ALLRED TAKES HURRIED TRIP TO CAPITAL

By United Press
AUSTIN, May 18.—Lt. Gov. Walter Woodul began a surprise tour as acting governor today because Gov. Allred made a sudden flight to Washington on old age pension matters Saturday night. Woodul did not know anything of the governor's plans to go to Washington. He was notified Saturday the governor was leaving. The governor's trip caused much speculation. Discussed reasons for it included: 1.—That he had learned of plans to sabotage immediate federal checking of Texas pension funds and hurried to Washington to lead off any such move. 2.—That he wanted to make sure there will be no delay in promised federal aid when state pensions start July 1. 3.—That he proposes to meet the challenge of political opponents and make old age pensions the prime issue in next month's opening of his campaign for reelection and has gone to Washington to be sure of all facts.

Allred, assistant safety supervisor, One Star Gas Co., Dallas, Texas. In the opinion of those in position to know this team has a splendid chance to come back as international champions in first aid work and thereby bring much recognition to Ranger and the Lone Star Gas Company. The personnel of the team is as follows: R. O. King, captain; D. W. Shepherd, No. 1; H. L. King, No. 2; W. D. Schuchert, No. 3; C. Laquey, No. 4; J. T. Bell, patient; H. B. Dempsey, alternate.

Catherine Pavlik

Alfred E. Smith, Jr.

Investigation of extortion of $11,000 from him under threat of exposure of his alleged relations with pretty, blonde Catherine Pavlik, 25, was launched in New York by Alfred E. Smith, Jr., son of the former presidential candidate, when he tired of complying with the alleged blackmailers' demands. There is no evidence that Miss Pavlik was a party to extortion demands, but she is said to have requested $1000 for an illegal operation.

USE OF RELIEF FUNDS FOR RA RULED INVALID

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Citing the supreme court's NRA and AAA decisions as precedents, the District of Columbia Court of Appeals today held the use of relief funds for the Resettlement Administration unconstitutional. While the court granted the right of congress to appropriate funds for unemployment, it restricted the use to which such funds might be put. The court held Roosevelt's allocation of relief funds to Rexford Turwell's resettlement program was an invalid use of power. The court decision was rendered in an injunction action case brought by Franklin Township, Somerset County, N. J., against a proposed resettlement project in that locality.

Rites Held for Romney Man Who Saw Assassination of Abraham Lincoln

CISCO, May 18.—John Freeman, 91, one of the remaining few who saw the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, died suddenly while sitting in a chair at his Romney home early Saturday morning. Mr. Freeman, who had lived at the same place for 37 years, was a long time resident of Eastland county, coming to Texas from Washington shortly after the Civil war. He made his home with three sons. Funeral services were held at the Romney Methodist church with Rev. T. J. Sparkman, pastor of the East Cisco Baptist church, officiating. Interment was in the Romney cemetery, beside the body of Mrs. Freeman, who died 34 years ago. Mr. Freeman served in the Union army and later was an actor. At the time of the assassination of President Lincoln on April 14, 1865, he was an actor, playing soldier parts, and also a butcher and an employe of a painting shop. He was sitting in the second gallery in Ford's Theater and heard and saw what took place in the president's box. Like the rest of the audience he thought at first that it was a part of the play. He recently told of seeing John Wilkes Booth jump from the box

GUFFEY COAL ACT KILLED BY A RULING

By United Press
WASHINGTON, May 18.—The supreme court today struck down the Guffey coal control act, including the price-fixing methods, the 16 per cent Guffey tax and the labor provisions of the law. The full scope of the opinion, decided by a vote of 6 to 3, with Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes concurring in a separate opinion, was sweeping. Its effect on present and contemplated new deal legislation was not fully clear. The decision, by Justice George Sutherland, held there was no question the Guffey tax was a penalty tax under previous rulings of the court. It held that the labor provisions were "really disposed of adversely by our decision in the Schechter case." "The only perceptible difference between that case and this is that in the former case the federal power was asserted, with respect to commodities which had come to rest after their interstate transportation, while here the case deals with commodities at rest before interstate commerce has begun. The difference is without significance."

Packers Lose Suit Against Rates of Stockyards Act

By United Press
WASHINGTON, May 18.—Chicago livestock market agencies today lost in the supreme court their fight against rates and charges imposed by the secretary of agriculture under the packers and stockyards act. The order has been fought by the commission men, who asserted conditions resulting from the NRA and AAA destroyed the exactness of the testimony as to costs. When the order became effective they sued to prevent its enforcement. The federal district court upheld the rates. This was on the cases involved today.

Some Farmers Can Sign Soil Papers And Not Cut Crops

How some Eastland county farmers can qualify for a soil building program without changing their farming operations in the least was explained to the county agent by A. L. Smith of A. & M. College Monday. "If a farmer has been planting as much as one-fifth of his cultivated land to conserving crops such as cow peas or soy beans he need not change his farming operations to receive a soil building payment," Smith stated. "He would only have to sign a work sheet before May 24 and plant his crops as before. "To give a definite example, a farmer has a base on his farm of 20 acres of peas, 30 acres peanuts, 30 acres general feed crops, and 20 acres cow peas, making a total of 100 acres in cultivation. His plantings of peas, a soil conserving crop, have been one-fifth of the total acres in crops. If this man plants his crops exactly as has been his custom, his payments will be $1 per acre or $20 if he signs a work sheet by 5 p. m., Saturday, May 23. If this same man plants the 20 acres of peas, but reduces his cotton acreage 35 per cent, his peanut acreage 20 per cent, and his feed acreage 15 per cent, he will also be qualified for a soil conserving payment several times as large as the $20 soil building payment."

New Regime of Bolivia Orders a Raise in Wages

By United Press
LA PAZ, Bolivia, May 18.—Bolivia's new military government, inaugurated the Western Hemisphere's first fascist government, today ordered wage increases for all workers. The first act of the new regime was followed by a promise that currency would be devalued. Victories include: The gold clause and TVA. The defeats include: Hot oil, railroad pensions, Frazier-Lemke Act, NRA, removal of Trade Commissioner Humphrey, the AAA, the processing tax and the Jones Securities Act.

Mexico Seeks Way To Prevent Strikes

By United Press
MEXICO CITY, May 18.—President Lazaro Cardenas assumed charge of effort to prevent a strike of 40,000 men employed by the Mexican National Railways. The strike has been called for 6 p. m., E. S. T. Railwaysmen were ordered to start all trains normally, if they are scheduled to leave terminals before 5 p. m., and to take the trains on to their destinations, but to start no run after the zero hour. It was announced the government had taken full measures to prevent sabotage, preserve order and maintain schedules.

ARMED MIGHT IS CENTER OF MUCH INTEREST

By United Press
The center of international interest today shifted to a worldwide display of armed might with these outstanding developments: London—Great Britain, faced with increasing German sea power, Italy's annexation of Ethiopia and Japan's sword rattling in North China, notified the United States and Japan that she must increase her destroyer strength to combat accelerated submarine building by other powers. Shanghai—The most powerful military machine Japan ever has assembled for North China service, concentrated at the great wall passes and landed some transports while Chinese feared a campaign to annex all of North China from the Yellow River to Manchukuo. Vienna—Fearing civil war as the result of Heimwehr opposition to the ousting of Prince Von Starhemberg, Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg rallied monarchist support to his new dictatorial regime. Berlin—Chancellor Adolf Hitler, sparring with Britain on the question of European security indicated consideration of disarmament plans at this time would be hopeless in view of the world race for more armaments.

Dallas Is Observing A Foreign Trade Week With Program

DALLAS, May 18.—Foreign Trade Week is being observed in Dallas May 17-23 with programs sponsored by the Dallas Chamber of Commerce. Nine Dallas civic clubs have announced plans for special programs. Those in charge will seek to explain the value of foreign trade to the American business man. Said Roger Miller, Dallas, director of the southwestern division of the United States Chamber of Commerce of the proposal: "Many people have the erroneous impression that only port cities are interested in foreign trade. The facts are that port cities serve simply as gateways through which foreign trade flows to and from interior cities. "Probably no state in the union has a greater interest in foreign trade than does Texas. This is true today especially because of our large production of cotton. It will be increasingly true in the future because of production of other commodities for foreign as well as domestic consumption."

301 Resettlement Clients of County To Spend $134,733 for Farm Tools

Dealers are selling a million and a half dollars worth of farm machinery to Texas farmers who have received loans this season from the Resettlement Administration, according to information received by George L. Lane, county supervisor. George L. Lane estimated that $134,733.25 of this is being spent by the 301 who have received loans in this county. "A still larger amount is being spent for horses and mules," Lane said. "In Texas as a whole, it is estimated that 20,000 mules are being bought, and 5,000 horses and mares, at an average of $65 a head, which means a total of $2,125,000 being paid out to producers and traders in work animals." In this county, he said 137 mules and 108 horses and mares have been bought, or will be bought. The supervisor said that these purchases would seldom have been made unless the money had been loaned by resettlement. Every farmer receiving a loan had to present written statements from banks or others that they had refused to make the loan. "Yet these borrowers have proven their ability and willingness to repay the loan, in practically all cases," the supervisor said. "They may not have been good risks for banks or other agencies, but Resettlement has helped them work out plans which have put them back on their feet. Many of those who were on relief last year, unable to

Linked to 'Leak' On British Budget

Evidence at the official inquiry in London into the premature release of information about the British budget, which enabled wealthy men to take out insurance against a rise in tax rates, traced the "leak" to Colonial Secretary J. H. Thomas (above), through "a friend of a friend of a friend." Thomas, however, denies having told anyone of the budget proposals.

CHEESE TRUCK MURDER CASE GOES TO TRIAL

By United Press
HOUSTON, May 18.—District Judge Langston King ordered the trial of Vince Boss, 20, charged with the bloody "cheese truck" murder of R. W. Albert, 32, of Houston, to proceed today despite a defense plea for postponement. The case had been postponed April 13 because 32 defense witnesses failed to appear in court. Defense attorneys informed the court today that a dozen of their witnesses again failed to answer. An insanity plea was expected to be entered for the nonchalant youth who confessed he slugged the cheese salesman, cut his throat, robbed him of almost $200 and placed his body in the ice compartment of his truck on the night of March 21.

Varying Figures Show Need for Job Survey

It is encouraging to hear that Commerce Secretary Daniel Roper plans an unemployment census. This is long overdue. It is too much to expect that definite figures will be available before election. Probably neither party would relish this. But it is high time we found out just where we stand—not only how many are out of work, but what jobs have vanished and what new jobs are arising to replace them.

Throughout the gravest depression the country has ever seen, no one has ever known, within hundreds of thousands, how many persons were unemployed. Most recent estimate by the American Federation of Labor was 12,184,000. The National Industrial Conference Board's estimates have been near that figure. But now comes the New York Sun and says that all this is ridiculous. It estimates the unemployed, in all industries, trades, transportation, and mining, at 3,085,000.

The Sun got its figures through information furnished by 3000 companies. If the present population of the country is about 128,000,000, then about 51,000,000 should be working today, and about 30,000,000 of these would be in the group surveyed.

The Sun found how many really were at work in that group, and figured out the rest in proportion. The Sun's job is an interesting one, but all such methods are no more than shrewd and lucky approximations. They can be nothing else.

Modern life is complex. There are so many ways of getting a living that don't appear in figures on any recognized big industry. A widow, left without resources, begins making candy and cake for sale. Is she unemployed? Yes, as far as any industrial tables can show. But she's getting along.

Two boys, just out of high school, develop an ingenious business of washing, clipping, and exercising neighbors' dogs. Are they unemployed? Certainly, as far as any industrial figures go. But they may be making a very fair independent living.

Undoubtedly, in making A. F. of L. estimates, much reliance is placed on union members reported not working at their trades. Yet, many such men, skilled at this trade or that, have developed little odd-job and repair work to keep going. Are they unemployed? Certainly, so far as the A. F. of L. is concerned. But they are getting by, and they are not on relief.

The whole thing about unemployment is that nobody knows much about it, even after all these years. General Johnson once proposed a one-day survey of unemployed by registration at polling places, much as draftees were registered during the World War.

Such individual registration of every unemployed man or woman seeking work, with the qualifications of each, would give us a sounder basis for attacking the problem than we have now or ever have had.

Before you try to figure out where you are going, it is always a good plan to find out where you are.

WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER. NEA Service Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON.—Senator Fred Steiwer of Oregon is working on his keynote speech for the Republican national convention and that's the reason Harry Hopkins' cars probably are burning. The speech will hit at the administration of WPA, with references to political scandal and especial emphasis of boondoggling—some of which will be designed to get the delegates to laughing.

LOBBYISTS for certain farm commodities and the congressmen they influence are lining up for a "raid" during the next fiscal year on about $100,000,000 which will be theoretically available for subsidizing foreign consumers at the expense of American taxpayers—all in the name of helping the farmer. The approach has been cleared by abolition of the export-import section of AAA, which opposed the policy of export subsidies, and its subsequent revival with a new and more amenable personnel.

THE farm act authorizes the secretary to use one-third of the nation's customs revenues for diversion of surplus crops into relief channels or for subsidy of exports. Wallace was reluctant to go in for export bounties, agreeing with the economists of the export-import section and others that export bounties would lead to endless dissipation of public funds, dumping of farm products in nations which don't want them, re-

TO LINDA and FAREWELL

By Marie Blizard

BEGIN HERE TODAY

LINDA BORNHEIM, 20, pretty, is in the most position by the side of her father, the newspaper editor, helps her get a job with a publisher. Linda is in love with Dix Carter, but her father asks Linda to marry him. She agrees, but postpones the wedding.

CHAPTER XXIII

Linda couldn't believe she had heard industry heard him rightly. "I'm afraid you'll have to explain to me what you mean," she said ice cold, when she could speak.

"I want to marry you, Linda. I'm in love with you. I'll understand you, good to you. You'll never be a price of a penny. You have—"

"The impression I got was that it interests you were willing to force me into it, thanks to my father because I would be the inter-departmental to have my name commercialized with yours in scandal. It's a very strange way to prove that you'd be good to me."

"You're very blunt, my dear. I liked. And didn't mean that at all. Besides, it's for production you are my wife on all my groups were to speak ill of you. And what ad succeeded in more, they will soon forget."

"You're a beast!" Linda's eyes were full of anger. "Do you suppose I'll ever forget? I hate you. I hate the sight of you. It makes me ill to think of anyone mentioning my name in connection with yours but I am not afraid of you. I don't appeal to you again, or to anyone else. I don't believe I have any but I will leave you face your own ego and to wonder what people will think of you."

"I have denied everything 650-775; fat you've said. And I can do it with conviction. My reputation in Hollywood is far superior in moral tone to yours. Basil Thorne. Now will you get out, please?"

Linda drove back from Santa Monica at a furious pace. She wasn't afraid, she was angry.

WHEN she reached her own home she found she had locked her door, hoping to calm her nerves. Then she put on a lace negligee and tore it off to don pajamas because she couldn't pace her floor with furious freedom.

Thinking, thinking what could she do! Until she realized that there was little that one lone woman could do.

But she wasn't alone. She had Dix who loved her, Dix who was her own kind, Dix who was going to make her his wife. Dix would settle Basil Thorne.

That night, dining with Dix, she said, "Darling, I want you to promise me that when I tell you something you won't lose your temper. I want you to be calm."

"You've decided to buy that police pup?" Dix hadn't wanted her to have it.

"Silly!" she laughed. "I wish it did only concern the pup. We'll take that up later. No, it's something much more serious."

"Let me think," Dix looked toward the ceiling. "You've gotten in a jam at the bank again because you won't keep your check-book straight? You've bought me a necktie you just couldn't resist? You've—"

"I'm sorry, Dix, it's nothing so trivial as all that. It's about Basil Thorne."

"Again?" Dix didn't appear to be very interested. "If he's bothering you, why don't you tell him to leave you alone?"

"It seems that I can't do that. At least I've tried."

"That's the penalty you pay for being so irresistibly beautiful, my pet."

"Do be serious, Dix. I'm sick over this and I've simply got to tell you because you've got to help me."

"SPILL IT, darling. I didn't realize you were really upset. Of course I want to hear about it and if there's anything I can do, I'll do it. Now what is it?"

"I'll have to begin at the beginning. Before you came to Hollywood, I met Thorne at a party at Malibu."

"Naturally you met him before I came."

"Yes, I met him, fell a little bit in love with him. No, I wasn't really in love with him but he fascinated me."

"Likeable fellow, Thorne," Dix said, and Linda thought she had been not quite clear.

"I don't think so," she said clearly. "I did then however and I was foolish enough to accept an invitation to dine with him at his home . . . alone. It was the worst thing I could possibly have done and I deserved the sort of insult I got."

"What do you mean, Linda?" Dix asked with a threatening calmness.

"Oh, nothing very dreadful," she assured him hastily.

"I'm waiting for you to continue," he reminded her.

Linda sighed. "It was nothing more than that time that he was tight, intoxicated, quite drunk and thoroughly dreadful. As soon as I saw his condition I left and caught

Besting Place For Bones 40,000 Year Old Are Sought

DETROIT.—J. Lee Barrett, the head of the Detroit Convention and Tourist Bureau, is looking for a place to rest some weary 40,000-year-old bones.

The bones once were a part of Michigan's oldest resident, Midge, and their 10 tons of weight used support her as she roamed the earth part of the state with her brother and sister mastodons.

A farmer dug up Midge's bones months back and persuaded Barrett that they were just the thing for a convention man to show around his office. Several vans brought Barrett's bones to Detroit. Barrett's problem was to find a resting place for Midge.

The recent Michigan Exposition ended the problem temporarily, the star of the show, she ended the favorite spot among displays. Over her hastily heaped together bones Barrett had a coat of red hair, assuring customers that it resembled natural covering of pre-historic days.

Barrett thought of all the people who might like to have a modern skeleton in their home, approached Mayor Frank Fitzgerald with the suggestion that the city would add a bit of charm to the city hall grounds. But the mayor vetoed the proposal.

Subsequent visits brought Barrett to the office of John Millen, director of the internationally famous Detroit Zoo. Millen was ready, but the zoo already was crowded with living specimens.

Officials of two universities in Detroit area were decidedly interested with Midge's importance in the historical scheme of things. But they, too, were budget trouble.

An eastern police force is being sent to the value of courtesy. An appropriate adieu to the culprit, the third degree, would be, "You're beating you."

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Grape juice, cereal, cream, soft-cooked eggs, crisp toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Vegetable hash, lettuce sandwiches, peanut cookies, chocolate egg shake.

DINNER: Fricassee of veal, broad noodles, buttered asparagus, tomato and cheese ball salad, layered strawberry pie, milk, coffee.

Veal Fricassee

Two pounds foreleg of veal, 4 cups water, 1 small onion, 1 blade of celery, 1 small carrot, bit of bayleaf, 1-2 teaspoon peppercorns, 2 teaspoons salt, flour.

Peel but do not slice onion. Scrape carrot and cut in quarters. Cut celery in half inch pieces and put these vegetables with bayleaf and peppercorns into a square of cheesecloth. Tie securely and drop into water. Bring to the boiling point and add meat. Cook hard for ten minutes. Then reduce heat and simmer until tender, about three hours. Cool in the water. Remove meat from stock and cut in neat pieces for serving. Remove cheesecloth bag

Layered Strawberry Pie

One package strawberry flavored gelatin, 1 pint warm water, 4 tablespoons sugar, 1 cup sliced strawberries, 1 baked 9-inch pie shell.

Dissolve gelatin in warm water. Add sugar to strawberries and combine with half of gelatin mixture. Chill until slightly thickened and turn into cold pie shell. Chill until firm. Chill remaining gelatin mixture until cold and syrupy, place bowl in pan of cracked ice or ice water and beat with a rotary beater until fluffy and thick like whipped cream. Pour over firm gelatin in pie shell. Chill until firm. Garnish with cluster of whole strawberries.

Serve broad noodles with the veal fricassee instead of potatoes. Buttered asparagus makes a perfect second vegetable and a salad of sliced tomatoes garnished with balls of cottage cheese mixed with minced chives is perfect, too.

Co-Eds Place Beauty Sixth In Rating; Love Comes First

AMES, Iowa.—Love and health are more important influences in the lives of Iowa State College co-eds than is beauty.

That was disclosed in a survey of the valuations placed on a list of 12 factors in the lives of students in Iowa State College home management classes.

Beauty, which was rated as of prime importance by women interviewed recently by a women's magazine, was placed in sixth place by the co-eds.

The women whose answers were compiled by the women's magazine rated beauty first and love and affection second. The co-ed rated love and affection first; health second. Both groups placed economic security in third place.

Youth was named by women as the fourth most important factor in their lives, while co-eds placed it in ninth position. Religion was given twelfth place by both groups.

The order of rating given by the co-eds was: love and affection, health, economic security, home, children, beauty, outside world, fashions, youth, recreation, desire to serve others, religion.

The order of rating given by the women surveyed was: beauty, love and affection, economic security, home, health, children, fashions, youth, outside world, recreation, desire to serve others, and religion.

The Scare Harp Singers are as stern as the Puritans, but the cult probably will die out in the next generation," Dr. R. G. Upton, Nacogdoches, told the Texas Folk-Lore society here. "Young members today have a tendency to emphasize the jazzy portions and forget the religious meaning."

Dr. Upton is an instructor at a State Teachers' college named for Stephen F. Austin, founder of Texas. He has spent many years studying the Sacred Harp singers and their music.

The singers came to the Southwest from New England. They are found in some communities with customs unchanged. They still use a system of music notation that was common in Shakespeare's day in England. Triangles, circles, squares and diamonds indicate the notes.

When they met for signing the director says: "Let's sing the notes." The song is sung without words, singers sounding musical syllables. "Now let's sing the poetry," he directs.

Then they sing the words with religious fervor. Their hands sway in rhythm with the music.

With a newly-invented carburetor, an auto can do 2000 miles to the gallon. A motorist now will have to have his tank filled only once to find a place to park.

Claims National Altitude Mark

Rather airish garb this winsome miss is wearing, but it's appropriate, for Annette Gipson is arishly inclined, offering as evidence what is claimed as a new national altitude mark for a light plane carrying a passenger. Sport Glances.By Grayson

GRANDVIEW TO NEW

BALTIMORE.—The Preakness, which is to be run on May 16, was named after M. H. Sanford's good colt, by Lexington out of Bay Leaf, which in the hands of William Hayward won the famous Dinner Party Stakes, or as it was afterward called, "the Dixie," at the inaugural Pimlico meeting in October, 1870.

Preakness ran a remarkable race and became firmly associated in the minds of the racing public as being an important part of Pimlico. Governor Oden Bowie, then president of the Maryland Jockey Club, and his associates felt it was simply unthinkable that there should be a meeting at the old track without some memorial to his prowess, so The Preakness was assigned an important and prominent place on the club's program.

Sanford Stock Farm was situated at Preakness, a small village in New Jersey, and the colt was believed good enough to be named after the home place, which fact gives added proof of his greatness and the estimation in which he was held.

MANY horsemen and experts who witnessed the Kentucky Derby are of the opinion that Bold Venture, the Preakness favorite, was the best horse in the race.

Bold Venture suffered ill luck, but was good enough to overcome it. The son of St. Germantown, possible displayed all the qualities of a great horse—speed, stamina, and courage.

Bold Venture was one of the best to leave the starting gate. Morton L. Schwartz's colt was bumped in the first dash for positions. The chestnut was second from last going around the first turn and behind Brevity until the three-quarter pole. Brevity reached Bold Venture's saddle girth at the three-sixteenth pole, but was unable to pass him in the duel in the home stretch.

In the opinion of many trained observers, Bold Venture was running just as strong as Brevity at the end, and some of them believe that the colt that was perfectly trained by Max Hirsch would have held Joseph E. Widener's pride safe even if the contest had been a half mile longer.

BOLD VENTURE, the long shot Derby winner, has that indefinable something known as class, and as yet none of the other Preakness entries have shown anything like it.

Bold Venture had no right to pay 21 1/2 to 1 in the Derby in the first place. One of the best of last year's 2-year-olds, though an unlucky one, he won an allowance race galloping in his only start of 1936 previous to the Derby.

There is another complaint about Churchill Downs in addition to the one in connection with the antiquated funnel at the head of the stretch which makes bumping inevitable in the Derby.

Teufel and Merry Pete did not run well, and the only way their trainer, the veteran Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, can account for their poor showing is that they did not like the track.

Fitzsimmons and all the other horsemen assert that the strip at Churchill Downs was too hard; that it was rolled and harrowed continuously for 12 hours before the races began. They say that next year they will request Col. Matt Winn to keep the roller off the course before the race.
