BANDIT GANG IN A BATTLE WITH OFFICERS

By United Press COFFEYVILLE, Kan., Aug. 2.—A desperate gang of Oklahoma bandits battled their way to temporary freedom today with officers and national guards pursuing them through the Arkansas river bottoms near here.

The battle started after the bandits, numbering six or seven, raided Weir, Kan., locking 22 persons in the city jail and escaping with the safe of the Citizens bank.

The safe was recovered before the bandits had a chance to open it. In their first skirmish officers shot the tires off a bandit automobile, but the lone occupant escaped. Machine gun bullets ripped through a police car, but none was injured.

Following the meeting at Eastland Tuesday night, at which United States District Attorney Eastus was the principal speaker, the grocers met in the 88th district court room and elected officers.

Mr. Skiles of Cisco was elected temporary chairman and Miss Lucile Self of Cisco was elected temporary chairman. The grocers voted to keep their stores open from 7:00 a. m. to 6:00 p. m.

At the same time the grocers were meeting in the 88th district courtroom the dry goods merchants of the three towns were meeting in the 91st district courtroom.

The program committee, George Harper and J. C. Patterson, presented Lion Cecil Webb of Lions International office, as their luncheon program feature.

President McGlamery announced F. M. Kenny chairman, C. H. Hipp and W. O. Butler as NRA committee for the Lions, who will meet with other civic committees on Thursday evening at Chamber of Commerce to work out plans for carrying out in this territory the National Recovery Act.

Turner M. Collier, County Clerk, was presented as a new Lion club to be initiated later on.

The guest of honor, Lion Cecil Webb, presented a splendid picture of activities of Lions Clubs as he has seen them at work throughout the nation in past years, emphasizing the fact that Lions International is the largest of the service club organization, and that the great number of clubs in Texas, made this state a leader in the work of the club.

EASTUS TALKS POLITICS AND THE NRA CODE

By J. C. ALLISON "The National Recovery Act is the greatest piece of legislation ever written by the hand of man," declared Clyde O. Eastus, federal attorney for the Northern District of Texas, Tuesday night as he spoke to a throng of people that packed the north courthouse lawn and the adjacent street.

The crowd, which came from Ranger, Cisco, Breckenridge, Rising Star, Gorman, Carbon, and possibly from other neighboring towns, gathered in response to an announcement that the federal district attorney would speak on the National Recovery Act.

The meeting was opened by H. C. Davis, secretary of the Retail Merchants association of Eastland, with a short introduction of Mayor Donald Kinnaird, who after a brief statement of the purpose of the meeting and a welcome to the visitors, called Joe Jones, who has recently been appointed assistant federal district attorney, to the microphone and he introduced the speaker.

Attorney Eastus began his address with remarks with reference to the appointment of Mr. Jones as his assistant, stating that he was one of his first assistants and would have charge of the Dallas office and handle the cases being tried in Judge Atwell's court.

In launching into his discussion Mr. Eastus gave the Hoover administration the blame for the depression, mentioning especially the foreign policy and the high tariff laws. He gave the wealth of the nation in 1929 as $350,000,000,000, saying that it had diminished to $250,000,000,000 today and giving the policies of President Hoover, mismanagement, and monopolies as the cause.

Opening with the statement that last year the country elected a man as president who would do something for the common man, he gave a short sketch of the political history of President Roosevelt, saying that the country needed a Moses to bring us out of the depression and the president is the man, that we must know him to appreciate him and predicted that within 9 days we would realize that a super-mind was in control of affairs. He then reviewed the first few weeks of the present administration, calling attention especially to the closing of the banks with the re-opening in such a way as to save the depositors' money, saying that had not prompt and definite action been taken most of the 6,000 banks would have been closed within 90 days; whereas, only 150 of the smaller banks failed to open their doors and that some of these will open yet.

Citing history to show that nations, since 50 B. C., have always come out of depressions by inflation. (Continued on page 2)

ELECTION IN LOUISIANA IS BEFORE COURT

By United Press NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 2.—The future of Huey P. Long's political empire was at stake today as a district judge, unmoved by a frenzied situation, induced by declaration and revocation of martial law, began an open court investigation into the election last fall in which Long's henchmen were alleged to have resorted to fraud.

Criminal Court Judge O'Donnell ordered 15 election officials elected on charges of certifying to false returns, brought into court when it convened today. He granted permission to district attorney to examine ballot boxes, which Long's political enemies charge will reveal monumental fraud, in open court.

The governor revoked the order which he had declared New Orleans under martial law, early today.

By United Press NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2.—An open court investigation of last November 8 general election in Louisiana, in which enemies of U. S. Senator Huey P. Long charged his henchmen resorted to fraud to win, today revealed wide discrepancies in vote tabulations.

The counting, done by 24 business men, revealed 1,545 votes cast for the amendment on purchasing a ferry and 214 against it. Election commissioners had officially reported the count on those same boxes as 1,919 votes for the amendment and 60 against it.

New District to Bring Out Many New Candidates

AUSTIN.—Creation of the new Congressional district for Bexar county has resulted in a flood of prospective candidates for Congress from that district. It now is represented by Congressman Richard Kleberg of Corpus Christi, but the county will be taken out of his district.

It is common report about the state capitol that all the San Antonio state representatives are out for the place. Two of them, Pat Dwyer and Harold Kayton, met in the capitol a few days ago. Each asked the other about how his race was going.

Kayton, still believes a state sales tax will be enacted. He says conditions will force it. He advocated such a bill at the regular session, his measure differing considerably from that sponsored by Governor and former Governor Ferguson. He eliminated the pyramid feature and provided for a division of the tax with the counties and municipalities.

Dwyer is a member of one of the oldest Bexar county families. If he went to Washington, he probably could call by christian name any constituent who might visit him.

Motorized Guard Unit Can Cover Lot More Ground

AMARILLO, Tex., Aug. 2.—Forty years ago when the cannons of Battery B, 131st Field Artillery, Texas National Guard, went "rolling along," they were drawn by horses who did well if they plodded 25 miles in a day.

Now the battery, given the highest rating at the federal inspection this year, uses motor trucks which if pushed could, in an hour, cover twice that distance.

Cumbersome iron wheels on pieces and caissons have been replaced by strong, light steel wheels with pneumatic tires and puncture proof tires. The limber, or ammunition carrier, has been dispensed with altogether, and shells are carried in trucks with the men.

The trucks are virtually "non-stickable." They have eight gears forward, which means they will move so long as there is traction.

When completely motorized the unit will have ten trucks in addition of the five now in service. The battery's history has been interesting. It was organized here in the '90s. In 1916 it was sent to the Mexican border for 11 months of duty. Later it was sent to Camp Bowie, Fort Worth, and there converted into Battery B, 132 Field Artillery, which it remained until it was disbanded after the war. It was reorganized in 1922 under its present name.

MOLEY TO AID IN A WAR ON RACKETEERING

By United Press HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 2.—President Roosevelt today instructed Assistant Secretary of State Raymond Moley to study the kidnaping and racketeering situation for the Department of Justice.

The executive's instructions were contained in a letter to Assistant Secretary of State Phillips at Washington. He assigned Moley to the task after a request for assistance in carrying out the survey was received from Attorney General Cummings.

TULSA, Ok., Aug. 2.—Ransom for the release of Charles F. Urschel, oil millionaire, was reported today to have been $200,000, one of the largest extortion fees ever paid kidnapers in this country. Ranger Man Is 'Shot' While At Eastland Meeting

A very peculiar incident happened while Federal District Attorney Clyde O. Eastus was speaking on the north lawn of the courthouse Tuesday night. Fred Tibbles of Ranger, who was standing in the street just off the lawn, was struck on the arm by a bullet which inflicted a slight wound. He was taken to a drug store where he was given medical attention.

No one around him heard any report of a gun. The bullet after striking him fell to the pavement and was picked up by him. It showed to be for about a forty-five calibre pistol. Members of the sheriff's department said it had no marks of being shot from a gun and did show signs of having been extracted from the shell with pliers. It was their opinion that it had been shot from some nearby building with a "nigger shooter."

CHECK UP TO BE MADE ON ALL VIOLATORS

"Chizeling" Is Charged In Many Instances By Employers.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Aroused by evidence of "chizeling" on the voluntary re-employment agreement, officials of the NRA today determined to make a strict checkup of violations and evasion.

Hugh Johnson prepared for a survey to disclose not only actual violations of signed agreement, but methods by which employers are seeking to display the blue eagle without making any real contribution to re-employment and wage increases.

Reports from regional offices showed hundreds of thousands of signatures to the agreement. What the NRA officials are more anxious to know, however, is the number of men actually re-employed and the amount of money added to the nation's payroll.

This information will be obtained through a questionnaire to all employers. More than a quarter of a million additional employees were brought under the re-employment agreement today when Johnson authorized modifications for five large industries, radio, electrical manufacturers, rayon weaving, bedding and rayon and synthetic yarn.

Ernest Tutt, district manager of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce at Houston, advised that 19,641 Texas employers had signed the NRA pledge, affecting 99,894 employes.

ABOLITION OF STATE AD VALOREM TAX URGED

State Auditor Moore Lynn in a recent report made the sweeping declaration that since it completely fails to fulfill the constitutional requirement that all taxes shall be equal and uniform, the state ad valorem tax should be abolished without delay. He stated in his bulletin that one of the worst features of the tax was failure of the officials to obtain assessments on all property covered by the tax; that comparatively few of the counties have efficient plat book systems and that frequently property is placed on the rolls as "unknown" when such property does not exist in fact.

An investigation made by the state auditor's department indicated that for the tax year 1931 such property as was rendered for taxation was placed on the rolls at an average for the entire state at 50 per cent of its value; that in some counties the assessment was as low as 25 per cent of the actual value and in other counties it was claimed that property was rendered at 100 per cent. Figures are interesting, Auditor Lynn furnishes them.

For the tax year 1927, the net increase in delinquent state ad valorem taxes was $765,000, or 3 per cent of the current year's taxes assessed. Four years later, or in 1931, the net increase in such delinquencies amounted to $5,261,000 or 17 per cent of the current year's taxes assessed.

"When collections of back taxes are regularly far from sufficient to offset current year's delinquencies (reads the report) and the total amount collected falls below the amount of the current tax levy for several years in an increasingly large amount each year. A very serious situation is presented." There is a constitutional requirement that all taxes "shall be equal and uniform."

Well, the constitution was adopted in 1876 and the requirement has become one of the moss-covered jokes of Texas history.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

My secretary came in this morning bubbling with enthusiasm over an amateur flower show that is to be held this fall. According to bits of conversation we picked up recently, Oklahoma will have its first fall amateur flower show.

Flower shows are usually open to professionals only, but the one to be held this coming October will be open to all amateur growers in Oklahoma. There will be no entrance fee and no admission charged to see the blooms. Appropriate awards will be made the winners in the various classes.

While we are not a member of any flower clubs, we understand by keeping our ear to the ground there is a state organization known as the Garden Flower club. This is the parent organization. As units of this organization are groups known as the Red Rose unit, Wild Rose unit, Gladiolus unit, and many others. The first two mentioned are the groups sponsoring this fall amateur show. It will be held at the Fair grounds at Oklahoma City in the 4-H Club building for two nights.

California has her rose festival, likewise Washington. Arkansas has its apple blossom celebration and Georgia pays homage to the peach in peach blossom time; so now Oklahoma can bring forth through her amateur growers her prize blooms for the world to look at. Such things are cultural and add zest to the joy of growing things, particularly beautiful flowers. Many people throughout the country think of Oklahoma only as a place for Indians and oil wells and turbulent politics, but a peek at the thousands of beautiful rose and flower gardens in the state will bring a different picture. The long growing season adds much in favor of the knights and ladies of the shovel and spade.

We can almost picture the banks of fall roses, chrysanthemums and many other varieties that will be on display by Oklahoma's amateurs and, with a little more concentration, believe we can smell 'em. You might make arrangements to see the show if you love flowers—and who doesn't?

ONCE . . . . . EACH DAY

By V. MARIE STEPHENS

I was talking to a school man yesterday, a down-hearted, disgruntled teacher who hadn't seen the morning paper.

Fifteen minutes later, after the thrilling shock of the $16 state apportionment, he was hailing his profession worth any man's time.

Our schools are overrun with an instructing corp, would-be professors, and college men who neither want nor need to train children . . . but accept duty and a salary with a wry face . . . and bluster on.

There are a few who delve into the subject of teaching with a native interest. They want to teach. It is their chosen profession . . . chosen, not adopted.

But a great many college students search their flighty little heads for a major preference and, failing to discover one, stumble into the education department . . . and emerge, scowlingly in search of a school.

They are living Rosie Robots. They push a button . . . and take on an attitude of patience with the little dears who must be taught.

Another current runs through them to produce mama-interest, and a smiling discussion of Jr.'s arithmetic problems with the fond parent who beams and scrapes upon "Teacher."

Something ought to be done about our mechanical instructors. I distinctly recall hectic months under souls of that caliber myself.

It is perfectly eligible for shirts to be run out of a factory by men who would prefer to instal refrigerators . . .

Aspiring young lawyers who face starvation can't hurt the lemon business by peddling electrical squeezers from door to door . . .

Nor is the production of mouse traps hampered by laborers whose lofty minds wander in the fields of book-binding . . .

But . . .

Those youngsters who leave home starved and scrubbed, and return beneath layers of chewing gum, indelible ink, and water-colors . . .

Are neither shirts, lemons, nor mouse traps.

They are speciality themselves . . . each one an individual problem in the profession of living.

Rebecca McCann would philosophize accordingly: The sailor has no harder job Who sails the stormy oceans Than I who steer my little soul Through strange and deep emotions.

It is for those youthful ones wading around in mental whirlpools that the state board of education has fixed the apportionment.

Nor for aspiring young capitalists teaching school until opportunity of another color knocks.

When Elinor's aunt wealthy MISS ELLA SEXTON dies she leaves her fortune to Barrett. Then Barrett's father, STAFFORD Elinor's father, Barrett tells Elinor that if she will marry him and live in his home as a guest for a year he will give her the entire Sexton fortune to divide among her relatives. Knowing the money may save her father's life, Elinor agrees. The marriage takes place. Barrett, in spite of Lida's lies, finds himself more in love with Elinor than ever. Barrett has a ward, nine-year-old GERALD MOORE who is the son of his half-sister. He has been in the orphanage since his mother died. Elinor's father dies. Barrett takes her to Cuba and the trip is a happy one. After their return, Lida tells Elinor about Barrett's ward, inferring the boy is Barrett's son. Elinor asks about the child but Barrett cannot explain. Misunderstandings between the two increase. Barrett decides to join an expedition to South America. Elinor finds a house in the country and plans to go there and make a home for the boy. Barrett's infant son dies. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIV ELINOR broke the silence. She said in a hesitating, uncertain tone, "Barrett—" He turned toward her. "Yes?" he answered. "Do you want—very much—to go on that expedition?" "No, but I thought perhaps you'd rather have me out of the way. That was the only reason I considered it."

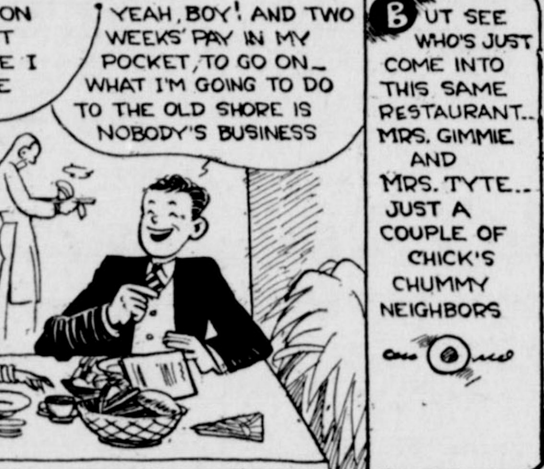

Madame Secretary Amazes Capitol With Tirelessness

Editor's Note: For the first time in American history, women now are taking a large part in the administration of the United States government. The five most important feminine holders of key positions, as appointed by President Roosevelt, are charged with such diverse duties as administering the labor department, supervising the mint, handling diplomacy with Denmark, running the civil service commission, and being personal representative of the president himself. The United Press has interviewed these women, scrutinized their lives, talked with their fellow workers and examined reforms they have made in the few months since their appointment. By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN. United Press Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Madame Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins is the enigma of Washington. As the first woman cabinet member in history she has astounded, startled and surprised officialdom in her operation of the labor department. Her first revolutionary act was the publishing of figures showing unfavorable employment trends. Under William Nuckles Doak, her predecessor, such figures usually were suppressed. She then dove into the gargantuan task of weeding politics out of the department. She reorganized the federal employment service. She virtually abolished Doak's "deportation squad" which had been gaining notice by packing foreign movie stars off to Europe. She helped draft the 50-hour week bill which just missed becoming law. While she was in the midst of trying to shorten working hours for all Americans, her chauffeur quit. He said he was tired of working 17 hours a day! The chauffeur spoke at length for publication. Washington chuckler, but Miss Perkins didn't. "There is too much talk and not enough work around here," she said, in making herself inaccessible to newspapermen. She issued orders that the department should give out no information whatever, without her personal okay. She never was available herself to give this approval. The situation came to such a pass that one of her employes commented: "A man asked me what time it was the other day. I told him I couldn't tell him because Madame Secretary had not approved." The employe was discharged a day or so later. Simultaneously Miss Perkins issued orders that news men could NOT use labor department telephones to send in their stories. "Let them go to their offices and use their own typewriters," she said. The weather by then was getting hot. So were the scribes. Whereupon Miss Perkins held one of her infrequent press conferences and mollified her critics by serving them iced ginger ale. She is 50, a Bostonian and a Lucy Stoner. Her husband is Paul Wilson, an attorney. He has been called "Mr. Perkins" upon occasion. Some of Madame Secretary's photographs flatter her. Some are most uncomplimentary. None look like her. With dark skin a pleasant smile and circled eyes, from many years of really hard work. She gained her first fame as the efficient labor commissioner of New York state. Her tricorn hat became famous celebrated simultaneously. President Roosevelt liked her so well that he appointed her secretary of labor from a list of distinguished possibilities. Miss Perkins wore her notorious hat to Washington, but it occasioned so much comment that she wore it away in moth balls. She now wears one of those tricky chapeaux which will go out of style as rapidly as a popular song. Dollar's Slump Hit Americans BERLIN.—Americans in Germany are beginning to feel some alarm at the depreciation of the dollar. They are starting to feel the pinch and to grumble slightly. The hardest hit are the students. Ordinarily, there are from 200 to 250 students here alone, most of them dependent on a fixed remittance which is usually very modest, even expressed in par dollars. More than half of these have been forced to leave, or soon will be, unless their remittances cease to shrink. No official tourist figures are available, but it is estimated that a 50 to 60 per cent decline in American visitors to Germany this year would be conservative. Several applications have been made to the U. S. consulate for transportation home, but these can be traced chiefly to bank failures beginning in March. There has been no particular loss since the dollar started down. On the other side of a fixed remittance, the depreciation has chiefly to the advantage of protective tariffs and other policies.

WOMAN RULES MOUNTAINS OF U. S. SILVER COINS

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN. WASHINGTON.—Next to Madame Secretary of Labor Perkins, Nellie Taylor Ross is the most important woman in President Roosevelt's administration. Mrs. Ross is director of the United States mint and so has charge of mountains of dimes and the hills of dollars which the nation's money factories grind out each year. She has a commodious office in the treasury building, with an excellent view of the White House grounds. There she directs the business of manufacturing hard cash in Philadelphia, San Francisco and Denver. There she supervises the work of the nation's seven assay offices, which buy all of Uncle Sam's gold and silver. And there Mrs. Ross evolves her own philosophy. A sample: "Wifehood and motherhood is the most satisfying and the highest career of a woman." Mrs. Ross is the mother of four children, two of whom are deceased. She was a devoted wife to William Bradford Ross, an attorney who became governor of Wyoming in 1923. Upon his death in 1924, she was named governor to fill his unexpired term. She thus was one of America's first feminine governors and so achieved international fame. Her regime was marked by governmental economy and reform in Wyoming. Mrs. Ross meantime evinced an exceptional ability in politics and soon entered the high councils of the Democratic party. She was one of the important dignitaries at the Democratic National convention in Chicago last year. Later she campaigned vigorously for President Roosevelt. Optimistic feminists frequently mentioned her as a vice-presidential possibility. When that did not come to pass, they urged that she be included in President Roosevelt's cabinet. Inasmuch as she already had Miss Perkins chosen as a member of his official family, Mr. Roosevelt felt that he could not name another woman to sit among his advisors. Instead, he named Mrs. Ross director of the mint, in recognition of her work for the party. The mint directorship heretofore always has been a political job, with the director himself leaving the real work to permanent subordinates. Mrs. Ross, however, has decided to be director in fact as well as in name. She has taken great interest in the process of turning copper into pennies and silver into dollars. The $2,000,000,000 (B) of American coinage gives some idea of the magnitude of her job. Mrs. Ross is 53, but looks 10 years younger. She dresses simply, lives quietly and spends most of her time at work in her office.

Claudette Colbert, Ben Lyon and Ernest Torrence in "I Cover the Waterfront"

The visit of the U. S. S. Constitution, popularly known as Old Ironsides, to San Pedro, Cal., while the Reliance Company was on location in the same harbor, filming "I Cover the Waterfront" for United Artists, had a particular significance to James Cruze, director of the picture.

For it was Cruze who several years ago directed a picture titled "Old Ironsides," using a replica of the historic United States fighting ship in filming the production. At that time, Cruze and a company of thousands spent several months off Catalina Island, near the California coast, bringing a story woven around "Old Ironsides" to the screen.

By a coincidence, Cruze was directing "I Cover the Waterfront," with Claudette Colbert, Ben Lyon, and Ernest Torrence in the principal roles, along the docks at the port of Los Angeles, when the original Old Ironsides arrived for a twenty-one day stay.

As soon as the public was permitted to inspect the famous frigate, Cruze was one of the first aboard, with other members of the "I Cover the Waterfront" company in his party. They spent two hours sight-seeing on the vessel that has played such a prominent part in American history.

During Old Ironsides' stay at San Pedro, it was visited by nearly a half million persons, many of whom took advantage of the opportunity to also watch "I Cover the Waterfront," based on Max Miller's popular book, being filmed while they were in the harbor district.

Quake Shook A Japanese Ship

HOUSTON.—Hurricanes and typhoons are no fun, but an earthquake at sea in a class by itself, according to Capt. M. Yamiguchi of the Japanese steamer Montevideo Maru.

Last March while 600 miles off the coast of Japan, en route from Houston to Kobe, Capt. Yamiguchi had the terrifying experience of feeling his ship taken by an unseen hand and flung on its beam-ends.

The crew and passengers quickly ran for cover, he related, and braced themselves against the ship's rolling and pitching. "I ran to the bridge," said the skipper. "My first thought was that the after part of the vessel had been carried away."

Special Election Ballots Will Be Headed 'For' and 'Against' Proposals

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN.—Approximately 600,000 Texans are expected to participate in an interesting experiment in psychology on Aug. 26 at the same time they cast their ballots on proposals for changes in the national and state constitutions.

For the first time the ballots will be arranged in such a way that a person can cast a straight "for" vote or a straight "against" vote. Heretofore, ballots have been printed so that a separate marking was required on each proposition submitted. This time all the "for" proposals will be on the left of the ballot as it faces the voter and all the "against" sections on the voter's right.

The returns will give insight into the extent to which voters consider amendments separately and the extent to which they are content or dissatisfied generally. It is pretty usually taken for granted that the vote on ratification of the proposed 21st amendment and that on the 3.2 beer-wine amendment to the state constitution will be about the same.

Of the other state amendments to be voted on, chief interest attaches to the proposal to authorize relief bond issues not exceeding $20,000,000. In the larger counties, especially considerable interest is being displayed in a county home rule amendment. Many years ago the power was conferred upon cities to adopt charters containing such provisions as the people desired. The amendment to be voted upon Aug. 26 extends practically the same power to counties. It also holds out the possibility of a combination city-county government.

Another murder mystery confronted New York police when Dr. E. Warren Sylla, prominent 65-year-old dentist, was found strangled to death in his East Side apartment. Robbery was the motive for the crime, according to police, who reported a considerable sum of money and jewelry was missing.

While a dollar today is worth less than 18 francs as compared to 25.52 francs before the fall, this reduction cannot be said to have worked excessive hardship among most expatriates. Some fewer students will continue to the Sorbonne and other French universities, and a restricted number of artists, music scholars, research workers and people living on fellowships are returning to the United States.

To say, however, that the United States' fall from the gold standard threatens a homeward heira from France among the established population is not supported by passenger bookings. Moreover, officials of the American Express Thomas Cook and Son to cite two tourists agencies here, do not notice a substantial increase in bookings to European nations which also have departed from gold, and where consequently Americans would fare more comfortably than in gold-standard France.

There seem to be two causes for the relative calmness with which Americans here have watched their incomes dwindle. Among many older residents who remember in 1926 getting 49.75 francs to the dollar, it is frankly considered poor sportsmanship to complain now that the shoe is on the other foot.

GENEVA.—The continued world trade crisis has greatly weakened the competitive power of U. S. manufacturing industries in comparison with other countries, the league's annual review of world trade reveals.

The 1932 review shows that during the last quarter of 1932 the value of exports of manufactured articles from the United States represented only 32 per cent of the German, 62 per cent of the British and was only slightly higher than France's exports of similar products.

Throughout the review league experts found the tendency toward self-sufficiency in many countries has "developed simultaneously with the impoverishment of both industrial and non-industrial countries."

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Coffman had a beautiful little dinner at 7 o'clock Thursday night at their residence for Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Hayes, an au revoir to their dear friends, who leave Eastland Sunday for their future home in California.
The table was lace-laid, centered with lovely flowers, and had cards indicating places for Mr. and Mrs. Carl Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Hayes, Mr. W. E. Braslier and Mr. and Mrs. Coffman.

They will go into the grocery business in partnership with George Pilling formerly of Eastland, and connected with the Arkansas Natural Gas company here who went to California five years ago.
Mr. and Mrs. Hayes will motor to their destination, and will be accompanied by Arch Hayes who will be associated with his brother in the business.

157 FRIENDS OFFERED BLOOD
By United Press
SMITH CENTER, Kan.—Ben Ellis, Smith county farmer, is a man who knows the value of the dollar. "A friend in need is a friend indeed." When stricken with heat, he was hurried 75 miles to a hospital in another city. Physicians said a blood transfusion would be necessary. Within three days 157 friends and neighbors of Ellis appeared at the hospital and offered their blood. The first 56 tests were not acceptable and none was reported the second day. Then Ellis began to recover as other friends were preparing to make the 75-mile trip to aid.
