Committees In Each Town Will Soon Have Forms

Essential Facts About Loans Discussed By County Agent

All members of the County Executive committee and the six community committees on Eastland county federal feed loans were present at a meeting last night in the county courtroom of the Eastland county courthouse. O. P. Newberry of Gorman, chairman of the county committee, presided. County agent Patterson had before the committee samples of the various forms which are to be filled out by applicants for federal loans before the loan can be considered and either approved or disapproved. It was announced at this meeting that just as soon as the forms for applications were received letters, giving notice of this fact and much other information on the loan, would be mailed to the farmers. It was also stated at this meeting that a fee of 50 cents for each borrower is to be assessed for the necessary typing and for running the records at the courthouse. Also there will be a notary fee charged. In discussing the loans the following essential facts were brought out:

(1) Loans will be made only to bona fide farmers, such farmers being required to give statements showing what crops, how much acreage and the yields of crops grown by them in 1929 and 1930.
(2) No person is entitled to a loan that has security on which he can obtain the money from any other source.
(3) Landlords and other mortgage or claim holders must subjugate their liens to that to be given the federal government.
(4) The borrower must give a legal description of the lands which he is cultivating and must name the crops he is to plant. Also he must agree to plant good seed.
(5) Applications for loans are to be made to the community committee nearest to the borrowers. Eastland County Federal Seed Loan Committees

New York, Jan. 27.—Charged that the commander of the coast guard cutter 145 was intoxicated when he boarded the Josephine K. were made today by members of the crew of the Nova Scotia schooner which was captured off-shore with a cargo of liquor. The charges against coastguardsman here were made by Wesley Anderson, first mate of the Josephine K., whose captain William Cluett was mortally wounded by one of the one-pound shells fired by the coast guard cutter. His story differed in almost every respect from the version given by the coastguardsmen and for the first time the purported name of the boatswain who commanded the cutter was mentioned. Anderson showed the United Press a receipt which he said was given him by the boatswain. It was signed "K. Schmidt" and acknowledged that the coastguard had removed the sextant and the barometer from the Josephine K. "I only heard three shots," Anderson said and we stopped after the first one.

Forty-Five Days Left In Which To Introduce Bills

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 27.—There are still 45 more days in which to introduce bills in the Texas House of Representatives and 30 in the Senate for the 42nd Legislature. The Senate late Monday compromised on admitting bills for 45 days which Senators explained leaves 30 days more. The House previously voted to admit bills for 60 days of which 45 are left. The Senate action was a compromise. The new Senators led the fight against varying the constitutional provision for 30 days for introduction of bills. Senator W. K. Hopkins of Gonzales tried repeatedly to have the Senate track the constitutional provision asserting that the validity of bills otherwise introduced will be open to question.

If all the 80,000,000 trees in Texas were bearing, and each tree produced 10 pounds of nuts and each pound brought 30 cents—all possibilities—the total income from this source would be $240,000,000 a year, the bulletin estimated.

FOR GINGER'S SAKE

BY ETHEL HUESTON

© 1930 THE BOBBES-MERRILL CO.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Because life was so slow in the little town of Red Thrush, Iowa, Ginger Ella Tolliver conceived the idea of a Junior Country club to save the younger set from utter boredom. It was to be exclusive—no parents allowed, no babies. Accordingly, she arranged for the purchase of the Mill Rush farm, a 10-acre tract with an old house on it, and proceeded, with the assistance of her friends, to overhaul and furnish it.

Ginger was the daughter of a minister and the stepdaughter of a very wealthy woman, the former Phil Van Doorn, who was a tolerant person and crazy about Ginger. One day, while the rehabilitation of the club house was going on, an artist called at the kitchen of the Tolliver home and offered to do a portrait in exchange for a meal. After he had shaved off his beard Ginger found to her surprise that he was good looking. He had studied in Paris and his name was Bard Holloway.

Ginger, who was never at a loss for ideas, thought it would be a good one if Bard remained for a while in Red Thrush, instead of wandering about the country like a hobo. He could pick up some money painting portraits. And he could do the mural decorations in the new club house, for Ginger was bound it would be a success.

So Ginger gets her stepmother, Phil to invite him to stay with the Tollivers, but the artist demurs. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XI

"Yes," Bard Holloway said despondently, "I want to, and I'd love to stay, but Miss Ginger—somehow she's got you to take it for granted—Nobody here knows me."
"But Mrs. Updike—" began Phil.

"Oh, she arranged that herself over the phone not 20 minutes ago. She's the greatest little arranger I ever saw in my life. The Updikes don't know a thing about me. They just did it because it was her suggestion."
"Of all the dumb-bells," muttered Ginger exasperatedly.

Phil laughed. Mr. Tolliver looked mildly puzzled.
"I'm terribly sorry," Holloway said to Ginger. "I'd love to stay, but I'm just crazy to stay—but look where it places me. You put everything wrong."
"Don't worry, my dear Mr. Holloway," said Phil consolingly. "You see, we have one great advantage over you. We know Ginger, and you don't."
"Well, I—I'm beginning to suspect. Let me tell you how it happened—"

"Really, it isn't necessary," protested Ginger. "They wouldn't have invited you if they hadn't wanted you."
"But you worked them into inviting me, you know you did. You came around here on purpose, and it was the slickest job I ever saw pulled."
"Let me tell you, I went through the League in New York and took a lot of prizes and got a two-year scholarship to study in Paris. Well, I took more prizes in Paris, and I began to think I was terribly good. But I came back, and I couldn't make a go of it. Couldn't sell anything. Couldn't get orders for portraits. I tried, but I just didn't have the hang of it. I can paint all right, but I just can't sell myself. I went out to Chicago and had a try at some commercial work, but I couldn't put that over either. So I just took all my worldly possessions and piled them into my eight-or-nine-hand fiver and set out—to paint, to drive, to learn more about life—hoping, of course, I'd come across something good.

"Once in a while a little job turns up and I loaf over a few days and do it. And then breeze on. I was desperate in New York. I had to do something. So I trapped to do a pencil sketch of your cook for my dinner, and Miss Ginger took me in hand—and you see what she has done with me. I can give you the names of people who know me—I have my passports and a lot of papers and things—I can prove everything I've said. But Miss Ginger—"

"You say you are driving through?" asked Phil with interest.
"Yes. Taxing west, as you might say. I call it 'Rattletrapting.' But when I offer my art in exchange for nourishment it seems more in keeping with the part to leave the Rattletrap around the bend of the road. I've got driver's licenses and everything. I didn't steal the car. Nobody would."

"Well, run the Rattletrap up to the garage then," said Phil cheerfully. "Hamill will carry your things upstairs." If Ginger has taken you in hand you'll probably be doing portraits in Red Thrush the rest of your life."
"Do you mean you—you still want me—you will let me stay a while?" he demanded boyishly.

"Of course," said Phil, as one surprised. "We are a parsimonious household. We would never dream of retracting an invitation. They're really great," she added in a tone of friendly confidence. "You'll like them when you get on to their little ways. Will you bring your car up?"

He ran down the steps at once, laughing with pleasure.
"But, Ginger," began Mr. Tolliver in a puzzled voice, "if you did not know the boy, what did you want him to stay for?"
"Oh, father," said Ginger, "I was—so bored."

But her hand sought Phil's and squeezed it rapturously, as girl and woman smiled gladly into each other's eyes.
As Bard Holloway had said, the Rattletrap was very, very old, and heavily loaded, containing practically all of his worldly possessions, and far from world for the most part they were.

He pulled off to the garage, and Hamill, the man of all work, busied himself unloading the contents, bag after box, separating the things Bard indicated that he would want upstairs from those to be left in the car.
The three Tollivers sauntered interestedly out to see what was going on.

"Why don't you take everything right up?" questioned Ginger anxiously. "Then you can settle right down—and everything."
"Oh, I shan't need all that trash. I've got stuff here for camping, for breakdowns both motor and financial, and all other contingencies. That's my easel and stool for outdoor painting. Those bags must go up—my wardrobe! You see, I brought everything I have to my name except a few canvases which I left on display in the galleries in New York. Hope doesn't die hard, it doesn't die at all. I still have hopes of a sale or two. I brought a few with me. I suppose you wouldn't care about seeing them," he added suggestively.
"We'd love it," said Phil.

The artist in him ignoring all conventionalities of time and place, he eagerly pulled out a big square case, carefully wrapped in an old blanket which he quickly removed, laughing with ingenuous pleasure.
"This first one—you're really safe in saying it's rather good," he said. "It got honorable mention ever so many times in Paris and Vienna, and has won me three cash prizes. It's a battlefield in France—early morning—all gray mist. Those pale blurs are the crosses on the graves—everything swimming in the gray mist—bits of old entanglement, charred tree stumps, old shellholes, farm implements of reconstruction—and while crosses—all blurred together into the gray sea of morning. Do you like it?"
"That's good," said Phil slowly, more impressed than she was ready to acknowledge.
"I think it is exquisite," said Ginger passionately.

Bard flushed with pleasure. "This is the old woman I bought my papers on in Paris."
Phil laughed. "I know her. In the Quartier. She sat on a three-legged stool so near the curb that we were always breathless expecting her to go over head-first. That's very good, my dear boy."
"This is Eugenie. She was the chambermaid in our pension. She would never stand still long enough for me to get a proper sketch of her—I had to steal it, line upon line precept upon precept, when she was dashing in and out on errands. She held the corner of her apron to her lip like that when she was trying to speak English. Oh, they're not much—I'm young yet," he added with a great assumption of carelessness. And he made an indifferent motion to toss them back into the car.

Historic Autos In Basement Of Senate Building

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—Stored away in a dusty room in the basement of the U. S. Senate office building are two electric automobiles—perhaps the most historic electric automobiles in Washington.

These antiquated vehicles, purchased in 1908, served as transportation for weary lawmakers going from the Capitol to the Senate office building. Such dominating figures in the chamber as Chauncey DePue, Philander C. Knox, Robert La Follette, Henry Cabot Lodge, Reed Smoot, and Elihu Root made frequent use of them.

They ran in the tunnel between the two buildings and seated 12 passengers. While they ran perfectly from the Capitol to the office building, there was some difficulty encountered on the uphill return trip.

After three years' service, the cars were discarded. In their place was installed a fast mono-rail car, which is still in use.

VOICE STUNT PROGRAM IS GREATLY ENJOYED

The Women's Missionary Society met at the Methodist church Monday afternoon for the Voice "Stunt" program. The room was made attractive by means of a dozen or more clever and interesting posters illustrating the magazine, The Missionary Voice.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. T. J. Haley, the vice president, and a business proposition was presented by Mrs. Walter Holmesley of Cisco. The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. B. E. McGlamery, program leader for the afternoon. In a short devotional period, various passages from the Bible were read, telling of God's voice calling to His people, and these were summed up in the verse, "The Master is come."

WHEN A CHILD IS FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful of a class of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, cures children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting. Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address The Phillips Co., 170 Varick St., New York, N. Y. It will be sent FREE.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.—Adv.

WHAT SCRIBES ARE WRITING

P. E. Shotwell has signed a contract to coach the Breckenridge Buckaroos for another year. This is good news not only to Breck fans but to Oil Belt followers as a whole. One of the "Big" Four coaches is already lost and if another of the members who has created a dread for the Oil Belt throughout the state were to leave the loop, the strength of the district would be dealt just that much harder blow.

What will be the effect of Coach Chapman's departure from Cisco? For one thing, the prospects of the Lobos for next season did not appear as bright as usual, even before the announcement of Chapman's resignation. Many of the bulwarks of 1930 will be missing next fall—Turknett, Chambliss, Steen, Cole and others, if we recall rightly, being through. Then with a new coach who will have a system that is different and who is not familiar with his material, Cisco in 1931 may not shine as brightly as in past seasons. Especially if the coach is from another section of the state and is not familiar with conditions and rivalries in the Oil Belt.

Maybe the departure of Chapman will enable Eastland to defeat the Lobos. The year before "Chap" went to Cisco, the Mavericks tied the Lobos. The next season, 1922, Cisco won and the Big Dam teams have been winning over Eastland ever since. Perhaps with Chapman gone, the Eastland club will decide that the old book is closed and a new ledger can be opened. The happening comes at a timely moment for Eastland, too, as the Mavs have the best outlook for a winning club that the county capital has had in many a year.

Claim Wealthy Man Kidnaped By Young Wife

CARTHAGE, Mo., Jan. 27.—Three affidavits have been obtained supporting the claim that Hugh W. Thomasson, aged 57, St. Louis capitalist was kidnaped by his beautiful wife and brought to Carthage, a local attorney said today.

The attorney obtained the affidavit at the request of F. C. Rogers, St. Louis attorney investigating the circumstances of Thomasson's departure from that city on the eve of trial of his suit of annulment of his marriage.

"He was led protesting to a hotel here," it was said, "and when he was taken away he was literally dragged through the lobby. He kept repeating that he wanted an officer called."

White Canes Aid Rochester Blind

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 27.—Blind residents of Rochester are now provided with white canes to aid in identifying them.

The police department cooperated in the work by ordering patrolmen to watch for and assist the users of the canes. Residents were also asked to help.

If a blind person likes a particular cane he now has, it will be painted white for him.

With the exception of New York City, Rochester is the home of more blind persons than any other city in the state, police officials said.

Says Women's Legs In America Pretty

SEATTLE, Jan. 27.—Women's legs not skyscrapers or industrial achievements, are the most remarkable things in America, in the opinion of La Argentina, Spanish dancer who came here for a recital.

"Ooo—such beautiful legs," she smiled as she watched young American women in the lobby of a hotel. "Never have I seen such legs as the American women have. They impress me more than anything else in your magnificent country."

K. C. LEADER TO VISIT IN RANGER SOON

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 26. R. A. MacKenzie, representative of the supreme council, Knights of Columbus, will visit five Texas councils, during the week of Feb. 2. He will arrive in Fort Worth on Monday, Feb. 5, and will be the guest of Fort Worth council on that date. On Feb. 3, he will visit Pilot Point council in Pilot Point. On Feb. 4 and 6, he will visit Ranger council in Ranger. On Feb. 6 and 7, he will visit Dallas council in Dallas and on Feb. 8, he will meet with the officers and members of Ennis council in Ennis.

He will make suggestions regarding the business administration of the council and will also report on the activities of the supreme council, chief of which at the present time is the boy work program. The order sponsors the only graduate boy guidance course in the world at Notre Dame university and also conducts 10-night institutes in biology in co-operation with other boy work organizations. The Columbian Squires, junior organization of the Knights of Columbus, has circles in many parts of the United States and Canada, and is growing steadily.

Mr. MacKenzie will also give some interesting figures on the membership and insurance strength of the order. The membership as of June 30 was 618,611 in 2,555 councils in the United States, Canada, Philippine Islands, Cuba, Mexico, Porto Rico, Newfoundland, Alaska and Panama. The insurance in force was $288,304,040 and the insurance liabilities as calculated by the actuaries on Jan. 1 were $23,370,629. The ratio of assets to liabilities was 130.44 per cent and the margin of safety was 30.44 per cent over and above the statutory standards.

Cats To Train In Ft. Worth This Year

FORT WORTH, Jan. 27.—Spring training of the Fort Worth Cats, Texas league baseball team, will be held this year in Fort Worth to please local fans. Training is scheduled to begin March 9.

In former years the Cats trained at Mineral Wells, but officials said fans clamored to get a daily look at the team. So this year the training period is to be held at home.

Children's Colds Doubly Dangerous With Flu Around

While there is no cause for serious alarm over the development of scattered cases of flu in this locality, health authorities say that extra precautions should be taken to check every cold at the start. Unless treated promptly, colds tend to lower body resistance and may pave the way for an attack of influenza with all its serious complications.

Internal medication should be avoided except on the advice of a physician. Too much "dosing" often disturbs the digestion and lowers the vitality just when the child needs its body-strength most.

Applied externally, Vicks VapoRub can be used freely and as often as needed with no fear of upsetting the stomach. Rubbed on throat and chest, Vicks acts thru the skin like a poultice or plaster, drawing out the tightness and soreness. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are inhaled direct to the irritated air-passages, loosening the phlegm, and soothing the irritation.

Of course, Vicks two-way action is just as effective for adults' cold- troubles, too. Don't take chances with colds NOW!—Adv.

"You can bet your Bottom Dollar Germ-Processed Oil won't fail you these cold days"

The multitude of motorists who have switched to Conoco Germ-Processed Motor Oil know what a great oil it is for summer use. They are wondering how it will act in cold weather at zero and below.

The makers of Conoco know. Better still, thousands of users know from their experiences of last winter. In Canada, Montana, the Dakotas, and other cold weather areas, Conoco Germ-Processed did not congeal. It remained fluid and continued to furnish efficient lubrication.

This accomplishment is no surprise. Conoco Germ-Processed is easy starting, non-congealing at sub-zero temperatures, because it is a thoroughly de-waxed paraffin base oil. The Penetrative Lubricity of Germ Process makes certain an ever-present lubricating film in your motor, even after long periods of idleness... particularly valuable at starting time, when 40% to 60% of motor wear occurs.

Save this wear on your motor... your battery... your nerves. Drain and refill now with the proper grade of Conoco Germ-Processed oil at the sign of the Conoco Red Triangle. All grades, 35¢ per quart.
