EASTLAND, TEXAS, THURSDAY EVENING, APRIL 4, 1929

On the "Broadway of America"

THE WEATHER

WEST TEXAS—Unsettled to night and Friday, probably show- ers southwest portion; somewhat warmer tonight in the Panhandle.

MORE ESCAPES PREVENTED Backbone Of Rebellion Is Reported Broken

Hot Stews of Tomatoes by Col. Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald

Schutz As A Prophet Statistician H. H. Schutz has let be known that if the Texas farmers intentions to plant are carried out in 1929 there will be in- creased in all feed crops except corn and hay. He has let it be known that the acreage of principal crops this year excluding cotton, amounts to 12,423,000 acres compared with 12,198,000 acres harvested last year. What about the cotton acreage? Will it be increased or decreased?

Turn About Is Fair Play Now an expert calculator has it be known that American men and husbands will have a 2,000,000,000 beauty bill to meet in 1930. There are 40,000 beauty salons in the United States with more than 75,000 women working in them. Before the coming of the 18th amendment the men invested $2,000,000,000 a year in the beverages manufactured and sold by the barkeepers.

That is, they painted their nails and did all in their power to perpetuate the red, red nose. There are beauty parlors in- of saloons and the women growing more enticing every day.

Woodward and Norris State Senator Walter C. Woodward has requested the resignation of John A. Norris, chairman of the state board of water engineers. The president pro-tem of the Texas senate has made the in- direct charge that the chairman of the state board of water engineers is very friendly to the big oil companies. It is one thing to ask a resignation and another to get it. The governor makes nominations to the senate; the senate ratifies or rejects nomination. Are the lawmakers of Texas to become copy mak- for the press of the nation at coming special session?

The Senator From Kansas Henry J. Allen of Kansas is the successor of Vice President Charles Curtis in the house of lords of American congress. Henry J. Allen has had a notable career, was the editor and publisher of the Wichita Beacon for 21 years. He was a republican inde- pendent in politics. He served his country as governor four years. He is an anti-strike law which he made him unpopular with organ- ized labor.

World War Time he was a butcher in Red Cross work. He was a magazine writer he won rank. He was for a time edi- tor and publisher of one of the best newspapers. He was pub- lishing director for the republicans during the campaign last year. He is personal and political friend of the president.

Four years ago to serve in he was called to the vice presidency. Now this former edi- tor and free lance writer will be seated for four years in the american senate unless death intervenes.

Kansas is an agricultural state. Senators, Capper and Allen, newspaper men and friends no farmer.

Historical Society Will Hold Meeting

The Texas Historical association which C. U. Connelley of East- land vice president, will meet here April 13. The public invited to attend. The program will be:

9:30 a. m.—Welcome address, Hayden; response, Pres. R. C. Jones; music, Abilene Chris- tian college quartet; "The Phases of the History of the Plains," J. E. Haley; "The Romance of Range," E. E. Dale; "Educa- tional Experiences of Frontier J. D. Sandefer.

1:30 p. m.—Luncheon and business session. 2:30 p. m.—"Some Attitudes of Texas Delegates in the Con- vention of 1875," J. E. Haley; "My Impressions at Constitutional Convention of 1875," J. Fred Cookrell; "Frontier Experiences Among the Quakers of the Panhandle," J. W. Hunt.

GEN. ESCOBAR FLEES, SAYS A BULLETIN

Troop Trains, After Jimenez Is Abandoned, Are Sur- rounded and Give Up After a Hot Fight.

By G. F. FINE. United Press Staff Correspondent. MEXICO CITY, April 4.—The federal army continued today its "campaign of extermination" against rebel forces after the bloody battle at Reforma in which Gen. Juan Almazan reported the Escobar force of 5,000 men was "definitely eliminated." The president announced that all of the rebel trains carrying Gen. J. Gonzales Escobar's army from Jimenez had been captured and "all rebels killed or taken prisoners."

Gen. Plutarco Calles informed the president that "in my opinion, the death blow to the rebellion was dealt at Reforma."

EL PASO, Tex., April 4.—The Escobar revolt in Mexico was crushed late yesterday with the capture of the main infantry troop trains of the rebel forces at Reforma, Chihuahua, 15 miles north of Jimenez, Consul General Enrique Liekens announced today after receipt of an official report from General Juan Andreu Almazan, federal division commander.

General Almazan's report said General Jose Gonzalo Escobar and other rebel chieftains deserted their troop trains, after federal forces surrounded them, and fled northward toward Chihuahua City.

The federal commander requested hospital supplies be rushed to Reforma to care for rebel wounded.

General Almazan said the victory at Reforma was the culmination of a series of clashes that began at 1 a. m. Sunday at Corralitos, about 20 miles south of Jimenez.

Federal troops occupied Jimenez Tuesday, with the exception of the railway station and yards, Almazan's report said. Escobar's troops retreated in the trains to the north but were cut off by a destroyed bridge, Almazan messaged.

Almazan's cavalry followed the trains, the left wing under command of Generals Ortiz and Seratos and the right wing under the command of Generals Quevado and Lopez. Almazan personally commanded a battalion of artillery, he reported.

Almazan attacked the surround- ed trains from the rear, he said. "The rebels valiantly defended themselves after their leaders deserted them," Almazan wired. "Hundreds were slaughtered and finally the entire rebel infantry force surrendered."

Almazan reported that when rebel forces realized they were defeated at Jimenez, they en- trained and fled northward only to run into the destroyed bridge. It was supposed the damage could be repaired in 24 hours but Almazan pressed his advantage. After allowing his cavalry a few hours' rest, he ordered them in pursuit, he reported.

He said when the cavalry caught up with the stalled train, they surrounded it and opened fire. Then Escobar and his lead- ers, seeing capture was almost inevitable, broke from their fol- lowers with a small detachment of cavalry and fled northward to his stronghold in Chihuahua City.

"From a military standpoint, the revolution is crushed," Liekens said. "Escobar and his cavalry may retreat to Sonora but the main rebel army has been cap- tured at Reforma."

Brownwood's Mayor To Go To Trial Today

Is Accused of Shooting Sales- man, Who Is Alleged to Have Given Liquor to Mayor's Minor Son.

By United Press. BROWNWOOD, Tex., April 4.—Mayor Palmer C. McGinnis of Brownwood went on trial in district here on charges of assault with intent to murder in connection with the shooting of Clyde Maner, Brownwood tire salesman, last November.

According to officers, the shoot- ing grew out of accusations that Maner had given liquor to a minor son of the mayor. Both State and defense said Wednesday that they are ready for the trial.

Fire Department Probe At Dallas

DALLAS, Tex., April 4.—Three Dallas firemen have been suspended pending the outcome of an investigation of the manner in which they responded to a fire call Tuesday night at the Rogers Lumber and Manufacturing Co., causing more than $100,000 damage.

Those suspended were Assistant Chief D. D. Barnes, John Filling- ham, driver of Chief Barnes' car, and V. Ludwick, assistant driver. Investigations thus far, it was said, show that 26 minutes elapsed between the arrival of the first trucks at the fire and the arrival of the next summoned apparatus.

Wisconsin Is Paradox, Some Observers Say

Last Election Not a Prohi- bition Referendum, Says Sen. Norris—Smith Lost State Yet Wets Are In Majority.

By PAUL R. MALLON. United Press Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, April 4.—The fact that Wisconsin has voted nearly two to one against state prohibition five months after it gave a 5 to 4 majority against Gov. Alfred E. Smith, the wet in the last presidential campaign, was the subject of comment here today among political leaders.

While Sen. Borah of Idaho and other supporters of Pres. Hoover pointed to the political paradox as an insignificant exception to the general dry attitude manifest in the last election, supporters of Gov. Smith such as Senators Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, and Norris, republican, Nebraska, as- serted the Wisconsin result show- ed prohibition was not an issue in the last campaign. Both Caraway and Norris are dry.

Borah, who led the dry campaign for Mr. Hoover and who looked upon the election as nearly a national referendum on prohibition, pointed out "while prohibition may not have influenced the election result in Wisconsin, there were certainly some places in which it had an effect," in the last election. Taking the opposite view, Sen. Norris told the United Press: "I think the Wisconsin referen- dum demonstrated that the national election was not a national referendum on prohibition. The same voters in Wisconsin who elected Mr. Hoover have now de- clared for repeal of the State en- forcement law."

"The referendum result in Wisconsin," said Caraway, "shows that they were not voting for Mr. Hoover last fall; they were voting against the Pope. And they're voting for beer this spring." Drys generally insist little sig- nificance should be attached to the Wisconsin referendum, because the State generally has been accepted as a wet state.

Mr. Hoover carried Wisconsin by a popular vote of 544,205 to 450,259, while the latest figures on the repeal of the state enforcement act show 292,307 for repeal and 152,363 against.

Camerman Beats Capone to the Draw

"Scarface Al" Capone, Chicago gang chieftain, is seldom photographed as he usually covers his face with the approach of a camera- man, but a fast-working photographer for The Ranger Times and NEA Service beat Capone "to the draw" in the above picture. Notice Capone's hand moving upward in his attempt to cover his face when he saw the camera as he was conferring with his attorney, Benjamin Epstein (left), in the Chicago federal building. Below is Capone (indi- cated by the arrow) leaving the federal building after being question- ed by U. S. officials. Notice that his alert bodyguards have their hands deep in their coat pockets—maybe they have them there just to keep them warm, and maybe not.

At 2:45 p. m., the jury in the John Ainsworth case returned a verdict of not guilty. John Ainsworth, tried in Judge Elzo Been's 88th district court morning on a charge of theft, may soon know the result of the trial as argument in the case was completed and the case was sub- mitted to the jury at 11:15 this morning.

Hold Funeral of U. S. Ambassador

By RALPH HEINZ. United Press Staff Correspondent. PARIS, April 4.—France paid final tribute today to the memory of an Ohio farm boy, Myron L. Herrick, who served as American ambassador to Paris during the most trying days of modern history.

Marked by the simplicity which endeared the white-haired Ameri- can diplomat to France, state fu- neral services were held at the embassy and the American Holy Trinity cathedral.

There was no mourning crepe at the cathedral, but the bright flags of the two countries Herrick had served faithfully hung from the pillars before which Premier Raymond Poincare, Gen. John J. Pershing, J. Pierpont Morgan and many other distinguished figures of France and the United States stood in silence as services were held.

Noted Artists To Appear Tomorrow

Mrs. R. B. Wylie of Abilene has accepted the invitation to appear on the Music Club lunch- noon program tomorrow at one p. m. Connelley Hotel Roof Garden. Her selections are, "In the Lux- emburg Garden," by Manning, and "Call Me No More," by Cadams. Mrs. J. D. Turk of Abilene will sing, "By the Bend of the River," (Edwards) and "A Birthday," by Cowan.

The noted pianist, Hjalmar Berg, will be their accompanist. Both women are prominent in the club and musical life of Texas and are officers of the State Federation of Music Clubs.

38 INDICTMENTS IN THREE DAYS

The 88th district court grand jury, having been in session a total of seven days, has returned a total of 114 indictments, all of which charge felonies.

The grand jury, which re-con- vened Monday, recessed Wednes- day afternoon subject to call. Dur- ing their last session they returned 38 indictments.

Ainsworth Is On Trial For Theft of Auto

Forfeiture of Bonds Is Set Aside—Defendant, Tardy At Night Session, Is Sent to Jail By Judge.

Ainsworth is charged with hav- ing stolen a Hudson automobile from Dr. H. A. Hoy of Cisco on Dec. 12, last. He is represented by Judge Tom J. Cunningham and Frank Judkins of Eastland. The State is represented by County Attorney Joe H. Jones and Assis- tant County Attorney Grady Owen and W. B. Collie.

In the trial of the case, Ferman Anderson, who was held in jail for some days in connection with the case, testified for the State. Following the trial of the case against Ainsworth, Judge Been took up the trial of a companion case against Attie Watson.

Tuesday morning when the case against Ainsworth was called, he was not present and Judge Been ordered his bond forfeited. Ains- worth appeared within an hour, however, and the court revoked his order forfeiting the bond.

Ainsworth was 45 minutes late again at a night session of court and this time Judge Been placed a fine of $100 against him and ordered him placed in jail for the night. This morning Ainsworth explained to the court that he had gone to Ranger to secure witness- es needed in the trial and on his way back to Eastland had car trouble which caused the delay. The court remitted the fine, according to District Clerk W. H. McDonald.

President Of Oil Company Wins Battle

Retains Control of $9,000,000 Texas Oil Properties At Proxy Fight in Amarillo Against Denver Stockholders.

By United Press. AMARILLO, Tex., April 4.—The fight for control of the Johns- son Ranch Royalty company, hold- ers of oil properties valued at $9,000,000, ended here with the re-election of Ed R. Mayer, as chairman of the board of directors.

Mayer, president and organizer of the company, received 361,253 votes as compared with 134,967 for E. K. Whitehead of Denver and 87,588 for Dr. Mary E. Bates, also of Denver.

The fight for proxies started two weeks ago when Mayer charged that Dr. Bates and White- head were trying to wrest con- trol of the company from him. Both sides claimed victory until Wednesday, when tabulation of the votes and proxies in the election was completed.

3 DEAD IN AIR CRASH

WICHITA, Kan., April 4.—Three Kansans burned to death today at Scott City when the cab- in monoplane in which they were riding crashed to earth from an altitude of about 600 feet and caught fire.

The dead: John Flournoy, Wich- ita, pilot; Dr. C. C. McGinnis, prominent Scott City surgeon; Chester Riley, Scott City travel- ing salesman.

Flournoy was testing the ship prior to starting a fishing trip to Colorado when it crashed. Ac- cording to observers, the plane, an obsolete model, nosed over while banking and crashed in.

TWO MORE ALMOST GET OUT OF "ESCAPE PROOF" JAIL

Civic League Tea Attended By Concourse

Brilliant Success Marks Oc- casion — Room Richly Adorned — Splendid Program Given—Attendance More Than 150.

By MRS. W. K. JACKSON. The annual spring reception of the Civic League of Eastland, which also had for its motif the introduction of the league's first ambitious book - making sale, and counter-charges between county officers regarding the fixing of the blame for the conditions which made the escape possible.

Fire today centered upon the building contractors, William Peterson & Company of Little Rock, and R. B. Smith, jailer.

In a search of the "loft" be- tween the third and fourth floors of the courthouse, deputy sheriffs discovered that the outside ac- cesses of the prisoners had tunneled to within half an inch of the inside wall of the solitary cell occupied by Edwards and his wife. A well placed blow from a crow bar claim, would have broken through the wall.

FLASHES

AUSTIN, Tex., April 4.—Dr. H. G. James, former professor of government in the University of Texas, has been named as president of the University of North Dakota, according to word received here. Dr. James was a member of the govern- ment faculty of Texas Univer- sity for about ten years before being called to the Univer- sity of North Dakota as dean of the graduate school and as the school of arts and sciences.

DALLAS, Tex., April 4.—J. H. Rice, poultry dealer, died early today of injuries suffered Wednesday when his motor truck was struck by an inbound Sunshine Special train. A fractured skull caused death.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Secretary Mellon does not antici- pate any important new move by the federal reserve board in its effort to curb speculation as a result of its joint meeting today with governors of the twelve reserve banks, he said today.

May Solve Dole Flight Mystery

SAN FRANCISCO, April 4.—One of aviation's mysteries was expected to be solved today with the identification of parts of an airplane that apparently ended its flight in the Pacific ocean.

The fragments were brought to San Francisco for identifica- tion in hope that they might un- fold an unfinished chapter of the 1927 Dole flight to Honolulu, with three planes and seven per- sons missing.

Convict May Know Secret of Murder of Two Dallas Women

DALLAS, Tex., April 4.—After months of futile search for the slayers of Cleo Liete and Bessie Lynch in a cornfield near Dallas, the district attorney's office here today announced that solution of the mystery may rest with an inmate of the Texas State penitentiary.

William McGraw, district attorney, said today the prisoner had written him a letter saying he is able to give information that will solve the murder of the two young women. A special investigator of the district at- torney's office has been sent to the prison farm at Sugar- land to interview the convict.

FOR BETTER PARTY MANAGEMENT Governor Moody has vetoed the White Anti-Bolter bill.

It is preventing this bill from becoming a law he has done what many of the best friends of the democratic party hoped he would do.

He disapproved the measure in the interest of future party harmony and party welfare. He vetoed it to prevent ambitious politicians in future using the power of party organization to further their interests or to perpetuate their control of the party—control that means control of the government of Texas.

He denied other ambitious politicians campaign thunder they hoped for in next year's race for office. He kept for Texas the best record yet found, the right of the majority of democrats to run the party, free from the artificial barriers of the law's favoritism to cliques or groups.

Governor Moody acted courageously. He did not concede that perhaps he was out of respect to the present administration.

He recognized that the democratic party in Texas is a going concern. He saw that new ideas and new campaigns will form new alignments within the party. He foresaw first one and then another group in temporary control of the party. He saw the "anti-bolter" bill, growing out of the bitterness of a campaign that now is past, would be harmful to the party's future harmony, and would not contribute to the freedom of majority control.

The governor was convinced that at least three-fourths of the democrats of Texas were opposed to the Wirtz bill. Not merely those who saw fit to support the state ticket and the republican presidential electors, but a large part of the "regulars" of 1928 were against the measure. Hundreds of telegrams and letters poured into the executive offices from well-known democrats over the state, including a large number of those who have always voted regular. These messages were overwhelmingly in favor of his vetoing the bill.

The governor knew, too, that the measure was passed only after its sponsors had promised that it would not be invoked to the drastic action which it authorized, of disfranchising nearly half the voters within the democratic party. But they had no control over what any executive committee might do, and Governor Moody wisely concluded it was improper to put the power and its accompanying temptations into the hands of unknown future committees. He knew these committees will be selected from the supporters of future successful candidates for office, and he recognized that no one now is able to tell what extreme group may be in power at some future time.

He was unwilling to give any such unknown coterie of 31 or fewer men, drastic power to perpetuate in power themselves and the office holders who made them.

The governor knew that the far-reaching bill was supported by some who are not in sympathy with the advanced views of political conduct, and who would rather turn the party back to the domination of a few "insiders" even to the abandonment of the entire primary system.

The air has been clarified by Governor Moody's disapproval of the bill which would have been sure to bring on confusion and turmoil. Good faith of the sponsors of this measure was not in question. The good faith of some of Governor Moody's best friends who supported it was not impugned. It was all a question of looking to the future, or of raking back over the dead embers of burned-out bitterness from previous disagreeable issues.

Governor Moody chose to turn the eyes of Texas democracy to the future. He has acted in the best interest of his party and his state.

He disapproved the measure in the interest of future party harmony and party welfare. He vetoed it to prevent ambitious politicians in future using the power of party organization to further their interests or to perpetuate their control of the party—control that means control of the government of Texas.

gorgeous bouquets of fruit blossoms and others filled with long stemmed richly flowering lilacs vied with the bouquets of iris in the rooms' decorations. Luxurious couches were covered with oriental rugs, and the tea table, placed in the center of the assembly room, was laid in file and centered with a large green crystal bowl filled with scarlet tulips flanked by green tapers in silver sticks, the flickering candle light reflected in the shining silver service at either end of tea table, presided over by Mrs. Chastain and Mrs. McRae, the first period; Mrs. Beall Smith and Mrs. Garrett Bohning, the second, and Mrs. G. U. Connelley and Mrs. Earl Conner, the last period of the tea. Over the chair of the presiding hostesses were Spanish shawls. Those assisting in serving were, Mmes. John Knox Jr., L. E. Edwards, Dan Garrett, Perry Sayles, E. E. Freyschlag, and Bryan Brelsford. The delightful refreshments of chicken sandwiches, pimento sandwiches, salted almonds, cakes, tea and coffee were provided under the directions of Mmes. W. E. Stallter, Earl Bender, Jack Williams, L. Moldave, Swearingen and Geo. Glascock. The orchid color scheme was observed in many appointments about the arrangements and noted in the open work dollies over orchid provided the sandwich plates.

The incoming guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Chaney and received by the president of the league, Mrs. Earle Johnson, and Mmes. Joseph M. Perkins, E. E. Freyschlag, A. H. Johnson, Homer Brelsford Jr., Funderburk, R. D. Mahon, Seaberry, T. L. Fagg, Scott Key, Geo. A. Davison, Carl Springer, G. W. Dakan, and Mrs. George Gould of Dallas, house guest of Mrs. E. E. Freyschlag. The house party were in evening dress. The cook book table was presided over by Mrs. Sample assisted by Mmes. Connelley and Armstrong. Eighty-seven copies of the book were sold during the tea. Delightful music was furnished throughout the afternoon by Mmes. F. O. Hunter, and Perry Sayles. A charming little program was given, which opened with a trio, violin Margaret Hart and Dorothy Baldwin, and piano accompaniment by Francis Cunningham. Mrs. Paul Wood of Cisco gave a fine reading of, "Humoresque."

B. M. Collie, solo, with encore, with Mrs. T. J. Haley at piano. The talented Mrs. Grady Pipkin presented several violin numbers, at intervals, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Chas. G. Norton. Principal Boles of West Ward school, sang, "Sonny Boy." For encore, "The Cook Book Song," words by Nora Jeffrey Mahon, set to the music of "A Rainbow 'Round My Shoulder." Mrs. Hunter was accompanist for Mr. Boles. The very artistic and unusual decorations of the assembly room were due to the efforts of Mmes. John Mouser, Eugene Day, W. K. Hyer and W. A. Martin. The entire affair reflected the popularity of the Civic League, and interest the public takes in not only its practical and prosaic ventures, but in the social side of the Civic League life.

After deliberating for 36 hours, the jury in the trial of Lloyd Bunns, George Mayer and Dr. W. D. Little, three prominent Ft. Worth men, reported to Judge Miller at 10 o'clock this morning that it was impossible for them to reach a verdict. Judge Miller discharged them. The jury stood 9 to 3 for conviction when discharged, it was announced by the court.

The three men were tried on burglary charges filed in connection with the alleged forcible entry of the private residence of Dr. W. Y. Evans, Brownwood, on the night of December 19, 1926, and the alleged subsequent abduction of Dr. W. A. Burney. This was the second time the case had been tried, the first trial also resulting in a hung jury.

WHAT HAPPENED

RED LAWRENCE, stenographer at the Judson Hotel, has been snatched from her in bed, but STEPHEN ARMSTRONG catches the thief and returns the scarf. He asks to take some. Not wishing to seem unkind, she invites him to dinner. He praises her mother's cooking and gains favor with young CONNIE, who hopes her sister will mix enough with her old-fashioned man-hold his interest.

Evening is spoiled when PAMELA JUDSON, daughter of the hotel's employer, phones her to duty. Stephen escorts her to the hotel where Pamela invites him as the salesman had sold her a car. She tells Mildred she has to leave and goes away from her by promising she wants to buy another car from him. Then Pamela tells HUCK CONNOR, who tells her she is a broker from Chicago. Mildred thinks that Stephen is playing for his attention. He invites her to attend the play and she accepts, not knowing that Pamela and Huck Connor are there.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VIII

PAMELA and Huck arrived at the hotel after the curtain had been drawn upon the first act, but that did not deter them from taking their seats at once. They had places on the aisle, having reserved these two places when he gave the reding-dote to Stephen.

Mildred and Stephen were seated in the play. Neither attracted any attention to the new-comer. Mildred was leaning forward in her seat, the better to see around the rather large and bushy head of the man in front of her.

She brought her features into better view than Pamela's, who had latterly taken her place beside her.

PAMELA settled herself quietly, her lips turned upward, in a faint sneer that foretold trouble to someone.

She reached an arm at her neck to help adjust her wrap, but struggled negatively and the ermine closer.

When she did not become aware of her presence there in the seat beside him until the lights were up. Even then he'd talked to Mildred for a full minute before she learned of it.

She gave a startled exclamation as a starburst of light suddenly flared over Mildred's features that brought him to see what had caught her eye.

He found himself looking at Pamela's falsely smiling face. "You couldn't join us," he said coolly. "Better luck next time."

She heard her, of course, but she made no reply. Instead she heard what reply Stephen made. Would he let pass the implication that his date for the evening?

When she failed entirely to get the meaning behind his words, she looked past her brother and recognized Huck. He drew quickly together a sharp line of disapproval and believed it was by jealousy.

She leaned back in her seat and her wrap off her round shoulders with a slow smile on her face was directed to Mildred.

"The show?" Huck asked. "Very good," Stephen answered. "He had just been telling me it was a wow."

More mindful of his manner, Stephen looked past the girl to include his companion in his remark.

"Miss Lawrence," he said in surprise. "Glad to see you here."

She nodded. "I looked at her then and her head briefly. Mildred returned the greeting and her eyes over a program."

She was painfully conscious of being wrong. Her eyes had begun so glorious. She was completely spoiled. She was beside a bird of a new dress might be a lovely pink satin. And a string of artificial pearls around her neck was like a child's in contrast to Pamela's gems and flashing diamonds.

She was around was either Pamela or whispering to her with admonitions not to get. There were several for this, the chief one being her attire. Her truly honey-colored hair was And, perhaps, not the all, was her posing. It was correct to say that her first. Certainly there was attractive and bewitching in the audience who was giving far less attention.

PAMELA had an air, with one side of her head and on the other, of holding new of those who looked at all. She did not and there was only the quiet perfection to catch and eyes are not caught except when there is more flamboyant to be seen.

She tried to tell herself that it wasn't a fool, that Stephen was right to feel as he liked about Pamela. But as she saw, throughout the rest of the play, that he had lost interest in it entirely and that he seemed to be much disturbed over something, she knew that it would do her no good to deny that she was hurt.

He found a message in his room. He was asked to call the Judson Hotel.

She couldn't understand why Stephen had brought her if he might have come with Pamela and so plainly would have preferred it that way. "Unless he's just jealous because Pamela is here with another man," she concluded unsatisfactorily.

It did not surprise her, when, at the end of the performance, Stephen suggested that they all go to the Judson Grill to dance.

Wouldn't a man think of something like that! "But I wouldn't go if I was dressed in gold," Mildred decided angrily. To Stephen she said she'd promised her mother to come home directly after the show.

PAMELA overheard her. "Does your mother doubt her success in teaching you morality, Miss Lawrence?" she asked, smiling superiorly.

"She leaves such worries to stepmothers," Mildred retorted, stung to recklessness.

PAMELA turned her back. "Let's go, Huck," she said, and did not speak to Mildred again even when she said good night to Stephen.

Stephen was silent as he and Mildred fought through the pushing, milling crowd to the subway.

He knew, as everyone knew who read the New York newspapers, that Amos Judson had given his children one stepmother after another, and he did not blame Mildred for resenting Pamela's remark, but her pointed rejoinder worried him.

He believed she had placed her job in jeopardy, and somehow he felt responsible. Of course, he should have known that Miss Judson would not want to be on the same side of the street as her father's employees. No doubt her displeasure had inspired what she said to Mildred, but Mildred's fiery comeback had surprised him. He had no idea she had so much fight in her makeup.

And even less did he know that she had been growing more and more resentful all evening, and that he was mostly to blame for it. He'd have laughed outright at the notion of his being jealous of Huck Connor.

But he would not have denied that it upset him to see Pamela alone with the man. He'd heard the story of how she'd met Huck, but he hadn't supposed it would go any further. Pamela herself had told him she thought Huck might be mixed up in something queer.

Suddenly it occurred to him that Mildred may have resented his attempt to include Pamela in the party. Perhaps she knew that Pamela would not like it.

"I certainly was dumb," he told himself, and wished that he could explain his reason to blame for the Mildred thinking he was tactless and inconsiderate, but how was he to tell her that he'd only been trying to see that Pamela went home? That he was afraid Huck would induce her to go to some night club?

The noise of the train made intimate conversation difficult. Mildred was thankful that it did. Stephen's manner convinced her that he was certainly not having a good time. Surely this would be the end of their friendship, he'd never want to take her out again.

On the way from the subway to her home, Mildred secretly uttered a word. She was angry with herself because she felt she'd been badly treated. And she didn't want to feel sorry for herself! There was no reason for crying just because a man she hardly knew liked another girl better than her!

Chilled by her silence, Stephen had as little to say.

She did not ask him to share the pot of hot chocolate, and the nut cake her mother had promised to provide, though he climbed the stairs with her and said good night at the door. It was a good night the coldness of which would have been appropriate for parting enemies, for both were locked in the stiffness of a trifling misunderstanding, and were as distant as though hatred motivated them.

In her room, after making sure that Connie was asleep, Mildred permitted the tears that had been smarting her eyes to roll down her cheeks.

She jerked her new dress over her head and threw it on a chair. Stephen hadn't so much as noticed it!

And Stephen, hurrying back to the subway, was telling himself that he'd made a nice mess of things. "And just when I was beginning to like that girl, too. Well, I guess she won't be hanging out any flags if I ever come back."

He was still in a mood of self-depreciation when he reached his hotel and found a message in his room. He was asked to call the Judson Hotel.

Stubborn Tough OLD COUGHS That Linger

That's the kind of a cough that is put out of business with amazing speed when the cougher is wise to Broncholine Emulsion.

Tough old coughs—persistent coughs—coughs that hang on and rob people of their sleep—those are the kind of coughs Broncholine likes to tackle.

Many times such coughs linger after the Grippe or a heavy cold, and if you have one or know of anyone who has one keep Broncholine Emulsion in mind.

It isn't just a cheap sweet cough syrup—it's the best cough remedy—and the best is never cheap. That's why Murray's Drug Store and dealers everywhere guarantee results or money back.

Brunk's Comedians, This City Next Week

Under the auspices of the Eastland fire department, Brunk's Comedians will return to Eastland next Monday for a week's engagement playing under their large tent theatre.

Capping the climax of the season, to speak, Mr. Henry D. Brunk has gone the limit in getting together artists from all sections of the country to make up what is termed a powerful cast. After the men and women who were to take the leading roles were secured Mr. Brunk set about to locate new plays and to engage the services of musicians of ability. This he has done and next Monday night when Brunk's Comedians present Earl Carroll's latest New York comedy drama, "The Florida Hub" you will laugh as you've never laughed before.

There will be plenty of good clean comedy in each play offered and likewise a concert orchestra that will attract favorable comment at any place in the country.

In speaking of his shows Mr. Brunk said it was always his policy to plan some manner in which he could improve the quality of what he had to offer. Therefore he has agreed this season to try something no other showman has ever dared to attempt and that is a reduction in prices. Not only a bigger and better show, but for less money. Children will be admitted for ten cents while adults will pay 20 cents.

The usual band concert of the comedians will be heard on Monday afternoon and the theatre will open at 7:00 p. m., with the performance at 8:00.

SOUTH WARD NEWS EVENTS

A REMARKABLE RECORD South Ward claims to have one of the most outstanding all around pupils in the county. Little Maxine Jordan, twelve years old, is consistently an honor roll pupil.

Last year, though only eleven years of age and in the sixth grade, she was unanimously chosen by the faculty, as the best all around pupil in school and was presented the "General Excellency" medal, awarded each year by the Texas State Bank. The qualities taken into consideration in selecting the pupil for this honor are, scholarship, participation in school activities, school spirit and attitude toward the school teachers and the other students. No doubt she would win it again more easily this year if she were eligible, but it is not awarded the same pupil twice.

When the interscholastic league work was started in the school preparing for the county meet, Maxine tried out for declamation, essay writing, music, memory, arithmetic, spelling and playground ball, and made a creditable showing in all of them in addition to keeping her school work up. She represented the school in four events at the county meet. She made the highest grade on the music memory team that won second place, next to the highest grade on the arithmetic team that won second place and although the junior spelling team, of which she was a member, failed to place, it was no fault of hers for she had a perfect paper. In addition to all of this, she was captain and pitcher on the junior girls' playground ball team which won the county championship at the county meet by defeating Rising Star in the finals 38 to 17.

We have high point men in athletic events at the county meet. But if there were such honors recognized as all around high point contestants, that honor would unquestionably have been awarded our own little Maxine in the recent county meet.

It is not so much her extraordinary ability as it is her willingness to pay the price and her determination to succeed at anything she attempts. You just can't defeat that spirit she has. We need more of her type as leaders in student activities.

Child, Quarter of a Mile Away, Is Killed by Wreck

By United Press DENTON, Tex., April 4.—Railroad officials today investigated the collision of two Katy freight trains here last night in which one engineer and a small child were killed and several persons injured.

The collision occurred when a through freight, bound for Fort Worth, sideswiped the engine of the Dallas-Denton local freight which was standing on the siding.

Fred Werline, of Dallas, engineer of the local freight, was crushed to death. The fireman escaped and the crew of the through engine were not hurt. Both engines were overturned.

A quarter of a mile away at the Denton station, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Church and their family were sitting in their automobile waiting for the train to pass so they could cross the track.

The collision threw five box cars off the track and one of them was hurled through the air and fell on top of the Church car, killing 3-year-old Mary Lynn Church, possibly fatally injuring her father and slightly injuring her mother, two sisters and a brother.

Railroad men said the wreck, with its resulting fatalities, was the most unusual in their experience.

"ARMY" UNITY IS UNBROKEN

By H. C. BURMAN United Press Staff Correspondent LONDON, April 4.—The recent dispute over leadership of the Salvation Army has been almost forgotten and the organization is entering a new era of strength and unity, Gen. Edward Higgins said today in an exclusive interview with the United Press.

The election of General Higgins to succeed the aged Gen. Bramwell Booth climaxed the recent high council meetings in which Commander Evangeline Booth of the United States led the forces seeking to depose her brother, Bramwell.

"There is every evidence that the unity of the Salvation Army is stronger than ever, after the recent high council meetings," Higgins said. "America is going to play an important part in the Army's work."

The new leader is a man with an open, smiling face, blue eyes, a ruddy complexion and a mass of curly hair. He is 65 years of age but looks at least ten years younger.

"If there ever existed any danger at all of a split in the Salvation Army," he continued, "then I may say now that the Army was foremost in the minds of everybody."

He denied reports that some members of the council intended to work for the greater independence of their national organizations, especially in matters of finance.

Reminded that the American delegation came to the council with certain grievances, the general replied:

"The United States delegation came over here with some things in their minds they wanted to see altered for the good of the Army. The unity of the Army meant as much to them as it meant to me. The American delegation played a noble and great part in all the discussions. They showed a remarkable ability to grasp the situation. They were unselfish and thought of nothing but to help the good cause. Their whole attitude was so splendid that it is beyond any words of mine."

The general then explained the position of Commander Evangeline Booth is somewhat different now from that of commanders in other parts of the world. The American Salvation Army now has more power than hitherto to deal with schemes involving larger sums of money—and without referring the matter to headquarters. They are also allowed to appoint officers, which they could not do prior to the high council meetings.

STOP THE FAT AND GET THIN

The way to reduction is to stop the formation of fat. Modern science has found that way—by turning your food into fuel and energy—by supplying a natural element that helps do that. It is much better than starvation. That modern, scientific method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. Now the results in slender figures, new beauty and vitality, are seen everywhere.

Each box of Marmola contains the formula, also the scientific reasons for results. So you know the effects are beneficial, and why they occur. Learn what so many have learned in 20 years about it. Do it now. Ask your druggist for a $1 box of Marmola and learn what it means to you.

Mr. and Mrs. George Finley of Ranger were visitors in the M. O. Hazard home Thursday.

Mrs. J. C. Hagar of Kokomo was visiting in the home of her son, Noble Hagar last week.

Quite a few from this community were attending the county meet at Ranger Friday and Saturday.

MANGUM
MANGUM, April 3.—We had a big crowd at Mangum Sunday. From 10 to 11 a. m., we had Sunday School and then we had a program then dinner on the ground for everyone. In the afternoon, we had an Easter egg hunt and after the eggs were all found we had singing and last of all but not least, was a sermon by Rev. Sehoy Prestidge.

Mr. and Mrs. Eldridge and little daughter, Billie, who has just recovered from pneumonia, were at the Easter egg hunt Sunday afternoon.

The Agricultural Club of Mangum will have a special meeting Thursday night in which we will be awarded our club pins and certificates.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Switzer had a registered Holstein cow die last week.

Mrs. K. D. Rhodes and children are moving to Carbon. We certainly will miss them at Sunday School.

Sunday, April 7, will be our regular meeting day. Rev. B. F. Clements being our pastor.

There were a good many visitors at Mangum Sunday, especially from Cisco.

Martin Whisenant and sister, Louise, of Cisco were visitors at Mangum Sunday.

Mrs. Dorothy Wooley came home from Weatherford Sunday where she has been visiting her sister, Kathleen Moore.

Kokomo
KOKOMO, April 2.—Fruit blossoms make this part of the country beautiful as most every home has an orchard. Prospects are good for an all around fruit crop this year.

Farmers have almost finished planting corn and some corn is up. Gardens are growing nicely.

Rev. Lowe, our school teacher, preached Sunday. The subject, "Easter Sunday," was enjoyed by all who heard him.

The school enjoyed an Easter egg hunt on the creek Friday evening.

J. A. McNeely is having a wind mill erected.

Ward Mangum is back from Madisonville.

Troy Irwin and family were dinner guests of June Hendricks and wife Sunday.

Cleo Everton is home from Breckenridge where he has been working.

Floyd Wood has purchased a new car.

Anassa Shugart has purchased an incubator.

Mrs. Nola Wheeler spent the week-end with J. M. Hendricks. The rabbit drive was a success. A large number of rabbits was killed.

William Bryant and John Simmons worked the road at Kokomo Monday.

We enjoyed the story "The Black Pigeon."

SCHOOL BOY MAKES TALK ROTARIANS

James Smith, Winner County Meet, Addresses Service Club.

(Ranger Times)
Taking as his subject, "The New South," James Smith, Ranger High school student, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Smith, Pine street, addressed the Ranger Rotary club at its regular noon-day luncheon, held in the green room of the Gholston Hotel today.

The youthful speaker, won county honors at the interscholastic league meeting held here last week.

His speech was the same he used in the declamation contests from which he emerged victorious.

Dr. L. C. G. Buchanan responded to Smith.

Mayor John W. Thurman, Marvin K. Collier, Dr. L. C. G. Buchanan, F. G. Yonker and W. D. Conway were appointed members of a nominating committee for the club.

The annual election of officers will be held the last Wednesday in April. A president, vice president, secretary and treasurer and two directors are to be selected.

A short song service was led by J. M. Edwards, accompanied by Mrs. M. R. Newham.

Visitors at the meeting were Jim Beard, J. G. Armstrong, Eastland, R. C. McAfee, Cisco, George Kreyenbuhl, Fort Worth, and Charles M. Edwards, Ranger.

Concise Information About Front Porches

Editor Fred Kern of the Bellaville News-Democrat has a dissertation on "Front Porches" which gives his idea regarding the uses and advantages of that style of entrance to the home. His description follows:

"Front porches are areas that are washed on Saturday whether they need it or not. They are convenient places for leaving dripping umbrellas and rubbers and your son's velocipede, where it may be stumbled over in the dark. A foot-mat stands before the door. This serves ostensibly for wiping mud off the feet, but actually is a receptacle for the dog's bone.

"The roofs of front porches are often supported by columns painted white. By examining the gradually increasing height of the scudges and finger prints you have a practical means of estimating the growth of your children to say nothing of the vandalism of your neighbors' children.

"No porch is complete without porch furniture. This usually consists of sturdy chairs that are too uncomfortable to sit in, but they give you something to paint every spring. It is customary for the paint or the chairs to wear at the point on the shutters. But if the chairs cannot be sat in they serve excellently for the making of wigwags or street cars or motor cars as childish fancy may dictate.

As the seats are already broken, the chairs may be used with impunity as informal stepladders.

"Most front porches also boast Japanese curtain that may be rolled up or down if the pulley ropes have not been broken and tied in a knot. It is customary each autumn to propose removing the curtain to the cellar. This gives a wife something to add to the list of the things which her husband should have attended to and has not.

"But front porches are most important as sounding boards for the footsteps of visitors. This serve as a substitute for doors that do not ring and give a man an opportunity to put on shoes, and a man his collar admitting persons that one likes to impress."

ROAD OF ORGANIZING THE COUNTY FARM BUREAU

organized our county have nearly completed. The Farm Bureau. The lives from the community should meet and elect the needed for the larger. Any interested farmer be encouraged to attend board meetings, although might be restricted to the board members. An effort be made to obtain the most progressive well known farmer in the county. He can be a great face among the rural people. Needless to say, he should be heartily in sympathy with movement and willing to work advancement. In some cases, considered best to organize a county unit first, in which representative farmers can together and effect an organization but sooner or later the county clubs should be set up, after all they are the backbone of the Farm Bureau movement. Of course this board will do routine work as is necessary setting up the organization, adopting a constitution, by-laws, etc. A sample preamble may read as follows:

It is the object and purpose of this organization to promote and well general interests and welfare of the members, each and all of whom are engaged in or connected with agricultural property interests; and the members engage in the study and investigation of agricultural problems, including efficient and economical growing, harvesting, and distribution of all agricultural products; and it is their purpose to engage in the study and investigation of rural life, the improvement of homes and rural life generally, to study and investigate all economic and other community problems, having in view general improvement of their living conditions and the welfare of all persons engaged in agricultural enterprises; and the association shall have and exercise all powers necessary and desirable to the carrying out of its objects and purposes.

Another thing the county Farm Bureau can and should do is to back up extension work in every way possible. The county agent can get great benefit from the Farm Bureau because it is a most effective way to get his projects put over successfully while the farmer sees it as a means of getting the needed supplies at a saving. The county agent may create a demand for a service but if he has no means of supplying this service his work falls flat. Through the Farm Bureau he can always be sure of a means of making the service available.

Another important thing the county Farm Bureau can do is to conduct a proper publicity campaign as to its activities, aims and accomplishments. A private business or corporation can keep its activities private or tell only such as it wants to tell but the Farm Bureau must keep its members informed fully as to its activities. This is both a strength and a weakness. It is a source of strength because it keeps its members informed and loyal, on the other hand it gives its enemies undue advantage and they can plan secret means of fighting the organization. However, the more its members know the less danger there is from unfair competition.

When we have built our organization thus far, then we really will be taking steps toward having a voice in marketing our products, lowering our cost of production, gaining equal opportunities in government and legislation, a higher standard of living on the farm and better serving our home, our community and our profession.

MAYFLOWER HAS FADED

By United Press.
WASHINGTON—The yacht "Mayflower," part-time home of five presidents, slipped away from her dock at the Washington navy yard early Tuesday on her way to Philadelphia where she will be laid up. An outcast, she sailed slowly through the morning mists which enveloped the Potomac, leaving behind Pres. Hoover, who recently ordered her decommissioned.

Prized Rookie

Connie Mack has decided that his 1928 players are good enough to make the 1929 pennant race and is standing pat on them with one exception. He has added Bill Breckenridge, former Dartmouth hurler, to his pitching staff and the youngster looks like he will prove a valuable addition. He is shown here.

Must Deliver Goods if Cubs Are to Win

Efficient pitching and the added batting punch supplied by Rogers Hornsby—these are the factors Manager Joe McCarthy thinks his Chicago Cubs will need most to win the pennant this summer. He feels sure Hornsby will drive in enough runs to win a lot of those games that were lost last summer by one run and he expects Hal Carlson, Art Nehf and Pat Malone to supply the pitching strength needed. If all four deliver, as McCarthy believes they will, it will take a lot of power on the part of some other club to keep them from winning the pennant.

DISTRICT LEAGUE MEET NEXT WEEK

STEPHENVILLE, Texas, April 3.—The scholastic league meet for district No. 9 will be held at Tarleton college on April 12 and 13. There will be a general assembly in the college auditorium promptly at 10 a. m., April 12. All contestants are urged to be present at this assembly as announcements concerning the meet will be made at that time.

Immediately following the close of the general assembly, all contestants for declamations will report to the Methodist church, two blocks west of the square on Washington street. The program for the declamation contests is under direct charge of R. L. Speer, principal of Eastland High school. The rural girls, junior and senior declamation will come first, followed in order by rural boys, junior and senior; high school girls, junior and senior; high school boys, junior and senior.

The contests in debating will be held at the First Baptist church, one block northwest of the square. The program for the debating contest is under direct charge of O. B. King, superintendent of schools, Dublin, Texas. The debate for both boys and girls will begin promptly at 10:30 a. m., and will continue until all preliminary debates are over. The final debates will be held in the college auditorium, 7:30 Friday night. During the intermission between boys and girls finals in debate, the contest in extemporaneous speaking will be held under the direct supervision of Miss Lillie V. Lillard, director of public speaking in Tarleton college.

Preliminaries in tennis, both singles and doubles, will be held Friday afternoon at 1 p. m. on the tennis courts just west of the college gymnasium. The tennis contests will be under the direct supervision of W. J. Wisdom, director of athletics of Tarleton college.

All track and field events will begin Saturday morning on the Tarleton college athletic field under the direct charge of Mr. Wisdom.

The medals for all first and second place winners have been provided by the Stephenville Lions club.

E. J. Howell, registrar of Tarleton college, is the director general of district No. 9, and anyone desiring further information concerning the district meet should communicate with the director of the event concerned or with the director general.

STOCKS

By United Press.
NEW YORK.—Stock prices fluctuated frequently Wednesday in a series of swings that showed the market was still highly sensitive to credit conditions. Early gains were reduced toward noon, but prices perked up later in the afternoon, although the tendency was toward lower levels than the early highs. The close was irregular.

Oil stocks, which had led the list into higher ground Tuesday were sold heavily for a time, following a decision by the attorney general that no special concession could be made to the American Petroleum Institute plan to curtail oil production.

Call money renewed at ten per cent, and when it appeared that the rate would rise, selling broke out in all parts of the market. Later funds came into the market and money turned easier in tone. Near the close, the rate dropped to eight per cent and this helped bring back stock prices.

Some buying came back into the oils, but it was not sufficient to eradicate early declines ranging from one to more than three points. Standard issues were hardest hit by the selling, although heavy losses also were sustained by the independents.

General Motors Truck on Tour

On a truck tour of the state, J. A. McDaniel of Dallas, Southwestern Branch Manager of General Motors Truck Company, is visiting Bates G. M. C. Sales Co. Mr. McDaniel, who is bringing to truck dealers and users the message of the new "straight rating" for trucks, and Mr. Geo. D. Lickford, wholesale salesman, held a very interesting meeting Tuesday night at Bates G. M. C. Sales Co., with a large attendance of truck operators present.

Mr. McDaniel expressed himself as highly pleased with business conditions in this section and with the showing of Bates G. M. C. Sales Co. The official tour is in a General Motors truck, which is attracting attention on the streets here by its brightly painted signs.

"My trip over the territory this time makes me feel very optimistic about 1929 business," Mr. McDaniel said. "Last year was a good one for the farmer, who has more money to spend this year than in some time. Another good year seems inevitable in 1929, and most of the business men to whom I have talked have told me the same thing."

Mr. McDaniel was enthusiastic about the new General Motors method of "straight rating" trucks, giving the exact gross weight for chassis, body and load instead of an indefinite rating of one ton, two ton or the like.

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By H. W. WRYE. "THE MINISTRY OF ISAIAH" Isa. 6:1-8; 20:1-2; 38:1-5 GOLDEN TEXT—"Then said I, here am I; send me."—Isa. 6:8.

Introduction For the next six months the lessons will reveal the teachings and leadership of Judah, from Isaiah to the exile; thence to the restoration. The lesson for the Sunday, September, will review the significance of Israel. Records of major and minor prophets and kings are interwoven offering the student comprehensive studies in the history of God's dealing with His people.

Concerning Isaiah Isaiah is justly accounted the chief of the writing prophets. He has the more comprehensive testimony and is distinctly the prophet of redemption. His lofty and supernatural calmness, the elegance and sublimity of his style, the majestic march of his imagery, and the burning eloquence of his words can only be accounted for by that which fired his heart when the altar coal touched his lips.

The Golden Text "Then I said, here am I; send me." The prophet offers himself for God's service; but he does not do this before he has been convinced of his own sinfulness and has confessed it and received assurance of pardon.

Isaiah's Vision This glorious and awful vision of the divine Majesty, and the exalted worship of the Seraphim, overwhelmed the prophet with a sense of his own sinfulness; and his humiliation was attended with great dismay.

The Lord would not send His message to the people by one of the Seraphim, but by a prophet like themselves; and He openly inquired whom He should send; and who was willing to undertake the service.

The Lord would not send His message to the people by one of the Seraphim, but by a prophet like themselves; and He openly inquired whom He should send; and who was willing to undertake the service.

The serging waves of humanity will give every man just as much room as he demands. When we plunge into the ocean of human achievement, we find that God has an outstanding emergency call for our service and an incomprehensible reward for our efforts.
