TOURING WITHOUT EVEN A ROAD MAP

The man who wants to get a good idea of the way the whole administration recovery program is going to work out can't do much else than come back about two years from now.

The one thing that is clear today is that all signs fail in a time like the present. We're trying something so completely new that the man who wants to do a little prognosticating has nothing to go on. Everything is adrift, and about the only prediction that seems safe is that when the various blocks have all been put together again the picture will look like nothing we ever saw before.

It is for this reason that all the learned attempts to analyze and dissect the recovery program are so contradictory. No two critics of the program get the same result.

Does the arch-conservative complain—as one did, recently—that it is getting almost impossible to tell the news from Moscow from the news from Washington these days? On another page you can find the arch-radical protesting that the whole business is just a great fascist coup designed to enthrone privileged wealth forever.

Does the studious economist prove conclusively, with graphs and columns of figures, that the kind of economy represented in the industrial and agricultural control plans cannot possibly work? You can find books by equally studious economists (written before March 4 last) proving that only through a planned economy similar to the one being attempted can a mechanized modern society survive.

The doctors, in other words, disagree about as thoroughly as can be imagined; and the more thoughtful and learned they are, the more they seem to differ with one another.

And what it all comes down to is the fact that we are starting out on a road so new that we have got to make up our maps as we go along.

That, in turn, brings our democratic society up against its supreme test. Have we enough intelligence, enough aptitude for the science of politics, enough training in the business of self-government, to carry this experiment through successfully? If you doubt it you had better start looking for a cyclone cellar. But if you believe that we have—and there are good reasons for so believing—you can face the future with confidence.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

W. D. HASTINGS, publisher of the Columbia (Tenn.) Herald, says:

"When cold facts well displayed in type in an advertisement came in contact with printers' ink, they make an indelible and lasting impression upon the human mind.

"Wifely waste is apt to create woeful want. And yet that is what is taking place in this country today. The destruction of cotton, the slaughtering of hogs. The use of printers' ink properly backed up by convincing words might have convinced Secretary Wallace that it would have been more profitable in the long run to have castrated the male hogs rather than slaughter the sows and pigs.

"It is better to give than to receive. Therefore, it would be better to allow these hogs to grow to maturity, slaughter them then and pack them away in bacon and give it to the poor and needy.

"It is better to have a half loaf than no loaf at all, but when there is a whole loaf in sight, why discard it for a half loaf? This holds good with the swine. A 225 pound hog will go further than a 100 pounder.

"Nothing is so convincing as a statement printed on gold black letters—nothing is so lasting upon the mind. That this is a fact has been demonstrated through the ages that have passed. Then why will the national advertiser kid himself by thinking he is getting over something impressive when he talks it over the radio? Radio is in one ear and out the other. The old masters got theirs from printers' ink, spread upon the pages of the text books. Printers' ink make a lasting impression, an impression that time alone can erase.

"Just one more than I'm through. 'You can fool all the people some of the time, but can't fool some of the people all of the time.' Therefore, right is bound to prevail and the advertiser who thinks he can make his conversation over the radio stick will wake up and find that he has spent his money for nothing, and he is just nearer he began and will have to go back into the columns of his old home paper. Thasall."

Most cities seem to have a lot of trained speakers. They are good to have around if they have been trained to about the right things at the right time.

TECHNICOLOR THRILLER "WAX MUSEUM" SHOWS AT LYRIC TODAY

One of the strangest and most exciting thrillers, "The Mystery of the Wax Museum," will open at the Lyric theatre today, with Lionel Atwill, Glenda Farrell, Frank McHugh and Fay Wray heading a large cast of sterling players.

The story, taken from the play by Charles S. Beiden, deals with a series of mysterious disappearances of both living persons and human bodies and the appearance of a terrifying monster. The plot centers about a wax museum which has on display exceptionally lifelike figures of personages of history and notorious criminals. Important roles are enacted by Allen Vincent, Gavin Gordon, Edwin Maxwell, Holmes Herbert, Arthur Edmund Carewe, Thomas E. Jackson and Monica Bannister. The picture is photographed entirely in Technicolor with unusual lighting effects used to heighten the fascinating and mystery that dominates the production. The direction has been handled by Michael Curtiz, who is universally accepted as a past master in directing mystery thrillers. Curtiz, it will be remembered handled the megaphone for the recent Warner Bros. picture, "Doctor X," which was a tremendous sensation last year.

In addition to its excitement and suspense there is a romantic love angle with no end of humor supplied by smart, witty dialogue between Genda Farrell, the hard-boiled wise-cracking reporter who is on the trail of the mystery, and her managing editor, a part played by Frank McHugh. The screen play is by Don Mullally and Carl Erickson.
