Jr. Hi Bramhas To Play Cisco Midgets Friday

In retaliation of their decisive and unexpected defeat of last week the Cisco grammar school Midgets are invading Eastland Friday evening for a game with the hard fighting junior high school Bramhas. Since it seemed that the Midgets were expecting a rather easy victory, but instead received a bitter defeat that they will be coming better prepared and more determined than they appeared 10 days ago. The Cisco boys learned too late that their aerial attack was quite effective and they will probably not wait so long to begin their passing in their next encounter. The Eastland team has been strengthened by the return of Roy Taylor as halfback.
Since these boys are playing with practically no equipment at all, there will be a small charge of 10 cents per person for all who wish to see the game in order to try to raise funds to start a junior athletic association. If we expect to have winning high school teams in the future, we must encourage our Junior High school boys of today. Let's all go out to Maverick field Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock and help the Bramhas down the Midgets.
The probable starting lineup for the Bramhas will be:
J. W. Machall, center.
H. Harbin, left guard.
James Daniels, right end.
T. Cook, left half.
Jim Taylor, fullback.
Harry Taylor, quarterback.

Bridged-Over Fuse Cause of Fires

Bridging over fuses on light and power switches is a violation of the law yet much of it is being done in Eastland, according to A. W. Hennessee, chief of the Eastland fire department.
"I am making an inspection of buildings in the business district and am only about half around and have almost a hat-full of bridged over fuses that have been bridged over in one way or another," Chief Hennessee said this morning. "I don't see why people will endanger their property and their lives by creating fire hazards in this way when only a few pennies would buy fuses," Chief Hennessee said.
The fine for bridging over a fuse is not less than $10 nor more than $50 for each offense. Chief Hennessee said.

They spoke at a breakfast in their honor given by the Fort Worth Clearing House association.
"We already are building up the banks, and for God's sake let's build up the citizen," Jones pleaded. "For instance let's see if $200 won't put the corner feed store owner on his feet."
The government is making real progress in the reorganization and reopening of banks, O'Connor said. During the first 10 days of this month his office licensed and reopened 23 national banks, he said, while reorganization plans were approved for 19 banks.

UNCLE SAM GOES INTO ANOTHER BUSINESS

As Uncle Sam gets ready to put something like a couple of hundred million dollars into the role of landlord for John Citizen, the broadening conception of the duties of the federal government gets its horizon pushed out farther than ever before.

The whole slum clearance plan, as a matter of fact, is an instructive example of the development of our ideas about what Washington can and cannot do.

This summer it was announced that federal money would be loaned to limited dividend corporations to rebuild "blighted areas" in big cities. Several corporations were formed and work was started on a number of projects. But the response has not been as general as had been hoped; so now Secretary Ickes is ready to put the government directly into the house-building and house-renting business.

Here is a step which is about as far from our old conception of the proper sphere of federal activities as anything could be. And it is worth noticing that it is not being taken because the men at Washington are eager to get Uncle Sam's finger into a new pie, but simply because the inexorable logic of events has made it necessary.

To begin with, the good health of the nation demands that city slums be abolished. As Al Smith remarked at the ceremonies which opened New York's slum clearance plan the other day, rebuilding the slums "is the extension of the well-defined theory of social justice working out to the ultimate good of us all." The slums have got to go; if private initiative can't remove them, Uncle Sam must.

In addition, federal money must go into circulation and the building industry must be revived. The government is building roads, army barracks, warships and post offices; these activities aren't enough, and slum rehabilitation is the logical next step.

Then, finally, there is the plight of the cities themselves. Most large cities in America have tended to become hollow shells in the last few decades. New homes go up in the suburbs; the old residential districts, close to the downtown section, are allowed to deteriorate.

This hollowing-out process has in many places reached a dangerous pitch. If a counter trend is not started, the cities face ultimate disaster.

So as a result of all these things, we find Uncle Sam going into the real estate business. And while the spectacle is a new one, it is not nearly as alarming as we would have thought it a year ago.

Many European statesmen say that America torpedoed the recent conference in London. Of course, this was to be expected; while some Americans seem to think that the propaganda sent out by all concerned prior to the meeting was all window dressing. Speaking personally, it's too bad they could not get together on some one thing, but we can hope they will do better next time—if there is a next time.

The squandering of tax money acquired from over-burdened tax payers is sufficient to set boiling not only the blood of our ancestors, but that of the present generation as well. Were the facts made known to them in a language they could understand, instead of being suppressed by politicians, their anger would be aroused, once they made them public.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

THAT the best merchandise won't sell well unless it is well advertised.

The sooner occasional advertisers start continuous advertising the sooner they will have a better paying business.

Quality is what makes a big appeal to the public. No use advertising any other kind.

Continuous advertising is proof that the advertisers will keep faith with their customers.

The nation's leading business concerns are building good will by continuous advertising of quality.

Advertising creates a worth while reputation for any business because it gives the buyer a real guarantee of quality and service.

Continuously advertised products are popular because they have all the qualities claimed for them.

Buyers who set up a loud wail about getting substitutes for quality are the ones who never read the advertisements before they buy.

It is just as easy to buy well advertised lines and be satisfied as it is to buy non-advertised lines and have grief and trouble.

Goody-Goody Roles

Out For Colbert
'I'm tired of playing goody-goody roles.'
Wide-eyed Claudette Colbert is author of that remark. And now, just after playing Poppaea, 'Rome's wickedest woman' in 'Sign of the Cross,' she gets her wish again. This time it's the role of notorious Mimi Benton, cabaret and radio queen in 'Torch Singer,' the Paramount picture which comes to the Lyric Theatre Thursday and Friday.

Here, once more Miss Colbert has fire and displays it audaciously. Men call her the worst woman in town, a brazen creature who takes everything life offers—men, money, love.

But in the not too remote past this flint-hearted charmer was Sally Trent. An impoverished, un-wed mother, deserted by her wealthy play-boy sweetheart, she is forced to give her child over to adoption. With the baby gone the irony of Fate takes a whirl at adoption. The Liberty magazine story, 'Mike,' boasts an imposing roster of players. Opposite Miss Colbert is Ricardo Cortez, and a supporting cast including David Manners, Lyda Roberti, and Baby LeRoy. Alexander Hall and George Sones directed.

Forgotten Sweetheart

BEGIN HERE TODAY
BOB WESTON, son of a millionaire, comes to Memphis in connection with a textile plant under construction for his father's company. Bob and JOAN WARFIELD fall in love with each other but BARBARA COLBERT, society girl, schemes to take him away from Joan.

Through Barbara, Joan is invited to a house party at which Bob is also a guest. Misunderstandings pile up between Joan and Bob. Finally, sure that he no longer cares for her, she returns to Memphis with JIM WARFIELD, also at the party.

PAT WARREN, Joan's younger sister, is intimated with "HE-ROISE FORRESTER," son of her employer. Joan learns from her mother that Pat has been going to parties where there is a good deal of drinking.

Pat is becoming uneasy over Jerry's interest in CLAIRE WILLIAMS, a married woman. Jerry calls for Pat one night and they drive to a road house. Later, speeding home in Jerry's car, they collide with another automobile. Jerry is killed.

Bob's father, who has just arrived in Memphis, reads about the accident in newspapers and hears that Pat is the sister of the girl his son loves. He asks Bob to give up Joan.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIX
BOB telephoned the hospital to inquire about Pat. He sent flowers. But he did not telephone to Joan.

He came as near to it as placing one finger on the dial, then hesitated. No, he wouldn't call. What good could come of it? The breach between them which had begun when Joan had driven to the barbecue with Jim Warfield had widened until now there seemed no way to bridge it. He had been confused, mistaken. The talk with his father had clarified this confusion somewhat, made him see more clearly. People were what they were by an accident of birth, by environment and training.

The encounter with Joan at the "Night Cap Club" had been another disappointment. Perhaps he had hoped for something—a word, a gesture, a look or tone—that would bring them closer together. But it had not come.

Bob remembered the flash in her eyes when he had criticized Jim Warfield's behavior and her cool proposal. "Don't you think you had better go back to your friends?"

Strange how he had allowed himself to be tormented by the thought of this girl. It seemed impossible to get away from her. Only that morning he had been on the verge of calling her. Except for the talk with his father, he would have done so. If there had been the slightest encouragement from Joan he would doubtless have been making a fool of himself again—over a girl who could play fast and loose with the wide-eyed, level look of a child. Well, that was over! He was through.

JOAN had much the same feeling. She had come close to the harsh realities of life at the hospital and it had stripped her of softer illusions for the time, at least.

"If I had not been so absorbed in my own unhappiness, I might have come closer to Pat when she needed me," Joan thought. It was painful, this cutting something deep-rooted and dear from one's life.

The third day after the accident Pat came home. She was a strangely chastened Pat, her big, blue eyes wells of misery. During the days that followed Joan chicken or the egg," is finding a modern counterpart here in the problems facing industrial designers.

To be specific, the public's been wanting speed and the designers provided it, wrapped up in neat streamline packages. Now the fickle public likes the characteristically racy streamline profile, so even when speed isn't a factor, the purveyors to the public taste are dressing up their products. The trend was brought out in the open on America's Main Street, Fifth Avenue, when the bus company operating juggernauts for a nation's shoppers came out recently with a shiny new model catering to "streamline tastes" even though its speed is keyed to the most congested street on the continent.

These charges are in keeping with the new demand for modern automobile design and the streamline effect," said Frederic T. Wood, president of the Fifth Avenue Coach Company.

House Took Burden From Governor On Salary Raises

AUSTIN.—Refusal of the Texas House of Representatives to ask Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson to submit state salary raises as a legislative topic of the special session was a clear cut victory for the administration strategists. It lifted from the governor's shoulders any blame for not voluntarily taking such a step in line with the National Recovery program. She now can say the house showed such opposition that submission would have been futile. Rep. T. H. McGraw of Austin, a Ferguson leader, made an illuminating observation to the House. "Dissatisfied employees," he said, "can quit. Their places can be filled in 48 hours."

Most of the state employees are hold-overs from the Moody and Sterling administrations. The Fergusoners were greatly irked at the beginning of the administration to find few open places for the faithful. If present employees quit, Ferguson supporters can succeed them.

That thought probably had not occurred to most of the legislators who enthusiastically voted against taking up salary adjustments. They remembered the applause they received as economists when state appropriation bills were reduced at the regular session.

Salary increase advocates reminded them that national recovery plans and prices were not then existent.

One considerable group of employees rested more easily when salary adjustment was made a closed incident. The University of Texas had taken advantage of an appropriation bill provision to re-adjust salaries. This was a provision that school receiving federal aid might make the adjustment. Technically the University at Austin and Texas A. & M. college at Bryan are one institution. The A. & M. gets federal funds. The university general ruled with the University that the appropriation bill provision covers both.

"The legislators wrote the appropriation act. They should not feel badly because we utilize its provisions," said President H. Y. Benedict of the University.

If salary readjustment had been taken up at the special session, some members of the appropriations committee were intent on reducing university salaries. The cuts might have reached even to President Benedict.

Cancer Increases In State of Texas

AUSTIN.—"The increasing number of persons in Texas dying from cancer, justifies a warning at this time against cancer quacks and so-called cancer cures. While newspapers, as a rule, do not carry advertising of this type, there are many other ways by which misinformation can reach the public. Undoubtedly there are many persons who, being thus detoured from seeking proper advice, unnecessarily become cancer victims, while others not having cancer, are fleeced out of much money for a cure," state Dr. John W. Brown, state health officer.

"There are but two ways of treating cancer. First, by surgery; and second, by the use of radium or X-ray. Treatment must be started early and in the hands of a competent surgeon. Surgery is relied upon to remove cancerous tumors and is used in nearly two-thirds of the cases. X-ray or radium is used to advantage in one-third of the cases. Frequently the two methods are combined. Self-medication, serums, colored lights, pastes, salves, and diets are valueless.

"The great bulwark against cancer is early diagnosis. Every case is an emergency and it is unfortunate that the majority of those with cancer do not seek medical advice until beyond a permanent cure. No hope should be placed in fake cancer prophets and their treatments. Rather, the annual physical examination and an immediate reporting to your physician if any symptoms which may be suspected to be the beginning of cancer, should be relied upon. These symptoms are: Any unusual bleeding from any body opening, any lump in the breast or other part of the body, any persistent sore, particularly on the face or mouth and chronic indigestion. These conditions may not be cancer, but sometimes they are fore-

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

This column, "Behind the Scenes in Washington," is being conducted by Willis Thornton during Rodney Dutcher's vacation.

BY WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON.—As the Supreme Court convenes again, to sit until May or June, attention is focusing on the "nine old men" who are almost certain to have to make vital decisions on the New Deal social legislation.

Dean noon of the court, the liberal Justice Brandeis is within a month of his 77th birthday on Nov. 13. By the way, Princeton University Press will celebrate the day by publishing a new book which will show how many of Justice Brandeis' dissenting opinions have won acceptance in Congress and in the Supreme Court itself.

Ages of the other justices are: Hughes, 71; Van Devanter, 74; McReynolds, 71; Sutherland, 71; Butler, 67; Stone, 61; Roberts, 58, and Cardozo, 63.

That's a total of 613 years of accumulated wisdom (or prejudice, according to your point of view) and sets definitely the average age of the "nine old men" at 68.

CONSIDERATION already is being given here to what would happen if the Supreme Court went the limit and threw out all the New Deal legislation, lock, stock, and barrel, as unconstitutional.

There would be no doubt but that it would be a confusion, but Congress would not be as helpless as many resignedly believe. Faced by such a situation before the elasticity of our "rigid constitution" met the test.

It was done by Congress changing ing the number of members of the court. There have been, at various times, ten, six, seven and nine members. The last change was made in Grant's administration in 1869, when two members were added, and Grant saw to it that the proper two were added to get the result he wanted.

"HISTORIC Pennsylvania Avenue," for decades the route of the nation's greatest parades and parades, may be eclipsed soon by Constitution Avenue, and there is a movement to route future inaugural parades and other spectacles on this thoroughfare. It is being widened and soon may present a more stirring approach to the Capitol than the historic route.

Constitution Avenue runs on a straight line from Union Station Plaza to the ellipse behind the White House, eliminating the awkward angle around the Treasury building, which always has marred Pennsylvania Avenue.

POSTMASTER - GENERAL FARLEY seems to be out for some sort of record for having pictures of President Roosevelt in his office—there are four of them in his outer, five in his inner office. Site of the old British embassy, which ruled Washington socially for decades, now is a parking lot. Freeways on the inside of the Capitol are being touched up again. Visiting business men, made tired by code exertions, have revived Washington's moribund night life, several new night clubs have opened to minister to the amusement needs of big code and reservation men.
