Civilization Disclaims Ancient Blood Lust

If all Americans were to be judged by the kind of bizarre, blood-thirsty crowds that have been congregating at the scenes of major crimes and public executions, we certainly would classify as a morbidly murderous sort of people.

For a time it appeared that we had reached an all-time low in the Hauptmann case. The public's behavior in New Jersey the night Bruno Richard Hauptmann paid his price for the murder of the Lindbergh baby resembled nothing more closely than the torchlight frivolity of the old-time political rally. But that, apparently, wasn't our worst.

It seems now that Americans reached their goriest height (or depth) the other day down at Owensboro, Ky., where, amidst the overtones of carnival merrymaking, 15,000 people saw a 22-year-old Negro plunge to his death from the gallows for the murder of a 70-year-old woman.

Surely the most sanguinary of the Roman holidays couldn't have eclipsed this scene. Wrote United Press eyewitness, Frank Leary:

"The crowd was in a holiday mood. Only a moment before the arrival of the Negro from Louisville, vendors of hot dogs and lemonade shouted their wares. In some of Owensboro's homes all night 'Hanging Parties' were in progress, beer and sandwiches the refreshments. Through the night the crowd had swarmed the streets. . . . But it was not ill-natured or violent. It appeared to be enjoying a 'Hangman's Holiday.'"

Then came the execution. Continues Leary: "The crowd, pressing tightly around the gallows, was not disorderly, but only out for a good time. Fifty per cent of them were from out of town — sensation seekers from Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Kentucky. Many children, including young babies, were carried on the shoulders of parents who had stayed up all night."

After the trap was sprung, a few in the group, swarming over the execution scene, tried to seize the black death cap. Deputy sheriffs, however, held back the souvenir hunters. The show was over!

Here was a spectacle to shock the nation. It was the sort of aboriginal affair, carried out by a few thousands, that casts irreparable reflection on the entire country.

It is high time that Americans begin to handle their necessary vindications of the law like normal, civilized human beings. A scene like that at Owensboro belongs to the time of the persecution of the Christians.

This is a civilized country. We have progressed too far to cry for blood in the arena as did the Romans nearly 2000 years ago.

European women's clothes designer suggests that overheated American men twirl fans at baseball games. If it's all the same, could we use umpires?

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY NEA Service

Is your family fond of gingerbread? If it is, have you discovered that gingerbread batter can be stirred up hours before it's to be baked—24 hours, if you wish—and will come out of the oven just as light and delicious as if it had been prepared in the usual way?

By preparing the mixture before you go out for the afternoon, you can serve warm gingerbread within 40 minutes after you step into the kitchen. The cake will bake while you are setting the table and preparing the rest of the meal.

Of course, the batter will be very cold after its stay in the refrigerator, so put it into a cold oven and let it gradually become warm while the oven is heating. It has been found that the temperature of ingredients is important in successful baking. For the best results they should all be the same.

Gingerbread and whipped cream with plenty of coffee is a delightful treat to serve in the evening after a few rounds of bridge. As a dessert you may prefer it with hard sauce, or served with apple sauce, or berries and cream.

Refrigerator Gingerbread

One-half cup granulated sugar, 1/4 cup molasses, 1-2 cup butter, 2 1/2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon ginger, 1-2 teaspoon cloves, 1-2 teaspoon nutmeg, 2 teaspoons soda, 1 cup boiling water, 2 eggs, few grains salt. Cream butter and sugar and add molasses. Mix well. Sift flour once before measuring. Mix and sift flour, salt and spices and add to first mixture. Add 1-2 cup boiling water to mixture and dissolve soda in remaining half cup. Add and blend thoroughly. Beat eggs until light and stir into batter. Turn into an oiled and floured pan, 8 by 12 inches, put into a cold oven and bake forty minutes at 350 degrees F. The time is counted from the time you put the cake in the oven.

Cut in squares and serve warm with whipped cream or hard sauce.

Hard Sauce

One cup confectioner's sugar, 5 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons whipping cream, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Sift sugar. Cream butter and add sugar gradually, beating constantly with a slotted wooden spoon. Beat in cream, adding it a teaspoonful at a time. Beat thoroughly and add vanilla. Serve at once or chill in ice box. Sprinkle with nutmeg or not as you please.

If you serve apple sauce with the gingerbread, be sure to trim out the cores of the apples carefully when you pare them for the sauce. Many varieties of early apples have deep-seated seeds and the tiny, shell-like carpels are hard to trim out without wasting some of the fruit. Also they are very unpleasant to find in the sauce. Run the sauce through a colander while it is hot and it will be very smooth.

Life of the Saint Of the Day

By REV. S. E. BYRNE

St. Augustine was born in 354, at Tagaste in Africa. He was brought up in the Christian faith, but without receiving baptism. An ambitious schoolboy of brilliant talents and violent passions, he early lost both faith and his innocence. He persisted in this manner until he was thirty-two. Being then at Milan teaching rhetoric, he tells us that the faith of his childhood had regained possession of his intellect, but that he could not as yet make up his mind to break the chains of evil habit. One day, however, stung to the heart by the account of some sudden conversions, he cried out, "The unlearned rise and storm Heaven, and we, with all our learning, for lack of heart lie wallowing here." He then withdrew into a garden, whence a long and terrible conflict ensued. Suddenly a young, fresh voice (he knows not whose) breaks in upon his strife with the words, "Take and read," and he lights upon the passage beginning, "Walk honestly as in the day." The battle was won. He received baptism, returned home and gave all to the poor.

At Hippo, where he settled, he was consecrated bishop in 395. For thirty-five years he was the center of ecclesiastical life in Africa, and the Church's mightiest champion against heresy; whilst his writings have been everywhere accepted as one of the principal sources of devotional thought and theological speculation. He died in 430.

TODAY IS OURS

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JUDITH HOWARD had been engaged to STEPHEN FOWLER for four years. She wants to be married and keep her job in a business office but Steve will not hear to this. Judith meets Steve for lunch and they go over the familiar arguments. Judith points out that her friends, VIRGINIA and BOB BENT, are happily married, though both have jobs. Steve refuses to be convinced. Finally Judith threatens to break the engagement.

Steve, suddenly realizing she is in earnest, asks to come to her apartment that evening to talk the matter over.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER II

DESPITE Virginia's reassurance, Judith found it difficult to stop her sobbing.

"I—I always thought I could be sane about something like this," Judith faltered. "But now I—I'm just realizing what Steve means to me!"

Virginia patted her shoulder. "Sure, I know. But right now you've got to snap out of it. The rest of the girls will be popping in here in a minute, and you can't let them see you like this. Come on, buck up."

Judith nodded. With an effort she straightened and went to the washstand. While Virginia stood guard at the door, Judith bathed her face in cold water. When she had finished, Virginia left the door and stood in front of her. "Now you're all right, Judith. A little powder and some rouge now. And," she dived into her bag, "a cigaret. Here." She inserted the cigaret between Judith's trembling lips, held up a light.

"You're a peach, Virginia."

The other shook her head. "Don't pin any wings on me, darling. I'm enjoying myself. Know why? Because I've looked forward to this break for a long time. It's the most sensible thing you've done in about three years."

"Do you really believe that?" Judith tried to smile.

"I not only believe it, but I know it. Just forget Steve Fowler, and you'll be all right in a month—or less. Never see him again."

"But he's coming to the apartment tonight."

Virginia's mouth fell open. "Coming to the apartment? I thought you were through?"

"I am through," Judith insisted. "But we—we were out there on the sidewalk and Steve said we couldn't just finish it like that. It did seem queer . . . after four years."

FOR a moment Virginia said nothing, but her glance held plenty of meaning. At last she spoke. "Judith, you're a double-barreled sap about that man. Here you get yourself all worked up to a clean break, and then you spoil it."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean you should have left him finally there on the sidewalk. If you see him again, you'll have everything to do over again."

Judith shook her head. "I'm not bluffing, Virginia."

"Of course you're not. But I know what love can do to a gal. All her brains ooze out into her heart, and then anything can happen." She stopped a moment. "Then," she said, "Listen, Judith, will you assent if I help you out of this?"

"But I don't need help."

"Let me be the judge of that. My only hope is to have other

"Listen, Judith," Virginia said. "Will you assent if I help you out of this?"

people around if Steve shows up tonight. Don't let him get you alone where he can talk you out of your decision. I'll drop in with Bob and we'll make a little party of it. Of course we'll pretend we don't know anything's up."

Judith was silent, meeting Virginia's suspicious gaze. "I want to see him alone for a few minutes, Virginia. I'll let him know that my talk today wasn't a spur of the moment thing. You and Bob drop over about 9."

"All right," said Virginia resignedly. "But we'll bring Toby Lynch along. He's the life of any party, and he'll thaw out any icicles you and Steve may have hung around the room before we get there."

How Judith got through her afternoon's work she would never quite know. As she had told her friend, she had always believed that in a situation like this she could be sane and sensible. But apparently that had been because, subconsciously, she'd believed too long it could never happen to her. During the past few months when the logic of her brain had begun to tell her that it might happen, she had ignored the warning.

Like an automaton she went through her office routine until 5, and she was grateful when Virginia appeared by her desk with, "Not going to work all night, are you, darling? Together they hurried to catch an early car to the apartment; and, as often happened, they encountered Bob Bent on the same car. Virginia's husband was in his usual good humor.

"Good evening, charming ladies!" he greeted them. "Did you put over any big deals today?"

"Judith did," said Virginia. "She sold Steve Fowler short, and came out 'way ahead."

"No!" He looked at Judith sympathetically. "Say, that's too bad! I hope—" He was interrupted by a sharp nudge from his wife. "Well," he began again, attempting a laugh, "easy come, easy go, Judith."

VIRGINIA caught a glimpse of Judith's face and quickly veered the conversation into safer channels. To all appearances, Judith had temporarily forgotten the matter by the time they reached the apartment building where both the Bents and Judith Howard lived.

"Better have dinner with us tonight," Virginia invited her as the trio went up in the automatic lift. Judith shook her head. "Thanks a lot, but I've some food left over from yesterday—and my frugal New England nature won't let it chance spoiling."

Bob was about to suggest that they pool their kitchen resources, but it occurred to him in the nick of time that, under the circumstances, Judith might prefer to have dinner alone.

He was correct—partly. For while Judith did want to be alone for a while, she touched nothing in the way of food. Once inside her little apartment she dropped her hat and coat on a chair and sank wearily on theavenport. She sat there, not moving. She sat there, hardly thinking. It was as if a part of her had died.

Then gradually, as the fatigue of the day wore off, she began to think again of her life with Stephen. It seemed such a large part of her life, this part she had spent with him almost always in her thoughts. And when she told herself, "It was only four years . . . and with every hour those four years will grow less important," she could not really believe it.

Judith rose at last, bathed her face in cold water and slipped into a cool frock. She had barely finished dressing when Steve's ring at the door started her. Listlessly she went to the door and opened it.

"Hello, Steve."

He looked at her closely as he came in, but said nothing. Walking to the little table by the window he put down his hat, took his pipe from his pocket and set it between his teeth unlighted. Then, nervously, he returned it to his pocket.

"Look here, Judith," he said suddenly, "you couldn't have meant what you said this noon."

"I did mean it, though." Her eyes met his unflinchingly.

"Then you haven't changed your mood?" He reached for his hat. "And if you haven't changed your mood there's no use in my trying to talk this out with you now."

"It isn't a mood, Steve—and it isn't a question of talking it out. I told you today how I felt." She took a step toward him, then stopped as if afraid of herself. "Oh, Steve, I haven't insisted many times that I was right. In all the times we've quarreled I've always given in. But this time I'm not going to give in. That's what makes me feel so sure I'm right."

STEVES laugh was without humor. "Right? How can you be so absurd, Judith? You want me to marry you, support you, when I can just about manage to do for myself."

"I want you to marry me, Stephen. I'll support myself. I want it that way. Doesn't that make it all right?"

He shook his head. "Judith, I love you. I want you more than anything else in the world. But I'm not going to let it blind me to the fact that I mustn't try to have what I've no right to have. Can't you understand that?"

Judith's shoulders sagged. Her mouth twisted in a smile of helplessness. "Steve, all I know is that you and I are young—and we're in love. That's all there is to know or understand. We won't be young forever. We—we may not love each other forever. But today is ours." She went to him now, her trembling hands against his shoulders. "Can't you understand that, Stephen? Today is ours, and you want us to keep planning for a tomorrow that might never come."

He looked down at her, not speaking. Judith thought: If he kisses me now I'll lose it—

"That's the logic of a woman," Steve was saying. "But money's made in a man's world. And it takes money for a happy marriage. I'd be worse than a fool if I saw it your way, Judith."

His arm went around her shoulder, and his head bent closer. "Judith, if you'd only believe that I know what I'm talking about, it's your own happiness I'm thinking about. It—"

There were three sharp raps on the door, and Virginia Bent's shrill, "Open up in there! It's the house detective!"

Freight trains nowadays act like express specials. New freight schedules are so fast, sometimes wonder if everything has to be delivered day before yesterday.

Many of our passenger trains are running faster schedules, too. Well, one thing is sure. We make faster runs, but the first railroad commandment is still "Safety First." That's one rule they won't change.

Western railroads and allied industries provided jobs for 750,000 workers last year. Some of them live in our town. Good neighbors.

Passenger fares are now the lowest in history with substantial reductions on round trips. And no more surcharge for riding in sleeping cars.

This new Free pick-up-and-delivery of less than carload freight—I heard some traveling salesmen talking about it on the train yesterday. They said it saves shippers a lot of money and centers all responsibility on the railroad.

When railroads are busy, I notice towns along the railroad are prosperous. The merchants put more ads in the newspapers.

We are proud of railroad achievements, appreciate the public's good will and increased patronage, and pledge continued progress.

Q. How did Blanco county get its name? E. B., Dripping Springs.

A. From the Blanco river, so named by the Aguayo Expedition of 1721, because of the chalky country through which the river flowed, giving it a white color, the name meaning "white."

Q. I notice San Angelo mentioned as the greatest wool center in the United States. What amount is sold there annually? R. M., Paducah.

A. The estimated amount for this year is 20,000,000 pounds, based on 15,000,000 already sold and 5,000,000 in storage there now.

Q. Where was the last Comanche war dance staged in Texas? G. G., Comanche.

A. About 40 miles west of Austin at or near the intersection of present highways 20 and 66.

Q. Where and when will the National Dairy Show be held this year? F. H., Gause.

A. At the Texas Centennial, Dallas, Oct. 10-18.

Q. Where did the Republic of Texas establish its first custom house and who was the collector? S. A., Detroit.

A. At Galveston, in 1836, with

In this column, answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. As evidence of good faith inquirers must give their names and addresses, but only their initials will be printed. Address inquiries to Will H. Mayes, Austin, Texas.

Smithy Laments the Lack of Romance in Trade Today

FORT WORTH — Prices are better, but blacksmithing today is not the romantic trade which Longfellow described in his poem, "The Blacksmith."

"We get most of our trade from the mule barns," he said. "During the mule-trading season from September to April, we shoe an average of 25 mules a day. A dollar used to be the price for shoeing, but now we get $2... with the price of factory shoes up 50 per cent."

"Some business comes from dairy horses, ice wagon teams, saddle animals—and a few from the Centennial rodeo right now."

Moseley has followed his trade in Fort Worth for a quarter-century, seeing this town grow from a blacksmith's paradise to a mechanized "cowntown" where horses are comparatively rare.

Gail Borden, pioneer newspaper man and condensed milk inventor, as collector.

A CENTURY OF TEXAS CATTLE BRANDS

All Texans will be interested in the origin and significance of early cattle brands of famous ranches as reproduced and catalogued in this new book of 84 pages. Arranged by counties.

Introductory articles on Texas History by Peter Molyneux; sketch of Cattle Industry and the Story of Cattle Brands by Frank Reeves; and foreword by Amon Carter, owner of Fort Worth Star-Telegram; all of special interest to every cattleman.

Mailed postpaid for 50 cents. Address all orders to Will H. Mayes, 2619 Salado Street, Austin, Texas.

I enclose 50 cents in coin, securely wrapped, for a copy of "A Century of Texas Cattle Brands."

ORDER A WEEK'S SUPPLY OF GROCERIES AT A TIME.....

Keep them Fresh with

CHEAP ELECTRICITY

Every week your favorite grocer offers many "specials" at attractive bargain prices—but usually for one day only. Substantial savings in grocery bills can be realized if you buy a whole week's supply at one time.

With electrical refrigeration you can take advantage of these bargains—everything you need can be stored safely in your electric refrigerator for a few pennies a day until it is bargain day at your grocer's again.

PENNYWISE SAYS:

"Savings in grocery bills alone will pay for your electric refrigerator in a few years if you do your buying on bargain days."

CALENDAR SATURDAY
Gadabout club, called meeting 10 a. m., home of Miss Joan Johnson.

Socialites, 3.30 p. m., at home of hostess to be announced later.

Eastern Star Day at Texas Centennial
Dallas will be the mecca of the Eastern Star Saturday for the formal announced Eastern Star Day at the Centennial.

The O. E. S. headquarters will be at the General Motors building and at 5 p. m., the Order of the Eastern Star program is to be presented at the Chrysler Band shell.

Those from Eastland who intend going are requested to notify Mrs. L. J. Lambert, secretary of the local O. E. S.

Mrs. J. H. Kahrs, worthy matron, and Mrs. Lambert, would be pleased to have a motor cavalcade of Eastern Star members from our city attend on this special day.

Perkins Family Will Arrive Soon

Mrs. James Horton was advised by Mrs. Joseph M. Perkins that the family would leave Gleasondale in their car last Monday on their motor trip to Eastland.

They are expected here either this evening or tomorrow.

Mrs. Perkins and her daughters and son have been in Gleasondale and other points east the greater part of the summer, and Miss Betty Perkins on a trip through New Hampshire.

Miss Betty will enter Texas university at the opening of the fall term.

Martha Dorcas Party Delightful Affair

The lower assembly room of the Methodist church, converted into a temporary living room, with its wicker setting, comfortable chairs and stands of garden flowers formed a delightful background Wednesday afternoon for the hospitality of the Martha Dorcas class, extended their members and past members, through the appointment of hostesses.

Mrs. W. E. Coleman, and Mrs. C. J. Germany, W. A. Martin and Mrs. R. E. Sikes, who, though absent on account of illness in her family, had her hostess duties performed.

Decorations were timely and the pageant table arranged with a pioneer scene of carts drawn by oxen, covered wagons, and Indians and trails, brought a touch of the frontier days to memory.

Mrs. W. A. Martin, program chairman, presented Mrs. C. W. Hoffman, president of Martha Dorcas class, who extended a gracious welcome to the gathering.

A fine piano number, "Albumblatt," Beethoven, was played by Mava Lou Crossley.

Dick Brogdon was clever in a reading, "Keeping Quiet," and the short program closed with a number by Mary Catherine Hoffmann, "The Hidden Brush," an attractive reading.

Dainty refreshments were served at the tea hour, of cheese and nut sandwiches, small food cakes, and minted iced tea with lemon, by the active hostesses.

Personnel included Mmes. L. J. Killough, W. A. Giegand, George Lane, Jack Dwyer, C. C. Ligon, Ed T. Cox, Jr., W. H. Mullings, Mack O'Neal, J. F. Davis, George E. Cross, Frank Roberson, Howard Brook, D. J. Jobe, B. O. Harrell, C. L. Fields, W. A. Hart, L. C. Brown, C. W. Hoffmann, O. M. Hunt, E. R. Stanford, Bert McGlamery, C. C. Robey.

Mary Catherine Hoffmann, Betty Wiegand, Mava Lou Crossley, Mrs. C. E. Maule, of Wichita, Kansas, a guest, and hostesses.

Trio of Friends Visiting Galveston

Mrs. C. G. Kimbrell, Miss Sibyl Truly and Miss Jessie Lee Ligon left Wednesday in the Kimbrell car for Galveston, to spend their several days' vacation, visiting in that delightful resort.

Sub Deb Club Cancels Meet

As all but four members of the Sub Deb club were either visiting at various points or on camping trip at Glenwood camp, near Glenrose, the meeting announced for Wednesday was cancelled as even the hostess-to-be Miss Frances Lane, joined the camping party.

All those in the Glenwood camp will return Sunday. Their regular meeting for next week will be announced later.

Mrs. Dave Wolf Club Hostess

The Oil Belt branch of the Business and Professional Women's club, enjoyed a hospitable informal evening Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Dave Wolf.

Club members were taken thru the charming new interior, done over, remodeled and refurbished. The cool lawn, with its background of flower beds, formed an attractive place for the club session, opened by Mrs. C. C. Robey, president.

No formal program was presented but members entered into discussions of a permanent place to meet in the new fiscal year, and the possibility of no longer having the weekly night dinner club conference.

Mrs. Wolf was a charming hostess and the club greatly enjoyed their pleasing environment.

Delicious ice cream and chocolate cake were served at the close of the evening to Misses Lilly Williams, Thelma Harris, Viola La Myon, Madge Rose, Winifred Pontecost, Bernice Dennis, Mmes. C. C. Robey, G. I. Wilcox, Fred Maxey, Mrs. C. C. Ligon, a guest, and the hostess, Mrs. Dave Wolf.

Miss Joan Johnson Hostess to Club

Miss Joan Johnson, assisted by her sister, Miss Verna, and mother, Mrs. J. L. Johnson, entertained the Gadabout club Wednesday with an informal and delightful afternoon, when knitting and sewing occupied the club.

The girls planned a called meeting for Saturday morning at 10, at the home of Miss Johnson, and at that time will conclude plans for an evening party in the ofing.

The next regular meeting will be held September 2, at 3.30 p. m., at the home of Miss Carolyn Cox.

Refreshments were served of ice cream with ginger ale topping and small cakes to Misses Carolyn Doss, Kathleen Coffingham, Bennie Kate Wood, Carolyn Cox, Joan Johnson, Miss Verna Johnson and the sponsor, Mrs. Carl Miller.

Miss Pearson Honored At Lake Cisco Outing

Honoring Miss Ellen Pearson who leaves Saturday to make her home in Midland, where she will continue as secretary to Hamilton McRae, friends honored her with a weiner roast at Lake Cisco Thursday night.

Those who attended were Misses Bernice Dennis, Ava Claire Ewing, Madge Rose and Messrs. Joe Collins, Pete Clements, Jack Kimble, Randolph Bailey, Charles Estes, Buck Germany and Miss Pearson.
