DELIGHT AND DESIRES: Delight thyself also in the Lord; and he shall give thee the desires of thine heart.—Psalm 37: 4.

COOPERATIVES THROW A BOMB IN THE GINNERS' CAMP

Cotton co-ops are very industrious. They have their own publicity agents. This speaking of the American Co-operative association headquarters in New Orleans. Their newest bulletin sounds this blast of war: "Handwriting on the wall in the gin business." What follows the caption of the article is interesting. This is the foreword: "The cotton grower has willy nilly become a member of a co-operative enterprise, whether he likes it or not. That enterprise is his gin. Fifty to 90 per cent of growers now sell their cotton to the gin. In such cases, it make no difference whether cotton is strict middling or low, middling, inch and a sixteenth or dog tail. The ginner takes it all at one price. That price is usually a good bit more than the farmer could get by selling anywhere else—even if he sold in even running lots. The ginner makes back his cotton buying loss as best he can in the charge for ginning or in the profit on seed."

As to the handwriting on the wall in the gin business the explanation of the publicity agent is "in some 200 communities in the Southwest cotton farmers have taken over ownership and control of their gins." In order to clinch his argument, the co-op manipulator of the typewriter returns this verdict: "They have been at it long enough now to get satisfactory evidence of how it works." This is the conclusion: "In West Texas and also in Oklahoma growers are doing this (taking over ownership and control of the gins) and in taking over control they are also stepping out a long way on the road to control of their production and marketing." How does this fit in with the co-op's slogan, "Cotton growers demand farm markets and not bonuses." Secretary Henry A. Wallace shifting from land nationalization or acreage control to a tariff high or low has taken a new step. Now he has asked that "America take a position either for reducing tariffs or curbing production, or a compromise between the two, and to be prepared to stick to the decision for 10 to 15 years."

In other words he would have the farmers adopt a foreign policy. William A. Clayton is one of the ablest as well as one of the best informed buyers and exporters of American cotton. He would tear down all the American tariff walls. He would invade the foreign fields or markets and throw down the gauntlet to all the world. There is a session of the congress coming. Senators and representatives make the tariff laws. Is tariff reform on the way? If so, what will happen to "the higher standards of living and the higher wage scales" of the industrial wage workers of the republic? Old Man Democracy and his new deal is face to face with many problems that will force a realignment of the voters of America. Is a realignment of the way?

KANSAS LAWMAKERS RATIFY CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT

More than 10 years ago the child labor amendment to the federal constitution was submitted to the legislatures of the 48 commonwealths. Fifteen have ratified, with Kansas on the way. The Kansas house adopted, 75 to 33, and sent to the senate a resolution calling for ratification. A majority vote by the senate will complete the Jayhawker ratification. A Texas house ratified it; a Texas senate refused to ratify it. Certain senators were apprehensive that it would drive child labor under 16 from the cotton patches. If child labor is "a barbarism," why not?

It is reported that in one year in Manchuria one railroad lost fifty of its employees killed by bandits, 800 injured, over 2000 kidnaped, 50 engines and over 1500 freight and passenger cars destroyed. The railroad employees over there must live a short but active life.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

It is said that the average taxpayer takes little interest in municipal affairs; that they are indifferent regarding questions which have a vital bearing on their welfare. That allegation is, to a certain extent, true.

The taxpayer is apathetic when municipal affairs are concerned. They do not attend meetings of the city fathers and do not insist that all city, financial and other conditions be published in the advertising columns of the newspapers regularly so they can discuss among themselves and take up with the city officials questions in which they have a general interest.

City officials should do their best to get the taxpayers together and explain what is being done and what they expect to do. By so doing, they would interest the people in their own affairs and encourage them to play their part in the development of the city.

Dallas Firemen Go Modernistic

By United Press

DALLAS.—The fire department here has gone modernistic, and 3,300 fire plugs throughout the city will take on a new color spectrum to keep in line with the trend of the decade.

The shape of the fire plugs will remain the same but they will be repainted in red, blue, yellow and aluminum hues.

Chief Rod Brambrell, is not a dabbler in colors but present plans which will go into effect soon are that the plugs will be painted so that firemen can tell at a glance how much they can expect out of each plug.

As an explanation, Chief Brambrell said painters will daub red on tops of plugs hooked into four-inch water mains, aluminum all over plugs with six-inch connections, while eight-inch connections will be topped with blue. Plugs with ten-inch mains and up will be topped with yellow. The bodies of the plugs will continue aluminum.

The new color scheme will insure greater speed in laying water lines to a fire, Chief Brambrell believes.

German Withdrawal Hailed As Sign of End of the World

By United Press
PORT WORTH. — Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations is "another step toward the smashup of the world predicted in the Bible," believes the Rev. Louis Entzinger of San Antonio, head of the Texas Pre-Millennial Bible association.

He pointed to the German action and other "fulfillments" as indicating "the day is near at hand."

On a visit here, the Rev. Mr. Entzinger opened his Bible to the 21st chapter of the Gospel of St. Luke, verses 25 to 28. He quoted:

"And there shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon earth distress of nations, with perplexity; and the sea and the waves roaring; Men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: For the powers of heaven shall be shaken."

"And then shall they see the Son of Man coming in a cloud of power and great glory. And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh."

The minister then put aside his Bible. "Was there ever such perplexity on earth as today?" the minister continued. "Last year 25,000 persons whose hearts failed them for fear committed suicide."

"The sea and the waves roaring. We've had 14 storms in the Gulf of Mexico this summer and fall. Every day a new prophecy is fulfilled. And people are coming back to the church.

"Hitler had something besides bluff to defy the League of Nations like that. . . . Deadly gasses have been invented that could wipe out civilization in 24 hours. That is when the Son of Man will appear and take the righteous away."

"All this was predicted 2,000 years ago. The day is near at hand. I couldn't be surprised if it came tonight."

Women Will Try To Elect Officers Of Teachers Assn.

By United Press

AUSTIN, Tex.—Women school teachers of Texas, a little weary perhaps of masculine rule of the Texas State Teachers Association, will seek to elect Mrs. Roy C. Owens, Tyler, as president when they convene here Thanksgiving Day.

Mrs. Owens is a graduate of the East Texas State Teachers College and is working on her Master of Arts degree at Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn. In Tyler she has been a grade teacher, high school teacher, vice-principal of the high school, and director of instruction in the public schools.

Endorsers of J. O. Loftin, who has taught in Corpus Christi, San Antonio and San Marcos, have placed an NRA plank in his platform for the association's presidency.

The NRA should be asked to work out a code for teachers, many of whom receive salaries less than the minimum wage guaranteed for non-skilled labor, Loftin declares.

His other proposed policies include preparation for a "middle class" year by acquainting Texas teachers with educational goals; extensive publicity to the cause of public schools; local and sectional organization of teachers; closer cooperation between the state board of education, the state teachers association, and the state teachers' union.

A program that includes 42 sectional meetings, varying in subjects from penmanship to science, has been planned for the convention.

A host of noted educators also have been invited to address the convention. Among these are: Herbert B. Bruner, professor of education in charge of the curriculum laboratory, Teachers College, Columbia University. He was once a football coach at McMillan high school, Mexico, Mo., later became an author, among whose works is one entitled "Children's Poetry Interests." He has served at various times as curriculum consultant at Houston, Port Arthur, Beaumont, and Fort Worth.

Dr. Ben D. Wood, a University of Texas graduate, now director of the bureau of Collegiate Educational Research in Columbia College, New York City. He was co-director of an experimental study of the educational uses of the typewriter in elementary schools; wrote several books including "Motion Pictures in the Classroom."

Dr. Ambrose L. Sahrie, who during the past ten years, has visited all the state-supported higher institutions of learning in the United States in connection with a personal survey of teacher-preparing programs in various states. He is a well-known lecturer, is head of the department of teachers college and normal school education in the school of Education, New York University. He will fly to Texas from New York.

Dean Gordon J. Laing, annual professor in the American Academy in Rome, general editor of the University Press in the University of Chicago. He is an active archeologist.

Dean J. B. Johnston, who has advocated a plan for the segregation of students who are not well served by the usual type of liberal college curriculum, a plan now embodied in the General College unit at Minnesota. He has devoted himself to studying and teaching zoology, embryology and comparative neurology.

The UNKNOWN BLOND

By Laura Lou Brookman

DAVID BANNISTER, a who... "The cops didn't know until they talked to the girl that she'd never even spoken to Tracy King—that she made up every word of the story she told Herman."

McNeal believes it. Al Druman, who's supposed to be King's best friend, said he'd never heard of the girl. I guess that part's straight all right.

Down in that neighborhood they're all afraid of cops. Close-mouthed but—Ganey grinned again, "Well, we managed to get friendly. It isn't my idea to print all this right away. I'd rather hold it—"

Now GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XII BANNISTER broke open a poppy seed roll, buttered a portion of the roll and ate it. "What did she tell you?" he asked.

"The little reporter's pose of boredom was forgotten. He leaned forward, eyes glowing. 'What a story!' he repeated. 'Do you know what that dame was doing when I got out to the house this afternoon? Mending a pair of her husband's socks and crying over them. Crying? Oh, she pretended that she wasn't, but I could see the tears just the same.'"

"I got all this from the woman who lives across the hall. Mrs. Nicholai, her name is. She said Carlotta knocked on her door next morning and came in crying that Herman was going to kill her. She said he had a gun and had threatened to shoot her! Mrs. Nicholai said Carlotta cried so much it was a long time before she found out what it was all about. As near as she could get the straight of it—Mrs. Nicholai, I mean—Herman believed that Carlotta had been with King and that's why she was late getting home."

"Yeah," he said, "lots of funny nuts like that around an apartment hotel. They've got to live somewhere, I guess. Relatives won't have 'em, or they can't get along with anyone else."

"Listen," he said, "this is straight. The girl's nearly crazy—and I'll tell you why. She thinks Herman did it!"

"What about the gun?" Bannister asked.

"I suppose," Bannister said thoughtfully, "it's not so pleasant to be in jail for murder."

"He didn't have it when they searched him at headquarters. I don't know any more about it but I know he didn't have a gun then. Of course he had plenty of time to get rid of it—"

"But," Bannister objected, "granted that Scurlach did have a gun and a motive for killing Tracy King, how could he get into King's apartment? The clerk at the Shelby Arms swore this girl they're looking for is the only one who went up to King's rooms."

"I suppose," Bannister said thoughtfully, "it's not so pleasant to be in jail for murder."

"There are plenty of ways to get into a hotel," he said. "The clerk doesn't watch the persons' entrance, does he? Remember Scurlach had had three days to brood over his troubles. And they were real troubles. And they were real troubles to him, too. Maybe he got someone else to help him—but I doubt that. A janitor's person wants to settle accounts with his own hands. There's a lot of it I can't figure out yet but I go know this—Carlotta Scurlach thinks her husband killed Tracy King. I could see it in her eyes, the way she talked and everything she said."

"How does it happen the detectives haven't heard this Nicholai woman's story?" Bannister asked.

"They will in time, I suppose."
