Edwards Smiles at Grim Parade of Evidence

Although the state paraded its grim exhibits in a nerve-wracking effort to convince the Wilkes-Barre, Pa., jury that he had murdered Freda McKechnie to extricate himself from an amorous dilemma, Robert Allen Edwards' only change of expression was to smile confidently as in the inset above.

SUSPECTS ARE BEING QUIZZED IN HILLSBORO

FORT WORTH, Oct. 8.—Two men were arrested here today as suspects in the death of Walter (Money) Jones, 65-year-old professional bondsman and money lender of Cleburne.

The suspects, said by police to have prison records, were taken to Hillsboro by Sheriff J. W. Freeland of Hill county.

Police said one of the men who gave their ages as 48 and 42, had served in the New Mexico penitentiary for killing a woman. The other had served in Texas and Oklahoma penitentiaries and in Leavenworth on narcotic charges, they said.

Jones' body was found approximately 14 miles south of Hillsboro yesterday. He was last seen Friday morning. He had been dead two days, doctors estimated.

The body was so badly decomposed that it was impossible to determine if he had been shot or strangled, but officers held to the latter theory.

Officers feared he had been slain for his money. He had a habit of carrying large sums of money with him.

Officers will attempt to identify one of the men as the "stranger" seen with Jones in Cleburne last Friday.

George Beheer, former Cleburne constable and cattle buyer, saw Jones while eating breakfast Friday. He pointed to a new car and told the constable he was going to Waco with the stranger.

They were to put up a large cash bond for a man being held there.

Montgomery Ward Makes Game Report Possible In Paper

The play-by-play reports on the world series baseball games, as carried in this paper, have been made possible through the co-operation of the Montgomery Ward store in Ranger.

Ray Fesmire, manager of the store, installed one of their late model radios in the office of the Ranger Times, where a reporter took down the plays as they were made, allowing this paper to carry the complete details of the game in the paper each afternoon.

BODY OF MAN FOUND AFTER LONG SEARCH

Both Men Have Prison Records Officers Say After Arrest.

BURLESON, Texas, Oct. 8.—The body of E. E. Mallory, 24-year-old filling station operator, was found in a ditch 60 yards from his place of business here today.

Mallory was missing from the station, owned by J. T. Keen, when Keen arrived at the station to open it for business. The attendant slept in the station at night.

Keen found the station in a state of confusion. The cash register and a cigar case had been looted. A posse of 100 immediately took up the search for Mallory.

One group had temporarily abandoned the search and was retracing its steps when the body was discovered near the station. Residents who lived nearby told officers they heard a commotion about 2 a. m. and two shots were heard.

Amount of the loot had not been determined.

INDICTMENT OF HAUPTMANN IS ASKED BY JUDGE

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Oct. 8.—Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard today charged the Hunterdon county grand jury to consider evidence against Bruno Hauptmann in the Lindbergh case and to return indictments for murder "if the facts warrant."

The judge said evidence would be presented to show Hauptmann "in the course of a burglary, kidnaped Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. and caused injuries which killed the child."

The judge said a murder indictment must be found if it is found the baby had been killed accidentally or on purpose.

The state sought to establish grounds for murder charges through the testimony of Charles A. Lindbergh and Millard Whited, who said he saw Hauptmann prowling around the Lindbergh home before the kidnaping.

Drouth in Texas—

every month since Jan. 1—has been going into the hands of royalty owners alone, covering their owners' one-eighth, with the money being spread over the entire state. Farmers of the state, directly affected by the drouth, aren't in such bad shape, either, the league's statistics show. Value of the state's five major crops—cotton, wheat, corn, oats, and grain sorghums—is more than

$202,000,000 greater than for 1932 and more than $140,000,000 greater than for 1931. The league produced a cheerful chorus of other figures to indicate the state's business trend. Texas retail stores reported average dollar sales increased 13.4 per cent in July, 1934, over July, 1933. Aggregate sales for the first seven months of this year were 26 per cent greater than for the same period in 1933. Net revenue for Texas railroads in the first six months of 1934 was 742.5 per cent above net revenue for the same period last year. Commercial failures in July were 59 per cent fewer than for the same month a year ago. Texas farmers received an average of 3111 in federal payments, or one-sixth as much as their average receipts from all crops in 1933. So why the calamity howling? The press league blames it on an exaggerated idea of harm done by the drouth which in turn resulted from the scramble for state and federal relief funds. Instead of counting their blessings, the various communities tabulated their ailments in order to impress relief agencies and thus get a bigger share of relief funds than they would otherwise receive. Even cattlemen, admittedly the greatest drouth sufferers, are not as bad off as vivid tales of starving cattle, dying on the ranges or being slaughtered by government agents, would indicate, the league concludes.

The survey quoted from the magazine "Farm and Ranch" to show that much of the slaughtering was primarily to eradicate tuberculosis and Bang's disease. It was a health measure carried out with funds appropriated long before the drouth, the magazine stated.

That so many Texas counties went on the federal "emergency drouth relief" lists, according to the magazine, "is evidence that alert farmers sensed the opportunity to cull their herds of unprofitable animals."

"In no sense can 'drouth relief' be interpreted to mean suffering and want."

"The cattlemen are accustomed to playing long shots," the league comments. "In the dryer areas the cattlemen have never 'hit' more than once in three years."

For this reason the drouth in many instances was a disguised blessing. It brought with it federal payments that helped the ranchman to sustain his loss whereas in other years he had to bear it alone.

Drouth also brought higher prices for farm products in its wake, so that in a large measure reduced production was offset by higher returns for what crops were salvaged.

Terror Spreads In Havana Strikes

HAVANA, Oct. 8.—A general strike by utilities workers at midnight last night brought terror to Havana today. Thirty-four bombs were exploded before daybreak. Street cars were fired on the taxicabs stoned, and there was a serious fire, apparently of incendiary origin, in the plant of the newspaper Ahora.

The Colony Parent-Teacher association met Friday, Oct. 5, at the schoolhouse in a very interesting meeting. A program was given by the students in the first four grades, directed by Miss Briscoe and Miss Waters. The state vice president, Mrs. C. E. Maddocks, gave a very interesting address and gave points to help in the organization of a standard P.T.A., which can be of service to the community.

TRY A WANT AD

The Clew of the Forgotten Murder

BEGIN HERE TODAY
CHARLES MORDEN, reporter for The Blade, telephones the newspaper a report of the death of EDWARD SHILLINGBY, private detective, believed to have been killed by "CRIMINALS" RED LAMPSON, gangster. The same night an impostor, pretending to be FRANK B. CATHAY of Riverview, wealthy and prominent, is brought to police headquarters on suspicion of drouth while intoxicated. With him is a girl who says she is MARY BRIGGS, hitch-hiker. Both are released. Morden telephones the facts to his newspaper. Next day the real Cathay calls on DICK KENNEY, city editor of The Blade. Cathay claims his reputation has been injured, and demands damages and a retraction. DAN BLEEKER, junior publisher of The Blade, hears the story from Kenney and Morden. Bleeker says, "There's something fishy about this," and sends Morden to Riverview to learn all he can about Cathay.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER IV
DAN BLEEKER, junior partner and publisher of The Blade, turned to Morden, his police reporter. "I'm putting someone else at your desk down at headquarters," he said. "You get busy and chase down every lead you can get on Frank B. Cathay. Dig into Cathay's life with a spade, and dig deep. There'll be plenty there that he won't want to have brought out—there always is. The trouble with men of his type is that they pose as being altogether too perfect. They put up a front that isn't human. When you get back of that front you find a lot of stuff that nobody knows about. You get busy and find out."

"Yes, sir," said Morden. "But don't spring any of it," said Bleeker. "You button it up under your hat and see that you keep your mouth shut. You get the information. As you get it, you bring it to me. You'd better make daily reports." "Suppose they get wise to me?" Morden asked. Bleeker's words popped out with the explosive force of firecrackers. "Don't give a damn," he snapped. "Let 'em find out. What do we care? Tell 'em what you're there for if they ask questions. Remember, young man, that this newspaper is back of you. Frank B. Cathay may be bigger than you are, but, by God, the newspaper is bigger than he is! He's started a fight. All right, he's going to get a fight. Tell him so! Stand up and look him in the eyes and tell him that."

"WHATEVER you do, don't be sneaky. Don't get to skulking around corners, listening at key holes, peering through windows. Bust right in. You've got a job—it's a legitimate job. Frank B. Cathay is going to claim that his reputation is worth something and that we've damaged it. All right, the question of what that reputation is worth is a fact to be determined. It depends on a lot of things. You're going to find out those things. Don't be ashamed of what you're doing. Don't let anyone get you on the defensive. Do you understand?" Morden nodded.

"You're engaged in a fight," Dan Bleeker said, "and here's a

"You know," Mrs. Cathay said, "husbands would very frequently make fools of themselves were it not for the restraining hand of a wife."

"Thank you," she said in a voice that was neither cordial nor grateful. She remained standing. Ethel West strode into Dan Bleeker's private office. "Mrs. Cathay is out there," she said. Bleeker looked up at her with a swift frown. "Alone?" "Yes."

"What does she want?" "She won't tell me." "What does she look like?" "She's about 30. She has lots of money and she's spent a lot of it on her appearance. She's got one of those schoolgirl complexions. She hardly ever moves her facial muscles. Her eyes are nervous. She's trying to make a good impression. She's wearing a fur coat with a big collar; she looks better in it when she's standing up. She started to sit down and then changed her mind. She thinks perhaps you might come out to see her, instead of letting her come in to see you. She's standing up so she can make a good impression."

"And as far as Frank B. Cathay is concerned, don't make any bones about it. Attend meetings of his luncheon club. Mingle around in the city. Smile at him. Be cordial to him. But never forget the one fact that you're there to blast his reputation wide open. Do you understand?" "Yes, sir," said Morden. "Can you do it?" "Yes, sir."

"Get started, then."

MRS. CATHAY entered the office with short, quick steps. From the moment she reached a point from which she could command a view of Dan Bleeker's desk her eyes were wide, showing to advantage the long lashes. Her head was held slightly to one side against the big collar of the coat. Her lips were curved in a perfectly arched smile. "Mr. Bleeker!" she exclaimed. "It was so nice of you to see me and so nice of you to see me so promptly. I know what a busy man you are."

Ethel West pulled the door shut behind her as she returned to the outer office. "Sit down, Mrs. Cathay," said Dan Bleeker. "I wanted to see you about my husband," Mrs. Cathay said. "Yes, of course."

"Oh, did you know I was coming?" "No, but I naturally assumed that was what you wanted to see me about when my secretary said you were in the office."

She squirmed about in the chair, settling herself with a slight gesture of the shoulders, a quick twist of her head. Her eyes, a deep hazel, were smiling now. "You know, Mr. Bleeker," she said, "husbands would very frequently make fools of themselves, were it not for the restraining hand of a wife."

While the New Utility Cooker brings to you the possibilities of enjoying old-fashioned meals in addition, it permits you to prepare foods by the newer methods of cooking without water. Science has discovered that there is so much natural moisture in all meats, vegetables and fruits that it is entirely feasible to cook them with little or no water. Boring Speakers 'Rung Down' By Banquet Students

By United Press

FORT WORTH.—Texas Christian University students do not like dull, after-dinner speakers and they have adopted a unique "ringing down" method to prevent it.

There is nothing more boring say these students, than to have a speaker repeat the worn out routine: "It affords me a great deal of pleasure to take part in this occasion, etc."

The practice of "ringing down" dull speakers is carried out every year at the welcoming dinner for Freshmen. The speaker had better have something interesting to say if he wants to continue speaking. Let him start dealing in formulae and platitudes and he will see every student at the table start beating on his glass. Even if the speaker does not take the hint, he has to quit anyway. The din is too great.

Moreover, these self-appointed supporters of good speech-making are no respecters of persons. Even university president, E. M. Waits, has been "rung down."

TOOK BAND TRIP

News comes of Robert McGlamery, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. McGlamery, to the effect that as a member of the Longhorn Band of Texas University, he was with the band attending the Notre Dame game in South Bend, Ind., on Saturday. He spent Sunday and that night in Chicago, where the Longhorn Band had a part in the Texas Day program, Sunday afternoon at the World's Fair. The band was taken on a personally conducted tour of the fair, during the day.

JOAN CRAWFORD, CLARK GABLE GIVE AUDIENCE SOMETHING TO CHEER ABOUT

With "Chained" the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture playing at the Lyric Theatre Monday, Joan Crawford and Clark Gable win new laurels for their already glistening crowns.

For "Chained" is an excellent picture, expertly mounted, directed and acted.

Clarence Brown, who gave us "Sadie McKee," Joan's last, is also responsible for the splendid direction and pace of the new picture.

As Diane, modern Manhattan miss, Joan Crawford brings a new and vivid characterization to the screen. Clark Gable holds up his end with more than sufficient skill and charm as Mike, likable young rancher in South America. The supporting cast is equally fine, with Otto Kruger as Mr. Field, the "other man" in the case; Stuart Erwin in the role of Johnnie, wise cracking friend; Una O'Connor as the sympathetic companion, and Marjorie Gateson in the role of Mrs. Field.

But excellent as all other phases of the production are, chief honors go to the co-stars who, brilliantly cast, turn in performances that compare well with the finest screen characterizations of the year.

George Folsey outdoes himself with the photography, and the same thing can well be said of the striking Adrian gowns, which are much in prominence.

The story was written especially for the screen by Edgar Selwyn and was adapted by John Lee Mahin.

Pay no attention to the petition but ask for a complete copy of the thing that the petition is for and then read it and study it, then the next thing to do is to make up their own mind and not let some one else decide it for them, and the last thing to do in the instance for action is to go direct to the representative of the district with a letter stating the sender's views on the subject. If that were done the representative would have opinions that would be worth something and the so-called "railroading" would end.
