Relief Figures Reveal Dire Situation

One useful thing the depression-born relief problem is doing for us. It is acting as a microscope through which we can get a new look at some of the phases of American life which we never bothered to examine very carefully before.

We talk about unemployment, about the need to get back to work, about the "American standard of living" which must be preserved; and all the while, tucked away in the relief statistics, are figures which give us a dismaying view of the way a large percentage of our people have to live.

These statistics were studied by C. Hartley Grattan in a recent issue of Scribner's Magazine.

Mr. Grattan takes his figures from the FERA lists, which show that in September, 1934, some 18,300,000 persons were receiving relief. Slightly less than two-thirds of these people were city folk; the rest were from the farms or the small towns.

Then, by analyzing the figures, he makes a further discovery—that most of the people on relief are precisely those people who, when employed, receive incomes so low that they cannot build up a nest egg for hard times.

For instance: Unskilled and semi-skilled urban laborers make up only 41 per cent of our general urban population; but they compose 63 per cent of our urban relief group. Skilled workers, composing 17 per cent of our population, make up 19 per cent of the relief group.

On the other hand, proprietary, professional, and clerical workers, composing about 41 per cent of the urban population, contribute only 18 per cent of the relief group.

It is the same way with rural workers. The share-croppers, the tenant farmers, the men who have been struggling with marginal or sub-marginal land, never prosperous even in good times—these are the men who make up the bulk of the relief group in the rural regions.

In city and country alike, these people are the ones who never, even in boom times, touch our famous "American standard of living." They live in those homes at which our slum clearance plans are aimed.

They never get adequate medical attention, diet, or clothing; they never can build up bank accounts big enough to carry them very long when trouble comes.

Studying the relief figures makes us realize, as we did not realize before, how many of these people there are. Year after year we have to carry this load of poverty. In hard times it makes the relief list almost unendurably expersive; in good times it limits our markets and gives us all the social problems which are born of poverty.

We can not be complacent about any "recovery" that does not permanently raise the status of these people in the lowest income brackets.

Nationally advertised goods are goods of quality.

Lovable

She read it all over again. Peter's grandfather had been won over to Peter's plan. Kendallwood would be practically remade. New homes were to be built, a modern library, a moving picture house where the better films would be shown a room for men and another for women, a recreation center with tennis courts, a beach, a swimming pool. A new school house. A clinic.

There were rolling down Ann's cheeks. It was a wonderful thing Peter was doing. Bringing beauty, comfort and health to so many people. Ann could close her eyes and see the picture. The pretty, or dark, villas, each with an attractive home, each with a lawn and a garden. The happy, laughing children playing on the playground just as Sonny and Steve had played on their lawn. Harsh, dreary, old women, thrilled and proud over their warm, cozy places where fresh, smiling faces of the children would meet every morning.

"Ann bring the check when you come and eat it for? What in the world are you going about?" "Because—because—there are some good people in the world—Ann's voice was husky.

"Gosh! These rich," Sheila said, relinquishing the newspaper. "Think of somebody having money enough to build a town!"

Ann was staring down at the faded pages. Peter's face. His dear, dear face. His eyes, looking sober in this picture. Not too happy looking. Peter was building a town, not divorcing her. Only building a town!

"For goodness' sake, come on! Dinner's getting cold," Sheila complained. "Go ahead. Don't wait for me. There was a full column and Ann read every word, reluctantly laying the newspaper aside at last.

"How queer you look. Excited or something?" Sheila said. "I'm afraid I don't get much kick from the doings of the rich. After all, they don't affect people like us." "No," Ann said. "Anyway, if he does spend millions for people who work in his factories, I've heard he didn't treat his wife right. They said at the store she had to run away from him. He must have been pretty mean for her to leave him, with all that money."

BABY CARRIAGE ROBBERY

Farmers are urged to write or call at the headquarters of the census supervisor in their district and procure a sample copy of the farm schedule, study the questions and have their answers ready for the enumerator who will visit them during January.

The enumerators for Eastland county are Claude Boles, Eastland; J. B. Hart, Cisco; J. T. Poe, Carbon; J. C. Rushing, Hicking Star; and Mrs. Beulah K. Hicks, Ranger.

Farm Census Is Being Taken Over The Entire Nation

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—An army of 25,000 census workers is now enumerating the nation's farms, farm population, crop production in 1934, and the number of livestock. Each enumerator has been allotted a specific territory to canvass and has been trained in "schools" held during December.

There are 100 inquiries on the farm schedule being used by the census enumerators. These inquiries relate to the tenure, age, and race of the farm operator; the acres in the farm; the classes of land, according to use in 1934; the farm value; number of farm dwellings occupied and unoccupied; farm population; the number of persons now living on farms who lived in non-farm residences five years ago; the number of family laborers and hired help; the acreage and the production of crops in 1934; the number of livestock on farms; and the production of milk, eggs, wool, and mohair in 1934.

The enumerators will finish their work during January and the farm schedules should be on their way to Washington by Feb. 1. In Washington, these farm schedules will be edited, coded, and tabulated and the results published.

Because of the effect of drought and economic conditions, this is perhaps the most important agricultural census ever taken. The work of enumeration, editing, and tabulation will be facilitated as much as possible so that these data may be available in planning and carrying out crop and livestock, farm credit, subsistence homestead, marginal land, and other programs.

Farmers are urged to write or call at the headquarters of the census supervisor in their district and procure a sample copy of the farm schedule, study the questions and have their answers ready for the enumerator who will visit them during January.

The enumerators for Eastland county are Claude Boles, Eastland; J. B. Hart, Cisco; J. T. Poe, Carbon; J. C. Rushing, Hicking Star; and Mrs. Beulah K. Hicks, Ranger.

Monday Church Society Day

The church societies of Eastland resumed their usual sessions with those of Monday afternoon, the holiday season having interrupted the customary routine.

The Women's Missionary society of the Baptist church held a union meeting of all circles and members, with Mrs. Paul McFarland, presiding, in the absence of their president, Mrs. Frank Lovett, who is ill.

The service opened with the hymn, "Abide With Me," and prayer offered by Mrs. W. J. Herrington.

A business period was conducted and reports of committee chairmen submitted, that of Mrs. R. L. Young, stating, the planning of a daily vacation Bible school, with affairs working toward it for the near future.

Mrs. J. B. Overton, chairman of benevolence, called on the local W. M. S. for the offering to soon be made by the Baptist women of Texas towards building an addition to the Buckner Orphan's home, to be known as the Sunbeam building.

Miss Sallie Morris presented a plan for the financing of the missionary work among local Mexicans.

The W. M. S. voted to contribute a monthly sum towards this effort in which a group of Baptist churches will provide funds for the employment of a missionary among the Mexicans in this, and other nearby towns.

Mrs. McFarland brought the devotional, a splendid talk on the subject, "Hope," based on Luke 14:16-24.

Present, Rev. and Mrs. O. B. Darby; Mmes. Crossland, Lilly Herndon, R. L. Young, James Drake, Lee Campbell, Jess Seibert, Hand, H. A. McCanlies, Hannah Lindsey, W. J. Herrington, J. F. McWilliams, J. B. Overton, Paul McFarland, G. W. Daken, Ray Lerner, and Miss Sallie Morris.

The session was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. Young.

Mrs. C. A. Peterson and Mrs. King Hostesses

The Woman's Missionary society of the Christian church opened their new year of work, on the happy occasion of meeting at the home Monday afternoon of Mrs. C. A. Peterson, assisted by the co-hostesses, Mrs. Harry King, her daughter.

The devotional period preceding the program was presided over by the president, Mrs. J. R. Gilbreath. Hymn, and prayer by Mrs. B. M. Pangburn, prefaced the devotional on subject, "Imperishable-Miracle-Love," interestingly given by Mrs. D. J. Fiensy, closed with Scripture reading by Mrs. E. E. Wood, and prayer by Mrs. M. L. Smitham.

The program in charge of the leader, Mrs. J. H. Vaughn, developed the subject of study, "East at Home in the West," a review of the Japanese colonies in the United States along the Pacific coast.

Hymn preceded the subject by Mrs. Eugene Day, "Richer Than a Lumber Baron."

"Where Contacts Mean Understanding" was discussed by Mrs. Pangburn; "World Peace," by Mrs. Harry King.

The Japanese Institute in Los Angeles, Calif., was the interesting subject of Mrs. Smitham, and the Japanese at home in the American West.

Parker, assistant cashier, and Russell Hill, assistant cashier; Miss Lahoma Hathcox, is bookkeeper.

The stockholders in general praised the officials of the bank for their good work and progress that has been made. All employees and officers have made many friends since the bank has opened and comments from those on the street have been praiseworthy and complimentary as to the courtesies and efficiency of those whose job it is to do the work in the bank. Isn't it wonderful to have a good bank in our town and a fine bunch of folks operating it? Boy howdy!

Jess Williams, prominent farmer and ranchman of Eastland and who was a member of the depositors committee and worked faithfully for the establishment of the bank in Eastland with his colleagues was appointed special representative by proxy, by the Reconstruction Finance corporation to vote the $25,000 preferred shares owned by them at the meeting. Jess is also a stockholder in the Eastland National bank and no one is more proud that Eastland has a bank than Jess Williams whose heart is undivided for everything worth while for Eastland. Such loyalty deserves and usually gets words of commendation from the citizenship and Jess is a man never found wanting when it comes to doing things.

P. L. Parker, who operates Eastland's only floral industry, was pointed by those who could not attend to vote their proxies at the meeting. P. L. Parker was also a loyal hand during the days of organizing the bank and his advice and constant application to the job was a decided factor in the success of the venture. Mr. Parker has friends everywhere and they are loyal to him and his interests. When it comes to flowers, and that's one business that keeps a man constantly living with the beautiful things that belong to God, Mr. Parker knows his business. A visit to his florist shop is an inspiration and he can answer all questions with a knowledge of what it is all about.

Which reminds us that business is picking up, according to reports, and instrumental of the new industries in Eastland, W. J. Holleman, who has been connected with the Harvey Chevrolet company for sev-

The new 1935 V-8 Ford has made a direct hit in Eastland and Mr. Holliman's entrance into the Ford agency is timely and another industry for Eastland which means more business, more payrolls and more activity.

Mr. Holliman has made many friends in his previous contacts and has had several years experience in all branches of the automobile industry. He is having the old Texas hotel property completely remodeled according to specifications for handling the Ford agency. He stated that in the near future he will have a general formal opening after the workmen have finished the job of remodeling.
