical to chain store retailing, the relationship between that decision and the packer's case is so remote as to deny comparisons. The decision was in the Indiana chain store tax case which upheld a chain store tax as a proper state regulation. Ask Liberalized Decree. The packers, who in 1920 agreed not to handle unrelated food articles, but to confine their business to meat packing and the production of meat products, want the 1920 consent decree liberalized to permit them to handle these goods. In defense of this plea they charge that other packers are not hampered by their restrictions and that chain stores have in some occasions gone into the meat packing industry. The District of Columbia supreme court more than a year ago approved this stand and liberalized the decree to permit wholesale, but not retail, dealing in food products not related to meat packing. It is this ruling the government is appealing. First Court Action. The first court action was begun against the packers in 1903 when the government brought a Sherman act suit to restrain them from conspiring to control the purchase of livestock and the sale and distribution of meat products. An injunction was issued. The entire proceeding was accompanied by widespread debate and public clamor in and out of congress. In 1917 President Wilson ordered a federal trade commission investigation into the industry and from this inquiry the government's complaint on which the present action was based was filed. The action was aimed at Swift & Co., Armour & Co., Morris & Co., Wilson & Co., and the Cudahy Packing company. In 1925 the secretary of agriculture permitted Armour to take over Morris & Co. despite the decree. On the basis of this complaint the packing companies signed a consent decree forbidding them to hold interest in stockyard companies, stockyard terminal railroads or market newspapers and from engaging in the manufacture, sale or distribution of certain enumerated foods, and from holding an interest in public cold storage warehouses. Only Swift and Armour brought the proceedings seeking liberalization. The other packers, however, joined to have whatever modification might be made apply to them. John Garner Didn't Make Impression On His Teacher. FORT WORTH.—Despite his present fame, John Garner didn't make a lasting impression on his schoolmaster. J. N. Leading Chinese Heroes in Battle

Just Out and Money for Someone

WHITE LEGHORNS RHODE ISLAND REDS On next Tuesday we take off our first bunch of White Leghorns. These are real English White Leghorns, hatched from Eastland County farm flocks that are now paying their owners a profit from egg production. Will make special price on 500 or more. These should lay next fall and winter when we hope eggs will be a good price. We have hundreds of the most vigorous and healthy Rhode Island Reds we have ever produced. All from free range farm grown hens, right here in Eastland and Stephens Counties, where they can be seen. You cannot go wrong on these for early fryers, or for winter layers. Also have Buff Orphingtons, Wyandottes, Barred Rocks, and other heavy breeds. Remember when you deal with us you can see what you are getting.

Grain Taken in Exchange for Baby Chicks! This is an unusual offer. You need the chicks, we need the grain. Come in and bring your grain and take these fine chickens home with you.

WE DO CUSTOM HATCHING!—BRING US YOUR EGGS! Remember we do custom hatching. Get your own eggs and set them any Monday. We believe in our chicks and that they will live and make a profit at present prices of feed. Will put out a limited number on shares to anyone who is unable to pay for them, and wants a start, and can assure us they are equipped to take care of them. Take advantage of the times and get a start on this practically FREE offer.

was grateful for the falsehood. "In the first place I'll arrange to get the license for you," Symes went on practically. "I saw the Rev. Mr. Southey yesterday and I know he'll be only too ready to forget his part in the ceremony. He was considerably upset when I spoke to him. But about the license—how long was the filing of it to be held up? Do you know?"

"Until after we'd sailed," Ellen said on a half sob.

"Steady—steady," Symes warned her, but she was silent again and composed. "How many people know of the marriage besides your immediate family?"

"Why, no one," Ellen began and then stopped. "Mrs. Clancy, a neighbor of ours knows," she amended. "Mrs. Clancy and Lorene Elliott."

"Can you trust them?"

"I'm sure I can."

"You understand that a situation of this sort is extremely difficult to keep hidden," Symes said. "You understand that any newspaper would be eager to buy such a sensation. Can you trust Mrs. Clancy?"

Ellen nodded.

"I can answer for myself, for the nurse, and for the physicians. Dr. Wescott doesn't think any way—"

"I know," Ellen interrupted. "I know that he didn't think I was married to Steven. I could tell from the first."

"Physicians see such strange things," Symes put in uncomfortably.

"I'd forgotten him. But he hardly counts. He'd never seen you before, had he? Doesn't know your name, or where you live?"

"I gave him Mrs. Clancy's phone number and asked him to say that

In Wake of Capital Storm

The savage wind that swirled up the Atlantic seaboard, imperiling shipping and leaving widespread property damage in its wake, took its toll at the nation's capital, too. This picture shows how some of the famous trees near the capitol building were uprooted and hurled to the snow-blanketed ground while the storm raged. It was Washington's fiercest gale in nearly 10 years.

Ellen wanted her mother but—that's all.

Even as Ellen spoke Fergus entered quietly, softly. Seeing him frightened the girl vaguely. Fergus seemed to menace her frail security. She felt he distrusted and disliked her as much as she disliked and distrusted him.

"What is it?" Symes asked.

"Dr. Wescott is just leaving, sir," Fergus said. "He's going to report Mr. Barclay's death and wanted to see you first."

"All right. I'll see him," Symes answered, rising. "By the way," he continued, "do you know if Mr. Barclay's sister is in town or not."

She should be notified."

"Mrs. Harrowgate returned from Europe several weeks ago," Fergus replied, noticing as Symes did not that the girl on the dyan seemed to grow white as he spoke the words.

"Well, get in touch with her son and notify him of his uncle's death. His number's not listed but I have it here."

It was Larry Harrowgate's telephone number that Symes repeated.

all drawn up. God, if I'd only let him sign them when he wanted to!

"We can prove any way," he continued, "that you had no suspicion that the marriage was bigamous. Your mother was there, your sister—"

"Stop! Stop this instant!" Ellen broke in with shock and pain. "I don't want the money! I've told you again and again. It's not the money that's driving me frantic."

"My dear child, that money belongs to you," he protested, stammered. "Steven wanted you to have it. That was almost the last thing he was thinking of—your future. You can't throw away a fortune."

"I can't!" Ellen repeated hysterically. "Why can't I? Is that what you were thinking of? Is that what you meant by court? Steven gave me everything and now—now that he's dead you think I'd fight for more, drag his name through the newspapers, have people thinking that I thought so little of my honor—?"

Symes was genuinely amazed by the girl's earnestness. Patiently he pointed out that the money was hers, that only a court battle stood between her and possession. Patiently he pointed out that with the money she could go anywhere, seek new scenes, new people, new interests. But Ellen stopped him. She looked up to him and asked, "But if it weren't for the money you and I could do for Steven this thing that—he can't do for himself?"

"Keep the marriage with you a secret," he answered thoughtfully. "I suppose it could be managed. Yes, I'm certain it could be managed but it's a mad idea. Are you sure of what you're doing?"

"Quite sure," she said steadily.

"I don't believe I've ever met so quixotic a young woman."

"It's not only Steven I'm thinking of," Ellen admitted in a shamed, honest voice. "I'm thinking of myself. I don't think I could bear the publicity. I want to get away—I want to go back to being the girl I used to be."

Small and dazed, in a crumpled white linen dress that was no whiter than her exhausted face, Ellen sat looking at the lawyer and pleaded that this part of her life should be blotted out as though it had never been.

"Certainly you can," he said gruffly, untruthfully.

She knew that he had lied but
