A Good Legend Makes Exploration Exciting

Two French explorers have just set off on a hike thru the desolate Hoggar mountains of Africa in a hopeful effort to discover the fabulous beautiful blond sirens of the Gara Ti-Djanoun peak.

The Frenchmen aim to find out all about them, to conduct a bit of archaeological retsearch on the side, andif the legend turns out to be a dud-to do a little hunting.

Now all this is a sample of the kind of thing that used to make exploration worth while-not because these sirens are supposed to be so excessively beautiful, but because the legend itself is fanciful and improbable, so that it gives the explorers a regular story book excuse for making their trip.

A BUYING GUIDE

Before you order dinner at a restaurant, you consult the bill-of-fare. Before you take a long trip by motorcar, you pore over road maps. Before you start out on a shopping trip, you should consult the advertisements in this paper. For the same reasons

The advertising columns are a buing guide to you in the purchase of everything you reed-including amusements! A guide that saves you time and conserves your energy; that saves useless steps and guards against false ones; that put the s-t-r-et-c-h in family budgets.

The advertisements in this paper are interesting, it is difficult to see how any one could overbok them ... fail to profit by them. Just check with your elf and be sure that you are reading the advertisemers regularly -the big ones and the little ones. It is time well spent ... always.

Avoid timewasting, money-wasting detours on the ned to merchandise value. Read the advertising 'road maps.
