TODAY Anne Winter, yesterday. I understand she has signed a contract at Grand United."

Anne was now working in Martin Collins' picture at Amalgamated.

Dan nodded. "That's true," he said, and Maris told him she had seen Anne rehearsing.

"She has a lovely voice, so low and sweet, and nice to listen to. It's really very pretty; I envy her. You know that she was going to have a couple of songs in Martin Collins' picture?"

Dan said he did. "He manages to keep posted about her," Collier observed, and Dan smiled and spoke again to Maris.

"Anne is taking vocal lessons, you know. She'll be glad to get your compliment."

"And you may be sure that Maris meant it," Collier told him. "Maris is one of the few who are not jealous, and she really speaks her mind. Don't you, Maris?"

"Listen to the man!" Maris cried. "Isn't he a pal?" She laughed merrily, flashing perfect teeth. "Paul likes to believe that all screen people are catty. But he doesn't really think so; he's such a half-hearted cynic!"

"Sure, I'm a pal," Paul said, reaching over to shake hands with her, and Maris assured Dan that, regardless of whether he believed Paul or not, she really meant what she said about Anne Winter.

"She has a lot of talent, really, and Martin Collins likes her very much; he told me so. This picture she's in now—it's a comedy of some sort from the stage, isn't it?"

Collier said it was and told her the name. "They're changing the name, anyway. It's a farce comedy, and they're adding to the love interest by packing some song numbers into it. It ought to be pretty good."

"Anyway," Maris said, "Anne Winter seems to be pretty good."

"You ought to have seen her in 'Song of the Stars,' the picture Hurley made," Paul said. "Dan and I saw the preview the other night at Grand United. Anne has a song and a dance in it, and the gal's there—no fooling."

After lunch they sat out in the patio and talked about a forthcoming picture in which Maris was to be featured. It was her first picture—a featured player, and Maris was thrilled over it. She and Collier talked a great deal, with Dan sitting by and smoking, and commenting only when he was directly appealed to.

Paul looked at his watch and stood up. "Quarter to 3," he said. "If you expect to keep that appointment at 3, Dan and I had better duck. Can we drive you down?"

But Maris said no, she would drive her own car, and at the gate Paul lingered to ask her if she had made arrangements to attend the picture premiere the following week.

"Why, no," Maris said.

Moody May Name Sterling Successor On Highway Board

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 28.—While speculation grows over the probable successor of Ross S. Sterling, nominee for governor, on the state highway commission, observers generally believe that Mr. Sterling will resign after the November general election and permit Gov. Dan Moody to name the new member.

It would be possible for him to stay on the commission until he takes office as governor, and then after automatically vacating his present post, appoint his own successor. But belief has been voiced generally that he will resign this fall and that Gov. Dan Moody will name the member for the rest of his term. Mr. Sterling's term extends two years from next January. The appointment to be made will be only for the two-year unexpired term. In January Mr. Sterling will have the appointment to fill the places now held by Commr. C. E. Johnson of Tyler, and he is certain to reappoint Mr. Johnson if the present commissioner is willing to continue in the post.

Names of the two former highway commissioners, D. K. Martin of San Antonio and R. M. Hubbard of New Boston, and of Adria Pool, El Paso, sponsor of the $75,000,000 highway bond plan that was voted on several years ago, have been most prominently mentioned for Mr. Sterling's place.

If the appointment is made with Commr. Johnson still on the commission, he is scheduled to be named chairman. If it occurs after he goes off, Commr. W. R. Ely of Abilene, who has been re-appointed after serving the first two year short term, will be made chairman. Terms are for six years.

Names of the two former highway commissioners, D. K. Martin of San Antonio and R. M. Hubbard of New Boston, and of Adria Pool, El Paso, sponsor of the $75,000,000 highway bond plan that was voted on several years ago, have been most prominently mentioned for Mr. Sterling's place.

If the appointment is made with Commr. Johnson still on the commission, he is scheduled to be named chairman. If it occurs after he goes off, Commr. W. R. Ely of Abilene, who has been re-appointed after serving the first two year short term, will be made chairman. Terms are for six years.

OIL NEWS

SAN ANGELO, Tex., Aug. 28.—Four new locations have been staken in the West Texas Permian Basin. Two are in Crane county, and a wildcat was staked in both Pecos and Taylor county.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 28.—Three wells in the Pettus townsite of the Bee county oil field were in the process of being completed today. A fourth, already a producer, was being deepened.

The wells being completed were the Houston Oil Company's two tests and the C. R. & M. Company's No. 1 block 34 which topped pay at 3,904 feet. The producer, and a wildcat was staked in both Pecos and Taylor county.

IT'S THE GUM

in GASOLENE

that STEALS your POWER

Use KOOLMOTOR

Harmful gum has been removed by the special mini-gum process*

ONE REASON why Koolmotor Gasolene delivers full power from the moment you start your car is because it has been freed from harmful gum.

Excessive gum in gasolene causes a sticky deposit to form on the valve heads. When you step on the gas to get more power your valves have to struggle to get free...like a fly stuck on a piece of flypaper. This causes loss of compression and "missing" cylinders.

The gum content in Koolmotor Gasolene has been reduced to a harmless minimum through the special Cities Service mini-gum process. This makes Koolmotor Gasolene clean and free-burning and protects your engine against sticky, gummy valves.

You'll actually feel new freedom of operation and new power when you fill your tank with this cleansed fuel.

Why not do it today...there is a Cities Service station or dealer nearby.

Who Stabbed and To Death Killed By Groom

NEW YORK, Aug. 28 — Mrs. Frances Kirkwood Van Cliff, who stabbed her husband to death two years ago in a jealous rage, was killed yesterday by the man she married less than ten months later, police believed today.

The woman's body, with a bullet wound through the temple, was discovered last night in a Brooklyn rooming house. Beside it was the body of her husband, Eugene Van Cliff, 35, who had died of a wound near the heart. Investigators said Van Cliff apparently had killed his bride and then taken his own life.

Neighbors said the shooting followed an all-night quarrel between the couple over Mrs. Van Cliff's jealousy. She was heard to accuse her husband of being friendly with another woman. It was this same jealousy which figured in her acquittal two years ago when she stabbed Dr. Glenn Kirkwood, 28 year old veterinarian, in their cottage at Sunnyside, L. I. It was in that trial, which attracted nationwide interest, listened sympathetically to her stories of "other women."

CRACKS IN THE DOME

By The Political Analyst
AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 28—Brand-new state officers will virtually break even with those returned to their present posts by the primary nomination.

Five new officials were nominated, while six were nominated to their present posts. The new comers are Ross S. Sterling, Charlie Lockhart, Edgar Witt, James V. Allred and E. McDonald.

Those returning to present posts are S. M. N. Marrs, Pat M. Neff, George H. Sheppard, J. H. Walker, and Judges C. M. Cureton and O. S. Lattimore.

By coincidence, three of those elected to present posts are appointees of the past two years: Sheppard, Walker and Neff.

A vacancy in the state senate was created by the nomination of the veteran Edgar Witt for lieutenant governor. Lewis Williams, former house member, has become a candidate for the post.

Witt likely will resign immediately after the general election, to permit his successor to be named at a special election before the first of the year. With no particular danger for the democratic ticket in sight, he may resign in time to permit the special election to be held on general election day.

In two offices at least there is every prospect of a "clean sweep" when the new officials are sworn in. These are the attorney general's office where the present incumbent was an opponent of the nominee, and in the treasurer's office, where Lockhart formerly was employed. As an employee, he had to resign to make his race, though office holders have not shown much tendency to resign when running for other offices or for reelection.

This year will see the retirement of W. Gregory Hatcher, who has it permanently to his credit that after his original nomination by a democratic state executive committee friendly to James E. Ferguson, he served notice on the Ferguson as they went into office that he was running the treasury and needed no advice on the subject. He was twice renominated and re-elected to his office, and retires this year voluntarily, so far as the treasurership is concerned.

Sen. Witt is the only one of the five state senators who ran for other offices who was renominated. Sen. Love's term expired but Sens. Small, Patton, Witt and Hornsby are holders who have two years more in the upper house.

Another new face in the senate as determined by the second primary will be J. J. Loy, cafe operator.

BATHING TILT IS OLD STORY

BUDAPEST, Aug. 28—Apropos the annual discussion each summer concerning the morality and immorality of mixed bathing and concerning the amount of bathing required for decency's sake the Hungarian writer Jan Jacob in a recent newspaper article cited two Fifteenth-century documents. One stated: "Is it come that decrepit old women as well as beautiful young girls should walk naked into the water before the eyes of men." Another recorded the fact that

Our advertising

DAY AFTER DAY, as you turn the pages of this paper, you see the advertising of things you need. Food, clothing, home equipment... all the necessities and luxuries that go to make up the fullness of modern living.

Has it ever occurred to you to wonder just how far you could trust these advertisements as reliable guides to the selection of worthy products?

We can answer your question in one broad statement. Any product or service that you see consistently advertised in the pages of this publication is worthy in quality, honestly priced and truthfully presented.

Why? For the very simple reason that to the maker and the seller of an unworthy product, advertising presents the quickest and surest road to failure. To the misrepresented product, advertising brings a sudden and fatal storm of public disapproval. To the dishonest maker, advertising brings a constant public reminder of his dishonesty.

Truth in advertising has come to stay... its use is no longer dependent on the integrity of the advertiser, but on his business ability. Nothing else pays.

And, in addition, the publishers of your paper make every effort to disbar from these columns any advertising that might prove objectionable or unprofitable in any way to its readers.

Read the advertisements here. They offer you a dependable short cut to the kind of merchandise you would select if you spent your day in shopping for it.

Texas Children Whose Letter Won Audience with Hoover

NEA Washington Bureau

Gertrude and Billy Windsor are just about the happiest children in the country today. They are shown here proudly displaying autographs of President Hoover which they visited the White House, Gertrude, 11, and Billy, 8, came from their home in Tyler, Tex., to Washington especially to see the president. Finding the offices of the Texas senators closed, Gertrude in desperation wrote a letter to President Hoover begging permission to call. The president immediately sent for the children.

Styles Changed For Motor Tags

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 26.—Texas motorists will carry neat black plates on their automobiles next year with white letters and numbers.

There are two noticeable changes in the "tags" for 1981. They will not be marked "front" and "rear" like the present tags. A front and rear tag are required, but they are made just the same, making a saving to the state of $7,000.

Another change has been made which is expected to make the numbers more easily read. As the Texas numbers now run into the million, it has been decided to use letters for hundred thousands.

A tag that would read 142101 under the old system will be A4-2101. The highway department claims it is easier to read and remember that way. It will be a memory-breaker, however, for many motorists who have been arranging to get the same number each year. Many motorists did so by making arrangements with the county clerk. They left him a check for the license fee. When the number they wished was reached, the clerk would set it aside for them. This year all numbers will be different.

The old practice of retaining low numbers of "administration" has been continued. State Highway Engineer Gibb Gilchrist insists that motor cops will be just as diligent to catch a speeder with an "administration" number as with any other number—that it confers no privileges. There will be 300 of these.

The others are assigned to counties. Anderson County will be assigned numbers from 301 to 5500; Bexar county is the first to get a combination letter and number tags. They get tags from 5-1301 to A-1300. Dallas County will have tags from B7-4501 to C5-0500. Harris County is assigned the most numbers. They will be from E7-5001 to F5-9900. Tarrant County cars will bear tags from L3-4901 to L8-5900.

Commercial vehicle tags will have numbers only.

Family Menu

A PARTICULARLY delicate meat dish for summer is the sweetbread. It is very light and easy to digest and combines deliciously with other materials. This last happy faculty makes it possible to use a quite small amount to serve several people.

As soon as sweetbreads are brought from the market, they should be put into cold salt water to completely cover them. Use two teaspoons of salt to a quart of water. If the breads are bloody, they should stand in water until clear, changing the water several times. Then drop them into rapidly boiling water, adding two tablespoons of lemon juice or vinegar and one teaspoon of salt to calves' breads for 20 minutes and beef breads for 35 minutes. Drain from boiling water and plunge into cold water. This keeps them white and firm. When cold, remove all membrane that is loose and any bits of fat or other material that may be attached to the bread. The sweetbreads are now ready to use in any preferred fashion.

Calves' Breads Most Tender While calves' breads are the more delicate and tender, beef breads can be used satisfactorily and are much cheaper in price. Beef breads have the same flavor, a little more strongly accented, perhaps, but appetizing and pleasant. They require longer cooking to make them tender, for they are naturally less tender than calves' breads.

Sweetbreads are in two parts and are usually sold together in what is called a "pair." The round, compact part is the heart bread and is the more desirable. The long, loose part is the throat bread. One pair is calculated to feed four persons with other material being added. Mushrooms and peas are traditional with sweetbreads, but other vegetables are good. When the breads are used in a salad, cucumbers combine excellently. Sweet peppers, tomatoes and carrots are good in made dishes. Sweetbreads make a delicious change from chicken for party menus and are as generally liked. Sweetbreads in a King, sweetbreads in sauce, sweetbread timbale, creamed sweetbreads and peas in patty shells, sweetbreads and mushrooms on brochette, sweetbreads in tomato aspic—the ways to use them are innumerable and they are all truly delicious.

Scotland Has 72 Per Cent Of Land In Crops

EDINBURG, Scotland, Aug. 28.—Recent agricultural survey by the Ministry of Agriculture show that there are 14,372,000 acres of agricultural land in Scotland. This figure roughly represents about 72 per cent of the total land area.

The total acreage under crops and grass is 4,665,493 acres. Of this total there are 3,133,430 acres of arable land and 1,532,022 acres of permanent grass.

Slightly over 800,000 acres are sown with oats. The next most important crop from the standpoint of acreage, is turnips and swedes, since nearly 400,000 acres are given over to growing turnips and swedes. Rye-grass, clover and other rotation grasses are found on 1,500,000 acres.

Potatoes are grown on about 145,000 acres, while 111,924 acres are devoted to Scotland's barley crop. Slightly more than 50,000 acres produce the annual wheat crop. Rye is sown on 3,200 acres and beans on about the same acreage.

Small fruit is grown on 8,006 acres and 12,900 acres are covered with orchards.

Washington Letter

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—Fifty thousand young men between the ages of 17 and 21 are taking their vacations this summer at Uncle Sam's 53 Citizens' Military Training Camps.

The first year of this training system was 1921 and in that summer 12 camps were established with an enrollment of 10,000. In the year or two subsequent, before facilities had been expanded, many applicants had to be turned away.

Gives Big Reserve Strength Three hundred thousand men have now gone through the four-week period at camp with the C. M. T. C. They have swelled the nation's total military reserve strength to about a million, for there are also 177,000 national guardsmen, 115,000 reserve officers and 400,000 members of naval, marine and other miscellaneous reserves. These groups would be depended upon by the government to form an experienced nucleus for America's armed forces in the event of any serious war.

The War Department pays for transportation to and from the army posts where the C. M. T. C. camps are located and reports that the course has proved attractive to thousands of young men who could not have afforded much of a vacation on their own expense, as well as to many who could not attend College and high school students make up a large proportion of the C. M. T. C. companies. A report on 773 recruits enrolled at the camp at Fort Des Moines, Ia., drawn from Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota, shows that 531 were students, 83 farmers, 32 laborers, 18 clerks, 16 teachers, nine merchants, five chauffeurs, one cook, one barber, one movie actor, one newsboy, one tailor, one athletic director and 33 of other trades and occupations. There are four courses of study: Basic, for law recruits; Red, for non-commissioned officers, and Blue, for recruits who are eligible to second lieutenancies in the Reserve Corps.

The bugle blows at 6 a. m. in the C. M. T. C. camps and the boys dress, make their beds and sweep out the immediate vicinity. Then follows 30 minutes of calisthenics and breakfast. The War Department boasts of the food served in the camps. Breakfast contains wheat cakes, bacon and eggs and coffee with which to start the day. Drill and target practice take up the rest of the morning. In the afternoon, there are likely to be hikes or lectures on citizenship, rights and obligations to one's country, obedience to the laws, the importance of doing what you're told and so on.

There are lessons in first aid and the care of the sick and wounded and night-seeing trips to nearby historical shrines which are likely to stimulate the patriotism of the students.

Late in the afternoon comes an hour of recreation, baseball, swimming, volley ball, tumbling and wrestling, with teachers on hand to supervise.

Aids Physical Development. Stiff physical examinations are held on each student, one when he arrives and one when he leaves. The U. S. Military Academy Physical Efficiency Test is applied and minor defects such as cavities in the teeth are treated by army physicians and dentists. One camp claims an increase of from 81.7 per cent physical efficiency at the outset of the course to 98 per cent at the end of four weeks. The second examination also showed an average gain of 4 1/2 pounds in weight and 1 1/4 inches in chest expansion.

WANT ADS BRING RESULTS

"Then how about going with me?"
"I'd like to very much. What night is it?"
"A week from Friday night, at the Carthay Circle."
On their way back to town Paul suggested to Dan that he ask Anne Winter to the opening.
"I've already put in a bid for four seats," Anne said, "Nice girl, Maris. Like her?"
"Very nice," Dan said mechanically, and was silent again, thinking. Paul glanced at him quickly and was worried. He had hoped that luncheon with Maris Farrell would take Dan's mind off the things that were bothering him, but he could not help noticing that Romer was unusually quiet during their visit.
Dan had finished his screen story. It had been rejected by two studios and was now at a third, and he was already at work on another idea, having lost faith completely in the first.
A queer duck, Collier thought; sensitive as the very devil and obstinate as a mule. Collier had said to him last night, "You expect too much of Hollywood. Just because they don't leap at your story is no sign that you're not good. If the studios could recognize a winner every time one came their way they wouldn't be human. You were touchy enough when you were working at Continental; now that you're on your own, you're even worse."
He had lectured Dan stiffly; had hoped to provoke him into an argument—anything to lift the mood that had settled about him like a black cloak.
But Dan only said, "I suppose so."
And Paul tried again. "Why don't you let me go over and talk to Martin Collins, if you don't want to do it?"
"Because," Dan said, "it's none of your business."
And he smiled, to take the sting out of his words, but Paul knew that he meant exactly what he had said. He tried not to be hurt about it. He said, "All right, my boy; I guess you know best."

And Romer was a bit contrite. "Look here," he said, "Martin Collins knows I'm on the loose. And besides, Collins doesn't run that place over there; he can't do everything he'd like to. If they want me to go to work over at Amalgamated they'll tell me so, because Collins told them about me when he went over there. And anyway, I'm not so sure that I'd go, with nothing more than Collins' say-so to recommend me to them."
"He was a flop, he told Collier. Just a flop. Continental signed me without knowing a thing about me except that I'd written a few stories and they happened to want to make a picture out of one of them."
"You're crazy," Paul said. "Just crazy."
"I'm saner than I ever was. Trouble with me, I had a big head. Continental didn't like my bright ideas, so I told them to fire me."
He said, flatly, "Well, no body else is jumping at any of them," and he talked on in the same vein, trying to persuade Collier to accept his argument that unless he was able to sell a screen story as a free lance he was not good enough to be signed to a contract, at Amalgamated or any other studio.
And Paul said again: "You're crazy. I won't argue with a man that's lost his reason."
Paul was clear-sighted and wise enough to know that Romer had other things on his mind that he was saying nothing about, and Anne Winter was one of them. Trying to put himself in Dan's place, he reasoned that it would be rather disheartening to be in love with a girl whose progress was not matched with his own. Anne was going ahead fast now; unless the unexpected happened she would be getting some pretty important roles very soon. And Anne had started from scratch. Some day she might even be a star; it all depended now on the "breaks" she got and how the public liked her.

They're Laplanders from Lapland!

When these two citizens of far-away Lapland visited Seattle recently, enroute to herd reindeer in Alaska, they intrigued the interest of two maidens who thought Lapland had something to do with laps—and here's the picture. Left are Pher Thurni and Frances Moore; right, Mathias Sara and Ruth Moses.

Sitting beside Dan as they drove to town, Paul remembered the day that Dan had shown him the letter from Ziggy Young, directing him to look up an obscure extra girl named Anne Winter, and be nice to her. And he remembered how Dan had fumed—until he met her.
"Well, Dan had been nice to her, all right—too nice, perhaps, if being nice was responsible for Dan's present frame of mind. In Collier's philosophy no girl was worth all that trouble.
They were on Hollywood Boulevard now. "You're called home," Paul said, motioning toward the Roosevelt.
"Yep," Dan said.
"How about that idea of mine? Are you going to call up Anne and ask her to the opening?"
"I'm thinking about it."
Paul said, "Just out of curiosity, how long has it been since you've seen her? I used to keep pretty close track of you, but since you've chained yourself to that typewriter of yours."
Dan said it was two or three weeks. "She's pretty busy; working nights some, too."
"Well, give the girl a break and take her out. You can't expect her to work all the time."
Dan thought: "I'll quit bothering her. I won't even call her up. If she wants to see me she can call me."
Anne telephoned him that evening.
