MEDITATIONS ON THE RESURRECTION THE FLAME OF LIFE

By The Rev. Len Layne, Pastor First Methodist Church

Luke's Gospel informs us that some women who were friends of Jesus came to his tomb early Sunday morning after he had been buried late in the evening of the previous Friday. They came for the purpose of properly preparing the body of Jesus for burial. Jesus' body had been hurriedly buried on Friday evening before the holy Sabbath began at six o'clock. The women found the tomb open. Upon entering they found that the body of Jesus was gone. As they stood there in consternation they were informed by two messengers from the eternal realm that Jesus had risen from death.

Luke also tells us that on that same day, two of Jesus' disciples met the resurrected Lord as they walked toward a village a few miles from Jerusalem. Jesus joined them as they walked. The three entered the village. The risen Lord was invited to spend the night with them. He accepted their invitation. As they ate their evening meal the two disciples realized that their guest was their risen Master. Later as they discussed this experience they said, "Did we not feel our hearts on fire as he talked with us?"

And so it is at this moment also—the Living Christ kindles a fire in the heart of all those who let him enter their life. I know a man who has been pushing to get ahead of other people so long that now all human beings are to him objects with which he must compete. Love for other people has been extinguished and lays as dead embers in his heart. If he were to allow the Living Christ to enter his life, those dead embers would glow again with a bright and lively love.

I know a woman who has had so much bad luck and has been so badly buffeted by life that her will to overcome lays like burned out coals of the hearth of her heart. But just as surely as Christ caused the hearts of the disciples on the road to Emmaus to burn, he would rekindle the burned out embers of will and make them flame up again in this woman's heart. All she need do is let Him in.

I know a young man whose mind has been trained to accept nothing as truth except that which is scientific truth. This young man can believe nothing that can not be tested and proved in the laboratory of science. Consequently, he does not believe in God. He does not believe in God's forgiveness of sin. He does not believe in God's revelation of Himself in Jesus Christ. He does not believe in eternal life.

The oil of faith lays in his heart untouched and undisturbed. If some how he could try the Living Christ, and would let him come into his life, Christ would touch the oil of faith with his torch of love and it would leap into a living flame.

They said, "Did we not feel our hearts on fire as he talked with us?" How badly our hearts need to burn today with the presence of the Living Christ.

Pressure Of Waiting For Trial Is Heavy Burden, Curry Reports

Although he is confident that his innocence will be proved, Nathan Curry of Cisco finds waiting for that day in court to be one of the hardest jobs he can imagine.

Curry, 23, was charged in Potter County indictments on March 5th with armed robbery and rape, and it will be probably two or three months before the two cases will be tried. Meanwhile, he is free on $20,000 bond and time is heavy on his hands.

In an interview in Cisco, Curry expressed the feeling that he is a victim of mistaken identity, and that the charge against him probably never would have come about if it had not been involved in the Hussey murder case here in 1961.

"They were looking for cars of a certain description when they first approached me at a drive-in theater in Amerillo," Curry said. "When they learned about my background, it was all over for me... they couldn't look in any other direction."

Curry's story began early in July, 1961, when a next door neighbor was found dead in her home. After a time, four Fort Worth police investigators were brought in to solve the case. Before long, young Curry, who was 15 at the time, was arrested. He says the confession he signed and later repudiated was brain-washed into him.

Curry believes the search for the murderer of Mrs. Florence Hussey, the neighbor, should be continued. He believes he knows who murdered her and he has told police officials about it.

"There are things in the records of the Palo Pinto court that free me (March, 1963, from any suspicion, but the newspapers have never printed them."

Curry —
 ed them," he said.
 After his acquittal, Curry found adjustment difficult. He found himself asking "Do they think I'm guilty of murder?" when he met people. He could not gain admission to a high school to finish his education, and he tried in a number of cities. Education has long been one of his dreams.
 In time, he obtained work with a highway contractor, working with heavy machinery on jobs over the state. He has a reputation as a good man on the big machines and has earned as much as $175 per week.
 Curry married his wife, Gail, in Lubbock a few months after he won freedom. They have two daughters, Kimberley Dawn and Terry Lynn, who make their home in Cisco with his mother, Mrs. Joyce Curry. His father, the late F. P. Curry, died soon after the Palo Pinto trial.

 Curry saved enough money to enter college. West Texas State, at Canyon did not require a high school diploma since he was over 21, and he made a good grade on their entrance exam. He enrolled at midterm as a freshman with the view of becoming a lawyer with a specialty in juvenile law. He was working part-time at a service station, and Gail was working in Cisco.
 Then the Amarillo trouble came. The indictments charge that he robbed a 19-year-old housewife of $160 and was prevented from raping her when someone appeared at a coin laundry. He was also charged with raping a 23-year-old Amarillo housewife at knife point.
 Curry said that he voluntarily went to the police station after hearing that they wanted him. He volunteered for a lie detector test, and the results were inconclusive, he said. When the victims pointed a finger at him in a lineup with four plain clothes policemen, Curry said that "I knew that I was in for trouble."
 He then telephoned John Watts, Odessa attorney who represented him in the Hussey case, and the attorney flew to Amarillo. Next day, Curry was free on bond. They waived examining trial, pointing out that "We want this case to come to trial so the truth will be presented to a jury."
 Nathan went back to Canyon. Although college officials said he could stay in school, both he and his attorney felt that he should withdraw. He was passing in all courses, he added, and was being considered as a dormitory supervisor for next year.
 Since coming home, a good many friends have made it a point to express their faith in him, Nathan said. He has had a letter from one of the jurors who heard the Palo Pinto case, expressing confidence that he will be acquitted.
 The future isn't too bright, Curry says. "I often feel like I'm in a blind alley," he said. "If it wasn't for my family, I think I'd just give up."
 Nathan has prospects of a road job, and he likes running the big "Cars. When it's all over, he now feels that it will be best for him to take his family and move to some distant state and start over.
 News stories recently about a $10 million libel suit being dismissed against Dell Publishing Co. Inc. of New York, were not entirely true, Curry said. The suit was dismissed in Texas but it is still on the New York State docket and will be tried there, in Dell's home state, he added.
 Curry, who weighs 190 and is six feet and one-inch tall, keeps in good physical condition.
 "We appreciate our friends," he said. "Without them, this second round of waiting for a trial would be unbearable."

25 Area Schools Send Counselors To CJC Meeting

Twenty-five school administrators and counselors were in attendance at Cisco Junior College's second Administrator Counselor Conference of 1969 held Tuesday, March 11, on the CJC Campus.

A similar conference was held on February 11, with about forty in attendance.

The conference was for school superintendents, high school principals, high school counselors, and county superintendents and supervisors. The school officials came from within a 150-mile radius of Cisco.

The purpose of the conference was to better acquaint the public school personnel with the facilities, offerings and opportunities available at Cisco Junior College for their prospective high school graduates. The campus visitors attended seminars on admissions requirements, academic programs, vocational offerings, financial aids availability and requirements and general information about junior college programs. They toured the CJC buildings, and had lunch at the College Hotel Annex.

Counselors attending the conference included Roger McCulley, Vernon; Mac Coppinger, Eula; Mrs. Gwendolen B. Jay, Abilene; Robert Smiley and George Young, Chico; Bob Cannon, Perrin; Mrs. Pat Hamrick, Fisher County; Joe McDonough, Brady; G. W. Avants, Lueders-Avoca; Milton Martin, Lueders-Avoca.

Wortham Crow, Lueders-Avoca; Preston C. Lightfoot, Lorraine; Phil R. Simmons, Rochester; Garner E. Rice, Lingville; Leslie O. Gandy, Huckaby; Elbert Adams, Seymour; James L. Hughes, Carbon; Charles E. Beason, Comanche; Tommy Boyd, Throckmorton; Roy Dodds, Jayton; Dalton Keeth, Colorado City; W. O. Newton, Mills County; General C. Clark Millsap; and J. T. Jones Millsap.

Month Remains For Inspection Of Cars, Trucks

AUSTIN — Colonel W. E. Speir, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, has reminded motorists that only one month remains before the 1969 motor vehicle inspection deadline.

To date, an estimated 2.8 million vehicles have received the inspection required by state law. The Department of Public Safety said some 3.2 million additional vehicles remain to be inspected prior to midnight, April 15. Speir said 42.2 per cent of the vehicles inspected so far required mechanical adjustment prior to issuance of an inspection sticker. The defect found most often has been misalignment of headlights.

The Department of Public Safety urged motorists to get the inspection soon to avoid long lines which will develop at inspection stations as the April 15 deadline approaches. Texas has 5,466 licensed inspection stations. The required inspection fee is $1.75.

The highway commission has already approved funds for this project, and plans are now being prepared. It is expected to cost about one million dollars.

Crop Insurance Approval Being Sought for Area

Eastland County bankers, representatives from the local Farmers Home Administration, ASCS and county agents office met with 25 county farmers Tuesday night at the Texas Electric Service Co. Reddy Room. The Federal Crop Insurance program was discussed.

Ben Jordan, Texas State Director of FCIC explained the program. If the county is approved by the FCIC for crop coverage, farmers here can insure peanut crops for a guaranteed dollar amount of income per acre.

Grover Hallmark, vice-president of Eastland National Bank, was elected chairman of the Steering Committee, which will study crop insurance coverage for Eastland County for 1970.

Additional committee members will be selected from the farmers and representatives in the county. The committee will circulate petitions, write letters and work in every way to secure the program for the county.

BILL REPORTS ON THIALAND

by BILL HERRIDGE
NAKHON RACHASIMA, THAILAND — As mentioned previously, the Thai is an extremely good natured fellow. This is a trait found almost universally in Asia. It is more evident, however, in Thailand than in most other countries.

The phrase used most often by the Thia demonstrates his ability to keep a smile no matter what happens, is "Mai Pen Rai," which simply means "it doesn't matter." This is the universal reply to any apology offered for a misgiving. This marvelous and unique attitude serves to amplify the feeling of friendliness generated to any foreigner who is fortunate enough to visit this amazing country.

The Thai people have deep roots in Asian civilization. The earliest written histories of the Thais find them living in southern China. Early in the 12th century A. D. Kublai Khan and his Mongol hordes drove the Thais from their ancestral home in China. A new home was found at what is now Sukhothai, on the northern Thai-Cambodia border. In 1238 a revolt, led by Phra Ruang and his brother, drove the cambodian garrison back to Cambodia, and the present-day Thailand had its birth. Since that time the Thais have fought bitter battles with their neighbors, Cambodia, Laos, and Burma, to retain their freedom. This spirit of nationalistic pride is found in each and every Thai even today.

In 1350 the center of government was moved from Sukhothai to Ayutthaya, where, for the next 400 years, Thailand, then called Siam, grew and flourished. But in 1767, after a bitter fourteen month siege, a large Burmese army entered Ayutthaya and pillaged it. The reigning king vanished and his fate is still unknown.

It took nearly 40 years to repair the damaged Thai civilization following the attack by Burma, but by the early 1800's the Thais were again prospering, with their capital and king located in Krung Thep, or Bangkok, where they remain today.

Every Thai takes pride in the fact that Thailand has never been colonized by any country, Western or otherwise. Mongkut, the best loved and most remembered of the Thai kings, had the foresight to open his country to Western trade without resistance. Had he not done this, Thailand might very well, today, be a French or English protectorate. He saw the French takeover of Indo-China, now Viet Nam, and the British absorption of Hong Kong and Singapore, and didn't want the same fate to befall Thailand. Mongkut, portrayed by Yul Brynner in "The King and I", spent all his efforts in improving living standards of his people. He encouraged missionary teachers and doctors to see his people, and commanded them to learn all they could from these "fal-angs", or foreigners.

Mongkut's son, Chulalongkorn, went to America to study and was considered an outstanding student at Harvard. The present king, Bhumibol Adulyadej, was born in America while his father earned his degree in medicine. Chulalongkorn returned to Thailand and initiated an intense medical training program. His efforts can be witnessed today at the excellent medical school in Bangkok University.

Absolute royal authority came to an abrupt end in 1932, when a bloodless military coup transferred the powers of state from the royal family to the people. Thailand became, at least on paper, a constitutional monarchy like England. However, in reality, the military has retained control of the country and the Thais live under a well-providing military dictatorship.

Although the royal family has no important power, they are the uniting force in Thailand. King Bhumibol and Queen Sirikit are adored by every Thai. To insult them in the presence of a Thai can often lead to bodily harm. This is one of the two instances when the Thai loses his temper. The other is to insult Buddha or any thing concerned with Buddhism.

Euddism leads a large role in the life of the Thai. A Thai must spend at least three months of his life wearing the saffron robes of a Buddhist monk. The monks are usually civic leaders in the villages. They teach in the schools, instruct the people in weaving mats and planting rice and such. They repair buildings and dig wells and yet their only means of support is from the people themselves. Early each morning and again late in the evening they walk the streets begging for a bit of rice or a cup of tea. This practice serves to teach the Thai male the meaning of humility.

There are more images of Buddha and of Buddhist saints in Thailand than there are people. These range in size and weight from the big 50 ton gold Buddha at the Temple of Dawn in Bangkok to the small bronze Buddhas found in every Thai home.

Each area of Thailand has its own patron saint. An excellent example of this practice is found in Nakhon Ratchasima, or Korat city. A large ebony statue of Suranaree, or Lady Mo, is located on the town square. The somewhat unbelievable account of the events led to Lady Mo's veneration to saint-hood are as follows.

At about the year 1150 the Cambodian army swept through northern Thailand and occupied the major centers of industry and culture. Korat was one of these occupied cities. After a long seige the city finally fell to the invaders. The capitulation led to the death of every able bodied male in the city. Seeking revenge, Lady Mo, the wife of the Thai commander who died in defence of the city, commended all the beautiful women in the city, and went into Cambodian encampment pretending to idolize their captor's military ability. After several hours of wine, women, and song, the soldiers fell into a drunken slumber, whereupon the women killed every one with the soldiers' own weapons. Lady Mo quite naturally did the Cambodian commander in herself to revenge the death of her husband.

The defeat of the army by these women so shocked the Cambodian king that he recalled all his forces and the Cambodians never made a serious attempt on Thai sovereignty. So with a little feminine ingenuity and revenge for her husband's death, Lady Mo won for herself a place in the canon of the Thai Buddhist religion.

The strongest group in Thailand is the family, an extremely close knit organization. It is customary for the parents to have as many children as possible, so they will have comfort in their old age. Old people are greatly respected in Thailand. Everything they say is taken as undisputable truth. One youngster is a firm believer in ghosts, simply because his grandfather told him he saw one once.

The Thais are very clean people. They bathe as much as five times a day. The interior of the Thai home is spotless. Like their cousins in Japan, they remove their shoes before entering their homes.

The Thais are very fond of parties. A Thai party is a once in a lifetime experience. Although women are forbidden by church law to drink alcohol in the presence of men, the Thai male can consume large amounts of the local drink without showing signs of inebriation. One favorite brew called Mekong, is heated and consumed much like coffee is in America.

life. They feel ignored if one doesn't bring out his wallet and show them his family.

Thai men and women don't physically touch each other in public, so dancing is usually absent at a Thai party. But this is replaced by singing. Usually one brave soul will go before the gathering and sing a native tune. Then each person feels he has to outsing the vocalist preceding him. It all makes for a very enjoyable evening, believe it or not.

As can be seen, the Thai is a gentle, peace loving person, but with fierce loyalty to his religion, his country, and his king.

Lady Mo, the patron saint for devout Buddhists in Nakhon Rachasima, Capitol of Korat Province, is immortalized in this statue on the city's main street. The building behind her is a restored portion of the ancient city wall that once encircled Korat. The television antennas behind the statue demonstrate the blending of modern ideas and ancient heritage found in Thailand.

YOUR FLORIST TALKS ABOUT FLOWERS

THE SIZE OF FLOWERS

The tiny duckweed's blossom can be seen only under a microscope because it is only 1-63 of an inch in diameter, while the Victorian water lily, a native of the Amazon River, has a lovely blossom that measures eleven or twelve inches across.

The leaves of this water lily grow to be six feet across, and some can hold a weight up to 200 pounds. One Victoria pad could hold 7,000,000 duckweeds.

It is not the quantity that means the most at times. On occasions a single bud in a vase says more than a garland. The sentiment behind the floral offerings is important. We prepare our flowers with this in mind.
