GEN. JOHNSON GIVEN DUE RECOGNITION BY F. D. R.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, the fighting West Pointer of the New Deal administration and administrator of the NRA, will not desert his post. President Roosevelt has increased his salary from $6000 to $15,000 a year.

He has not been stripped of power. He has the confidence of the President and has been given additional power as well as prestige.

This increase of salary and authority was directed by special order of the President. Moreover, the action was taken in order to give the militant warrior of the New Deal set-up, "a salary more nearly in line with his work and to enable him to meet heavy living expenses." Well, the laborer is worthy of his hire. If he is a $15,000-a-year man, he should be paid $15,000 a year. If he is a $50,000-a-year man, he is worth the price. If he is a $2000-a-year or a $1000-a-year man, that is his misfortune.

There are leaders and there are leaners. There are men who blaze the trails where others walk without being compelled to cut a road in the wilderness or kick down the barriers. General Johnson has borne the brunt of the battle of the administration since he was picked as the field marshal of the fighting battalions entrusted with the enforcement of the NRA rules and plans and codes, all experiments. Weaklings have their place in the scheme of things or in the great economy of nature set-ups, but a weakling cannot stand the gaff, blaze the trail, sail his ship on an uncharted ocean and avoid the snags which often wrecked political ships of steel and steam.

Johnson has had a very tough and a very thankless job. He has not finished the job. But like the Arizona fiddler "he is doing his damndest and angels kin do no more."

UNCLE ANDY MELLON RETURNS TO HIS DESK

Andrew W. Mellon is 79. He is home from a vacation in Scotland. He was welcomed to the Smokey City, known as Pittsburgh. Bright and early he made his way to his office building and "turned to a littered desk and mapped out for himself a 12-hour work day." Under the federal statute Uncle Andy must wait two years after relinquishing his treasury post before he may again actively engage in banking, and although that period will be up in March his close associates say that it is doubtful if their chief will ever again return to that occupation. While abroad he did not invest $1,500,000 in a famous painting. He admits that all he has done is to admire the painting, and "as much as he likes art he had no idea of paying such a price for a painting."

Uncle Andy is one of the most remarkable men in American history. From early boyhood he has been a glutton for work. He is a rugged individualist. His father before him piled up an immense fortune and Uncle Andy has added hundreds of millions to that fortune. Think of it, 79 and in harness again with a huge fortune at his command but ever insistent that man was made to work "almost from the cradle to the grave."

Hidalgo County 'Cabbage War' To Reach the Courts

EDINGURG, Tex.—Echoes of Hidalgo county's famous "cabbage war" of early spring will be heard September 24 in Judge Bryce Ferguson's 92nd District Court when trials of three men indicted in connection with burning of one packing plant and destruction of considerable cabbage will be called.

District Attorney Sid Harlin announced the settings has been made by Judge Ferguson Saturday.

C. T. Brockington of Mercedes faces trial on an arson charge in connection with the burning of Carl Besett's cabbage plant at Alamo in March. The plant was totally destroyed with an uninsured loss of about $15,000. A night-watchman at the plant was abducted by a group of men and released a short time later several miles from Alamo on a country road. When he made his way back to the town, the plant was in flames. Alamo and McAllen fire departments battling the blaze all night.

A. C. Barnhart of McAllen, head of the McAllen unit and an official of a Valleywide growers' organization, is also charged with arson in connection with the Besett fire.

S. W. Prince of La Feria faces trial on an indictment charging burglary with intent to commit arson. It is alleged that he broke into the Dan Logan packing plant at San Juan the night of the Besett fire and soaked the interior with kerosene. Cabbage in the plant was ruined and several loaded refrigerator cars on sidings were also ruined when the cargoes were soaked in oil. The night-watchman at the Logan plant was held prisoner in a nearby gin seedhouse by another group while contents of the plant were being soaked in oil, investigators were told. All three men were indicted shortly after the Besett fire, Hidalgo county deputy sheriffs and Texas Rangers participating in the probe. All have been in liberty under bond of $3,000 each for Prince and Barnhart and $1,000 for Brockington.

Wethered Proves Herself

By United Press
ON—Miss Joyce Wethered proved what most people in her to be—the world's best.

at an exhibition match at the Waldorf Astor, she was world supreme by two holes, down with five to nothing.

provided something new as the first professional women's match ever known.

Wethered lost her amateur status when she took up the post of "golf adviser" at a large store here.

It didn't affect her much, for she had been in "golfing retirement" for some time before that.

Miss Wilson, winner of the Open championship in 1931, 1932, and 1933, only lost her amateur status this year. It was due to a new definition of an amateur, which prevents anyone playing in competition who has written on golf when his or her ordinary profession is not a journalist. Miss Wilson had been reporting on different competitions, and her entry for the Open this year was refused. She was also excluded from the Curtis cup team.

The match, played at Bramley, attracted more than 500 spectators, another near-record for an exhibition here. Miss Wethered was around in 77, and Miss Wilson took one stroke more.

BEACH CLUB GIRL

By MAEL McELIOTT
BEGIN HERE TODAY
BOOTS RAEBURN is and pretty is snatched by wealthy SYLVIA RIVERS a Hamilton Boots accepts the attentions of RENE LIND, handsome swimming instructor and impetively close with him.

Almost immediately she reneges the marriage is a mere promise, promising to send for her. He does not write. Months pass and then comes word that Rene has been killed in a motorcycle accident.

Boots gets a job in a department store she is to meet DENIS FENWAY young author. He introduces her to some of his friends, including: KAY CHILLINGFORD, Mrs. Sanderson, and a girl named Betty, and takes Boots to visit relatives at Easthampton. Boots is received cordially and has a gorgeous time until Kay appears and takes possession of Boots. Hurt and jealous, Boots insists on returning to town alone.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXIV
IT was a burning morning. During the night the water carts had sprinkled the dusty streets and for a brief space during the early hours freshness persisted. By half past nine the heat was unendurable. The sky seemed a copper bowl inverted over the face of the earth.

Nothing, however, could keep the crowds from the sale counters at Lacy's. They pressed in—women in thin silks, women in cheap cottons, the seams straining under their bulging arms; women with expensive handbags and clean gloves; women with neither and with parcels wrapped in sleazy paper tied with thin, unreliable strings. Boots hated them all to-day with a deadly hatred. It was agony to be courteous, to force interest into one's dying tones.

"Would the morning never end? The humid air was like a tangible thing, pressing against her chest, stifling her. Once a girl fainting down a crowded aisle, and the other clerks peered at each other with hurried eyes as a space was cleared for the sufferer's passing.

Boots saw the hands of her watch creep around to her lunch period with a passionate sensation of greatitude. She would have fared there she would bathe her face and hands.

As she went to her locker the need of the department beckoned to her from the doorway of a glassed and partitioned cubicle. Miss Houghton looked stern, but then that was her habitual expression. Boots was conscious of a lift of apprehension in her heart.

"Someone is calling you on the telephone, Mrs. Lund," said the older woman in a perfectly ex-presionless voice which, however managed to convey the impression of displeasure. "You know employees are not supposed to have calls within hours, but I will make an exception."

WHEN Boots heard Denis' voice she realized why the exception had been made. Not even prim Miss Houghton, eyeglassed, 50 and plump, could resist Denis at his most charming. She said, "Yes," in a tone deliberately restrained and impersonal.

"You were going to call me," Denis accused.

"I forgot."

She hadn't. Of course, she hadn't. But after yesterday—had he really thought she would telephone him this morning? What did the man think she was made of?

"Well, here's the lay-out," Denis went on. "You're to see Masterson this afternoon—about four. Can you get off?"

Miss Houghton was within hearing. Boots must not give herself away.

"I—I don't know. Not unless it's most awfully important."

"The thing is practically sewed up. He just wants to see you here in the Marjell Building, Fifty seventh street. Got that?"

"Yes, I've got it."

"Well, be there like a good girl. Let me know what happens."

She stood staring at the instrument in her hand like a dazed creature.

"You understand this is not creating a precedent," Mrs. Lund, Miss Houghton purred. "It's most irregular."

"I know and thank so much," Boots drifted away. She would have to get out—somehow—at four o'clock.

The early afternoon hours wheeled by. "If I go," Boots thought, "and nothing comes of it I'll lose my job here; I'll be done for." She was fatalistic about that job. It had been a life-saver to her.

On the other hand Masterson's book she would open up a new life. Denis naturally was optimistic but it was absurd to say it was "all sewed up" when Masterson hadn't even talked to her.

At half past three Boots walked over to Mr. Bliss who was signing a salesbook with a flourish. Her heart was thudding painfully.

He looked worried; even his white carnation drooped.

"I'm feeling ill, Mr. Bliss." It was true. Nervousness had given her a feeling of nausea and her head ached. Everything swam before her.

"Well, well..." He paused impatiently, tapping his pointed pen against the counter. "You may go then but you'll be docked for this. It's been a terrible day. Girls dropping like flies..." He turned his back upon her and her got her and after a hurried word to Miss Apfel she fled.

IT had been so easy; her head still swam with the surprise of it. She found herself out on the torrid pavement among the jostling crowds. It was a pity she hadn't time to refresh herself but she would have to hurry now to make the appointment on time. How like Denis' arrogance to make a four o'clock appointment for her, knowing perfectly well how difficult it would be for her to keep it.

The lobby of the big office building was cool, almost empty. She stepped into a car with intricate bronze grilles, her heart beating double time. Maybe Mr. Masterson would be gone maybe he would not see her, after all.

A blond girl with sculptured curls and mascaraed lashes took her name indolently and plugged in two black rubber knobs at the switchboard.

"Mrs. Lund, to see Mr. Masterson. All right."

She swept the ashes in Boots' direction. "Room 421," she directed. "His name is on the door."

Boots pushed the swinging mahogany gate inward and looked about her interestedly. A dozen-two dozen girls lifted curious eyes from typewriter and billhead as she passed. This big, orderly room with its shaded windows, its dark green composition floor on which footsteps fell softly, seemed dim

Liberty Legion Idea Not New in Texas

By United Press
FORT WORTH.—The American Liberty Legion, recently organized by Al Smith and other national figures, is not new to Ft. Worth, at least in idea.

An organization similar and with almost the same name, organized here nearly a decade ago, lived a short while and passed out of existence. Its purpose was to fight to Ku Klux Klan.

Its name was the American League of Liberty. Inside from the unusual similarity of names, the Ft. Worth organization also was against regimentation. Its pledge sheet sound much like that of the Liberty Legion. It said: "The American League of Liberty is organized by the citizens of the United States for the purpose of conserving to themselves all the original rights and liberties accorded their fellow man, and to oppose any encroachment thereupon, either by foreign tyrants or domestic bigotry.

"We believe it our right, duty and privilege to oppose the encroachments of puritanism and phariseism on the realm of our individual liberties, or the domain of our personal conscience; and that bigotry and intolerance are always destructive of the self-control and initiative which have ever been the foundation of worthy American character, and the well-spring of American Liberty."

Only one veiled reference was made to Ku Klux Klan and that in the beginning paragraph: "Therefore in these beliefs, and with our faces in the light, in the principles here set forth we subscribe our faith..."

Negro Approves of "Love, Honor, Obey"

SILVERTON, Tex.—As County Judge W. Coffey, Jr., read the words, "love, honor and obey" in to the ceremony which united a Quiltake colored couple, a husky voice interrupted the reading of the marriage rites.

"Read that again, suh," said the colored groom. "Read it once mo' so's de lady kin ketch de full solemnity of de meanin'. I see been married befor."

Appetizing Foods
—prepared in less time, with less work and less fuel expense!
The New WATERLESS WAY

While the New Utility Cooker brings to you the possibilities of enjoying old-fashioned meals in addition, it permits you to prepare foods by the newer methods of cooking without water.

Science has discovered that there is so much natural moisture in all meats, vegetables and fruits that it is entirely feasible to cook them with little or no water.

About the only reason why we have cooked with water was to avoid burning. Water distributes the heat evenly, conducting it away from the point nearest the fire.

However, after we have cooked our foods we have poured off the excess water and with it we have poured the bone-forming, teeth-building minerals; the iron, calcium and phosphorus that constitute the essential elements which the human system must have. With the new perfected Utility Cooker you can prepare foods deliciously tender and full of these health-building elements. The Utility Cooker is ideal for the housewife who wishes to practice this modern, more healthful and more economical way of cooking.

Booster Bible Class
 The Booster Bible class meeting Sunday morning in Methodist church was opened by their president, Mrs. Ed F. Willman, with ensemble song service led by Mrs. E. Everett, with Mrs. Arthur Vaughn as pianist.
 Sentence prayers followed and prefaced the lecture by Judge W. P. Leslie, class teacher, who brought a forceful description of Isaiah, the prophet's form of true worship, the standard lesson topic for the day in the Sunday schools.
 The speaker said that there must be a thorough reformation in the character, putting away evil, and learning to do right.
 In the brief business session Mrs. Everett was appointed chairman of nominating committee to present the slate for the election of officers next Sunday morning.
 Announcement was made that Cecil Hibbert, who has been ill for several weeks, was still confined to his bed but would be glad to have friends call.

Truth Seekers Class
 Mrs. L. G. Rogers, president of the Truth Seekers class, opened the session held Sunday morning in the Baptist church, and conducted the business period, preceding the lesson from Isaiah, brought by the class teacher, Mrs. Clyde L. Garrett, who presented the contrast between false and true worship, bringing the high light in the chief thought, that God seeks that those who worship him do so in truth and spirit, and that formalism alone cannot make worship acceptable to God.
 A social session of the class was announced for Thursday night at the home of the hostess, Mrs. Don Parker.

Those present, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gaston, Mr. and Mrs. Don Parker; Meses, Homer Norton, L. G. Rogers, and Clyde L. Garrett, and three young men guests.

Home Makers Class
 Mrs. S. D. Phillips opened the meeting of the Home Makers class, Sunday morning at the Baptist church Sunday school, with Scripture quotations by members and prayer offered by Mrs. W. P. Palm.

Announcement was made by the chair that the new officers will assume their duties the first Sunday morning in October.
 A most interesting lesson was brought by the class teacher, Mrs. Ray Lerner, in the story of the life of Isaiah, one of the four major prophets, and closed with the interpretation of true worship, the theme of the lesson.

 The Lord's Prayer in unison followed. Visitors introduced were Mrs. J. R. Rogers of Austin, Mrs. W. H. Thompson of Henderson, and Misses Clara June Kimble and Margaret Hart, the latter the accompanist, piano and violin, for the voice solo of Mrs. W. A. Hart.
 Class hymn, ensemble, "In the Garden," was followed with announcement by Pastor E. R. Stanford of the program of the Cisco district Bible conference, an adult institute, which opens Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock and continues Thursday and Friday, closing Sunday. Also that the pastor desired that the Martha Dorcas and Booster Bible classes sponsor the attendance, on these days, and at these meetings.

 Mrs. W. H. Mullings brought a spiritual lesson on the Sunday morning theme, true worship, from Isaiah, stressing the thought, that true prayer does not have to be spoken, but can be silently whispered by the heart. That lack of spiritual devotion cannot be made up for by practical work in the church.
 The class prayer closed the session.

 Mrs. S. A. Green, their director, led the group in prayer, and followed with the story, "A King's Pout That Cost a Man's Life."

Steel Rail Goes on a Bender

It's the steel rail, not the observer, who has been on a bender in this case, although one can't be blamed for not crediting one's eyes. The rail looped the loop when four cars of a speeding New York-bound express train were derailed near Bristol, Pa. Two women passengers were slightly injured.

Islet Rising From Crater Lake To Be Pictured on New Stamp

Jutting up from the clear waters of Crater Lake, as shown here, Wizard Island, with its tree-covered slopes, is a striking scenic feature of Crater Lake national park, a picture of which will adorn one of the new stamps to be issued by the Postoffice Department. The park is in Klamath county, Oregon, in the Cascade mountains, the body of water after which it is named being almost in its center. The lake is in the crater of an extinct volcano believed to have been at least 16,000 feet high. The majestic grandeur of the surrounding territory has attracted thousands of tourists.

Pullman Train Is Streamlined

CHICAGO—A Pullman equipped streamlined passenger train, the first of its kind in America, soon is to be put in operation between Chicago and the Pacific coast.
 This new six-car train, built by the United Pacific Railroad Company, is similar in design to the three-car unit built by the company several months ago and now on exhibition at the Chicago World's Fair.
 The addition of sleeping facilities to the high speed train was expected by company officials to save a full business day between here and the coast.
 Constructed of an aluminum alloy, the weight of the new train will be 200 tons as compared to the 700 tons of a corresponding steel steam train. It will be powered by a 900-horsepower Diesel engine, which will pull the locomotive car, a mail-baggage car, three Pullman sleepers and a coach-buffet car.
 Sixty-eight passengers will be afforded sleeping accommodations in ultra-modern berths. Each berth has a collapsible wash bowl, illuminated mirror and is enclosed at night with a sliding aluminum panel. There are adjustable reading lights. A folding stairway provides easy access to upper berths.
 The buffet coach, with seating capacity for 56, is the last car of the unit. The kitchen is located in the finlike tail of the rear car and from there meals will be served directly to the seated diners.

Britain Tries Out Air Cops To Nab Bandits

LEICESTER, England.—British crime experts now are predicting the time in the near future when the "cop" in the air will supersede the policeman on the motorcycle as the chief weapon of the law in hunting down automobile bandits.
 Airplanes and radio have been called into play by the police in a trial man-hunt near here. A fake bank hold-up was reported in a nearby town. Airplanes equipped with radio sets were sent from Desford airdrome.
 As a result, the imaginary bandits were run to earth within 25 minutes of the time when they were supposed to have robbed the bank of $150,000.

 The police expressed great satisfaction over the result and believe that when practical use is made of it a hot time will be in store for Great Britain's bandits.
 The police airdromes were fitted with short-wave transmitting and receiving sets of a type used for military purposes. The police automobile, which worked in conjunction with the airplanes, also was equipped with short-wave transmitter and receiver fitted under the dashboard. It could be operated equally well by the driver or passenger.
 The method of tracking down bandits never has been tried before in Great Britain. Airplanes and police automobiles equipped with radio sets, however, have been used on a number of occasions for directing traffic at big race meetings such as Epsom and Ascot.

 The pilot in the police airplanes claim that they can pick out any automobile at a height of 500 feet and follow it easily.
HUGE TREE DESTROYED
 BOONVILLE, Mo.—A giant sassafras tree, the oldest in Missouri and believed to be the largest of its kind west of the Mississippi River, was blown down during a wind storm. It had a girth of 13 1/2 feet, with an estimated height of about 50 feet.
