PEERING THROUGH THE KNOTHOLE
By BILL MAYES

Having been so often times for the past few years, I have decided to write myself for a place in the newspaper after giving it the consideration. I feel that I know about the city of Eastland and having been a citizen since 1905, and was appointed by the Ranger board to work out the city of Eastland in the company.

TEACHERS OF SIX COUNTIES HOLD MEETING

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, Feb. 6.—E. N. Sandlin, high school supervisor, from the state department of education, conducted a conference in Breckenridge Saturday at the senior high school on physical training and health education.

There were 41 school people from Taylor, Shackelford, Eastland, Stephens, Young and Throckmold counties, including principals, principals and independent and county school superintendents.

The physical education law, passed in 1931, has not been administered wholly to the satisfaction of those engaged in public school work. It is just as much a law that this subject be taught as it is that the English language, the Constitution of the United States and other subjects be taught.

While her husband, Dr. Walter Keefe played the organ at a church service last night, Mrs. Skeele received a telephone call advising her that he had been injured in an automobile accident.

COTTON LAWS ARE PLANNED BY FERGUSON

AUSTIN, Feb. 6.—Former Governor James E. Ferguson and Governor Sennet Connor of Mississippi, have teamed up for an effort to save the south's cotton farmers.

Today a letter from Governor Connor revealed the following legislation was being considered:

1.—A graduated cotton tax. 2.—Mandatory reduction by regulation against continuous planting of soil exhausting crops. 3.—Prohibition of planting cotton on any other soil exhausting plant entirely during a specific year.

As 1933 cotton planting will be underway in much of Texas before any united movement of cotton states could be perfected, the proposed cotton relief program would not be effective until 1934.

Ranger Rifle Club To Hold Meeting At Legion Hall

RANGER TO BE SCENE FRUIT, TRUCK SCHOOL

A half-day fruit and vegetable school will be held in the American Legion hall in Ranger, beginning at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning and continuing until noon. The school will be under the direction of J. C. Patterson, Eastland county agent; Miss Ruth Ramey, Eastland county home demonstration agent, agricultural officials of the Texas & Pacific railway and the Texas A. & M. college.

There will be special talks on grading fruits and vegetables, hot beds, cold frames, insect control and other subjects that will be of interest to the fruit and vegetable growers in this section of the county.

These two schools should prove of much interest to the residents of the rural sections of the county because where certain fruits and vegetables crops are already established it is thought that increased production will mean bringing of competitive buyers.

According to C. M. Evans, agricultural agent of the Texas & Pacific railway, more than one-fourth of the income from American agriculture last year was from truck crops. This income was about equal to that from both cotton and grain crops.

Our crops are seasonal and for that reason the demand and market for our surplus is at distant points. For instance a large portion of our green wrapped tomatoes go to the northern and eastern markets and many of them to points in Canada.

How The Farm Allotment Plan Works

Man of Congress' Committee On Agriculture Explains the New Democratic Proposal.

BY REP. MARVIN JONES
Committee on Agriculture, U. S. House of Representatives
Written Especially for NEA Service

I believe that every thinking man will agree that there is no business recovery in this country until recovery with the purchasing power of the farmer.

Under the rule, I have been opposed to relief bills; in fact, I have voted against a number of such measures. But we are now confronted with a major emergency that demands immediate action. The price of what the farmer sells is far below pre-war levels, the price of what he must buy is still above pre-war levels. We must restore to the farmer his former parity of purchasing power before we can expect an upturn in business and the re-employment of the idle millions in our cities.

In explaining the "National Emergency Act" or "farm allotment plan" in the course of a speech in Congress, I used the analogy of a blood transfusion. I shall use the same analogy here.

"A Blood Transfusion" is an effort to administer a blood transfusion to the almost lifeless body of American agriculture. Agriculture must live if the nation is to live. The farmer is the life of the nation.

The farmer is the life of the nation. A great deal of consideration has been given to the problem of the farmer. The House committee on agriculture has worked out what is known as the allotment plan. It is intended solely as a temporary emergency measure. It is a permanent program can be worked out to provide a readjustment of prices, the making of our money a true measure of the value of the products of the farm, a shifting of taxes that are too heavily on the farmer, and a very real reduction of expenses in governmental, state and local.

Under the plan, the farmer would get a certificate for an additional sum representing the difference between the market price and the parity price.

But the period between now and harvest would be designated as "the initial period" and the ratio of fair exchange value would be placed at 75 cents per bushel for wheat and nine cents per pound for cotton. These prices would apply only to those commodities now held by the producer himself.

Must Cut Production. The farmer would be paid with an "allotment certificate," the difference between the normal market price and the "fair exchange price." To qualify for this he would have to show proof of a reduction in his acreage—or production—of the given commodity by 20 per cent. Such a provision would help eliminate the huge surpluses that are depressing farm prices. The farmers' certificate allowances would cover only that part of the production going into domestic consumption, such amounts to be fixed by the department of agriculture.

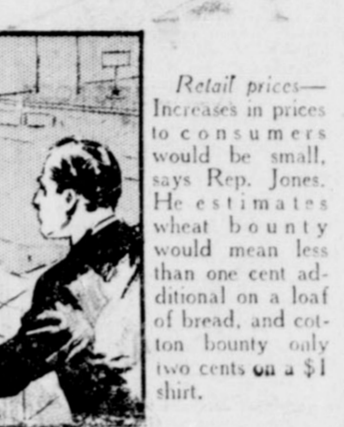

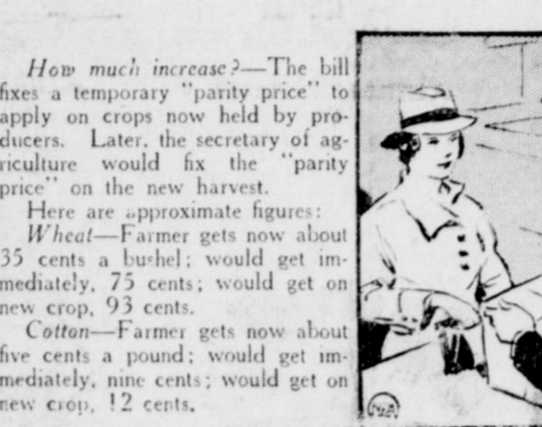

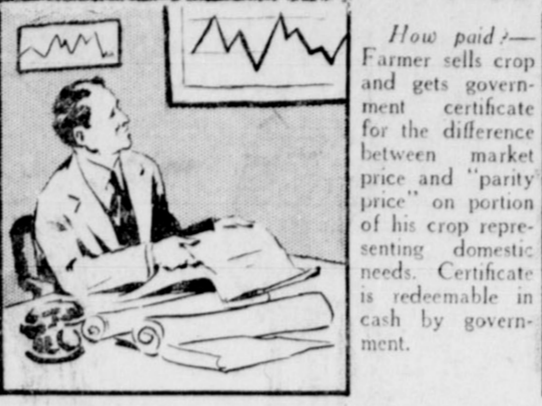

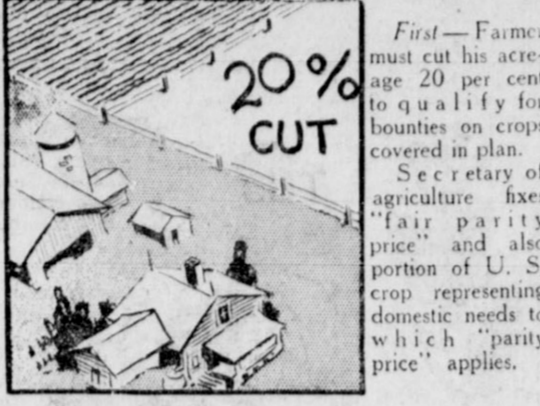

Here is a simple example of how the farm allotment plan would work during the initial period, assuming that the domestic consumption of wheat is fixed at 70 per cent of the total crop. A farmer has 1000 bushels of wheat to market. The prevailing market price is 35 cents a bushel. He sells his wheat for that price.

He is given a government certificate for the difference between that and 75 cents (or 40 cents a bushel) on 700 bushels, which amounts to $280. Thus, he would receive $280 in addition to the price paid by the buyer for his 1000 bushels. This certificate would be redeemed by the government for cash, half in 30 days and half in six months.

The plan would work similarly as to cotton and other commodities stated in the bill. After the initial period—when the new harvest season starts—the full ratio prices would be calculated by the secretary of agriculture, on 1929-30 farm commodity prices correlated with industrial prices over the same period to arrive at a parity of buying power.

Consumer Pays Little More. Where would the money come from? A processing fee would be levied by the government on the manufacturer of these farm commodities and this fee would be equal to the difference between the prevailing farm price and the pre-war ratio price. The fee would be paid by millers, meat packers, manufacturers of cotton goods, etc. As soon as the pre-war price levels

It's fun to be fooled — ...it's more fun to KNOW

"The Burning Oven" is an old illusion which has played a leading rôle in cigarette advertising. Its modern name is "Heat Treatment." All cigarette manufacturers use the heat-treating process. Cheap, harsh, raw tobaccos require intensive processing under high temperatures. The more expensive tobaccos, which are naturally mild, call for only a moderate application of heat. The first Camel cigarette was manufactured under the heat-treating process. Every one of the billions of Camels produced since has received the necessary heat treatment. But remember that heat treatment never makes cheap, inferior tobacco good. It is not in heat treatments, but in more costly tobacco and fine blending, that Camels find their appealing mildness and flavor.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand. You sense this quality in the mildness... the distinctive flavor... of Camels. More costly tobaccos and a matchless blend tell the story of Camel leadership in public confidence. Try Camels. Judge them critically. Compare them with others for mildness, for throat-ease, for good taste. Key your taste to quality! Camels come to you fresh and cool... in the air-tight, welded Humidor Pack that keeps dryness outside and freshness inside.

KIRSCHOGRAMS

THERE are three words in the English language that have a world of meaning... MODERATION... THOROUGHNESS... TOLERANCE.

For right living . . . . MODERATION
For right working . . . . THOROUGHNESS
For right thinking . . . . TOLERANCE

IT is always possible to evolve a plan whereby everybody wins and no one loses . . . profit to all, and loss to none.

ALL things being equal, unjust laws make more law breakers of law abiding citizens than just laws make law abiding citizens out of law breakers.

KIRSCHOGRAMS

IT should be the constant endeavor of every man to so live that the world will be a little better for his having lived in it.

NEARLY every statement is subject to more than one interpretation. It is always good practice where there is nothing more than our feelings involved in any statement, and we are not sure of the intent of the statement, to give the person making it the benefit of the doubt.

WHEN you are down you are very apt to be kicked for falling, but when you are in spot-light you are showered with roses and for-get-me-nots.

ONE of the biggest problems in our lives is to learn who our true friends are. The number of our friends seems to increase as our needs increase, but for their friendship grows less.

which she may have a table that is attractive, nourishing, and inexpensive.

Many successful housekeepers are now using a linen runner through the dining table center in lieu of a table spread or cloth.

This saves laundry bills and home washing, and yet makes an attractive, up-to-date setting for the table, which is found much easier to wipe off after Johnnie has spilt his milk and crumbs, and Dad had spattered with meat when carving, than to have to remove the cloth and scrub out resultant stains.

Place a bowl of nuts or fruit, if you have it, in the table runner center or an attractive bit of green may be provided for the clear crystal vase, in branches, beginning to bud, and clipped from the hedge or other bush growth about the premises. The brown stems and tender green foliage forms an attractive picture.

Yes, it's all in the way of looking at things whether one can make their surroundings desirable and pleasing, or leave neglected and uncomfortable.

The simple table was well told when Christ supped with Martha and Mary and partook of their frugal meal.

The tale is again told when Christ plucked the corn from the field for his hungry disciples, and yet again when the multitude was fed by Him, with the loaves and fishes.

Surely if he had the power to provide this food, he had the same power to have provided the banquet of rich dishes, and strange wines.

That greatest supper the world has ever known, was eaten from a bare board, and brought wine and bread.

If women will keep their heads up during this depression, and say inwardly, "I will do my best to keep conditions normal," then this painful battle between present conditions and existant needs will be satisfactorily accomplished, given the faith in prayer that is necessary to us all.

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS—By Blosser

SPOTLIGHT

Sheila Shayne, dancer, is discharged from a new play because Marian Randolph, the star is jealous of her. Sheila searches for work and finally secures a part in a musical show soon to go on tour. Dick Stanley, rich and socially prominent, asks her to marry him but Sheila refuses. Her idea of marriage is a home in a little town for from Broadway.

The company departs on the tour and in a little midwestern city Sheila meets Jerry Wyman. He seems to be a hard working young man with little money. Sheila is not aware that Jerry's father owns the factory where he works. Jerry is attentive and Sheila falls in love with him. After she leaves, however, Jerry's affection seems to cool. He writes infrequently and this makes Sheila unhappy.

Back in New York again, she gets a job in a night club. Weeks pass and then one night while dancing she sees Jerry sitting at a table. He comes to speak to her but does not introduce her to the others in his party. Jerry tells Sheila he has tried to call her. She does not believe this and refuses to make an engagement with him. Sheila is hired as the featured principal in another road company. The company sets off on its tour. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXI

It was several months before "Fine Feathers" played Jerry's home town. Sheila had not written to him but she was sure he would know of her arrival. Posters announcing that she was the featured member of the company had papered the town for two weeks. And so she was disappointed on reaching the hotel to find that, among her letters, there was no message from Jerry.

Perhaps he would telephone. That was more likely. She remained in her room, having lunch there, and hoping for a call but it did not come.

The "Fine Feathers" engagement in Spencer was for three nights. All that first day Sheila thought with the idea of telephoning Jerry. At last she took up the directory. There was no Wyman listed except a bicycle shop on a side street. Certainly she could not reach Jerry there.

Well, if she could not find the correct number she could not call him. That settled that!

"After the way I treated him last summer of course he won't call me," she told herself. "He'll think that if I want to see him I'll send some word."

Deep in her heart she knew this could not be true. The careless camaraderie of the theatrical world did not apply to Jerry Wyman's circle. There girls did not telephone to young men. They waited for them to call. No, Jerry was it was her duty to respond.

Later that night she was able to convince herself it was chance and not deliberate neglect that kept Jerry from telephoning or coming to see her.

She awoke Saturday morning, therefore, to take affairs into her own hands. She arose at 11 and dressed carefully. Then she left her room, took the elevator to the street floor and, for once, entered the dining room for breakfast. It was almost deserted. The head waiter, recognizing her, rushed forward.

"A nice seat near the window?" he urged.

The window was well above the street and Sheila nodded. She sat down, accepted the morning newspaper with a smile of thanks and gave her order.

It was a pleasant dining room. A pretty girl wearing a white cap and a ruffled apron brought the coffee. Then a waiter served the breakfast.

Under pretense of assuring himself that everything was satisfactory the head waiter returned. "Is everything as you wish?" he asked. "I hope, Miss Shayne, you won't mind my saying that on the stage and also off you are exquisite."

"Thank you."

He talked on eagerly then. He had three daughters, he said, all with stage aspirations. Would Miss Shayne be kind enough to give them some advice?

"Tell them," she said, "to stay off the stage."

The waiter smiled. He was certain that she was joking. "My daughters admire you so much," he said. "Everyone does, Miss Shayne."

She saw that he really meant it. Sheila surrendered to a sudden impulse of kindness. "Would your daughters like to come to the matinee today?" she asked. "And to my dressing room afterward? It would be a pleasure for me to arrange it."

The man was overwhelmed. He said that it would be an enormous, never-to-be-forgotten treat for the girls.

Scribbling on the back of an envelope, Sheila wrote an order to the boxoffice. She handed it to the man and said, "Tell them to come to the stage door after the performance. I will speak to the doorman."

She went out into the sunshine conscious of the man's gratitude. At the telegraph office she asked for a blank, sat down and considered what to write.

"Playing in Fine Feathers. Leaving tonight. Why not drop around?" Sheila. That seemed sufficient. Friendly but impersonal.

"I'm not sure of the address," she murmured to the obliging young man behind the counter. He bent his head respectfully.

JEWELLE JUDD, Editor

Stool Pigeon Speaks
Opal Carter was elected president of the Fidelity class of Central Baptist church Sunday. We feel sure she will make a good one.

We wish someone would fix the radiators in the high school. They make so much noise you can hardly hear yourself think.

Mrs. Gladys Wilbanks, head of the English department in Ranger high school, was the week-end guest of her parents over the week-end.

England and America sometimes are closer to each other by 63 feet because of the moon's influence. And a bottle of it sometimes will make old enemies get down and cry together.

A Thousand Yous

WHEN you pick up your newspaper and glance over the advertisements you quite unconsciously multiply yourself a thousand times.

In half or three-quarters of an hour you can, figuratively speaking, visit every progressive store in town. You virtually poke your head into every department of every department store. You run into the florist's, the confectioner's, the oculist's, the leading groceries, theaters, all the various places that supply the things that make this the twentieth century and life worth the living. Here is a greater choice in clothing, food, furniture, books, pictures, musical instruments, travel, entertainment, opportunities for investment, the service of public utility corporations than any monarch of old could command.

It would easily take a thousand yous, traveling hard all days, to find out for yourself what the advertisements tell you in a few minutes morning or evening.

Advertisements deserve your attention. They deserve your confidence. Without advertising, the prices you would have to pay for many of the necessities you now buy for small change would make a dollar look like a snowball on the kitchen range.
