FREE FROM WANT: The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.—Psalm 23: 1.

PROVISIONS OF THE STATE MORATORIUM ACT

Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson has given approval to the moratorium law enacted by the special session lawmakers. Beginning on March 1 a debtor faced with a forced sale of his property was privileged to go into district courts and "upon proper showing before the judge secure temporary stays of sale." Moreover, and very important, no stay may legally extend beyond Feb. 1, 1935 the date of self limitation in the act. These are the important provisions: Tax delinquency of more than two years shall constitute a barrier to such relief, "but it may be removed if the judge finds the debtor to have a substantial equity in the property involved." A legal interpreter of the new moratorium act stresses that it differs from that enacted last winter at the regular session by requiring "the debtor to pay regular rents and revenues to the creditor during the stay of sale." In the case of urban property the court shall ascertain the rental value which must in no case be less than enough to pay the insurance. All this is a reminder that March 6 is the next date of scheduled foreclosure sales in Texas.

Gov. Olsen of Minnesota and his lawmakers enacted the somewhat celebrated moratorium act that ran the gauntlet of the supreme court of the United States. Sen. Clin Small of the Panhandle district was a strenuous battler against provisions of the measure which became a law on the approval of the governor. He proclaimed on the floor of the senate its so-called weak points as well as features which he said "would cause more harm than good." As for the district judges the state over they are certain to be called upon to face clogged dockets and the barristers of the commonwealth will be kept busy guarding the interests of their clients-to-be. Let the future furnish the material for additional comment.

"OVER THE ROAD" TO THE PENITENTIARY

Will Carleton, an ancient poet, was the author of a famous bit of verse, "Over the Hills to the Poorhouse." Now federal offenders of the excise tax law, meaning the makers and sellers of illicit moonshine, are face to face with the county jail or federal penitentiary. Federal Judge Duval West had a bunch before his court at Waco. They were given short terms of servitude behind the bars of federal penitentiaries. There is a very drastic law dealing with violators and the internal revenues department clerks and collectors have been placed on the trail of the makers of intoxicating beverages who attempt to evade a very drastic provision of the federal tax program dealing with the manufacture and sale of "hard liquor." Uncle Sam needs revenue. His agents are busy in all the so-called dry states as well as in the commonwealth where the sale of liquor has been legalized since the passing of the 18th amendment.

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE TO LIVE IN SUNNY ALASKA?

Many sections of Texas are enjoying freezing weather. This dispatch from Ketchikan, Alaska, of the date of Feb. 19 is interesting: "Mother nature seems to have her dates mixed here this week-end. With a temperature of 57 degrees above zero, the warmest for February in 21 years, youngsters swam in the cannal and buds appeared on bushes and strawberry plants. Some day Alaska may be referred to by the paragraphs as "the Italy of the United States," speaking of weather conditions in winter time. All the world appears to be upside down and the weather prophets up in the air.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

THAT at the stores that advertise you receive personal attention. You also receive quality goods at the lowest possible prices.

Their trade is secured by honest advertising. Common sense in buying simply means buying advertised merchandise from reliable home concerns.

The irresistible appeal of good merchandise, advertised through the printed page, beckons the buyers to those stores that are progressive.

Well arranged stocks add much to the attractiveness of a store.

The appearance of being up-to-date does much to give customers confidence and helps to make regular customers especially when their loyals are backed up with service.

Service pays—and still more service pays better.

Advertising is the medium which brings the buyer and seller together.

Many people would do more buying at home if the business concerns of the home city would do more advertising at home.

The proper place to advertise is in the home newspapers. They go into every home, and ads are read the same as news.

REUNION IN VIENNA

The ROMANTIC RUNAWAY

by KATHARINE HAVILAND-TAYLOR

BEGIN HERE TODAY

PABLITO, a handsome 17-year-old youth, works at the palatial Florida home of millionaire JIM FIELD.

The son of a titled Englishman and a servant girl, Pablito knows nothing of his parents. When 8 years old he ran away from ANGELA, the heartless old nurse to whose care he was left. Since then he has lived with NORRIS NOYES, a mysterious individual who has seen better days.

Field's estranged wife and their daughter, ESTELLE, arrive at the Florida home. Pablito sees Estelle and almost at once falls in love with her. He hears Field tell his daughter he is planning a masquerade party in her honor.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

ESTELLE said rather shyly as she stepped to the dock, "I think you run this boat beautifully."

"You are very kind," Pablito answered in an undertone that was a little rough. He looked up at her—a slender figure with wind-whipped skirts on the dock above him. Estelle's gaze met his clear, now darkened, blue eyes. It was a curious feeling she had about this young man, she realized. She did like him very much and yet she had hardly heard his voice. She had never before had any feeling that was at all like this.

Only a second she looked into Pablito's eyes, although it seemed long to her. Short as it had actually been, it was too long for Jim Field.

"Come along, child," he said a trifle shortly. His women must not forget their social plane. His own forgetting was another matter.

"You needn't thank the servants for their services," he stated with a not too pleasant smile as they made their way toward land.

"I'd much rather," Estelle answered in the gentle manner which always made her seem a little shy. Some time, she reflected, when she knew her father better she would explain to him that she felt an obligation to thank those who made her life pleasanter by attending her because of the very fact that it was not necessary and because so many people forgot such things. She did not know then how successfully and brutally her father could silence words he did not wish to hear.

"Some of your mother's nonsense," he said acidly after a short, mirthless laugh. Estelle revealed her surprise by a sudden change of expression. "Well, never mind!" Field added shortly. He did not want the girl who looked as Norma had to show, as Norma had, the fact that she was startled and amazed.

A little later Estelle asked her mother's maid to learn the name of the young man who had run the "Silver Dart" that afternoon. As she did this Pablito, on a soap box, was telling Noyes about her. Noyes was troubled. It might be a young affair but to Pablito it was evidently most real. Pablito was a bit incoherent and there was a flush under his deep tan. Noyes remembered the feeling.

"I'm going to town," he stated and stood up. Pablito wondered what had made Noyes decide to go to town. He had been quite drunk only two days before. At most invariably at least a week of sobriety and sometimes a month came between Noyes' trips to town.

He looked up at her—a slender figure with wind-whipped skirts, on the dock above him.

He watched Noyes off—a dark shade that swayed against the silver and gold of the still, twilight-schooning waters. Sober, Noyes poled a flat boat well; drunk, he clung obstinately to the pole and came home wet, both without and within.

Pablito decided that he would go for Noyes at 10 or 11. Meantime he could sit alone in the silence. For the first time in his life he did not want Noyes with him.

He thought of the afternoon and the way Estelle had smiled at him. Suddenly he decided, "I'll go to that party!" He knew a way to creep into the grounds and, masked, he could talk with her as he never could without a mask.

"DAMN!" Noyes murmured, pointing his way toward the tracks which he would follow toward the mainland and town. What chance had Pablito to get anything of that sort? The boy was unusually decent, fairly well educated and unselfish. But those assets, Noyes knew, would count for little.

"Damn everything!" he said loudly and clearly. He couldn't bear the thought of Pablito being hurt that way. Slowly he considered the fact that he could perhaps make Pablito independent.

But he knew that, though he could perhaps make Pablito independent, something that was better than his drinking habit would not let him do this, even for Pablito.

"Is it fair?" he demanded even more loudly. Then, shame-faced, he pulled the flat boat high on a sandy beach. He had no sympathy with files that buzzed on window panes. He himself, and with reason, had not done much buzzing on the cosmic pane, but the thought of Pablito being hurt—

Noyes hurried toward Jake's Dump as if his devil were at his heels instead of ahead of him.

International Polo Tournament to Be Held March 15

By United Press
McALLEN, Tex.—A seven-day polo tournament will be staged in Reynosa, Mexico, across the Rio Grande from McAllen, between five Mexican and American teams, according to arrangements announced here.
General Juan Andreu Almazan, commander of the Sixth Mexican Army Zone with headquarters in Monterrey, Mexico, and former secretary of the Bureau of Communications and Public Works in the Mexican federal government, will judge the entire series. General Almazan will reach Reynosa on March 14, and the first game will be played March 15. In General Almazan's entouage will be Plutarco Elias Calles, Jr., mayor of Monterrey and son of Mexico's "Strong Man," and Brigadier General Anacleto Guerrero, chief of staff of the Mexican government, of Mexico City. Mayor Calles will be a member of the 13th Regimental Cavalry team from the Monterrey garrison.

American army officers and a number of officials from the north side of the border are expected to attend the tournament.
The five teams which will compete for the handsome silver loving cup are the War Department team from Mexico City, the 13th Regimental Cavalry from Monterrey, the red-shirted American cavalrymen from Fort Brown at Brownsville, the Hidalgo, Texas, Bluebonnets, and the Reynosa civilian poloists.
The following schedule has been arranged: March 15, Mexico City vs. Monterrey; March 16, Fort Brown vs. Reynosa civilians; March 17, Hidalgo Bluebonnets vs. Monterrey; March 18, Mexico City vs. Fort Brown; March 19, Monterrey vs. Fort Brown; March 20, Mexico City vs. Hidalgo Bluebonnets; March 21, Reynosa civilians vs. winner of the March 20 game.

Valley's Largest Grapefruit and Orange Grown

By United Press
MISSION, Tex.—While McAllen discovered what purports to be the biggest grapefruit grown in the Lower Rio Grande valley this season, a Mission citrus grower displays what he claims is the Valley's biggest orange.
Oscar Perkins, who lives north of Mission, brought to the Mission Chamber of Commerce a navel orange weighing two and a half pounds, and which measures 18 1/2 inches in circumference and 5 1/2 inches in diameter. The fruit is almost perfectly shaped. It will be sent to the Mission citrus display at the Houston Fat Stock Show.

Tom Peskelos, McAllen lunch stand owner, has the season's biggest grapefruit which measures 25 1/2 inches in circumference.
Now everyone who has a government job in Italy has to salute or be saluted, and pretty soon babies there will be born with their hands up.

France Tests Out Huge Bomber

PARIS.—Leo, last word in France's air armament, has been tested and soon is to enter service as a night bomber.
Defensively armed with 10 machine guns, the craft has attained a speed of 300 kilometers an hour at an altitude of 1,200 feet, carrying a full load, including almost four tons of explosives.
Leo 30 is the official designation of the plane, which is built by the Loire-et-Olivier factory. It is a monoplane with four motors set tandem in the wings to port and starboard.

The bomber has a double machine gun emplacement forward of the pilot, one after of the wings, and one below, protecting the ship at all angles of attack. There are machine gun pivots also in each of the engine rooms in the wings.
The wing span is 114 feet, length of fuselage 72 feet.
Leo, it has been suggested, may prove to be a candidate for the air mail route to South America because of its speed and lightness.
Commercially equipped, it is believed it could carry from six to eight passengers.
Another air force innovation is the portable Sausage-shuttel. This engine of war consists of a cylinder equipped with airplane engine and propeller and a pilot's nest. Transportable on trucks, it is used for moving a captive balloon from one position to another. This operation formerly was effected tediously with a rope from the ground. Made into a blimp, however, the sausage now can be moved over wooded, or otherwise difficult, ground with a minimum of delay.
There's no denying, General Johnson has put a lot of NRG into the NRA.
