Higher Prices—But for What?
Western farmers who for a decade have been pleading for higher grain prices are getting little pleasure out of the market boost, for most of them have lost a high percentage of crops in the intense early summer heat wave. George Dale is shown here on his farm near Dawson, Minn., plowing under his crop of oats, so badly burned that it was not worth cutting as hay.

170 KILLED IN UNITED STATES OVER HOLIDAY

By United Press
CHICAGO, July 5.—The nation's independence day celebration cost the lives of at least 170 persons, a survey by the United Press revealed today.
Traffic accidents, drownings, plane crashes and fireworks explosions contributed the majority of deaths.
With fair weather over most of the country, automobile and crossing mishaps took the heaviest toll. In Michigan alone 23 persons died in automobile accidents. Sixteen died in California from the same cause and seven in Kansas. A heavy toll was taken by similar accidents in other states, with Pennsylvania having six, Ohio eight, Iowa five and Indiana five.

CROWD ESTIMATED AT 20,000 CELEBRATES 'FOURTH' HERE

A crowd estimated at approximately 20,000 well fed well dressed and happy men, women and children saw the big free two-day celebration in Eastland Monday and Tuesday. The program began with a parade Monday at 1 p. m. and ended at 1:40 a. m. Tuesday night with a big street dance. Throughout both Monday and Tuesday and until late each night the streets were thronged with people. The entire program was given without a mishap of any kind.
The program, which consisted of a big two-day rodeo with plenty of bronc busting, wild steer roping and riding, calf roping, boxing, wrestling, jackass polo games, old fiddlers contest, square dance contest, etc., was pronounced one of the best ever witnessed in this section. Those in charge of the program are being highly praised for their efforts.

Mexican's Common Law Wife Collects $1,000 In Insurance

Judgment was rendered by Judge George L. Davenport in the 91st district court for the plaintiff in the case of Flora Ortego vs. the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. The evidence in this case was heard several weeks ago but the decision was delayed awaiting a brief that was furnished by parties interested in the defense.
The Ortego case is of interest not only for legal bearing of the decision but also because of its partial international setting. Ortego came to Eastland several years ago and was employed by the Texas & Pacific Railroad as a section hand. The employer furnished him with an insurance policy for $1,000, as was his custom with all employees. He had the policy made to an uncle in Mexico as beneficiary.
Soon after coming here he began living with a Mexican woman, who was considered as his wife though no formal ceremony was performed. Merchants and business men of Eastland recognized her as Mrs. Flora Ortego.
About a year ago Ortego became ill and was taken to the company hospital at Marshall. He realized that he could not live and just before his death told the doctor and nurses that he wanted the beneficiary of the policy transferred from his uncle to his wife. Evidence indicated that he had heard some time before that his uncle was dead. The officials of the hospital notified the Metropolitan Insurance company, who had issued the policy, of his wish.
Before settlement was made a Mexican claiming to be the uncle gave an attorney at Dallas the power of attorney to act for him in the collection of the policy. The effect of Judge Davenport's decision was to the effect that the dying request of Ortego though not written and signed by him was binding on the insurance company.

NATIONS AGREE ON CURTAILING WHEAT CROP

By United Press
LONDON, July 5.—Delegates representing the United States, Canada, Australia and Argentina today reached agreement in principle on a "policy of temporary adjustment" to raise wheat prices, but argued that cooperation of European consuming nations was necessary to any final solution of the problem. It was announced officially.
"The four overseas wheat exporting countries today agreed on a policy of temporary adjustment of production and trade to world demand, with the view of improving the price of wheat and liquidating the surplus stocks now hanging over the market," the statement said.
"They recognize, however, that a solution of the wheat problem depends upon the cooperation of European countries."

Woman Killed Seeking a Job; Negro Is Held

By United Press
SAN ANTONIO, July 5.—The trail of a job today had led to death for Mrs. Alma Dell Cabbie, whose body, bearing evidence of a blow from a milk bottle, was found in a fashionable apartment house here.
Police investigating the slaying found the woman had gone to the house apparently happy in the belief her want ad in a San Antonio newspaper had been answered and that she was to have a job as housekeeper.
Mrs. Cabbie's body was found fully clothed between the kitchen and dining room of the apartment. A shattered bottle nearby was believed the instrument with which the fatal blow on her head was inflicted.
Several hours later police arrested a negro man. Although he denied he had been in the apartment for the past three months, officers said they found a finger print on the bottle in the apartment which they identified as the negro's.

No trace of any of the missing barges had been discovered by the coast guard fleet which, since dawn, had patrolled the waters, still lashed by the gale which created havoc off the Delaware capes Monday and Tuesday.

First Governor of Oklahoma Dies

By United Press
OKLAHOMA CITY, July 5.—Charles N. Haskell, Oklahoma's first governor, died today here. He had been semi-conscious since late yesterday when he was stricken with pneumonia. Weakened by three months of illness after a paralytic stroke, the sturdy constitution that had carried him through the struggles of pioneer days failed to respond to medical treatment.
At his bedside after an all night vigil were his wife, Mrs. Lillie Haskell and friends. Haskell, born March 13, 1860 in Ohio, had a long colorful career.

Little Community Has Anniversary

By United Press
WESTPHALIA, Texas, July 5. Ox carts and prairie schooners creaked across the roads of this parish July 4 in celebration of the community's golden anniversary.
The parade of carts and wagons of yesterday depicted the material progress of the agricultural community since pioneer settlers first arrived to turn the prairie into farms and homes in 1879.
In the rectory lay the gold vestments of the bishop, brought from Galveston by Father Otto Bauer, as symbols of the parish's spiritual progress.
Westphalia parish, located in Falls county, was settled by thrifty, progressive German Catholics. The average tourist speeding across state highway No. 2 between Waco and Temple fails to notice that on his right and left lie bits of Old Germany.
The community has a population of only 1,000, but the Westphalia church has six buildings located on 100 beautifully landscaped acres. The church, built entirely of wood in 1894, still is the largest frame church in Texas.
Twice the little community has been honored with the convention of the Staats Verband, Texas Grand Catholic society.

TEXAS COOPERATIVES WELCOMES THE PLAN

"We are confronted with a very dangerous, serious economic conflagration," declared C. A. Moser, assistant vice president and secretary, of the American Cooperative association. He termed the government cotton control plan a major step into that "new era of cooperation to cope with economic forces upon which society was entering."

H. H. Williamson is assistant director and state agent of the state A. & M. college extension service. He has advised that all community meetings will be held under the direction of county agents. He stressed that Texas was called on to agree the coming week to retire from production 4,493,000 acres while its quota in the campaign eventually will be 10,000,000 acres—"the amount Wallace considers the minimum if the farm relief act is to be effectively applied to cotton this year."

Think of a carryover of 13,000,000 bales. Think of an estimated crop of 15,000,000 bales on the way. And then turn to the consumption figures of cotton for the last cotton-year. According to the statisticians world consumption was less than 20,000,000 bales. There are many cotton growing countries. Of course, the cry of the theorist is that "the trouble is underconsumption and not overproduction."

FEDERAL TAX RECEIPTS VERY FLATTERING

"A cheerful little earful comes from the capital of the nation: Widespread improvement of business in many lines was indicated in tax collections for May, "sending the total for the fiscal year since last July above the total of the previous year for the first time." Taxes on tobacco, beer, stock sales, and issues, gasoline, lubricating, checks, and numerous minor articles showed business in those lines was increasing. Total for the fiscal year, $761,774,359, "the largest amount in recent years."

Guy T. Helvering is the new commissioner of internal revenue. He is responsible for an important ruling—"that dividends declared after June 15 are taxable." A reminder that the new law provides that all tax returns made under the act shall be open to public examination and inspection to such extent as shall be authorized by the president. It also provides that the new taxes may be declared void by the president at the end of any year during "which the government's receipts exceed its expenditures or when the 18th Amendment is repealed."

SECRETARY WALLACE A REAL ECONOMIST

Secretary Henry A. Wallace of the department of agriculture is a real economist. He has announced the market news service of the bureau of agricultural economics will be eliminated July 1 to save the department of agriculture approximately $1,000,000 a year. Most of the 300 men retained at market centers for grain and livestock and cotton and other farm commodities will be dropped from the payroll.

Austin has a city manager. He has given public notice of the saving of $30,000 annually in the consolidation of departments. In prosperous years new jobs were created at the public pie counter until one of 12 American citizens found a direct way to the government payroll through the public service trough. Now the elimination process is on. All public service employees should work at least eight hours a day until the 30 hour a week has been inaugurated by the great industrial corporations "all down the line."

Our children should be taught more about our government, our laws, and our mode of operation in the conduct of the country's affairs.

Anti-Climax It was not Joe Cronin's fault. All through the see-saw game he had master-minded and fought—and fought and master-minded. Battling himself for the league batting leadership, with his team striving tooth and nail to keep the Yankees out of the league lead, little Joe tangled with the fates in a recent game in Cleveland.

The Setting JOE'S Senators, with Al Thomas pitching, snatched a lead of three runs in the second. Walter Johnson's Indians tied it in the fifth. Washington forged a run ahead in the sixth, added another in the seventh and another in the eighth.

Pitcher on the Spot THEN the thing happened. With Kamm at the plate Russell threw ball one—ball two—strike one—ball three. What a spot for a pitcher! Joe came in, patted Russell on the back, exhorted, pleaded for a strike.

BARGAIN BRIDE

by KATHARINE HUNLAND TAYLOR

BEGIN HERE TODAY BARRETT COLVIN, back in New York after years abroad, falls in love with ELLINOR STAFFORD. He is 35 and she is 20. Ellinor returns his affection, but her jealous, scheming mother, LIDA STAFFORD, breaks up the romance by convincing Barrett that Ellinor is a heartless flirt.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXI

THE last thing Ellinor wished that morning was the further strain of seeing Barrett Colvin. He had, with a blunt, inconsiderate strength she had not dreamed he possessed, overridden her suggestion that he should wait for the interview until her father was better.

people were waiting with the expectation that Mr Stafford would be remembered rather generously in Miss Sexton's will. The place is alive now with folks trying to collect what they can. I went down and saw the line this morning and turned right around and came away. The rent's overdue two months. The collector let it go, thinking—

"Yes, I know," she answered dully. She moistened her stiffened, drying lips. "How much did my father owe you?" she asked. She could not let that go. The man had worked faithfully for her father for years. Besides there were his two small daughters and his ailing wife.

She paid him his salary with a ring worth twice the amount and $20 from her purse. "I'm awfully sorry for you, Miss Stafford," said the clerk, leaving. Her answering smile was a trifle twisted despite her effort to keep it genuine.

She said nothing. "You can help me right a trifle wrong," Barrett went on. "You can give your father his change to get well, give peace to the Thropes and an education to those three boys. Will you do this?"

"By marrying me," he said slowly. She lost color and he went on hastily. "I'm asking you to live in my house as my guest for one year. In that way I can turn over to you and the Thropes the money that is morally, if not legally, yours and theirs. It's the only way to rectify the mistake of your aunt who unfortunately was sound of mind, if not of heart, when she made her will."

"But why for a year?" Ellinor asked brokenly. She was oddly dizzy and disconcerted. "Because," he answered, "a year will quiet any idle talk there may be. I don't want anyone to know the reason for our marriage. The world would misunderstand. It might possibly see me as a hero instead of a man who merely happens to be honest enough not to want to rob others. It might see you as a girl who sold herself instead of a girl willing to forget herself in order to help someone else."

Youthful Judge Is West Texas Legend

By United Press ROBERT LEE, Texas.—County Judge E. O. Geron at 26 already is something of a legend here. The "newcomer," as he is affectionately known to old-timers of Coke county, came here three years ago from Ellis county to accept appointment as county attorney.

It was a footsore and weary young man who limped back to the county seat to await outcome of the election. He won, and is now serving his first term as judge. But Geron's legend started before he adopted West Texas as his home. He was a mere youngster when he was graduated from law school and hung out his shingle in Ellis county. Shortly after going into practice he ran for the state legislature, was elected four years ago and served through a regular and five called sessions as representative. He resigned to make his permanent home here.

ONCE EACH DAY

By V. MARIE STEPHENS

Some time ago someone pointed out a couple of conspicuous stars to me and wisely declared one of them to be Mars. The other Jupiter. And that the two were closer together than they had been for many years or ever before as some other astronomical statistic.

I've never been perfectly sure the declaration was correct. If so, I've missed all authentic reports on the heavenly condition, but . . . Night after night I've watched those two stars, one so little and red, the other so perfect and bright. Slowly they've drifted apart. The little one gets redder, and the big one shines more every night. Then the other day I noticed where two men were competing. It seems that one of them has been closer to Mars than any other human being from the World. And it also seems that the other wants to smash his so-called record and creep a little nearer the red planet.

That Reminds Me (Continued from page 1) To have a more definite understanding before the election just where and how the wherewithal will be divided if we just must have beer. The general trend shows that all those opposed to the issue are bucking against a brick wall, but nevertheless that brick wall is not so strong that it cannot be pushed down with the idea that Texas must profit most by its injection into the sections of those in Texas who are bound to have it.

What Texas makes makes Texas a good slogan, and is one that we would like to keep in mind for the last and all time. So let's follow the same principles that the Robinson Insurance law was made for—that those who would sell beer in Texas must make all their investments in Texas as far as it is consistent to do so. Otherwise, keep it out until we can have such a law.

Paper figures are all right if they work out, but thousands of people were left with worthless scraps of paper after October 1929. There is no doubt but what paper figures will make people think twice before they leap . . . so a better understanding of all these figures so they will work out is a good plan to keep in mind now before election. Let's see that they do work out.

We hope the West Texas Chamber of Commerce has taken Texas into consideration and has looked into these things before they send out the reports of Mr. Blanton and Mr. Mathis to all publicity mediums as approving of they haven't, it's not too late yet, they haven't, it's not too late yet.

Please God, give us a good soaking rain . . . that's more important than anything we know of right now. It can't hurt, and it will do us much good.

East of Suez -And West

COLOR and stir of the bazaar . . . beat of the tom-toms and wail of the pipes . . . pungent dust of the passing caravan . . . flash of silver and crimson and jade . . . singsong invitation of the tradesmen!

If you ever travel in the Orient you will feel the fascination of the bazaar—once. Afterward, when you return from a frenzy of haggling and sleight-of-hand, and spread your tawdry purchase on the hotel bed, you will feel differently. You will appreciate as never before the advantages of living in a country where goods are advertised in the daily press . . . where you can sit down with your newspaper and decide exactly what you will buy today, what price you will pay, and where you will find the greatest values. Best of all, a country where buying and advertised article means getting your money's worth, without matching wits with unscrupulous trades.

Perhaps you'll never voyage East of Suez. But right at home you can discover the convenience and sound economy of reading the advertisements before you shop. Here is a leading merchant who has combed the markets of the world for quality merchandise at a price his name guarantees to be fair. Here is a great manufacturer who has exhausted science to improve the worth of his product. Here is a little shopkeeper offering unusually attractive prices.

Study the advertisements. Know what is being offered to your advantage. Then do your buying with assurance.
