James Ferguson In Houston On Eve of Democratic Meet

By United Press
HOUSTON, Mar. 23.—James E. Ferguson, most prominently mentioned as national democratic committeeman to succeed J. E. Adams of Dallas, was here with the governor today to attend the horse races and to have "heard there would be a state democratic committee meeting here tomorrow."
Word has passed down the line he would accept the national committee and there are enough Ferguson men on the state committee to carry out his wishes if he made them known. But Ferguson made no open statement regarding the election of the committee.

A. Woods has indicated. Public schools received $2 for each of the 1,575,883 pupils on the scholastic rolls in remittances last week, or a total of $3,151,366.
That payment raised the amount of state aid for the current scholastic year to $9,454,998, or $6 per pupil. Approximately $4 more per pupil will be paid before the public schools close in May, making a total of $10 per pupil paid by the state this year.
The state's scholastic apportionment is $16 per scholastic, leaving a debt to school children of approximately $9,000,000.

Proclamation On Pardon Denounces Girl Debauchers

By United Press
AUSTIN, March 23. — J. R. Readhimer, convicted in Hale county of murder without malice and sentenced to two years in prison, was pardoned today by Governor Ferguson.
He was convicted of slaying Stokes Campbell of Poyada, who was alleged to have been the father of the illegitimate child of Readhimer's daughter. The governor declared the pardon "will at least be a grave warning to these young debauchers of womanhood who run around the country seeking whom they may run with no attempt to keep their passion within due bounds."
"We all believe in the letter of the law, but human nature has its limitations and as long as young men ruin young girls in this country and refuse to protect their name from their passionate disgrace, just as long will the court records be full of unfortunate conditions with which I am here confronted," the pardon proclamation read.

Music Necessary for Galveston's Crowds

By United Press
GALVESTON, Tex.—Music is necessary for Galveston's summer crowds, city officials believe. Each year they spend $5,000 for band concerts during the months of June, July and August.
Three nights each week during those months residents and visitors to the Gulf Coast resort listen to music from an orchestra hired by the city.
Felix Stella has directed the six summer concerts. The first five years he paid his musicians $6 per concert. Last year the scale was reduced slightly to 5.50 per evening.
A special tax of one cent per $100 property valuation brings revenue for the concerts.

M.H. Smith, Former Superintendent of Schools Died Today

Word was received in Ranger this morning of the death of M. H. Smith, formerly superintendent of schools in Ranger and for a number of years active in all the civic movements of the town. Death occurred at his home, 3712 Normandie, Highland Park, Dallas, after a long illness. Funeral services will be conducted Saturday at Dallas.

The decedent became superintendent of Ranger public schools in 1915, a position he held until 1920. He later attended the law school at the University of Texas, and upon his graduation he became connected with the Brown-Crummer company and at the time of his death he was in charge of the Dallas office for the company.

He was married to Miss Betty Fears Walker of Gorman, daughter of Rev. J. W. Walker, a Methodist minister of Gorman. Besides his widow he is survived by one son, Joe, 9; two brothers, Dr. R. Smith, who resides in the north; C. M. Smith, also with Brown-Crummer; and three sisters.

His parents originally lived in Eastland county, but later moved to Plainview, where they died. During his residence in Ranger he was influential in the civic life of the town and aided in many of the movements for the betterment of the city. In recent years he has aided the city materially in financing and budgeting plans which were adopted in 1932 by the city commission and which enabled the city to return to a cash basis.

Though he had not lived in Ranger for a number of years he had a large host of friends in the city and was still influential in aiding the city in its financial affairs, just as he was when a citizen of the town.

COTTON BILL NOW BEFORE THE SENATE

By United Press
WASHINGTON, March 23.—Supporters of the Bankhead bill for limiting next year's cotton crop, now before the Senate after passage by the House, claimed today they had a clear majority for the measure.
Forty-four votes were counted in support of the bill. This would insure passage under ordinary circumstances.

While the bill was expected to pass the Senate, it was believed there would be considerable debate. Not much time could be devoted to it today because of a unanimous consent agreement to begin consideration of a Louisiana nomination at 2 p. m.

The bill provided for limitation of next year's crop to 10,000,000 bales with a 50 per cent tax on all cotton ginned over that amount. An amendment is planned, raising the tax to 75 per cent to make it truly prohibitive.

ROOSEVELT IS ATTEMPTING TO AVOID STRIKE

By United Press
President Roosevelt's efforts to stave off a strike in the automobile industry that might lead to capital-labor disturbances and cripple his recovery program, approached a showdown today.

Labor and management representatives were in Washington seeking to harmonize widely divergent views under presidential supervision, while in Detroit workers awaited word from their leaders to lay down their tools.
Almost as alarming were other labor difficulties, some actual, some potential. In New York striking taxi drivers rioted and fought police, injuring many and endangering hundreds.

On the Pacific Coast longshoremen were prevented from striking only by President Roosevelt's intervention.
More than 60 strikes and disputes were reported and as many more threatened.

By United Press
DETROIT, March 23.—The automobile industry sent a new challenge to the American Federation of Labor today by offering 75,000 workers reduced work week and an increased pay envelope.

The move, initiated by the General Motors corporation and effective through its 40 plants in 20 cities, came as a counter argument to the claim of the federation that the industry had failed to live up to the principles of the NRA.
In some quarters it was felt the hours reduction was a step in preparation for a strike, if one is called and an indication that General Motors will keep its plant open regardless of action of the A. F. of L., on the theory their men will not desert the shop if they are satisfied with wages.

Connally Confers With Roosevelt; Is To Be Candidate

By United Press
WASHINGTON, March 23.—Sen. Tom Connally after a conference with President Roosevelt today, said he was preparing a formal announcement of his intention to seek re-election this year.

"I conferred with the President on several matters. I have no desire to involve the President in local or state politics, and am content for the people of Texas to pass judgment on my services in the senate."
"Were the matter one to be decided by President Roosevelt, I should likewise be content and would have no fear of the outcome."

State Tercentenary Stamps To Be Issued

By United Press
WASHINGTON.—A three-cent stamp commemorating the 300th anniversary of the settlement of Maryland will appear March 23. It was announced by Postmaster General James A. Farley.
The new postage stamp depicts the two ships which brought the first settlers to Maryland from England. Across the top are the words: "Maryland Tercentenary," and in the upper left corner, the figures "1634." The opposite corner bears the numerals "1934."
At the left of the stamp is the inscription "The Ark and the Dove," and across the lower border is engraved "U. S. postage three cents." In each lower corner appears the figure "3." The color has not been selected.
It will be placed on sale at St. Mary's City.
History revealed that in November, 1633, the Ark and the Dove sailed from England with 200 colonists under the leadership of Lord Calvert. The pioneers landed at St. Clements' Island in the Potomac, made their way to the mainland and settled in St. Mary's City.

This is the first time since 1931 a call for reports on banking conditions has gone out in the March quarter of the year. The law requires at least three calls a year but he may make as many more as he sees fit.

Resumption of the March call was believed to mark an effort to publicize the improvement over the past year.
By United Press

TRACK, FIELD MEET WILL BE ON SATURDAY

Literary Events Started Today With Finals to Be Held Tomorrow.

By S. McDANIEL DOSS
Beginning the first day of its annual meet with a large attendance the Eastland county meet opened this morning. Essay contests, declamation and tennis continued from the preliminaries Thursday were in full sway. Results of the foregoing contests will not be known until reports are transmitted to the director general Friday night.

The choral singing contest, finals of which were held Thursday night, was won by Rising Star and West Ward of Eastland, 2nd, and South Ward of Eastland, 3rd. There was considerable interest manifest in the contest, there being 12 teams entered and over 240 contestants participating. The High school auditorium in which the contest was held was overflowing, school officials finding it necessary to transfer chairs from rooms in the building to accommodate the vast number. The choral contest was limited to schools under the classification of rural and ward type.

Ranger won the one-act play contest held Thursday, with Rising Star second and Cisco third. Though not official, from the results of preliminaries held Thursday and the contests from which results were known prior to the county meet, it appears that Eastland is leading with a small margin of points in the Class A division with Rising Star trailing.

Morton Valley and Carbon, in the Class B division have approximately the same number of points to their credit on the score board kept by the director general of the meet. New Hope and Cisco grammar are leading in the rural and ward school division, respectively.

HOPKINS PROMISES FARM TENANTS BETTER TIMES

Harry L. Hopkins is federal relief administrator. He invaded Georgia for a conference of relief authorities from 12 Southern States. Administrator Hopkins promised "better days" to more landowners and tenant farmers of the South under President Roosevelt's plan for self-sustaining agriculture and public works projects as the media for cash incomes.

According to the Hopkins interpretation, the government will lend help to farmers with the view to making their own acreage produce their food supplies. There are thousands of Texas farmers and land tenants who never did supply their tables from orchards or gardens or farms. As for milk, they bought it in the canned form and as for bacon and lard, the shipments came from outside states.

Forty years ago the real farmers and plantation owners of Texas produced their own food supplies. Then the World War came. Then the gambling era followed in its wake. Then on thousands of farms it was goodbye to the gospel of supplying the table or the larder with the produce of the soil tilled by farmers or the land tenants. Speaking of the conference of relief administrators at Atlanta, 12 Southland states sent their representatives. After the conference was over Hopkins said: "This plan is extremely important to the South. In some states 30 per cent of the population is on relief rolls." Well, springtime is here. Summertime is coming. Farmers have been taught many lessons, and the most important of all is to produce their own food supplies and insist the canner take care of the surplus.

BEEF AND DAIRY LIVESTOCK BASIC COMMODITIES

Tom Connally is the junior United States senator. Rep. Marvin Jones of Amarillo is the chairman of the agricultural committee. An important session of the senate was held March 10. That dignified body passed the $350,000,000 Jones-Connally bill to make dairy and beef cattle basic commodities subject to processing taxes under the agricultural adjustment act, "but loaded with amendments going far beyond administration wishes." They won by a scratch. The bill was approved by the narrow margin of 39 to 38 and now goes to conference with the house whose bill provides only for cattle. Amendments voted by the senate adds peanuts, flax, rye, barley and grain sorghum and authorizes an appropriation of $150,000,000 "for eradication of diseased cattle, government purchase and transfer of dairy cows to farms lacking such stock for domestic needs and feeding the needy." The same old questionnaire. "Where do we go from here?"

Sometimes here and there a merchant gets discouraged on account of poor business and thinks perhaps something is wrong with the goods he wants to sell. Many times the fault is his own because he does not advertise his wares so people may know what he has to sell. These merchants must snap out of it come alive and go after business by newspaper advertising or they will soon be numbered in the business world as among the "dear departed."

The ROMANTIC RUNAWAY

By KATHARINE HAVILAND-TAYLOR

BEGIN HERE TODAY PABLITO a handsome youth becomes a fugitive when he flees from Florida to Cuba with BEA and LOTTIE two thieves following a man of fortune.

MARCIA TREADWAY knows Pablito is innocent but fears scandal if she tells the truth. Meanwhile SIR AUBREY, a titled Englishman and Pablito's father, begins a search for his son.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XX MARCIA TREADWAY read the newspaper account of the heinous murder—the same account Bea was so careful to keep from Pablito's eyes. As she read it she told herself more desperately than before that she would have to find the boy.

At one o'clock she started out in the car she had rented for the afternoon. Already the streets were crowded with motors filled with men and women in costume. At times confetti fell as the thick snow and serpent streamers began to wind about the hubs of the slowly revolving wheels. Everyone called gay greetings to their neighbors. The rich and poor—all in Havana—that day were as brother and sister!

The sun shone dazzlingly upon the blue harbor and grim gray Morro Castle. The prettiest girls in the world tossed roses and chocolates and kisses to the passing men who won their favor. The motor cars crept around and around the ornate route—down he swept to Prado; up the Malecon; the water front where the waves often dash against a thick, gray wall to leave a mist and rainbows in the air; into the smug and proud Vedado where live those fortunate ones who have forgotten the meaning of hunger. Indeed, they ever knew it! Then back again with faces turned from the sun toward Morro across the narrow harbor.

Young men kissed the coils of serpentine streamers before they flung the arc of ribbon into the air. Marcia, watching and smiling, tossed roses in return. It was really rather amusing, she decided with that mild enthusiasm that comes from being too much entertained.

A short, stocky man who spoke a nasal variety of English leaped to the running board of Marcia's car as the parade was halted temporarily by the congestion ahead. "How's Times Square?" he asked.

She laughed, her eagerness for novelty making his salutation amusing. "Give me a rose, ain't you?" he went on.

"Why, certainly," Marcia answered. The man took the rose with a wide smile that she understood later. "Give my regards to Broadway," he called as he stepped down from the running board to disappear among the maze of motors behind. It was some time afterward that Marcia looked down to discover that the pearl-studded platinum chain she had been wearing had gone with the rose petals.

PABLITO had seen Marcia Treadway and had shrunk back for a chill, short second. Then he remembered that she was safe because he was wearing an insolent small black moustache and a mask.

"Say," she confided, "I don't exactly like the way you look. Do you feel sick?"

He managed to tell her that he was very thirsty and that he would be grateful if she would bring him water.

Lottie answered with a worried "Sure Kid," watching him as she touched the bell. He usually lean face was puffed and the skin strained until it shone. His eyes were too bright and his lips, she could see, were dry.

"I loved you from the first time I looked at you, Princess," he said huskily after she had turned from the bell. "And I'm coming back to you! Back to you!" he went on, passion in his voice. "That is all that I want in life and if a man wants only one thing in life he will get it! I must tell Noyes! I must tell Noyes! They're trying to find Noyes!"

I brought the ice water in search of Bea but he returned to say that that gentleman could not be found. With endless coaxing she managed to get him addressed and in bed. There he lay tossing and muttering of a Princess and a pauper and love and Noyes. She sat by the bed, holding Pablito's hand, soothing him by agreeing watching the door. Wasn't that big bum, Bea, ever coming? If he stayed out all night—

Lottie knew that she did not care to summon a doctor without Bea's consent. Pablito might say anything.

"God!" she whispered. "Please send that big bum home!" "Estelle!" Pablito almost shouted the name.

"Shot up, kid, she's right here beside you," Lottie answered. "My Lord, if he keeps that up," she muttered to herself. He did keep it up, moaning of Noyes and of Estelle. Once he cried out about someone called Angela who meant to beat him. This made his voice rise again.

A servant tapped on the door. Was anyone ill, he questioned? The manager wished to know, because the noise from the room had been heard upon Obispo, causing considerable wonder.

"Tell the manager to mind his own business," Lottie answered. "This boy's been drinkin' some of your bum liquor and he's got the snakes. If anybody should do any apologizin' it's you. Have you got that?"

The servant vanished. Close to Pablito Lottie bent above Pablito who looked so immensely tall and hard and slender on the bed. "Honey," she whispered, "if you keep on yellin' I'll have to gag you and I don't want to do that!" She stooped to kiss her cheek against his. Oh, how she loved him, loved him!

His tossing stopped. He lay quiet, lips parted, eyes closed. "I got a feeling this is worse'n that yellin' was!" Lottie whimpered. . . . And Bea would very likely stay out all night. Pablito might die, waiting a doctor.

Lottie dropped to her knees beside the bed, holding his hand pressed to her cheek.

Simple Students Told of Love Psychology

By United Press

PHILADELPHIA. — A new theory on the psychology of love advanced by Clayton Hamilton in an address to students of the university.

"We don't fall in love," he declared, "but rather laugh ourselves into love.

When we first meet people we love them because they are funny, amusing and not, despite popular opinion, because they are beautiful, or brilliant.

We are amused and begin to love them, then to love, the source of amusement."

Hamilton declared that nearly every social organization has one "fat, rolley-polley" type of member at whom every one can laugh because he looks so funny.

But because he is so funny," said, "everyone likes him."
