Whether this condition is a fair argument for repeal we are loath to say. Something should be done about it. Saloons didn't solve it. Prohibition hasn't solved it. And it is doubtful if repeal will solve it. It will take much longer to get the younger generation off of liquor no matter what you do about it than it did the old "topers" of saloon days.

DUTY FALLS ON THOSE WHOM FATE FAVORS

When Franklin D. Roosevelt ascended to the presidency last March 4, then for the first time in an age-long memory the question of dollars and cents began to fade out as the prime understanding of the American mind.

Instead, the matter of social justice became uppermost.

Arrival of this higher understanding was almost fatally late to the United States, but, late as it was, it came welcome to a rapidly crumbling order.

This paper merely for purposes of enlightenment to the individual who can calculate life only on the basis of money, it again is mentioned in passing that the legislature would be empowered to vote up to $20,000,000 as it saw fit so that federal aid may be matched for relief of the needy in this state and, under no circumstances can the tax levy be imposed upon real or personal property.

The preferred list of citizens of this nation, the well-to-do or the reasonably secured men and women, recognize that they are duty bound to see to it that every man, woman and child who has not fared so well must be taken care of. There are a vast variety of reasons why some of us are STANDING on one side of this life's economic line, and the rest are PRONE on the other. Lack of foresight, a failure of education in youth, wastage, wanton recklessness, forces beyond human control—countless other causes can be supplied for the plight of the latter.

BUT THAT THERE IS A LONG LINE MASSED ON THE DARK SIDE IS A FACT INTO WHICH THE MATTER OF THEORY DOES NOT ENTER NOW.

Write over it any name you desire, but there has come to this nation, and should come to Texas if it has not already arrived, a recognition of every human's right to work, right to eat, right to play—IN SHORT, THE RIGHT TO LIVE. The consideration of dollars and cents does not enter into this recognition except as the prevalent means by which that right is assured.

So, we come down to the situation which confronts us: the federal government will not continue its relief aid to this state unless Texas citizens in some way share the cost of that imbursment.

Twenty million dollars raised in Texas through this bond issue would cost the preferred list of citizens about 50 cents apiece per year for 10 years. Not one bridge party nor theatre should any of us attend; not one mile should we drive in motor; not one world's fair should we see; not one vacation should any of us take until we have approved of this issue and resolved to support it next Saturday.

He who sits down to a pacifying meal Sunday, and thereafter eases himself to an arm chair in a vast comfort of personal feeling, can have had no conscience to the duty incumbent upon him by reason of his security had he voted "No" the day before on this issue of hunger and want. His was hypocrisy personified if the meal was preceded by a prayerful church hour over which hung the atmosphere of "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done."

Talk it, then, good people, to your neighbor. Impress to the utmost on all, particularly those who mental attitude has not yet adequately dovetailed itself into this new American demand for justice, that there is something they must do on Saturday if the privilege of security accorded them shall not turn out to be an embezzlement of faith which has reposed in them.

It is not surprising to be told that the people feel themselves to be wandering around in the dark about what to do to bring better times and are perfectly willing to give the President power to do anything he pleases in the fond hope that his eye-sight is better than their own.

There is no better advertisement for a city than prosperous newspapers. The more advertising they carry, the better impression they make on the outside world. Seen anywhere, they show that the community they represent is alive and in good place in which to live and invest.

Contrary to the opinion so often expressed, there are few people in the world who cannot think or do not think. The measure of mind, however, is whether or not it can carry a thought through to a real conclusion—not just to a half-way point.

Some cities are always going to do something, but never get a start. Now is the time to act—get something done.

PARIS STYLES

By MARY KNIGHT
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS.—We're just stringing ourselves along, that's what we're doing. And if we aren't we ought to be ashamed of ourselves because we can't be smart—in the Paris manner—if we don't.

A touch of string color or material is as essential this season to the woman who would be elegant as it has hitherto been to a brown paper parcel. Neat tailored suits and three-quarter coats in coarsest linen, completely stringy both in color and texture, are the smartest things in Paris. String colored footwear in soft kid leather shoes make the smartest feet in Paris.

and crocheted jumpers of string are everywhere—even gloves have gone stringy both as to color and fabric.

Although prices and currencies may fall, there is no such weakness in the realm of fashion. Hats are towering upward with the new high pointed Schiaparelli Pixie cap rivaling the established fez, now a bit on the outskirts of the mode. Dress necklines show no signs of becoming lower, and there is a rumor going around that the fall will see an especially high-cut kid-skin Oxford shoe as the vogue for footwear.

Fashionable functions in Paris recently have been quite Maggie affairs with every other woman in black and white. Black and white printed silk gowns are accented by long gloves and cool sandals of black kid and large black hats.

British bridge players lost that international game to Americans. London bridge, it appears, is falling down.

friends throughout the great state of Texas. Since I was a boy, when I saw Texas sprawled nearly across the map, I always had admiration for the state and I now have met and been friends with many citizens of the state and my admiration for the state and her people have increased.

Texas is the banner democratic state of the union. It gave President Roosevelt and Vice President Garner the largest majority of any state in the union. I feel at liberty, therefore, to speak directly to the democrats of the state about repeal and legalization of beer because the plans pledging the democratic party to these two things were more important parts of the immoral democratic platform at Chicago.

I am told by my friends in Texas that there is no doubt about your state voting for repeal and legalization of beer on next Saturday, but because it is the banner democratic state, I hope to see it roll up the biggest majority for repeal and beer next Saturday as it did the biggest majority for Roosevelt and Garner last November. Texas will then become the 23rd state to ratify repeal and the 38th state to legalize beer.

The repeal of the 18th amendment will return to Texas and every other state the right to deal with liquor as it sees fit. The good old democratic doctrine of states rights, so dear to the people of Texas, is being put into effect in dealing with the liquor question. Your vote to repeal national prohibition, as you know, will not disturb in any way your own Texas laws which prohibit the legal sale of liquor in your state.

It is not necessary for me to go into arguments to the people of Texas about the repeal of the prohibition amendment. Racketeering, bootlegging, kidnaping, gangsterism and all of the ugly vices attendant upon them, have thrived during the last decade. The best manhood and womanhood, the fathers and mothers of the country are determined to end these crimes. The present administration, while carrying on its great effort to end economic ills which the country has suffered, is seeking to stamp out the crimes and evils so prevalent, and repeal of the 18th amendment is necessary to accomplish this purpose. Texas has given a magnificent response to the president's recovery drive and the Blue Eagle flies around the Lone Star emblem of your beloved state.

All of us in this administration hope that Texas, by an overwhelming vote next Saturday will vote for repeal, thus helping, only in the national recovery drive, but in the determined effort of the administration to stamp out bootlegging, kidnaping and racketeering.

Ladies and gentlemen of Texas I deeply appreciate this opportunity to speak to you. I have several times visited your state and enjoyed your hospitality and to do so again soon. I want to thank you for your listening to me and bid good-night to the president and my other friends in Texas after again urging all to the polls next Saturday.

Most States Have Provided Funds For Relief Work

AUSTIN.—Virtually all the states in the union with available credit or taxation sources of revenue have taken steps to match the federal government's relief work, according to a report prepared by the American Legislators' association and received here today by William Strauss of Houston, chairman of the committee campaigning for the proposed relief bond amendment.

California voters have authorized a bond issue of $20,000,000, Maine is to vote on $2,000,000 and Pennsylvania has submitted a bond issue of $25,000,000 in addition to a like amount appropriated for relief work. New York voters last November approved a bond issue of $30,000,000 and next November votes on an issue twice that size. Rhode Island is to vote on a $3,000,000 issue.

Maryland has issued $12,000,000 of state bonds to be used in relief work in the city of Baltimore. Nevada has issued $100,000, New Hampshire has issued $1,000,000 and Washington has voted $10,000,000, the latter to be financed by diversion of .4 of one cent per gallon gasoline tax.

Indiana has appropriated $2,000,000 for relief work and Oklahoma $600,000 for "widows and disabled people unable to work." Ohio has diverted $2,000,000 gasoline tax money and Michigan from the same source authorized the use of between $2,000,000 and $4,000,000.

Kansas and Nebraska have levied mill taxes for relief work. Illinois adopted a 3 per cent sales tax, which was held unconstitutional and a 2 per cent sales tax was then submitted.

General sales or gross income taxes have recently been levied in Indiana, Nevada, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, New York, Oregon, Oklahoma, Utah, Vermont, Washington and South Dakota.

Personal income tax measures have been enacted in Alabama, Arizona, Kansas, Minnesota, Montana and New Mexico, with corporate income taxes also provided in Minnesota.

Twenty-one states have levied a barrel tax on beer, apart from the license tax, and most of this will be used for unemployment relief. These taxes range from 1 cent in Missouri to 15 cents a gallon in South Carolina.

"The only states that have done nothing to match federal aid," said Mr. Strauss, "are those whose bonds have no market value and are unable to contribute anything. Texas can do its part and hold its head up among the sisterhood of states. We should be ashamed to do else."

Horses and Mules Are Coming Back In a Big Way

By United Press
FORT WORTH.—Horses and mules are coming back in a remarkable manner in Texas, Fort Worth dealers report, not only in competition with the tractor but in price as well.

Inquiries by the hundreds, compared to mild interest last year, are flooding dealers here, one of the principal mule and horse markets of the South. The first sale of the year here, scheduled for Aug. 28 and 30 is due to result in nearly double last year's prices, said John Hicks, secretary of the Ross Brothers Horse and Mule company.

A span of mules which last year would have sold at $150 today will sell at $250, he said.

Most of the inquiries about horses come from those interested in breeding stock, Hicks said, but many seek animals to replace the tractor as well. The demand for horses comes primarily from the East, while the South is running true to custom for mules.

Several factors contribute to the revival of the animal-power market, Hicks said.

"During the days and years of prosperity, the farmer, benefitting from higher commodity prices, became forgetful of the horse and mule. Instead he stocked his farm with tractors and went in for a single crop.

"Now the situation is reversed," Hicks said. "Hard times forced the farmer to plaster his farm with a mortgage. He is now trying to plow his way out by diversifying his crops and raising his own food. There's where the horse and mule re-enter.

"The farmer has found that he can replace his horses and mules by breeding, while the bright tractors of a few years ago rust in the field, useless to the farmer in his attempt to get back on his feet.

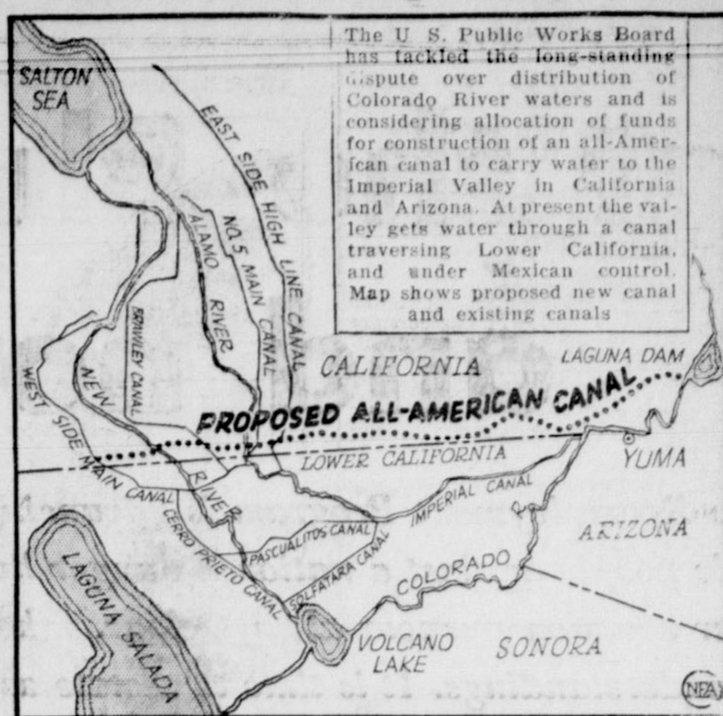

"The mortgage holder is agreeable to breeding while the matter of buying a new tractor is frowned upon."

According to estimates there is need for replacing 200,000 to 400,000 mules and between 150,000 and 250,000 horses in Texas alone in the next three years, Hicks said.

Aside from the Texas demand, Hicks exhibited a stack of inquiries from the south—North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi—for mules.

"Last year we didn't get more than a handful of inquiries from these states and unless we could quote prices far below the actual value the sale was not made," he said.

At present the valley gets water through a canal traversing Lower California, and under Mexican control. Map shows proposed new canal and existing canals.

J. E. McDonald Plows Up Half of Cotton

AUSTIN.—J. E. McDonald, state agricultural commissioner, has plowed up 50 per cent of his cotton to aid the movement for higher prices.

"I'm willing to plow up the remainder if it is needed to help President Roosevelt accomplish what he has set out to do," said McDonald, a ruddy six-foot, square jawed farmer.

McDonald was the original sponsor in Texas of enforced cotton acreage reduction. Ridiculed at first, he won over enough legislators to pass the bill. Then a court held the bill invalid.

Lack of sufficient testimony as to the pest destroying effect of reduced acreage is blamed for the downfall of the McDonald bill.

Horse and Plow Lure Members of FFA Survey Says

FORT WORTH.—Old Dobbin and the plow have a greater lure for them than the bright city lights, a cross-section survey of 100 young Future Farmers of America from North Texas reveals.

So far as they are involved there will be no social or economic problem in their herding into the city.

The last census figures for Texas showed the farm population has decreased from a total of 48 per cent of the entire state's population in 1920 to 40 per cent in 1930. At the same time the urban population has climbed from 32 per cent of the total in 1920 to 41 per cent in 1930.

The remainder of the population, about 18 per cent, is in the smaller towns, neither counted in the urban or the farm population. This class of population has changed less than one per cent in the 10 years following 1920, leaving the shift almost entirely between the farm and the larger towns and cities.

The farm was their choice, they said without exception.

Most of the boys showed surprising knowledge of present economic problems, especially those pertaining to the farm. They were unanimously of accord that President Roosevelt has brought a "new deal" to farming that will make farm life more attractive.

"Roosevelt has put the 'future' to farming," one boy said. "Farming will be better from here on out."

"Farming is the only thing," said Paul Agnew, 16, of Garland. "I'll be a farmer when I finish school."

Joe Vaughan, 15, of Pilot Point, chimed in: "Farming is what I intend to do. I wouldn't do anything else."

John Range, 17, of Garland, said he and his father had plowed 30 acres of cotton and would plant the land in spinach. "Of course I like it—farming, not spinach," he said.

"Mr. Roosevelt knows what we need and is going to make farming a whole lot better business. I'll stay on the farm," said Herbert Miles, 16, Mesquite.

Their comments were cheered and echoed by scores of the hardy boys who appeared as determined as the spokesmen of staying on the farm.

Ghost Horses
THERE was a horse among the also-rans the other day that must have awakened glowing memories of not far distant greatness among those who saw him struggle in. The horse was Mate, and he finished out of the money in a four-horse race.

A day or so later a little pony of a horse—with a big heart, however—finished a snappy race in a small field of selling platters. The name was Clyde Van Dusen, winner of the Kentucky Derby four years ago.

Days of Glory
TWO years ago, there was a lively argument over the selection of a champion three-year-old. A majority went to Twenty Grand, winner of the Kentucky Derby that year, the Jockey Club Cup, the Dewey Stakes, Belmont Stakes and other rich fixtures. But there still are many who insist Mate proved himself the better horse.

Mate ran third in the Belmont Futurity three years ago, behind Jamestown and Equipoise. As a two-year-old he also won the Futurity, the Champagne Stakes, the Spalding Love Jenkins handicap, the Walden and others.

As a three-year-old he was a better horse than Equipoise at the same age, but now as Mate lurches in the shadows, Equipoise is carrying on to greatness as a five-year-old. Probably Mate's finest race was the 1931 Preakness he won from Twenty Grand, tying Coventry's record of 1:59 for the mile and three-sixteenths.

A $73,000 Purse
At the Derby distance of a mile and a quarter that year, Mate was used to heat though he did trail Twenty Grand and Sweep All under the wire in the Derby. He won the American Derby at Chicago, setting a new record of 2:04.1-5. He won the Bowie Handicap at a mile and a half in the good time of 2:32, and the $73,000 Arlington Classic in the splendid time of 2:02.2-5.

Keeping in trim between races, Mate went up to Toronto and won the Stanley Produce purse at Woodbine without even rolling up his sleeves, and went on to prove his ability to run on all kinds of tracks by coping the Thanksgiving handicap at Bowie.

But that was two years ago. Now Mate runs fourth in a four-horse race. And Clyde Van Dusen, the "little wonder" of 1929, eats dust all the way. That's the way it goes, as Swoney says—you're here today and on your vacation tomorrow.

Exotic drinks, for which the delegates' bar was supposed to be famous, proved a flop. Only one bottle of vodka was consumed. About the same amount of Arak, the Egyptian drink, was sufficient. Despite the size of the Japanese delegation, only four persons asked for the Japanese national drink, saki.
