One of the nine cars derailed and overturned. The injured were brought to Des Moines on a relief train. The cars on the train were of various construction, and this fact, it is said, accounted for lack of serious injuries. Two of the cars which turned over were Pullman.

If John Mammone, above, veteran dry crusader, has his way about it, the citizens of Iowa won't be able to drink even near beer to quench their summer thirst. Hammond had officers at Des Moines seize ten carloads of the beverage which, as a malt liquor, he claims is contraband under Iowa law. A court will decide.

Rules of Safety Violated in Death Of Wilmer Stultz

BY UNITED PRESS
NEW YORK, July 2.—Violation of the fundamental rules of safety in the air was blamed by Roosevelt field officials today for the death of Wilmer Stultz, noted flier, and two passengers. Discovery of two shoes, both lefts, jammed under the rudder bar in the cockpit in which Edward Harwood and Pasquale Castelluccio were riding, helped substantiate the theory that the passengers "froze" to the dual controls yesterday, making it impossible for Stultz to bring the plane out of the "falling leaf."

Senators Think Further Cut In Taxes Unlikely

Federal Treasury Obligated
As Result of Farm Relief, Flood Control and Naval Building Programs.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Although the $185,000,000 treasury surplus at the end of the fiscal year far exceeded expectations, members of the senate finance committee were pessimistic today over prospects of another tax reduction. Chairman Smoot said tax reduction within the near future is out of the question. Democratic members of the committee, who usually clamor for a reduction in taxes whenever the treasury shows a surplus, were wary of suggesting such a move at this time.

They pointed to the huge obligations upon the federal treasury as a result of the farm relief, flood control and naval building programs. Several also expressed doubt that the abnormally large receipts from income taxes would continue during the new year.

He boarded a train here last night for El Paso and was to continue his flight to the coast from that city today.

Will Also Work For More Walks And Shade Trees

Horace Condey Is Installed
As Seventh President of Local Club.

Airmail originating in Eastland will have to be transported by motor car to either Cisco or Ranger to be dispatched to its destination, if Eastland doesn't get to work and build an airport suitable for use by mail and passenger planes. Horace Condey, newly elected president of the local Lions club, told the club members today in the course of his address following his installation as seventh president of the club. While there is no air mail route established through this section at this time, virtually every other section of the state is being served by air mail and it is certain that this section will be included within a short time.

In his address before the club, Donald Kinnaird, the retiring president, mentioned the fact that the Lions, during his administration, had worked unceasingly to secure an airport and urged the incoming administration to include this item in the list of major projects for the coming year.

Sec. Bert McGlammery, in his report for the close of the fiscal year for the club, showed that the club was in good condition financially. The membership was shown to be 22. Lion Jim Grisham reviewed the accomplishments of the administration just closing and pointed out that two of the major projects accomplished—the tree planting campaign and the lighting of the new county courthouse—alone made the administration a successful one to say nothing of other things accomplished.

Lions Condey and McDonald, who were delegates from the Eastland club to Lions International at Louisville, Ky., made brief reports on the convention.

Pres. Condey told the club that he would not, at this time, undertake to outline a program of work for the club for the year, but did mention the fact that he contemplated asking the club to put on another tree-planting campaign this fall, inaugurate a sidewalk and building campaign and sponsor the building of an airport.

A resolution upon the death of One M. J. Sullivan at Comanche was passed by the club and the club secretary instructed to forward a copy of it to the deceased's widow.

Lions Seth, Harper and Jones were named by Pres. Condey as an entertainment committee for next Tuesday's meeting.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

NAN CARROLL, secretary, finds herself deeply in love with her employer, JOHN CURTIS MORGAN, lawyer, and decides to resign. Her resignation however is delayed when she learns Morgan is to defend a supposed friend, BERT CRAWFORD.

Morgan wins Crawford's acquittal. Crawford leaves town at once followed closely by IRIS, Morgan's beautiful wife. She writes to Morgan she will never return.

Nan saves Morgan from despair by forcing him into his work. For six months she acts as long-distant housekeeper for him, winning the love of little CURTIS, his son, and bringing comfort to a man who ironically thinks only of another. Morgan tells her he is divorcing Iris and asks her to marry him. They are prevented from going on their honeymoon by the unexpected arrival of a pleading client. Nan urges Morgan to stay with the case. Their farcical marriage continues for three months. Hysterically, Nan prepares to leave when Morgan finds her and confesses he adores her but has believed she married him out of pity. The next morning at breakfast time, Iris returns, apparently deserted by Crawford. Morgan tells her she is no longer his wife. She feigns fainting and hysteria to bring Morgan to his knees. Nan, seeing her happiness in danger, decides to fight. She telephones the doctor to take Iris to a hospital.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVII

At 3 o'clock that day Nan Carroll Morgan, junior partner in the law firm of Morgan & Morgan, was sitting at her desk in the richly furnished prison which was labeled "Mrs. Morgan—Private." Her brown eyes brooded unseeingly upon a neat stack of letters which she had somehow managed to dictate that morning and which Kathleen O'Hara had delivered to her hours before. They were still unsigned, unread, though Nan's limp hand held the neck desk fountain pen in readiness to affix her signature. She did not realize she had been holding it thus for more than an hour.

Slow, terrible thoughts milled about in her feverish brain. Disjointed pictures fitted across her mind, like a badly assembled film run off on a poor projector. Scraps of one of those new "talkie" pictures, Nan thought, with bitter amusement. Iris Morgan, looking incredibly lovely and frail, lying on the big couch and stretching out a feebly trembling hand to Dr. Black; Iris' lovely voice, like the sobbing of a violin.

"DEAR DR. BLACK! I never thought we should meet again—like this."

Dr. Black's gruff voice: "What seems to be the trouble, Mrs. Morgan? Any severe pain?" Iris' blue-green eyes widening at him reproachfully. "Only in my heart, Doctor. . . . No, no, don't get out your stethoscope! . . . Tell him, Jack. I haven't the strength or the heart . . ."

John Curtis Morgan squaring his shoulders to face the doctor. His voice harsh and uneven: "Mrs. Morgan tells me she has not been well for some time. She came home, not knowing that I had secured a divorce and married again. The shock caused her to faint. My wife—Nan called you."

The film jerked; showed up Nan's brooding eyes a close-up of the doctor's professionally non-committal face, one hand stroking his newly shaved chin, his small, cold, gray eyes narrowed speculatively upon the recumbent woman. "Hmm! Nothing serious. I take it. A few days rest in bed will put you on your feet again. . . . St. Luke's Hospital all right, Morgan?"

"Oh! a desolate wail from Iris. 'I can't go to a hospital, Dr. Black. I have no money—no money at all. Ill, broken, cast-off, penniless. . . .'"

Another jerk of the film; a close-up of John Curtis Morgan's face this time. But Nan could not look upon it; closed the eyes of her mind against it desperately. But she could not shut out the memory of his words: "Any hospital you say, Doctor. Of course I'll pay. The best room available, naturally—a special nurse—"

"Oh, that won't be necessary—a special nurse, I mean," Nan heard again the doctor's callous answer. "A few days' rest, plenty of sleep and good food and I should say, a philosophic acceptance of facts. . . . Now, now, no hysteria, Mrs. Morgan, please, or I shall have to give you a hypodermic. I'll run her over to the hospital myself, Morgan. I see by the papers that you'll be busy in court today on the Blackhall case. . . . Highly interesting trial, that. Do you think you'll get the boy off, Morgan—you and your brilliant young junior partner, I mean?"

The jerky "talkie" film was broken by a knock on the door. Nan raised her head, blinked her eyes to clear her mental vision. "Come in!" Kathleen O'Hara's brightly smiling, pretty face peeped in. Then she pushed the door open with her foot and entered Nan's private office, a tall glass of hot chocolate in one hand, a paper-napkin-covered plate in the other. "I just couldn't bear to think

"BEARS? I DON'T DOUBT THAT TAG HEARD ONE—THERE ARE LOTS OF THEM IN THIS COUNTRY!"

"SO LONG, BOYS! AS LONG AS YOU'RE IN DAN'S CARE YOU'RE O.K.—DON'T BRING TOO MANY BEARS BACK WITH YOU NOW!"

"LOOK AT LONE WOLF GO—HE'LL CHASE 'EM OUT IF THERE'S ANY AROUND!"

"HE SMELLS SOMETHING, I BET!"

"CALL OFF YOUR DOG, TAG—WE DON'T AIM TO DO HARM TO NONE OF THOSE!"

of you working away in here without any lunch," Miss O'Hara explained coaxingly. "Please, for my sake, eat every bit of it, Mrs. Morgan. I had them put lots of thick whipped cream in the chocolate, and—look! A chicken sandwich—

"Oh, no I'm not!" the little secretary laughed and blushed, tremendously pleased. "I'm just taking a leaf out of YOUR book! Mr. Evans and Mr. Blake have told me how you used to bring lunches in for Mr. Morgan and simply bully him into eating when he was so busy he forgot all about food. My greatest ambition is to be as good a private secretary as you were, Mrs. Morgan. . . . Now, will you promise to eat every bit of it?"

The tender white meat of the chicken sandwich might have been leather for all Nan knew, but she munched obediently. Kathleen O'Hara's thoughtfulness had done Nan one good service at least. It had released the tears which had pressed, unshed, against her hot eyeballs all day. It did not occur to her that she looked like a pathetic but absurd child as she sat there at her desk, doggedly munching a sandwich while tears trickled steadily down her cheeks. For she was not thinking of herself at all, except as herself was bound up inextricably with John Curtis Morgan. She was sure he had not eaten at all that day and the thought made her tears flow faster.

"If John knew that Iris and Crawford had been lovers, that they've been living together, that Crawford was really guilty of the charge of embezzlement—Nan could keep that thought down no longer. It had been lurking, like a coiled snake ready to spring, and now it had struck. She shuddered, recoiled. Involuntarily she went to her filing cabinet, took from its secure hiding place the betraying letter from Crawford to Iris which she had kept all these months; held it gingerly, as if it were unclean, while her tormented eyes scanned its familiar contents. Yes, it was incontrovertible proof of Crawford's villainy and of his and Iris' relationship.

"I ought to show it to John!" Nan told herself fiercely. "That would kill his pity and his passion for her, if anything could! But—I can't fight that way. I can't."

"Iris has no scruples. She'll fight YOU with every weapon she can lay her hand on," temptation reminded her. "But I'm not like Iris," Nan's heart retorted, with forlorn pride. And she was rewarded by another flash of memory. Last night, when she had used the same words to her husband, he had answered fervently: "No—thank God!"

It was 4 o'clock when Nan finished signing the long-neglected letters and cleared her desk to go home. If Curtis had ever needed her, he would need her this afternoon. The memory of his wistful, bewildered eyes, as they cast a lingering backward glance toward the dining room door beyond which his mother, strangely returned after a strange absence, was engaged in a strange scene with his father, stabbed the girl's tender heart. But what could she tell him? Nan squared her shoulders, lifted her head gallantly. That was part of her job.

"If Mr. Morgan comes in or telephones, tell him I've gone home, please," she said to Kathleen O'Hara on her way out. She found the sedan, where she had parked it that morning, got in, started it mechanically, with the ease of three months' practice. She had driven down alone that morning, for her husband had insisted on accompanying his former wife and the doctor as far as the business district, on their way to the hospital. There had been no chance for him to kiss her goodbye, with Iris watching every movement he made. Would he ever kiss her again?

When Nan stopped the car before the house which had been her home for three months, Cop, Curtis' police dog, raced across the lawn to greet her, followed more slowly, but as eagerly by "Little Pat" O'Brien.

"Hello, Mrs. Morgan!" the cook's 11-year-old son sang out. "Curt has gone with his papa to see his mother at the hospital. Mr. Morgan comes for him in a taxi 'bout 10 minutes ago, and—"

"Thank you, Little Pat," Nan interrupted crisply. The boy, who adored her, looked nonplussed and crestfallen, then, to hide his confusion, began to chase the police dog with loud whoops.

Nan locked the car carefully, then walked steadily, unhurriedly up the path to the house. "Please, ma'am," Estelle greeted her nervously in the hall, "Maude says would you mind telling her what you want for dinner, tonight—"

"Tell Maude to prepare anything she pleases," Nan wanted to answer. Instead, she went directly to the kitchen. An hour later she raised her tearwet, convulsed face from the cushions of her chaise longue and listened. Yes, they were back. She heard Curtis' shrill, excited voice, the deeper rumble of her husband's. Nan sprang to her feet, flew from one door to the other, locking them. He shouldn't bring his load of grief into THIS room that had only last night witnessed perfect joy!

like I wanted. I was weak and rundown and felt so tired and worn out all the time that I was hardly fit for a thing. "I got me a bottle of Orgatone Iron and began to pick up right off. My appetite has improved so much that I can eat and enjoy everything set before me and I never have any trouble with gas or sour stomach now, my nerves are settling in fine shape and I sleep like a child. I have gained some in weight and stronger and have more energy than before and I can do any work in my gardens with more satisfaction than in a long time, and I am doing my part to help suffering people by telling what Orgatone did for me."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific bile treatment and is sold in Eastland exclusively by Toombs & Richardson, phone 263, who are direct laboratory agents. —Adv.

Doctor at 83 Found People Preferred His Prescription

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin. Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. If grown people want to use them no one can deny them the privilege, but they should never be given to children.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs? All drug stores have the generous bottles. Many is the family today that makes it a rule always to have a bottle of this perfect preparation in the house. TEXAS LEAGUE

The League leading Dallas Steers went on another batting spree and smothered the Waco Cubs under a 17 to 4 score. Sergeant George Connally held the Cubs well in hand, allowing them only nine hits. Flaskaemper and Stock starred with the willow for the Steers, the former setting four and the latter three singles.

Shreveport pounced Andy Messenger hard and won a slugfests contest from San Antonio 10 to 13. The Indians gave Andy poor support, five errors being chalked against them.

The Fort Worth Cats made a ten run sweep of the series with Houston, winning the third game 11 to 8. Schuman, Buff, pitcher, was pounded hard in the third and seventh rounds when the Atzmen scored five runs in each frame.

Home runs by Fitzgerald, Turgeon and Hermann failed to stem the lusty attack of the Beaumont exporters and Wichita Falls lost 9 to 6. Kelly, Beaumont first baseman, also got a circuit clout.

Watching the Scoreboard.
Yesterday's hero: Ben Paschal, Yankee bench-warmer, whose home run in the seventh inning at New York scored the two runs that enabled the Yanks to beat Boston, 3 to 2.

Herb Pennock, although pitching great game, was benched in the fifth to allow Paschal to try his luck as a pinchhitter. The game was a 1-6-cup in the center field stands, resulted.

The Chicago Cubs and St. Louis Cards matched base hits for six innings without effect. The game was called at the end of the sixth to allow the teams to catch trains and with the score knotted at 11 runs. Chicago made 15 hits, two of them home runs by Rizzo Stephenson. St. Louis made 14 hits.

Only one other game was scheduled yesterday and that, Washington at Philadelphia, was rained out.

Plan Elevated Road In France

By GEORGE KENT
United Press Staff Correspondent.
PARIS, July 2.—Motor traffic throughout France has become so heavy that engineers began today to study a project for the construction of a 2,000 mile elevated highway for a high speed travel between the principal cities.

This road, raised to a mean level of 25 yards above the ground, is calculated to stretch across the country from Paris to Lyons and on to Marseilles and Nice. From Marseilles, it will branch off to Toulouse and Bordeaux. To the north, the line will touch Boulogne and Brest; to the west it will extend to Strousbourg.

The cost of the undertaking is estimated at about $250,000,000. It was pointed out by supporters of the scheme that the materials for the road could be obtained from Germany in the form of reparations.

Objections to the plan are being raised on aesthetic grounds. It was made clear by the objectors that the road would have to cross private estates, rivers, canals and farms, and that the very things which now make France a beautiful country would be turned into eyesores.

The backers of the scheme pointed out that a giant speedway would be a great economy to France from many points of view. Congestion on the roads of France today is enormous. The number of cars now using the ordinary highways are put at 2,000,000. This number usually is swollen during the tourist season. The possibility of using the roadway to supplement the regular rail communications, as is now being done in the United States, is also stressed.

In this connection it is noted that a measure is now before the chamber of deputies which would have the government study ways and means for putting into effect a plan for cooperation between motor-trucks, automobiles and the railways.

Many Entrants In Cisco Revue

CISCO, Texas, July 2.—All Cisco stores and offices, with the exception of drug stores and cafes will be closed all day July 4, it was announced by E. P. Price, secretary of the Retail Merchants association. By this act several employees will be released for the day to take part in the festivities at Lake Cisco.

SARGON IS NOW SMASHING ALL SALES RECORDS

If anyone told you that one single medicine had relieved tens of thousands of suffering men and women in all walks of life of their health troubles and that it had put thousands of other men and women unable to find relief back to work, it would sound impossible, wouldn't it?

But that is just exactly what is happening right here in this state. Not only has it brought them new-found health and strength, but it has given them new energy, new vitality and a new lease on life itself. In many cases, the results have been so remarkable that many people have bought it and sent it to friends in other states, while other thousands have written grateful letters of praise.

The wonderful success that Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills have achieved in only one year's time simply staggers the imagination.

In the state of California alone where it was introduced on April 16 of this year, it has required the astonishing total of nine solid carloads—or more than 200,000 bottles—to supply the demand. Kansas City retailers and wholesalers have sold and distributed over 300,000 bottles in the states of Kansas and Missouri. Minneapolis and St. Paul dealers have required nine entire carloads in five months. The demand in practically every state and section where Sargon has been introduced has been correspondingly large. When national distribution has been completed it will require millions upon millions of bottles to supply the ever-increasing demand for this celebrated medicine.

Back of Sargon's triumph in the drug stores is Sargon's triumph in the homes. Everywhere it has been introduced it has become a household word and it is unquestionable the most widely talked-of medicine in the world today.

When Sargon was first given to the world just one year ago, it was hailed as a triumph in the field of modern medicine. Many well known authorities who watched its development freely predicted that it would become the one great outstanding, health-giving remedy of the age. But the men of science who labored for years to perfect it little dreamed it would become such a great boon to humanity in so short a time.

Sargon may be obtained in Eastland from Texas Drug Store; in Rising Star from Star Drug Co.; in DeWanna from City Drug Store; in Carbon from Dixie Drug Store; in Gorman from Gorman Drug Store, and in Olden from Central Pharmacy.

Twenty-four cities in West Texas have announced that they will each have an entrant in the Cisco revue. One of these cities, Dallas, however, is in East Texas. These 24 girls with the number to be entered by local merchants and organizations, will bring the number in the revue to around 50, a greater array of pulchritude than has attended any previous revue.

Other features of the celebration here are working out with equal success. Arrangements for the boat regatta have been completed. There will be four races. Two of these will be "free-for-all" each two miles in length, with prizes of $5 and $10, and the other two will be five-mile events, one an outboard race in which a silver loving cup will be the prize. A five dollar prize will be given in the second five-mile event.

Road Is Oiled
The road to the lake has been oiled so that all dust of this thoroughfare will be eliminated during the celebration. This dust has proven an annoyance in past celebrations which has detracted more than anything else from their success, and the committee, headed by J. A. Bearman, in charge of the celebration, is determined that this annoyance shall not again occur.

A large number of prominent Texas newspapermen will be here for the day while cameramen from the two leading news reels will be on hand to help stage the celebration and revue and to take pictures of it.

The revue proper will take place at 9 o'clock Thursday evening, July 4, from a stage built over the waters of the big swimming pool. Fireworks and dancing will follow.

In the morning a polo game between Woodson and Coleman will be held at the Chesley park. In the afternoon will be the regatta at Lake Cisco and a water carnival at the swimming pool.

Polo Game.
The location for the polo game, which will be a morning feature of the July Fourth celebration here, has been changed from the Chesley park to the aviation field for the better accommodation of both the teams and the spectators.

This contest, participated in by teams of wide reputation, will be distinguished by fast, thrilling action. Woodson and Coleman will be the participants, and each of these holds the championship of those sections, so the contest here will assume the nature of a West Texas championship game.

The game will be called promptly at 10:30 o'clock. Admission will be 50 cents.

High Dive Star.
A dive from the top of the big diving tower in the deep pool at Lake Cisco with his hands tied behind his back and his eyes blindfolded, will be the thriller to be staged by Jukes, the water clown, during the water carnival. For this dive the tower will be raised 10 feet higher than its present height of 45 feet, so that Jukes will dive 55 feet blindfolded and bound.

Jake Atz Replaced By Frank Snyder

FORT WORTH, July 2.—Frank Snyder, resigned manager of the Houston Buffs, today replaced Jake Atz as manager of the Fort Worth baseball club, Ted Robinson, president of the local team announced Tuesday morning.

TAKES REINS TODAY
The new Cat manager will take over the reins in today's game with the Dallas Steers in Dallas, Robinson said.

"The change was made," Robinson said, "who with Sam Lard, who bought the Fort Worth club a month ago, because I feel that Jake is in the position of a man who has been one place too long and needs a change of scenery if he is to continue in baseball."

"Another thing, my program for baseball in Fort Worth calls for the development of young players, and Atz has had his success with older players, rather than youngsters."

"On the other hand, I consider Snyder the best man available for developing young players."

Robinson revealed that he plans to purchase a club in a league of lower classification to be used as a farm and that Snyder will prove very valuable in directing the development of youngsters on the farm.

"Snyder will mean 10 per cent more power for the club right away," Robinson added, "from the standpoint of being a driver instead of a petter. The punch he will give the team is something badly needed now. On top of all this, he will mean an increase in hitting power as a player and undoubtedly is the smartest catcher we could possibly have obtained.

RETIRED MANAGER PLEASED.
Atz announced that he hasn't planned anything for the immediate future.

"I don't know what I'll do just now. You know a fellow likes to kind of set back and relax after many years on the diamond and figure out whether he should continue in the game or not. There's one thing I want to make plain—I leave the club with the best of feelings between myself and the owners. Mr. Robinson has made plain to me the reason for his desire to change managers and they are absolutely logical."

Atz came to Fort Worth as a second baseman in 1914. He was named manager the next year, but was released in 1916 after a wrangle with the then owners of the team, because of policies of running the team on the field.

The club changed hands that winter and the new owners, headed by Will K. Stripling, who in May this year sold out to Robinson and Lard, again signed Atz for the Fort Worth team. He was greeted by a great public welcome upon his return, the fans turning out by the thousands to indicate their faith in the grizzled warrior of the diamond.

WON SIX PENNANTS
Beginning in 1920, Atz monopolized Texas League pennants for six seasons, his Cats finishing first every year through 1925. During that period he also won five Dixie Series championships, beating Little Rock in 1920, Memphis in 1922, New Orleans in 1923, Memphis in 1924 and Atlanta in 1925, losing only to Mobile in 1922.
