Transportation and Fee Racketeering

Motor transportation men in convention at Austin were told in former days those who used the highways not only paid for them in the various taxes, but supported fee-racketeers and sometimes local officials through the abuse of the fee system in the promiscuous filing of traffic complaints.

Several counties were cited as having been especially bad. Dr. Will Beck, chairman of the former senate fee committee and of the present senate crime committee, discussed this fee racketeering before the transportation men.

Changes in state law, efforts to uproot the entire fee system, and the substitution of a state highway patrol for much of the local highway supervision, have been partial remedies; but the final remedy, as he foresaw it, was when the fee system was entirely discarded.

Some people think that among the duties of government is to see that nobody interferes with the rights of others. That is something the politicians seem to forget, as illustrated by their efforts to put the government into business in direct competition with its citizens and, by so doing, take their rights and business away from them.

When a city shows signs of progressiveness it usually is because the city has a live Chamber of Commerce, and not on account of its favorable location.

Every citizen should boost the home city—not knock it. There is a lot of good in every city. Help to develop the good.

Road hogs do not like the inside of a jail. Putting some of them there might have some effect on others.

A lot of self-seekers of glory are not progressive, but are just plain windjammers.

No business deserves more support and gets less than the newspapers.

Some cities are going cities while others are growing cities.

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS—By Blosser

AH! THINGS ARE IMPROVING

Lovable

BEGIN HERE TODAY

ANN HOLLISTER breaks her engagement to TOMMY MICKLE the same day that PETER and VALERIA tell VALERIA BENNETT she still loves Tony and Peter. She succeeds finally and Ann goes away leaving no trace of her whereabouts.

Peter desperately in love with her as this time goes on to locate Ann are fruitless.

She has found work as governess of the home of MRS. TRACY an artist ALAN VINCENT. Mrs. Tracy's brother is attractive to Ann. One day she discovers that he is in love with her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIX

FOR a week Allan Vincent kept his promise. He spent most of his time in the studio. He and Ann met only occasionally at meals. Occasionally she ran across him in the hall when he was coming or leaving the house.

They had met this afternoon and Allan had greeted her in a friendly, casual way. "I've been busy as the deuce. Did you feel neglected?"

"Terribly I've been busy too."

"I'm going over to the Brent house tonight. The owner and his girl will be there. Will you come with me?"

"I'm sure those people won't want strangers around." Her tone was doubtful.

"They won't know you are there. No—I guess I'm wrong. They couldn't miss you."

There was such eagerness in his eyes Ann hadn't the heart to refuse him.

They drove out early after dinner, but lights were in the house when they arrived.

"I had the electricity turned on," Allan explained "because we have planned to do some of the work at night. The owner is impatient to have the job finished."

They had driven close to the big gray roadster before Ann saw it. Suddenly her heart seemed to torn over and then to still.

It was Peter's car! No, it couldn't be. How foolish to think that she would be only one big girl, too, in this huge city! There was no score like it. There was no one about the way her head was lifted. Suddenly he had a wild desire to see her closer. But Allan was in the car and the motor began to throb.

She heard Allan say, "I'll hurry along. I have a friend in the car waiting for me."

"Who's that? you bring him in?" Peter asked.

"It's a girl friend," Allan laughed "she wouldn't come in. Some crazy notion she might be intruding. Good night."

Peter walked a little way with 500 stopping not far from the car. He could see a girl's head silhouetted against the window. There was something vaguely familiar about the way her head was lifted. Suddenly he had a wild desire to see her closer. But Allan was in the car and the motor began to throb.

PETER walked back to Valeria and helped her into his car. They were scarcely off the grounds when he said, "Val, I'm not going on with the house."

"Peter?"

"Millie's right. It was a foolish thing to do. I'm sure Ann is not coming back. You don't believe she would, either. You thought it would be good for me to have something to do. I can't do anything."

"But Peter, I don't see how you could stop the work now. Things have been ordered, men engaged. There's the time Mr. Vincent has spent in planning."

"I'll take care of all the expense, but I'm going to stop the whole business. I'll close the place, or sell it."

"What in the world has happened?"

"I don't know. I just decided to-night."

Valeria was silent. Peter must not be allowed to put this ridiculous impulse into action. It might end everything for her. It would give her no excuse to be with him.

"Let's not talk about it," she said.

"It's settled," Peter said. "I've been wasting a lot of time when I could have been looking for Ann. And doing things she would like me to be doing."

"What things?" In the darkness Valeria's lips curved contemptuously.

"Working on a plan I have in mind about Kendallwood—if I can persuade grandfather it should be done."

More of those tiresome plans for building up that horrid factory town, Valeria decided.

"Let's drive a while," she said. "There's a wonderful moon to-night. Had you noticed?"

Peter hadn't noticed. He glanced up now, and thought the moon looked cold, remote, unfriendly.

Valeria was thinking, "He treats me as though I were an inanimate wall beside him instead of a woman."

Would he stop the car so they could look at the river for a moment?

Peter looked at Valeria and smiled a little. But he stopped the car. He lit a cigarette and looked at the moon, at the water. It was picturesque. The moon had turned the river to silver. Now and then soft clouds scudded across the sky. Then the moon would appear again and the waves would pick up the silver sheen.

VALERIA was dressed in white, a frock with many tiny ruffles blossoming into a little caplet over her shoulders. The ruffles fluttered in the breeze against Peter's coat.

"Cigarette, Val?"

"No, thanks."

"Isn't the moon beautiful?" Valeria asked, as the silence continued.

"Yes."

Valeria sighed.

"Tired?"

"No. Not tired."

"What's wrong?"

She did not answer.

Peter turned to look at her. Her eyes met his and he saw they were full of tears. Her lips trembled.

"Val! I'm afraid I've seemed unkind. It isn't that I don't appreciate all you've tried to do for me."

"But I haven't made you any happier. And I tried so hard. I wanted to do so much—"

"You have helped. I don't know what I would have done without you the last few weeks."

"Peter!" It was almost a whisper.

The breeze stirred her hair just then. She was so close that some of the loosened hair was blown against his cheek. Valeria leaned closer to him. There was a faint fragrance, faint but strong too, like crushed flowers.

Peter turned again slowly, looked down and saw her soft lips raised to his. The soft, pouting lips he had kissed hundreds of times.

His arm slid around Valeria. He bent his head. Instantly her arms were around a neck, pulling him closer. Their lips met.

Sport Champs of 1934---Who Will Survive 1935

TWO KINGS AND A QUEEN

The Larruper

The mighty bat of Larrupin' Lou Gehrig, New York Yankee first baseman, boomed to two baseball records in 1934. Gehrig's average of .363 led both major leagues, besting that of Paul Waner, of the Pirates, by one point, and Lou Poled 45 home runs to lead both circuits. He also collected the greatest number of bases on his hits—469 from a total of 210 wallops.

RULERS OF THE FAIRWAY

The outstanding amateur golfer of 1934 was W. Lawson Little, right, who won the British and American amateur tournaments. Little was the first to turn this feat since Bobby Jones recorded the double in 1930. Left, above, is Virginia Van Wie, Chicago golfer, who won the women's national crown for the third time. Below is Olin Dutra, who copped the National Open at Ardmore, Pa., and who climaxed his 1934 performance by winning in the "hombler" division of the Miami-Biltmore.

Fistiana crowned a new heavyweight champion in June when Max Baer, above, dropped Primo Carnera for a technical knockout in the eleventh round of their bout in Madison Square Garden. Barney Ross, below, scored two victories over Tony Canzoneri to take the lightweight title. Ross also won the walter crown from Jimmy McLarnin, only to lose it to a return go.

Two Biffers

Described in advance as the date of Will Rogers' notable of American character, the Fox Film production, "County Chairman," will be here at the Lyric theatre for days starting Thursday. "The County Chairman" screen adaptation of the play of the same title, by America's foremost humorist George Ade. Opening on way in the year 1932, "County Chairman" ran there with Maelyn Arbuckle and then toured for the seasons. In addition to the city which it brought to Art the play created another star of the era—Willis Sweetman, appeared in the famous "Sussafus," colored man-work. In the screen play, Fitchit is seen in this notable "The County Chairman," said, is a story of smiles and tugs, rivaling the hugely successful "Judge Priest" and "David Harbo" as a vehicle for Rogers. In new film he is seen as a wily, able county boss, half-dumb, half-rustic. He wins election, arranges love matches with skill—and no one, not even rivals, can resist him. Once again, it is stated, Rogers displays his recently developed fling for singing in picture. You will recall his propensities in "Judge Priest." This time he renders an old western rangers' song, accompanying himself on the guitar. An highlight of "The County Chairman" is one of those famous light processions so much in vogue at the turn of the century, one is staged by Will and is said to have all the frenzy and thrill of originals. You mustn't miss Will Rogers' imitable, in "The County Chairman." You'll love him then ever—and no one can more than that!

The Epistle read on the Feast of the Epiphany is taken from Isaiah 60:1-6; the Gospel is from St. Matthew 2:1-12. On this Sunday there will be Exposition of the Blessed Sacrament beginning with high mass at 10 a. m. and closing with devotions at 4 p. m. On Monday there will be mass at 7:30 a. m.

WILL ROGERS' LATEST ALSO IS HIS FILM

Described in advance as the date of Will Rogers' notable of American character, the Fox Film production, "County Chairman," will be here at the Lyric theatre for days starting Thursday. "The County Chairman" screen adaptation of the play of the same title, by America's foremost humorist George Ade. Opening on way in the year 1932, "County Chairman" ran there with Maelyn Arbuckle and then toured for the seasons. In addition to the city which it brought to Art the play created another star of the era—Willis Sweetman, appeared in the famous "Sussafus," colored man-work. In the screen play, Fitchit is seen in this notable "The County Chairman," said, is a story of smiles and tugs, rivaling the hugely successful "Judge Priest" and "David Harbo" as a vehicle for Rogers. In new film he is seen as a wily, able county boss, half-dumb, half-rustic. He wins election, arranges love matches with skill—and no one, not even rivals, can resist him. Once again, it is stated, Rogers displays his recently developed fling for singing in picture. You will recall his propensities in "Judge Priest." This time he renders an old western rangers' song, accompanying himself on the guitar. An highlight of "The County Chairman" is one of those famous light processions so much in vogue at the turn of the century, one is staged by Will and is said to have all the frenzy and thrill of originals. You mustn't miss Will Rogers' imitable, in "The County Chairman." You'll love him then ever—and no one can more than that!

Research Shows Tire Treads Wear Lower In Winter

During the past few years careful research in the tire industry has shown that good tires show comparatively little wear during the colder months of late fall and winter. Heat, both atmospheric and that generated within the tire itself, is the thing that determine road wear to a large extent. Low temperatures tend to reduce this heat to a point where wear is minimized.

It was pointed out by Dick Murray, tire department of the local Montgomery Ward store that scientific testing has shown that if normal or 100 per cent service is given at 64 degrees Fahrenheit, the service is reduced to from 60 per cent to 40 per cent of normal when the temperature is between 85 and 100 degrees . . . while at winter's low temperature mileage steadily improves until at 32 degrees, the freezing point, it is almost double normal.

Mr. Murray also claimed that the new first quality Riverside tires use a new kind of tread compound that reduces tread heat as much as 30 per cent regardless of weather conditions.

of his innocence, and his attorney must do all the talking and all the proving.

The state contends that the baby was dead before the kidnaper even got to the ground from the ladder, due to the baby having been dropped while the kidnaper was descending. It says that when the kidnaper found that the baby was dead its use was out, and the only chance for carrying out the ransom demands to completion was to use the baby's clothes as a decoy, which was done. Therefore the baby's body was gotten rid of quickly. There is no direct evidence that this was the way that the baby met its death, but the general supposition is that such was the case. Only the kidnaper can tell how the baby met its death; the other will always be circumstantial unless someone confesses.

Chevrolet Announces Two New Lines for 1935

The Coupe model typifies the beauty and style of Chevrolet's New Master De Luxe series for 1935. Improved performance and exceptional economy also characterize these cars.

Right: Front view of New Master De Luxe Coupe, showing roominess and graceful lines. Below: The Sedan model in the New Standard series, which, powered by the time-proven Master engine, combines brilliant performance with its smartness and style.

Fleet, graceful lines also mark the New Master De Luxe Sport Sedan. Ample luggage space is provided by the built-in trunk and a luggage compartment behind the rear seat cushion.

Another attractive model in the New Standard series is the Coupe pictured here. Numerous body and chassis refinements, in conjunction with the Master engine, unite to make these cars outstanding values in the lowest-priced field.

Typical of Chevrolet's two new lines of cars are the models illustrated here. The Master De Luxe series reveals strong emphasis on beauty and style. Mechanically, the Master De Luxe series and the New Standard series have much in common, including the Master engine, in which numerous refinements have been made to enhance performance, durability and economy. As these pictures reveal, the New Master De Luxe departs distinctly from previous Chevrolets in the striking advance which has been made in body design and trim.

whether Hauptmann is convicted or not.

In the end the motive was greed for money. The object of the kidnap was planned to make the most outstanding citizen of America the chief sufferer, both financially and physically. He succeeded in both.

The procedure of the Hauptmann trial should be read word for word by every man, woman and child that can read and understand in the nation. It should arouse the general public against criminals of every nature, whether petty or murderous, to such an extent that such procedure against decent citizens would be completely wiped out forever and eternally. Without the help of the general public, the law enforcement forces find baffling handicaps in the process of finding the real criminal. No one should be afraid to speak when they know that a murderer or a thief is around. Racketeers have found hard sledding lately. They should be completely wiped out. Law abiding citizens deserve the protection of the government, and the worst part about it is that the criminal has even the decent citizens in constant fear of their own lives and refuse to tell even when they know. Criminals are not afraid of the law. They are not even afraid of the electric chair or the hangman's noose. But they are afraid of the public when it becomes aroused. The only thing that does throw fear into the hearts of any criminal is when a mob approaches, or when too many come on the scene.

Legal entanglements has had much to do with handicapping swift conviction to a criminal. It has even handicapped decent justice to one accused of a crime that he did not commit. Our penitentiaries and reformatories have done nothing to make a decent, law abiding citizen out of a criminal. They simply come back to the world when they are released more experienced and more hardened against society. Certainly there is a remedy for this unfortunate condition.

To be just and merciful to humanity is divine, but where does justice begin, and who should be the proper recipient of it?
