MARLAND PLANS CIVIL SERVICE LAWS AND MERGERS

Rep. E. W. Marland of Oklahoma is the democratic nominee for governor of that commonwealth. Marland is a broad gauged and level-headed business man. He is said to be shuffling the political deck for a new deal which may bring widespread changes in state government if he is elected. He will advance a plan to select employes by civil service examination. He has announced plans to have a firm of efficiency experts from out of the state determine what departments may be eliminated and how many employes are necessary to each office. This democratic leader of Oklahoma democracy who relegated Alfalfa William to the sidelines is inviting trouble long before his election in November or his inauguration as chief magistrate of his adopted state.

Thomas P. Gore will come up for re-election to the senate in 1936. Those who are close to Gov. Murray predict that he will be a candidate for the toga now held by Gore, the blind senator who was a Populist leader in Texas 35 years ago and fought democratic nominees for major and minor office all down the line. In his youthful manhood Gore was a radical of radicals. Now he is a conservative among conservatives. He is for the gold standard and as a senator has voted against many administration measures and will continue his opposition to some of the measures planned under the big dome of the Washington capitol at the coming regular session of the congress. Rep. Marland made a huge fortune in the petroleum game. He is one of the real philanthropists of Oklahoma and the Southwest. He lost millions in the depression years, but he is said to have land holdings in Oklahoma which had a value of more than $5,000,000 before the crash came in 1929.

MILLIONS SET ASIDE FOR LOANS ON COTTON

Col. Jesse H. Jones of Texas, chairman of the RFC, sent a message of glad tidings to the cotton growers of the country when he made the official announcement that his corporation had set aside $250,000,000 for cotton loans. The plan English of this is that the huge sum had been decided on as the support for loans for farmers at 12 cents a pound on the cotton they hold. Chairman Jones declared the allocation of a quarter billion dollars would take care of over 3,000,000 bales. All the federal guessers predict a crop of 3,000,000 bales for the Lone Star State. Farm Administrator Davis has advised the tillers of the soil that there will be no federal loans made on the 1934 corn crop for the very substantial reason that the drought had made possible the consumption of the entire expected crop as feed. For the first time in many years there will be no carry-over of corn and corn will not be used as fuel in the Dakotas or Nebraska or Missouri or Kansas this winter.

I have noticed an advertisement running in many newspapers by a hotel in Tennessee. The ad in part says that they have a plantation dining room and the most unique dining and dancing room in America. They also have the highest open air roof garden in the south. It must be some hotel! Its management evidently realizes that when you have something of quality to sell, you can best sell it by newspaper advertising.

Bronzed Indiana Farmer Seeks Honors for Famed 'Johnny Applesed'

By ASH EMSHWILLER
United Press Staff Correspondent
FORT WAYNE, Ind.—A Sun-bronzed old man, W. S. Roebuck, successfully specialized farmer in his early seventies, although alert and one who yet works his fields from sun until dusk, is beginning to think of dying and has one more aim in life before he passes. W. S., or Wes, as he likes to be called, has in his possession certain documentary evidence, fruit of 15 year's research, which he believes will mark definitely the grave of John Chapman, early Mid-West agriculture hero.
History recorded thousands of words about Chapman, a Harvard graduate better known as Johnny Applesed. Unsung for the most part of half a century after his death, he finally has come into his own deserved prominence.
A nation-wide movement will be started probably some time this fall to mark Applesed's grave with a permanent shrine, financed by contributions by millions of school children.
It was he who, through some eccentricity, went widespread through the undeveloped Central States between 1801 and 1840, planting countless apple orchards and distributing seeds and saplings to the early settlers. The story of Johnny's annual trips during those hard frontier years in Pennsylvania cider mills for his supplies of seed; that tedious distribution along the westward flowing rivers into the Mississippi Valley—for the sake of future generations—has been well told in fact.

But 73-year-old W. S. is not concerned with rewriting the history of Johnny's life. To him it is more important where the national figure died and where they buried him.
"It was written Johnny died "in the spring of the year at the home of a Richard, or William, Worth in St. Joseph Township, near Fort Wayne," and that "they buried him under a tall spruce tree along the bank of historic St. Joe River about two and one-half miles from town."
An historical society in 1912 marked a grave on the west river bank as that of Johnny Applesed, and they put an iron fence around the spot.
But there were four disbelievers, one of whom was Wes, who said that Johnny wasn't buried there "at all." "History," Wes said "is a little hazy about it."
For 15 years they probed the

BEACH CLUB GIRL

BEGIN HERE TODAY. BOOTS RAEBURN, 19, is a lovely, elegant girl with blue eyes and blonde hair. Her father, a wealthy businessman, has just died, leaving her a large fortune.

SPRING days with a hint of warmth in the air; rainy days with ribbons of silver mist floating in from the river and fog horns blowing. Boots lived through them all.

She wanted someone to enjoy the lengthening days with her, someone to hum the music that every burdy gurdy Italian played on his wheezy barrel organ.

"I took you to right away. You're different," the wide-eyed Miss Apfel confided to Boots. "Sure, I like all the girls, but there's something about you. I could see you were used to better things."

"You'll get over it. Things will come out all right," Hilda told Boots seriously across a cafeteria table. The vinegar-cruet, the catsup bottle, the heavy glass pepper and salt cellars were between them on the gleaming white table.

New Attempt To Swim Lake Erie
SANDUSKY, Ohio.—Florence Brushaber, 18, who dared to try swimming across Lake Erie, most treacherous of the Great Lakes, will try again soon, she said.
Miss Brushaber, after swimming 14 of the 33 miles across the lake, finally gave up her first attempt when stomach cramps overtook her after dark as she battled the waves.

Miss Brushaber's first attempt was from Point au Pelee, Ont. She was to have crossed to Cedar Point on the Ohio mainland. Dr. Henry Leher, her physician, attributed her illness to improper dieting before entering the water.

MICKEY WALKER and Tony Canzoneri, down in the south after their recent disastrous experiences, ought to hop a boat for Australia.

Perhaps they will after reading this story of Tod Morgan, a worn warrior who was down, but who came up again in the land down under. Gee, the corbay's potent these days.

Morgan fought his last fight in this country at White Center, a Seattle suburb, a little more than a year ago. His cut was $14.

Then he went to Vancouver, B. C., to promote, and flopped. Morgan was stone broke for a spell. He lived with Doc Snell, a former teacher, in Seattle. He didn't even have carfare down town.

The outlook was dismal. Certainly he must be through at 21 and after 14 years of ring toil. Morgan no doubt was thinking of that when he bumped into Ben Tracy, an Australian boxer authorized by the Ruschutt Bay Stadium, promoters, of Sydney, 15 recruit talent. It was last December that Tracy shipped Morgan to the Antipodes, the veteran taking the trip to be assured groceries for the winter.

Morgan the Killer
MORGAN drew with Ned Tarterton, the Briton and ran second to a pair of home guards. He then won a bout or two, before Joe Ghrouly, young St. Louis lightweight, once more made him an appropriate case for retirement.

But Morgan obtained another chance, and began hitting on all eight. He finished Jimmy Kelson, an Australian who previously had outglanded him, in eight rounds, and belted out Tommy John, of England, in the first frame.

"Pretty well all the accepted principles of fighting, and long legs pugilism, have been calmly battered into smithereens by Morgan," writes W. F. Corbett, Sydney's widely known cauliflower critic. Another scribe eulogized his performance against Kelson "one of the greatest exhibitions of forceful and accurate punching since Eugene Cribbin beat the Filipino, Dencio."

Morgan reversed his usual form and became the "killer," although, I suppose, the blokes over there aren't any too hard to "kill."

Maybe It's the Climate
ANYWAY, from the depths of despair, Old Man Morgan, as they refer to him, again hit the golden trail. While the honor will be his, the synthetic Junior lightweight crown of the game in Oustrlyia. He's gloried in 1-2-bit print. Crowds follow him down the street—kids anxious to touch his clothes, and all that sort of thing.

Yes, sir, there's Tod Morgan, who made a sizeable fortune defending the synthetic Junior lightweight crown of the game in Oustrlyia, and others have taken new leases on life in that faraway land.

And if you find out for certain that the Australian climate returns youth to the aging in any respect, please telegraph me collect.

Ruins New Deal Painting; Jailed
Six months in jail was the sentence imposed on John Smiuske, shown here in court, for throwing naphtha on a painting that scathingly satirized the New Deal and especially the Roosevelt family, as it was exhibited in Tarrytown, N. Y. Smiuske ruined the picture, he said, because he did not like the idea of holding the Roosevelts up to ridicule.

China Is Partial to American Ware
PEIPING, China.—America's trade in the China market remains unchallenged. The leadership of the United States as a salesman to Old Cathay is emphasized by statistics just published by the Inspectorate General of the Chinese Maritime Customs.

Last year imports into China were valued at $8,358,978,165, silver. Of this total China bought from the United States goods worth $297,468,131. Thus, with 21.86 per cent of China's imports coming from America, the United States led all other countries in the value of merchandise sold to China.

The United States also is a good customer of China. Last year China exported goods worth $612,292,722, silver. Of this sum America's purchases totaled $113,146,444, or 18.48 per cent. The Customs figures show that 19.75 per cent of China's exports went to the British Colony of Hongkong.

Customs figures, as during the past few years, continue to show the effect of the impaired Sino-Japanese diplomatic relations on the trade between China and Japan. In 1932 Japan, except for the United States, sold more goods in China than any other country. Last year, however, the Japanese dropped to third place as importers to China, with the United States in first place and with Great Britain second. In 1932 Japan bought more goods from China than any other country, but last year Great Britain held first place as an importer from China. The United States last year was China's second best customer and Japan was third.

Collection May Get a Museum
By United Press
HARTFORD, Conn.—The fruit of 49 years labor of Rex I. Brasher, noted naturalist, artist and compiler of the most extensive picture study of North American birds, may be housed in one of the country's most unique museums if the Connecticut Park Commission grants official endorsement.

Brasher has roamed from Mexico to the Arctic regions studying birds. He has made 830 paintings of as many species, believed the greatest collection ever compiled. In addition, he has illustrated 499 sub-species, which he has compiled into a 12-volume work.

The commission has under advisement construction of a $150,000 museum, a circular building 200 feet in diameter and built entirely of concrete, to house the one-man collection. The galleries would radiate from the center of the structure and the pictures so arranged that only one could be viewed at a time. It would be one story high, with overhead lighting. Government aid is being solicited to carry out the project.

Brasher has studied birds since he was 15. He formerly was a professional engraver. He is a self-taught naturalist and his plates are hand-colored.
