'Untin Bowler' On Second Leg Of Berlin Hop

Chicago Tribune Plane Takes 'Untin' Bowler Northern Route to Europe.

By United Press
LAKE REMI, Ont., July 4.—Undisturbed by rain and poor visibility, 'Untin' Bowler and Parker Cramer, took off in the "Untin" at daybreak today on the second leg of their flight to Berlin.

The pilots took off from Remi, where they landed last night for fuel and supplies for the onward flight over the ice and open sea. Port Burwell at Cape Hildy was today's objective.

Cramer and Gast, accompanied by Robert Wood, Tribune aviation editor, reached here at 6:44 p. m. tonight after a 660-mile flight from Chicago which included stops at Milwaukee and Sault Ste. Marie.

The fliers reported fair flying weather throughout their first journey although rain clouds threatened during the last hour of the trip here. It had been planned to fly on to Rupert House last night but with only a few hours daylight remaining after fuel had been taken on it was decided to remain here overnight.

The flight was delayed two hours at Sault Ste. Marie where the ship passed through customs.

The "Untin" Bowler kept in touch with the Tribune radio station throughout the trip by means of an automatic radio arrangement and the giant ship. The plane is equipped with a set for two-way operation, transmitting and receiving on a wave length of 34.52 meters. Cramer serves as operator although he sent few messages yesterday. The plane's call letters, KHEJ, are sent out intermittently by automatic control.

SHREVEPORT, La., July 4.—The Ryan monoplane KWKH departed for Fort Worth this morning where final equipment will be installed preparatory to an endurance flight start here today.

Major E. B. Redline, sponsor of the flight, indicated before leaving that refueling tests would be made at Fort Worth today.

Van Lear Leary and William Sanders, who will pilot KWKH on its endurance flight, accompanied Redline to Fort Worth.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., July 4.—Unfavorable weather and heavy fog over the North Atlantic today, caused further postponement of the projected 4,800-mile flight to Rome by Roger Q. Williams and Lewis Yancey, in their green monoplane Pathfinder.

BERLIN, July 4.—A proposed trans-Atlantic flight to Lakehurst, N. J., by the dirigible Graf Zeppelin prior to its world cruise is improbable since the cruise must begin before August 15, Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the dirigible, said in the United Press in an interview.

The flight must begin before August 15 to avoid typhoons likely to occur on the course from Friedrichshafen to Tokio soon after the time, Dr. Eckener said.

50,000 Gallons Whiskey Stolen

CHICAGO, July 4.—Fifty thousand gallons of bonded whiskey, valued at $2,000,000 were reported today to have been stolen from the Sibley warehouse, government concentration depot for the Middle West.

The report was based on an investigation made by special agents and submitted to Dr. James M. Doran, commissioner of prohibition at Washington. Statistics in the report to Doran were said to disclose systematic substituting of colored water for whiskey in the warehouse over a period of nearly a year.

Students Make Nature Studies

AUSTIN, Tex., July 4.—Field trips for the study of the various aspects of nature are being made periodically by members of a class in recreational leadership at the University of Texas this summer, according to Miss Hilda Molesworth, instructor in the course. This subject is taught only in the summer term and is not included in the required courses for a degree in physical education. It includes playground supervision, adult recreation, girl scouting and camp craft.

The first trip of the summer was made up Barton Creek, for the purpose of studying birdlore. Under the direction of Miss Mary W. Offutt of Tyler, the class went out just at dawn and listened to the bird-calls, identifying as many as possible. The girls managed to identify some fifteen or twenty of the calls, Miss Molesworth said. George Findley Simmons' "Bird Life Around Austin," written as his thesis for the master's degree at the university several years ago, served as the basis for the identification.

Other nature-study trips planned for the summer include a tour of the campus to identify the various kinds of trees; a "hobo" hike patterned after the annual treasure hunt given each spring by Te-WAA-Hiss, long session outing organization, to Peace Park, and an overnight camping party at Oak Lodge, in the Texas Botanical Garden, on the banks of the Colorado river. Marie Faires of Charlotte, N. C., directed the "hobo" picnic; Julia Sparks of Austin was in charge of the tree-study, and Annie Louise McKeand of Lyford supervised the overnight camp.

Bomb Blows Home To Smithers

ERIE, Pa., July 4.—An entire city block in "Little Italy" here was threatened early today when a time bomb exploded in the home of Frank Vendetti, ripped through the dwelling and ignited four other houses in the neighborhood.

The Vendetti home was blown to bits, another house was destroyed by fire and two houses were severely damaged. Four fire companies battled the blaze for three hours and stopped it as it licked into the Rocco Pla Club rooms.

The Vendettis were not home at the time of the explosion. Occupants of neighboring houses were carried from the flaming structures in night attire.

Police here believe the bomb was placed to seek vengeance on Vendetti for some feud which may have started out of this city.

Loss will reach $30,000 or $40,000.

Fireworks Ignite; Two Lose Lives

OMAHA, Neb., July 4.—Two persons were dead here today and the fireworks department of the Brinn and Jensen Paper company was blackened by fire as a result of preparations for Independence Day noise and display.

Fireworks stored in the building of the company were ignited. Myron Jensen, son of one of the proprietors and Harry H. Jones, employe, were burned almost beyond recognition. The flames caused damage estimated at $200,000.

HELEN WILLS TO FINALS

WIMBLEDON, England, July 4.—Miss Helen Wills advanced to the finals of the women's singles today when she defeated Miss E. A. Goldsack, of England, 6-2, 6-0 in the semi-finals.

Deny Purchase Post Offices

Texas Postmasters Pass Resolution Denying Appointment Were "Purchased By Political Contributions Or Otherwise."

GREENVILLE, Tex., July 4.—A resolution denying their appointment were "purchased by political contributions or otherwise" was adopted at the closing session of the Texas Postmasters' Association here Wednesday.

The resolution was called up for vote during a discussion of the recent Brookhart Senate patronage probe in Texas and a copy will be forwarded to the president of the United States Senate.

To insinuate that postmaster-ships have been purchased is a "reflection upon the character and integrity of the postmasters of Texas," the resolution said.

Houston was chosen as the 1930 convention city over Lubbock, Laredo and Corpus Christi.

O. P. Marich of Wichita Falls was elected president of the association and other officers were: Nat B. Spearman, Mount Pleasant, first vice president; M. B. Howard, Sweetwater, second vice president; W. A. Farek, Schulenburg, third vice president; C. A. Duck, Greenville secretary-treasurer, and W. E. Singleton, Jefferson, assistant secretary.

Letters of Texas Pioneer Added State University

AUSTIN, Tex., July 3.—Letters and papers belonging to Nathaniel Townsend, Texas pioneer merchant, have been added to the collection of Texas material in the archives of the University of Texas, according to Mrs. M. A. Hatcher, archivist. These documents and manuscripts comprise one of the most valuable and most desirable sources of information about the history of the Townsend family and about early Texas that could be had, Mrs. Hatcher said. A few pieces of these papers were given to the University several years ago by Mrs. Pauline Colburn, but there are thousands of items in the six large boxes which have been secured from the descendants of W. A. Blackburn and Anna Blackburn.

Included in the papers is a pamphlet containing the memorial address delivered at the funeral of Angelina Louise Townsend, wife of Nathaniel Townsend, and a brief biography of her. The family came from Indiana to Austin in 1851, although Townsend himself had opened a small store in the Austin colony in 1839. The history of the family may be traced back to the English Townsends, whose lineage goes back to a time shortly after the conquest of England by the Normans in 1066. The papers are now being checked over by Mrs. Hatcher and her staff, and it is expected that much valuable data will be uncovered.

Man Is Charged Dynamiting Of Grain Exchange

LOS ANGELES, July 4.—Two felony charges will be pressed against Perry E. Larson, 47, who confessed he dynamited the offices of the Los Angeles Grain exchange in an attempt to hide a shortage in his cashier accounts.

In a detailed confession, Larson explained that he took approximately $1,000 to participate in gay parties which his $195 per month salary could not cover.

A portion of the exchange office was wrecked when one of three charges of dynamite deposited by Larson exploded. Police said many lives would have been endangered in the large time office building if the other bombs had discharged as scheduled.

Wise county farmers around Decatur are planting cucumbers for market with their yield contracted by a Fort Worth pickling firm. Texas has 5,680 acres sown to cucumbers this year, an increase of 660 acres from 1928.

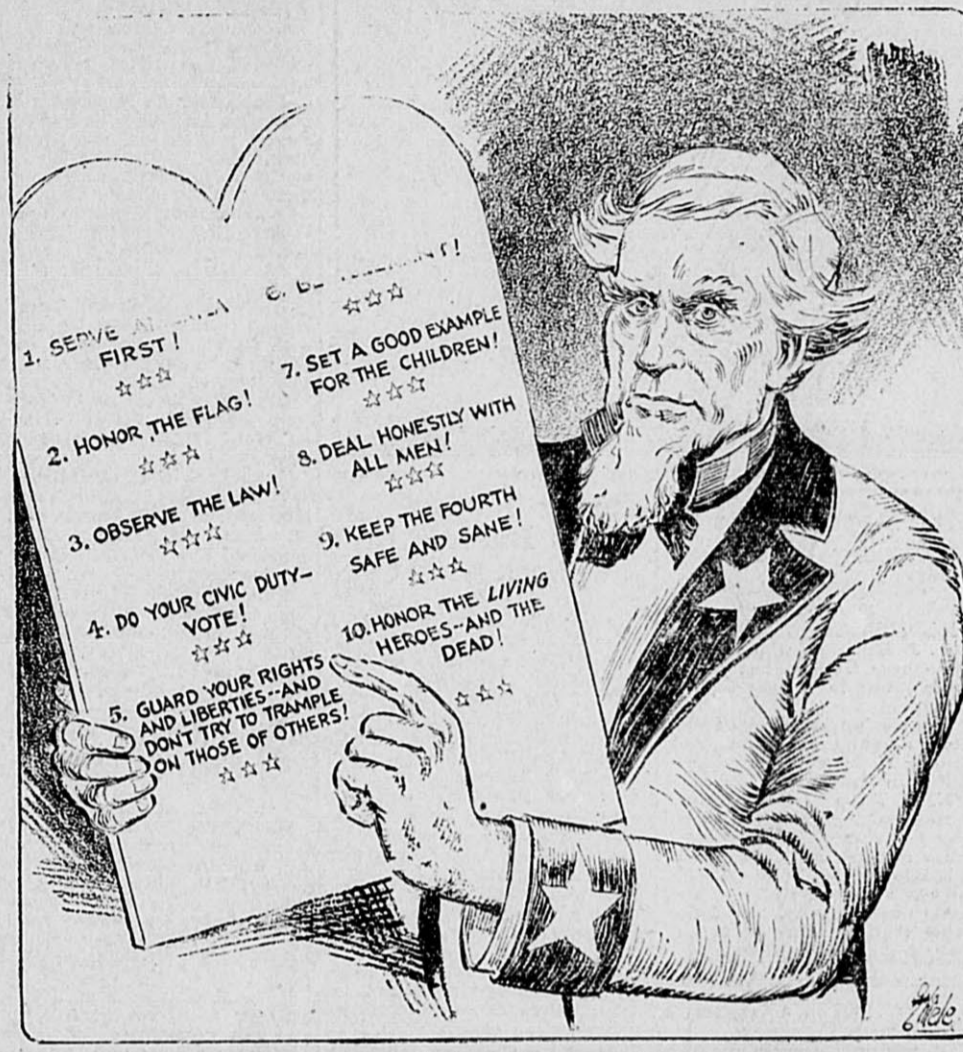

Loses Life Trying To Save His Dog

MARSHALL, Tex., July 4.—Jumping into the path of a mowing machine in an attempt to rescue his dog cost the life of William Attebery, Jr. His leg was severed and he died in a hospital Wednesday. Attebery was a graduate of Texas A. & M. and a World War veteran. His wife and other relatives survive.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 4.—The California boxing commission has ruled that $13,000 of the purse due Ace Hudkins for meeting Charley Belanger in a recent bout here must be forfeited.

TEN COMMANDMENTS OF AMERICANISM

Immediate Farm Relief Doubtful

ATLANTA, Ga., July 4.—Success of the farm relief bill depends on "team work" between the farm board and farm co-operatives, Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde said in an address here today. He held out little hope for immediate relief.

The general answer to "farm problems is organization, he told the National Education association, which is closing its annual convention today.

"Organization is needed to control marketing, to standardize output, to eliminate waste and duplication of a marketing and distributing system which generally speaking absorbs $2 for every $1 it returns to the farmers," the secretary said.

The aim of the farm relief bill he described is "to assist in the organization of agriculture; to take the problems of the various farm commodities out of the realm of politics and artisan bickering, and to meet them in the realm of economics; to set up an authoritative tribunal which shall study each separate problem and afford leadership for agriculture in all its phases, and to do this, not by subsidy nor by government dabbling in business, but by helping the farmer to help himself through his own organizations."

Free Newspaper Celebrates 42nd Birthday Today

PARIS, Tex., July 4.—The Dinner Horn, oldest free circulation daily newspaper in America, celebrated its 42nd birthday today. It was established July 4, 1887, by Walter E. Boyd and has proved a unique success as a newspaper.

For many years it was issued at noon but when United Press service was inaugurated in 1914 the hour of publication was made 3 p. m.

The Dinner Horn now has a sworn circulation of 10,000 copies daily, is delivered by carrier to every home, every place of business and to all persons on the streets of Paris every day and is also sent by Dixie motor coach and other bus lines to each town within Paris trade territory.

The full leased wire United Press service was inaugurated on July 1 and this is just one more step in the progress of the publication. Thousands of free newspapers have been started throughout this and adjoining states in the past, have lived for a brief time and have been discontinued. The Dinner Horn, however, according to Editor Boyd, is growing stronger every day.

Dallas Physician Killed In Crash

DALLAS, Tex., July 4.—Roy L. Keller, prominent Dallas physician, was instantly killed today when the car in which he and his wife were returning to their home following a bridge party went into a head-on collision at Preston road and Mockingbird lane.

It is believed that Keller became blinded by the headlights of two cars which were approaching him. He was thrown from his car against a telephone pole, crushing his skull, and resulting in instant death. Mrs. Keller was uninjured.

Keller's crash followed three other accidents in Dallas which occurred last night and this morning. H. V. Meyers of Tyler, Tex., suffered severe injury to his back when his car ran into a ditch last night after the steering knuckle had snapped.

B. C. Parker of Dallas received a badly injured shoulder in a collision last night. Miss Virginia Smith, also of Dallas, was slightly cut and bruised in an accident this morning.

Indian Mounds Being Explored

AUSTIN, Tex., July 3.—Extensive exploration of a series of Indian mounds around Blockhouse Spring on the edge of A. S. Walker estate, about three miles west of Cedar Park, Tex., is being carried on by J. E. Pearce, professor of anthropology at the University of Texas. Blockhouse Spring, so called because of its proximity to an old Texas fort erected for defense against Indians, became a rendezvous of the Comanche Indians, and as a consequence kitchen midden refuse in great abundance was left there. Additional evidences of the presence of the Indians are being unearthed daily by Prof. Pearce and his crew of workers.

Prof. Pearce is still carrying on archaeological exploration in the Cedar Park mound. This mound is the largest source of archaeological material as yet located. It is seven feet deep in its central portions and covers an acre and a half of ground space. Evidences of three cannibal feasts have been found in this mound, including split human bones, which indicate that the tribe ate the marrow from the bones.

Some rare pottery and many flint instruments have also been discovered in the Cedar Park mound. Prof. Pearce is endeavoring to protect the mound from the plundering of amateurs and to establish it as a permanent exhibit for students of archeology.

Prof. Pearce is conducting these explorations under the terms of a research grant in the social sciences. The grant provides funds for five years of research, at the end of which time Prof. Pearce will classify the results of his study and will compile his findings in a volume of Texas archaeology.

Madrid Welcomes Returned Fliers

MADRID, July 4.—Commander Ramon Franco and his three companions on his attempted flight to the United States, arrived in Madrid from Gibraltar today to receive a tumultuous welcome from the Spanish people.

The fliers were received at the station by the Infante Alfonso of Orleans, the highest military and government officials and an immense throng. They were driven to their hotel through flag-decorated streets lined with cheering thousands.

Enroltute from Algeciras, they were greeted by crowds at the Spanish towns along the line.

Volcano Erupts On Amby Island

SYDNEY, N. S. W., July 4.—Renewed eruptions of the volcano Marum on the island of Amby, of the New Hebrides, today sent natives and whites rushing to the island of Malejula, 30 miles distant, for safety.

Wireless dispatches received here said no word of the safety of the staffs of three missions had been received since the disastrous eruption last Friday. The staff of a fourth mission was reported safe.

There were 10 whites and about 200 natives on the island previous to last Friday's eruption.

'Glorious Fourth' Hopes Blasted As Beer Is Seized

DALLAS, Tex., July 4.—Hopes for a "Glorious Fourth" were blasted here last night for four men and four women when on the eve of the holiday, Dallas police, in a series of raids, confiscated 2,638 pints of beer.

Fines were imposed on each of those arrested.

One of the eight, a man who was fined $25, said he had contemplated using that money to buy fireworks with which he planned to celebrate.

National A. A. U. Meet Sees Old Records Downed

220 Dash Lowered to 21.5 Seconds; Fast Array of Sprinters Running This Afternoon.

By Chester A. Letts
United Press Staff Correspondent
DENVER, Colo., July 4.—In Denver University stadium, here yesterday five young kings of the track and field were dethroned in a sensational clash of rivals for stardom in junior ranks. America's greatest sprinters this afternoon will begin a new assault on records as a part of July Fourth celebration.

The second day of the National A. A. U. track and field championships brings together a field of champions and Olympic heroes such as never before has been assembled in one stadium in this country.

A feature eagerly awaited is the 100-yard dash, which is to place in the parallel paths the cream of the world's sprinters.

George Simpson, the Ohio State star, whose unofficial mark of 9.4 for the century at Chicago exalted him to the position of the "world's fastest human," will watch the "century of the century," from a seat in the stands, the great speedster having seriously injured a leg in training late Tuesday.

Simpson is not sure that he ever will race again, but his withdrawal leaves 13 other contenders for the title. Any one of whom may have a new world's record somewhere in his system.

Such sprinters as Charley Paddock, 5 times an A. A. U. winner; Russell Sweet, Olympic Club giant; Claude Bracey, the Dixie flyer; Eddie Toland, Michigan University negro star; Cy Leland of Texas Christian U.; Frank Wykoff, the young California champion; along with a number classed as "dark horses," will make up the list of starters.

The mile run is another tidbit on the athletic menu that is attracting much speculation inasmuch as it will present such stars as Lermond of Boston A. A. and the famous Ray Conger of the Illinois A. C. on the same track with a dozen other ambitious distance men.

Yesterday's junior events, for athletes who never had won a major championship, was turned into somewhat of an orgy of record smashing. The disdain held by the youngsters for marks set by predecessors was quickly evidenced and it continued throughout the afternoon.

Joe Welch of Los Angeles A. C. negotiated the 120 yards hurdles in 14.9 seconds, clipping a small fraction of a second off the old mark. Raymond Alf, Denver A. C., hung up a new world's mark a second better than it had ever been done before in this class.

Clues Sought In Murder of Entire Family

POLICE SEARCH FOR SLAYER WHO SLASHED SIX TO DEATH IN DETROIT HOME.

DETROIT, Mich., July 4.—Through the weird rituals and records of a mystic Sicilian religious cult, police searched today for clues to the murder of Benney Evangelista, the "Devine Prophet," and his family of five who were hacked to death amid the grotesque images and altars of their home.

Although the predominating theory was that the six men were committed by a friend or religious fanatic, beliefs written by the healer in his book, "The Oldest History of the World," Bible of the cult, gave rise to a theory that Evangelista might have arranged the murders to prove his claims of the power of reincarnation. The latter fantastic theory found little credence among detectives.

After an 18-hour investigation, detectives of the police homicide and blackhand squads today said they were without a definite clue as to the slayer and lacked even a clearly defined theory upon which to proceed.

Five men, one of them a friend of the slain "prophet," were arrested as suspects today. Angelo Depoliz, 34, who admitted his acquaintance with Evangelista, was taken into custody when detectives found a short axe in Depoliz's barn, together with a keen-edged banana knife and a pair of shoes. Police said the shoes had apparently just been washed and the axe bore stains which are to be tested to determine whether they are blood or rust.

Known members of the cult, and patients of the popular healer, were the first to be called for questioning. From these witnesses, police attempted to learn details of the last scene at the Evangelista home, during which it was believed the murders occurred.

The murders were discovered at noon by Vincent Elias, real estate man, who called at the Evangelista home about a property which the "prophet" planned to buy. Obtain no response from knocks at the door, Elias entered the office room where Evangelista conducted his oddly contrasted business of healing, selling real estate and building, and found the bodies.

Evangelista was 45, a quiet, unsmiling Sicilian whose acquaintances were limited to those who he treated with herbs and for whom he worked as a carpenter, builder and realtor. Neighbors called him mysterious and said few patients ever called at the small frame dwelling.

The house was dirty and scantily furnished.

In the basement, police found a small room lined with green drapes was images were suspended from the ceiling. Celestial plants hung from the ceiling beside a small altar. Over another altar were suspended eight hideous figures arranged in a circle.

One figure contained a large electrically lighted eye which Evangelista called the "Sun."

Police said Mrs. Evangelista had sold charms and amulets and that several weeks ago she was refused permission to open the house for exhibit of her trinkets.

Elias found the Herb doctor's headless body, arms folded across the chest propped up in a chair at his desk which sometimes served as an altar for his worshippers. In a pool of blood near the chair lay the dead, eyes fixed on the row of images above the office desk. The decapitation had been performed cleanly apparently with the sharp, heavy knife.

The real estate man ascended to the second floor seeking Mrs. Santina Evangelista and the children.

The mother and her 18-month-old son, Marion, had been slain in bed. Mrs. Evangelista's head was nearly severed from the body, apparently by the same instrument which killed her husband. The baby's head had been crushed by a heavier instrument.

Lying in their twin beds across the hall were the bodies of Angelina, 7, and Margaret, 5. Their nightgowns had been torn by the slayer. Near their little beds lay the body of the sixth victim, Jeanne, 4.

The trail of bloody fingerprints led from Evangelista's office throughout the house. The door casings of the two bedrooms upstairs were marked with fingerprints. Papers under the roll cover of the healer's desk were marked with blood as if the had rummaged through them.

Sugar Industry Threatened And now the American sugar refining industry is threatened. John H. McCarthy, president of a big Pennsylvania sugar refining company and said to be the spokesman for sugar refiners in New York, Texas, Louisiana, Georgia, Massachusetts and California appeared before the senate tariff committee and declared 254,000 tons of refined sugar was imported into the United States last year.

He ventured the prediction if refining of sugar in the West Indies and Cuba is allowed to develop, American sugar refining industries will suffer unless adequate protection is provided.

One South American republic ships 100,000,000 barrels of oil to the United States each 12 months. Crude is on the free list. If American sugar industries are entitled to high tariffs for protection purposes, why not the American producers of petroleum?

Texas is a petroleum producing state—indeed, it promises to rank first in the near future.

If Texas sugar refiners are to be given adequate protection, why not Texas producers of the crude?

Cement Plant Bill in the Air A proposal that the state go into the business of making cement "is in the air."

A concurrent resolution has been introduced calling upon the highway commission and board of prison commissioners to investigate the feasibility of the plan and report within sixty days after adjournment of the legislature to the governor on the cost of installing sufficient state plants at the price at which cement could be manufactured.

Yes, the resolution "is in the air." It is safe to predict that it will be in the air when the vote is taken on final adjournment. Rep. Lynn of Beaumont, Jefferson county, speaking for the resolution declared "the cement trust is one of the most powerful the people have to deal with today. The very minute we pass this resolution the cement trust will cut the price of cement so it won't actually be necessary for the state to produce a barrel."

Texas has many cement plants. There is a new plant on the fringe of the city of Waco of tremendous daily production and has millions behind it. Texas is getting to be a manufacturing state of respect.

Legislative committee turned estimates of cost at a former session—briefly that it would cost $142,132 to $3,000,000 to install a cement plant of 2,000 barrels per day capacity and, according to Parl Davis, "recited the findings of the committee on cement of A. & C. college to the effect that it is not probable that a state plant would manufacture cement at a lower cost than private plants."

There would be this difference: Labor is employed by the private plants; convicts would be employed by the operator of the state plants.

ROB RAILWAY EMPLOYEE BY UNITED PRESS DALLAS, Tex., JULY 4.—W. A. Burt, employe of the Dallas held up and robbed after being taken for a "ride" by two gangsters about midnight.

Burt said he was going home when two men pulled up to the curb, forced him into their car at the point of a gun and drove him to the edge of town where they robbed him of $18. They set him free after taking his money.

JARDINE ON BEET SUGAR William M. Jardine is for a 6 cent duty on sugar. He is the voice and the principal lobbyist for the beet sugar growers or producers. He is former secretary of department of agriculture.

He was on the rack for his methods as a secretary and lobbyist congressman and senators placed him on the rack. This while a cabinet officer by appointment of a republican president. He appeared before the senate committee on tariff making. He declared he was interested in expansion of the beet sugar industry.

He described it as a non-surplus and good rotation crop, now produced by 190,000 farmers in 17 states. Texas may become a beet sugar producing state. It is said both soil and climate are ideal for the production of the beet. There is a sugar combine, and amalgamation of the forces of cane and beet, and Washington advises indicate that the combine is in the saddle.

HENRY FORD SELLS HIS RAILROAD Henry Ford has sold his railroad, lock, stock and barrel, to a New York broker firm. Purchase was made on behalf of an undisclosed principal. In 1920 the wizard obtained the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton railroad for a total investment of $5,000,000 after the property had been in the hands of the receivers for 30 years.

Now the road is said to have a property value for rate making purposes of $23,061,208. Henry made it pay. He gave his employes a five hour work day. They were not only paid wages above the union scale but were made actual partners in the undertaking. They were offered certi-

CHEESE FACTORIES FOR SMALL COMMUNITIES Cheese factories, requiring smaller volume of milk and having fewer transportation difficulties, can be profitably located in small or isolated communities in which a creamery could not be successfully located, according to H. L. Wilson of the U. S. Bureau of Dairy Industry. A cheese plant can be successfully operated on as little as 500 pounds of cheese a day he says, which would require the milk from around 400 cows.

TO EXTEND RAILROAD Texas continues to lead in new railroad building, which is at a standstill in most of the States. A new project to begin at once and be completed by December 1, 1930, is an 86-mile extension by the Orient from Alpine to Presidio and a 65-mile extension from San Angelo to Sonora.

T. C. C. ACHIEVEMENTS ARE MANY AND VARIED

All West Texans Invited By the Organization.

Review of purposes and achievements of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce is given in official statement as follows, in part:

The membership and friends of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce are assuming the direction of the Chamber of Commerce. We feel that some expression of the policies that will be followed might be of interest at this time.

An all day meeting held at the office on June 26, the president and manager-elect, together with all four members of the advisory board made a careful study of the work achieved under the administration of the retiring manager, D. Wade and his staff of assistants.

Mr. Wade sat with us during this session, and gave us a complete accounting of all work in the various departments, as well as a satisfactory stewardship of his general activities. We were all impressed with the faithfulness and fidelity that was evidenced in the organization could be fully accomplished, they would, we have been more impressed with the importance of the organization and its great service to West Texas in particular and to the state in general.

All are more or less prone to neglect attention to the things that do not affect them directly. Matters of general interest often pass without full appreciation of their importance. The membership is more or less familiar with a few of the major accomplishments of the organization in recent years. But others have not been exploited. Still many of the accomplishments have been of outstanding importance to the citizens of the territory.

A single instance that came to the notice of the board while in session which illustrates this fact, though dozens could be cited. The manager reported a complete survey of the rolling stock needs for the harvesting season in the wheat growing belt of West Texas, and the survey showed, in order that a crop now being harvested could be moved as expeditiously as possible, amounting to 32 million bushels. Service of this kind should and will be continued.

Major Activities.
The general public is more or less familiar with the passage of the bill known as the "Red river bill" which had for its object the clearing of titles in so-called navigable streams in West Texas, affecting thousands of acres of valuable lands, not only in West Texas but throughout the state. The organization originated this legislation and aided in its passage. To mention Small and Woodward and representatives Cecil Storey and Stevenson, is due much credit for its safe conduct through the legislative halls, and its passage over the governor's veto. Charles E. Coombes, general attorney for the Swenson interests in Texas appears before our advisory board and in commenting on the passage of this bill declared that it was by far the most effective accomplishment of the Bourland-Wade administration. In fact Judge Coombes said, "The passage of this bill alone, offsets the expenditures necessary in the conduct of the organization of a half a century." This is the reason that it quieted titles in a large area in West Texas, which but for this bill would have been exploited by "land sharks" to the expense of the real owners, who have endured the hardships incident to the settlement and development of this section of the state.

them as their own and paid taxes thereon for more than a generation. Cities and towns have been built on these surveys. The equitable segregation of the excess has become in most instances impossible.

It has been the policy of the state from the beginning of statehood to recognize the title to all the lands within the boundaries of these surveys and this has been the trend of judicial opinion of our courts. But, as these lands became valuable in the development for oil and gas a great incentive has arisen to place files and encumbrances on supposed vacancies and excesses and thus the title of the true owners is continually clouded, jeopardized and threatened, and the difficulty of proving the corners and boundaries is becoming greater by the obliteration of natural and artificial objects and the death of locators and surveyors.

The expense incident to a defense of suits brought to recover these supposed vacancies and excesses, where the venue is now fixed by law in Travis county, is very great and works a hardship on the real owners. The instigators of such suits are usually "land sharks," who have all to gain and nothing to lose. It is therefore believed legislation along this line is imperative, and as important as the river bed bill to quiet titles to West Texas lands and aid in the development of this section of Texas. Moreover, like conditions exist throughout the state. A committee was appointed to draft the bill and press the same to final passage at the earliest opportunity.

It appeals to this incoming administration, that such constructive ideals as these should compel the moral and financial co-operation of every land owner in West Texas.

Water Rights.
Another instance of constructive protection to all West Texas is cited. Reference is made to our sacred water rights. Two years ago the people of this section awoke to the fact that all of the water in the Colorado river watershed had been needed by the state to a power company. No waters flowing into this river according to this grant could be used except by consent or purchase of such power company. The West Texas Chamber of Commerce, ever watchful of the interests of West Texas entered its protest. It is obvious to the organization that if the waters of one stream could be ceded to a power company for the purpose of generating hydro-electric power, then the waters of all streams could be disposed of in

Civil War Vets Are Proud Papas

Not long ago 19-year-old John Laubach of Toledo, Ohio, came forward as the youngest child of any Civil War veteran now living, but his claim has been wrecked. Here are a few of the many pictures presented in the dispute. Above is William Keller, 86, veteran of the 28th Illinois Infantry and now residing near Marietta, Okla., with his 15-year-old son, and now residing near Marietta, Okla., with his 15-year-old son, and his 19-year-old daughter, Superior. At the left is Charles DeMoss, 80, 146th Indiana Infantry, with his 9-year-old daughter, Lois Irene. Highest honors, however, are won by Justice of the Peace Edward A. Propst, 83, 152nd Illinois Infantry, of Greenville, Ill., who is shown at the right holding his 15-months-old son, Harold Cecil. Judge Propst married his present wife eight years ago when she was 18 years old.

the same manner, and the God-given waters of the west, were thus menaced to the domestic uses of the people of West Texas. The result of the campaign in this situation caused the backers of the Syndicate Power company who had been given these valuable concessions to withdraw their support. The state board of water engineers have been estopped by public opinion in making such grants.

While our board was in session, a telegram was received from Senator Walter C. Woodward, announcing his bill fostered by the organization fixing a state policy defining priority rights, and placing municipal, domestic and irrigation uses ahead of hydro-electric uses, had passed the senate by shippers alone will be more than four million dollars per year. Is this worthwhile? Such far reaching ends can only be attained by organized effort. Trained men and woman must carry on this work, and talent of the right kind must have adequate compensation. We give our solemn assurance that every economy will be exercised consistent with the proper service to be rendered.

Oil and Gas.
The organization through its oil and gas bureau has worked wonders in the conservation of the oil and gas resources of the west. Policies of this bureau have likewise attracted widespread attention. The idea of conservation and proration as advocated by the oil and gas bureau is resulting in bringing crude oil from low levels which have obtained until a few weeks ago to at least an upward trend. We believe this will be continued to the point of consistent prosperity in these great resources return. The position of the organization upon these matters is now being better understood by both major and independent companies.

The incoming administration appeals to those interested in the oil and gas industries to give helpful co-operation to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce to the end that it may better serve their interests, because no section can prosper without the prosperity of the various units in that section.

Farm Development.
The basis of wealth as is generally recognized is bound up in the development of the agricultural and livestock interests of a country. The incoming administration feels that its greatest opportunity for service to West Texas lies in the constructive and orderly development of both. While the organization has steadfastly exploited opportunities in line with these ideas, yet it is our ambition to make still greater progress. The west is by nature and environment a stock farming country. The organization has overlooked no opportunities in demonstrating these facts.

One of the fundamentals in the protection and development of the livestock and agricultural interests is that of conserving the soil and the prevention of erosion. A constructive system of terracing throughout West Texas will, we believe, work wonders along these lines. The organization has accomplished much in this connection but the new administration pledges itself to still greater efforts. It pleads with bankers, merchants and business interests in general to lend the fullest possible co-operation morally and financially.

the west. We give our earnest and sincere pledge to foster and encourage these industries in every possible manner. We also expect to give more careful attention to the development of the sheep, goat and hog industry as well as to the marketing situation.

Other Legislation.
The organization has been keenly alive to legislation that is for the betterment of West Texas, and has opposed such legislation as might be inimicable. It is in favor of redistricting this section to the end that the west may have her just representation in the legislative halls in Austin and in Washington. We believe also that there should be adequate and proportionate appropriations for the state institutions located in West Texas; that our experiment stations should be enlarged and increased in numbers, and that the extension work of the A. & M. college should be fostered in every practical manner.

West Texas demands no favors, except to secure the things to which she is justly entitled, and we expect to give our best efforts along the lines of securing full justice to this section of Texas.

Publicity and Service.
The incoming administration expects to devote every energy in the constructive exploitation of West Texas, and we sincerely hope for valuable suggestions along these lines. The publicity work of the organization has been of inestimable benefit, and yet we hope to be able to broaden our scope that has been given, if it is possible to do so.

Much more could be said in the way of detail, but we trust that these expressions will suffice to acquaint the membership in general as to the ideals that we maintain. Nothing will be overlooked in the way of service that the organization can render. The president, manager expects to give his entire energies, mind and life to the work which was placed upon him by a unanimous and enthusiastic vote of the executive board, attended by over 60 members. He is mindful of the responsibilities he has accepted, but expects to

Fort Worth and Dallas split a two-game series yesterday when the Cats, after piling up a five run margin in the first two innings, which the Steers were unable to overcome, slugged their way to a victory of 8 to 7. Jimmy Walkup, Cal southpaw, with the aid of Pancho Snyder's catching always succeeded in stopping his opponents in the pinches.

The Houston Buffs scored an easy victory over San Antonio, with a score of 10 to 2 in a game that was featured by Reinbart's superb twirling. What is more the Houston pitcher landed a triple and a single. Two doubles and a triple were made by Martin.

In a batting attack, which was led by Bill Warwick who made four hits, the Waco Cubs made it two in a row over Beaumont when they defeated the Exporters at Waco, 11 to 3. Sangster hit his 20th homer of the season.

Watching the Scoreboard. Yesterday's hero—Babe Ruth, greatest slugger of them all, who proved his power with a home run in the seventh inning at New York that scored four men and enabled the Yankees to tie the Boston at five runs. The Yanks won the game.

PETITION TO ASK HIGHER WOLF BOUNTY

CISCO, Texas, July 4.—Walter Ray thinks that by another 12 months if the present predatory animal eradication program is continued in Eastland county, it will be reasonably safe to raise sheep and goats in the county. He said, however, that at least four trappers are needed in the county.

At the chamber of commerce is a petition asking the county commissioners to pass an order under the new state law recently passed by the legislature, offering a bounty of $5 on predatory animals. The present bounty is $2.

Right now is a good time to trap for the animals, it is pointed out, as numerous young ones may be caught by the farmers and stockmen. By offering a $5 bounty a

THOROUGHFARE BEING WIDENED AND REWORKED

WIDENING OF BANK-HEAD HIGHWAY PROGRESSING RAPIDLY

CISCO, Texas, July 4.—Recommencing the Cisco-Breckenridge highway is now under way. County Commissioner Bert Britain is erecting new shoulders on the thoroughfare and widening it from 24 to 36 feet on each side. As soon as this work is completed the road will be thoroughly patched with asphalt and crushed rock to place it in the best condition possible. This road has been one of the favorites of the highway system in precinct four and the action of Commissioner Britain in completing the situation is greeted with gratification by Cisco people and especially by those whose business requires frequent use of the thoroughfare. Reworking of the road will be completed by the 15th of this month.

Meanwhile excellent progress is being made in securing additional right-of-way in preparation for widening the Bankhead highway through this precinct.

Right-of-Way Secured. East of Cisco, Mr. Britain announced, all right-of-way in the precinct has been secured with the exception of that from one landowner. This has been done with no expense to the county except for moving fences back and the setting of new corner posts 20 feet apart.

IT'S a tough break for Lewis Albert Fonseca, first base man of the Cleveland Indians, that the magnates have decided to cut out the most valuable player trophy this year.

For if you take the word of the Cleveland baseball writers and the Cleveland natives, the midwestern League would already have the honors edged and bagged.

In the Indians' spring training here at New Orleans, Lew expressed his confidence of this being the greatest year of his major league career, and from the present pace he is setting for his teammates, it looks as if he had the correct time.

The value of having Fonseca on a ball team lies in his love for winning games. When his team loses, there is no more lugubrious player in the clubhouse after the game than Lew. But when the Indians triumph, you'll hear Lew's clear voice pulsating from the shower room.

Fonseca can play any infield position and has also seen service in the outfield. He is one of the finest thinking players in the game. His ability to anticipate plays and cover up the opposition has won more than a few games for the Tribe this season.

While never a speedy runner, Lew is always right at the bag in stolen bases. He knows when and how to break down the bag and he is as good a man in a double steal as there is in the league.

Lew came up to the Cincinnati Reds from the Coast League in 1922. He served as utility infielder, regular first base and second baseman until 1925, when purchased by the Phils. Although he hit for .323 that year, the Phils let him slip to the International League—a blunder as only the Phils can make.

To prove it, Lew hit up a .352 batting mark with Newark and the following year Cleveland bought him back at the reported purchase price of $25,000.

Second sale to his baseball, came Lew's time when it is good enough to get him valuable contracts in the off season.

"Anything you say," Nan in-the sofa. "Now, I think I'll go up to Curtis. He'll be ill if I don't get him calmed down before his bedtime, poor darling. . . .

By the way," she added, with every appearance of casualness, "has —his mother asked that he be given to her?"

She felt rather than saw that Morgan flushed darkly. His voice was thick and low as he answered:
"At first, of course. She was —quite hysterical about it. But—this afternoon she was much more reasonable. In fact, she agreed that it would be better for the child not to be taken from his father. Under the circumstances, she thought I could do more for the boy than she would be able to."

"And you swallowed that whole," Nan reflected, with bitter disgust. "Can't you see what her game is? In the first place, she doesn't want to be bothered with taking care of the child, and in the second, she knows he is—a much more potent of a pen against me in this house than he could possibly be in hers." Aloud, however, she said coldly: "Of course she knows that the court gave you custody of the child."

Out of the corner of her eye she saw Morgan bow his head upon his breast. "Yes—she knows that.
But if she insisted I would let her have him, Nan, no matter how much I should suffer from losing him. A child and his mother should not be parted—"

"She left him," Nan could not forbear reminding him.
"She admits that," Morgan said heavily. "We—mustn't be too hard on her, dear. She has—paid pretty high for her—mistake."

Nan turned sharply so that he should not see the cynical smile which twisted her childish mouth.
After a moment she was able to say, with genuine feeling: "I'm glad she has been generous about Curtis. It would break my heart to lose him now." But as soon as the words were uttered, she could have bitten her tongue in two.
Would he interpret those words as a veiled, indirect bid for his sympathy and for his loyalty? She would die rather than plead for the continuation of a relationship that had become hateful to him.
"I must go to Curtis now," she said hastily. "Then I think I'll go to bed, John. I'm—tired. I'll say good night now—"

She was about to walk away from him without offering him even her hand when she heard him the boy had not been trusted with a key, lest he lose it. She knelt down, after trying the door, and called softly through the keyhole:

"It's Nan, darling. I've come to tell you a story before you go to sleep."

There was no answer for a full minute, while Nan waited, trembling. Had the boy as well as the father cast her out of his heart? Then a tear-choked voice called out angrily: "Go away!"

"All right, darling," she called cheerfully through the keyhole. "I'll go if you want me to, but I really thought you'd like to hear how the Wright boys made the first airplane. I'd been thinking of letting you and Little Pat make one like it—only smaller, of course."

Lucky she'd been reading the story of the Wright boys only last week! She couldn't lose Curtis, she couldn't! She loved him too much, and needed him now so desperately. . . .

There was the thud of a heavy body, the rush of padded paws across the floor, then the welcoming whimper of a dog snuffing at the door. "Cop wants me to come in," she laughed, her voice very tender and coaxing.

A lighter thud. Little feet pattering, reluctantly at first, then eagerly. A bolt shot back. The door opened a crack and one black eye, drowned in tears, studied Nan with a heartbreaking mixture of longing and hostility. "All right, C'mon in," a hiccupy little voice invited ungraciously.

She was careful, when the child opened the door wide, not to take him in her arms, not to let him see how much she wanted him to be friends again.

"Can me and Little Pat make an airplane, honest?" he demanded suspiciously, as he climbed back into bed.

"You may try with all your might, for you'll have the materials and the plans to work from," Nan laughed, and pushed down an uncomfortable feeling of shame. This was the first time she had ever tried to bribe the child. Was she stooping to Iris' methods? "Now shall I tell you just how the Wright brothers set about building their first plane?"

She perched on the side of his bed, but still refrained from touching the boy, who listened with growing eagerness, the hostile gleam slowly dying out of his eyes. She had her reward when, the exciting tale finished, his hot little hand inched shyly toward hers. Suddenly the fingers convulsively over hers.

"It ain't—I mean, it isn't true, is it, Nan, that you won't let my mother come home?"

Nan's heart stood still for an instant. What COULD she say? Was he old enough to be told a part of the truth? No matter. . . . She could not lie to him.

"Curtis, darling, Nan can't explain all the reasons, but your father can't have two wives. It—it's against the law. So you see, dear, if your mother come back, Nan will have to leave."

The black eyes widened in bewilderment, and the beautiful, curly mouth, so like Iris', trembled. "But I want both of you, and I bet Father does, too," Curtis insisted stubbornly. "It's a silly old law. . . . Listen, Nan, did Mother know about that old law before—before she went away?"

TRACK TO CONNECT
W. F. & S. WITH THE
C. & N. E. AT BRECK
BRECKENRIDGE, July 3.—A contract is to be let in a very short while by the Cisco & North-eastern Railroad for the construction of an interchange track between the lines of the C. & N. E. and the Wichita Falls & Southern Railroad, according to Harry DeLane, general agent for the C. & N. E. here.

Culminating a long drawn out contest between these two roads over the construction of the interchange track, an order of convenience and necessity was recently issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission authorizing the C. & N. E. to build the approximately 1326 feet of track between their lines and the W. F. & S., at a point about one-half mile south of the C. & N. E. depot to a point farther south by 1326 feet on the W. F. & S.

The C. & N. E. is to bear all cost of expense of constructing the track, which is expected to be approximately $8,000. Work will start as soon as a contract is let, Mr. DeLane stated today.

The local chamber of commerce at a meeting recently petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission for the interchange track.

In the minds of the local business men and civic builders, this move will greatly benefit Breckenridge and its trade territory. The interchange track will speed up traffic hauling and lessen shipping expense between points on the two roads. Time will be saved in shipments, it is pointed out.

When established the new track will eliminate the hauling of Breckenridge traffic to Ranger and Cisco for exchange between the two roads, thus saving annually thousands of dollars in hauling charges as well as much time.
