DANGER SCENE OF RUNNING GUN BATTLE

OUR CONVICTS GAIN BREAK FROM PRISON

By United Press
ALESTER, Okla., Jan. 14.—In a running gun battle today four tuberculosis convicts, who during the night fled out of the penitentiary the second time in recent months, were captured. The fugitives left Mer in a commandeered taxi. Two were dropped at Holden and the third made the grab for Shawnee, from where he evidently went on with a fourth prisoner's whereabouts were uncertain. No trace had been found. Three months ago the same four, with two others, tunneled the hospital and escaped. One of six died of exposure and the others were captured.

A companion of Curry's in the murder, Joe Avert, was sentenced to death on conviction on identical charges. He has appealed.

Rumor Links Mary and Buddy

Romance rumors rode hard on the heels of the divorce grant that freed Mary Pickford, right, from Douglas Fairbanks, linking the name of the mistress of Pickfair with that of "Buddy" Rogers, left, who came out of Olathe, Kan., to win fame as a juvenile star. Friends scoff at the reports. Rogers is 28; Miss Pickford 41.

SURPRISE IS THROWN INTO KIDNAP CASE

By United Press
FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 14. Three state witnesses added the weight of their evidence to identification of Bruno Hauptmann as the kidnaper of the Lindbergh baby. Hildegardo Alexander, a tall and attractive clothing model, declared she saw Hauptmann spying on Dr. John Condon in a Bronx railroad station while Condon was talking to a telegraph operator shortly after the kidnaping in March, 1932. Eldridge Stein, the state's second handwriting expert to dissect the ransom notes, testified to his conclusion that they were written by Hauptmann. Albert Osborn, the highest paid handwriting expert in the world, maintained his conviction the ransom notes were all the product of the Bronx carpenter, despite a vigorous cross examination by Edward J. Reilly. Miss Alexander's testimony came as an electrifying surprise to the trial fans, who had settled down to listen to what they believed would be nothing but tedious and dull handwriting testimony. The state's first surprise witness was subjected to a bitter cross examination for 20 minutes by the defense chief, but she sweetly insisted on her story. Miss Alexander related how she had gone to the station to telephone her mother from a public booth. She walked to the far side of the writing room, she said, and saw Dr. Condon talking to a telegraph operator. Hauptmann, she said, was about 50 feet away from Jafsie, watching him intently. Hauptmann turned to a press correspondent and said: "I was never in that station. I guess the lady was looking for a movie camera."

Jafsie Daughter

Mrs. Ralph Hacker, daughter of Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon, is shown entering Hunderdon County (N. J.) courtroom, where she was expected to follow her father on the witness stand to testify in the trial of Bruno Hauptmann.

OFFICERS SAY ONE BANDIT IS LIKELY KILLED

Seven Shots Fired by Police On Residential Street of Ranger Sunday.

Ranger police officers engaged in a running gun battle along one of the main residential streets of Ranger early Sunday morning with four suspected hijackers, in which one of the hijackers is thought to have been killed outright or fatally wounded. The running battle occurred on Young street shortly before 3 o'clock Sunday morning after word had been received that four men in a Buick coupe, bearing license numbers 318-318 had robbed filling stations in Breckenridge, Palo Pinto and Wink city and were headed toward Ranger. The car had been stolen in Olden about 10:30 Saturday night. Policemen Guy Pledger and Jack Roach, when they received word from Strawn the hijackers had sped through that city headed toward Ranger, stationed themselves on the Strawn road near the outskirts of the city and waited for them. Soon the car was sighted and the two officers took up the chase, Pledger driving and Roach manning a sub-machine gun, the same gun which was stolen from the Ranger armory and which was later taken from Raymond Hamilton when he was captured following a bank robbery in North Texas. The hijackers sped down Strawn road, with the officers in close pursuit, but no shots were fired as the long-range bullets would have gone in the direction of the main section of Ranger. The bandit car turned out Young street, with the police car about a block behind when Roach opened fire with the sub-machine gun. At Hundell street the fugitives turned south, going out the road by the Montgomery dairy. The dust along this road made it impossible for the pursuing officers to see more than a few feet ahead, and at a cross road they took the wrong turn and lost the fleeing car. While the Ranger policemen were engaging in the chase in Ranger Sheriff Virge Foster and his deputies were just giving up a search for the stolen car south of Olden, where it was thought it had been taken, and were returning to Eastland. The bandits apparently doubled through Lone Cedar into Olden and headed north on the dirt road out of that town, as the coupe, with three bullet holes in the back, was found later Sunday morning a few miles north of Olden, burned. Another car, which was stolen in Ranger the same night, was also found about a mile nearer Olden with a flat tire, and officers believed that the same quartet of bandits had stolen the two cars and had left one in a pasture south of Olden. When they lost the pursuing officers they stopped for the second car and drove north of Olden, where the car used in the hijacking was abandoned and burned, apparently to obliterate bloodstains and fingerprints. The reason the officers believed that one man was probably fatally wounded is that three of the seven shots fired from the high-powered rifle, entered the back of the coupe under the glass, going out through the seat. With four men in the coupe it would have been almost impossible that the bullets would have missed the man sitting next to the driver, as all three bullet holes were within a four-inch circle that struck the middle of the back of one man when four got into the burned machine to determine the positions of the men in the car. Eastland county and Ranger officers searched the wooded section near where the car was found, all day Sunday trying to locate clues, but did not find any evidence that one of the men had been left dead in the vicinity of the burned car. No arrests have been made, but officers are still working on the case.

He was shot in the left hand and in the head. The killing followed closely on discovery of another ride victim. He was Frank Panio, known to the police as a veteran of 150 arrests as a pickpocket. He was thrown from a car and shot to death in the streets yesterday.

HIGH COURT WILL RULE ON NEGRO VOTES

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The supreme court today decided to entertain a challenge of the validity of the Texas State Democratic party organization's action in barring negroes from party primaries. The court acted on an appeal brought by R. R. Grovery, a negro citizen of Harris county, who was refused an absentee ballot to vote in the Democratic primary July 28, 1934. The refusal was based on the action of the 1932 democratic state convention, which passed a resolution admitting only white citizens to party membership. Since the democratic primary virtually decides election, Grovery contended he was deprived of his franchise. The question of the power of party in the south to bar negroes from the primaries has been before the supreme court several times. The universe, say scientists, is expanding at a rapid rate. Can't someone please call this to the attention of Huey Long?

Labels of Our Beliefs Changed In Value

The labels which we use to describe various human activities—such words as "radical," "conservative," "progressive," and so on—are useful things, since they serve to classify intangibles in a handy, card-index manner.

The interesting thing about them, however, is the fact that their value changes from year to year without our knowing it.

Half a dozen years ago this speech—calling, as it did, for a network of old age pensions, unemployment insurance schemes, collective use of certain natural resources, and the addition of 3,500,000 men to the federal payroll—would have sent shivers up and down some millions of honest American backs.

Coming when it did, it was rather generally accepted as a "middle of the road" venture. Many people even saw in it a swing toward the right.

The old labels which we attached to such projects a few years ago have lost their meaning; and that has happened simply because we have moved out from under them.

Consider another example: The recent campaign speech of Premier R. B. Bennett of Canada, which called for "an end to the reckless exploitation of human resources and the trafficking in the health and happiness of Canadian citizens."

Premier Bennett's program, in its essentials, seems to be more or less a duplication of President Roosevelt's. It calls for unemployment insurance, a revamped old age pension plan, insurance against sickness and accident, new income tax laws to correct unequal distribution of wealth, and a system of minimum wage and maximum hour laws for labor.

Now the point, right here, is not whether the voters of Canada give Mr. Bennett a mandate to put this scheme into effect, or retire him and give someone else a chance. It is the simple fact that a Canadian premier, like an American president, has advanced a program which would have seemed startlingly radical if it had been suggested as recently as 1928.

What has happened, of course, is that our viewpoint has changed under the impact of the blows dealt by the depression. We no longer look at things as we used to; and before we pin any more labels on new proposals, we would do well to examine the labels carefully and see if they mean the same things that they used to mean.

We have simply moved out from under our favorite figures of speech.

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, Jan. 14. Prof. J. L. Pritchett saddled his horse and rode to his classes at Sam Houston State Teachers college for 46 years, but ill health finally forced him to resign and stay indoors. North Platte May Become a New TVA Project

COLUMBUS, Neb., Jan. 14.—Team of creation of a miniature TVA in Nebraska's North Platte valley is taking shape here as engineers of two PWA power projects, being developed at a total cost more than $15,000,000, move to their lines to form a gigantic producing unit.

While dirt is flying on the two developments, their directors are moving to link their lines to a vast new field of prospective power consumers and to install an always constant source of electrical energy.

Applications for new PWA loans and loans totaling $3,900,000 have been forwarded to Washington officials. Unofficial statements of heads of the PWA have indicated that officials there view the projected expenditure of nearly $4,000,000 for the inter-connection of lines as economically desirable.

tion would be used to develop a loop of power lines radiating from generating units of the two projects through Omaha, Sioux City, Lincoln, Grand Island and Columbus. Capacity of trunk transmission lines would be "stepped up" from 66,000 to 110,000 volts and sub-stations established at strategic points to "step-down" voltage for commercial distribution on intermediate lines.

It had been feared that freezing of the shallow Platte and Loup rivers on which the generators have been constructed might cause a breakdown and interruption of service. Linking of the two plants would enable one to carry the full "load" in emergencies, making power failures virtually an impossibility.

Boy Raises Flock Of Turkeys From Hen In Year's Time

YOAKUM, Texas, Jan. 14.—Elton Riske, 10-year-old farm lad of near Shiner, just wouldn't be disappointed or discouraged in his efforts to become a turkey raiser.

His grandmother gave him four eggs. He broke one before he got home. A hen hatched two gobblers and a turkey hen from the other three, but the turkey hen died and a dog ate a gobbler.

Grandmother gave a sick gobbler to Elton and he traded it for a hen. He then saved his dimes and bought three hens which he tamed so they would lay at home. Every time a hen layed he put on a setting of eggs.

Within a year he had a flock of 75, of which he sold 55 during the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays.
