Got a letter Thursday from Colorado... it said, "It has been awfully cold up here for the past week and raining every day. Funny world, isn't it... for contrast, we can answer it... 'Awful hot down here and not a drop of rain' and think... the difference is only about five hundred miles to the Colorado line... in parts of California it is always cold... in other parts the thermometer is always around 120... in parts of Texas, it is always cold... in other parts pretty hot. At that we humans still don't know what it is all about. We don't even know all these years of research and findings, where the Indian came from. Neither do we yet know what Electricity is. And at one time, history says, at one time Negroes dominated in religion... Haille Selsallic claims to be a direct descendant of the queen of Sheba."

Name Calling Battle Evades Real Issues

If someone doesn't soon equip it with a pair of water-wings, this campaign is apt to sink clear beneath the surface into an ooze of bitterness, anger, and unreasoning name-calling such as has stained few presidential campaigns in all our history.

There is some talk of issues, to be sure, but the issues are mostly personalized. If you raise such an abstract question as the relation between state and federal governments and their powers, for instance, you will presently hear someone using to prove that President Roosevelt is a hair-brained Bolshevik, while someone else uses it to show that Governor Landon is a blind reactionary.

Indeed that sort of thing usually is only a starter. People go on from there. They see visions of Americanized storm troopers marching through our streets, or they make out the shapes of an American OGPU snatching citizens from their beds in the dead of night and sending them off to Alaska.

They enshrine that well-to-do country gentleman, Franklin Roosevelt, in the mantle of Lenin and Stalin, and wrap up wholesome Alf Landon in the bedmedal tunic of Benito Mussolini. The tocsin is sounding on a 24-hour shift, and clubwomen, ward-healers, union leaders, and college professors are leaping into their saddles constantly to dash off and announce that the redcoats are coming from the right, the left, or dead-center, as individual prejudice may indicate.

Now all this sort of thing is very exciting, but it does not help us to make an intelligent choice at the polls. There are important issues to be settled this fall, but they won't be settled wisely if each side pretends that the other is out to ruin the government and destroy our liberties.

Can't we get it straight, at the outset, that both President Roosevelt and Governor Landon are honorable and patriotic Americans, each anxious to serve his country to the level best of his ability in an hour of great need?

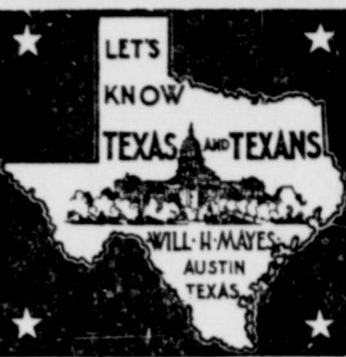

Can't we understand that the Democratic party is not a branch of the Communist International, and that the Republican party was not nurtured by either Mussolini or Hitler?

Can't we see that business men will not be sent to prison if the Democrats win, and that the laboring man will not be reduced to serfdom if the Republicans win?

There are real differences between the candidates and the parties; differences that will stand a great deal of examination and discussion during the campaign which has just begun. The citizens will be called on to make an important choice this fall, and what they say at the polls will help shape the course of American history.

But the bitterness, the name-calling, the senseless accusations that have begun to crop out—these are utterly uncalled-for. If we persist in them, we shall simply prove our inability to make democracy work smoothly in a time of crisis.

Life of the Saint Of the Day

By REV. S. E. BYRNE

On the morrow the Church commemorates the festival of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary, which is recollection of the departure and translation of Mary into the kingdom of her Son, in which she received from Him a crown of immortal glory, and a throne above all the other Saints and Heavenly spirits. After Christ, as the triumphant Conqueror of death and hell, ascended into Heaven, His blessed mother remained at Jerusalem, persevering in prayer with the disciples, till, with them, she had received the Holy Ghost. She lived to a very advanced age, but finally paid the common debt of nature, none among the children of Adam being exempt from that rigorous law. But the death of the Saints is rather to be called a sweet sleep than death; much more that of the Queen of Saints, who had been exempt from all sin. It is a traditional pious belief, that the body of the Blessed Virgin was raised by God soon after her death, and taken up to glory by a singular privilege, before the general resurrection of the dead. The Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary is the greatest of all the festivals which the Church celebrated in her honor. It is the consummation of all the other great mysteries by which her life was rendered most wonderful; it is the birthday of her true greatness and glory, and the crowning of all the virtues of her whole life, which we admire singly in her other festivals.

Segregation Is First Step To Bring Texas Prison System Up-To-Date

Bloss

RICHARD M. MOREHEAD, United Press Staff Correspondent HUNTSVILLE — Segregation is the first step in bringing Texas prisons up-to-date, workers now employed believe.

Segregation will prevent hardened criminals from teaching their philosophies and tricks to youngsters up for the first time. It will enable prison officials to help rehabilitate those whose future is hopeless.

Moreover, it should lessen the breaks against discipline that have brought notoriety to Texas prisoners in the past. Self-maiming, surreptitious, discontent — these are the problems that must be solved within "the walls."

"Frankly, we don't know what inmates mutilate themselves for," General Manager O. J. S. Jackson said recently. "We're studying the records to see if we can find out."

A recent uprising at one farm led to floggings of a dozen leaders. Among other reasons assigned for the outbreaks was one that "there isn't always enough warm water for shaving."

Many times the discontent is caused by those serving their second or third sentence. During their terms, comparatively easy work was given them. When they broke the law and came back, officials gave them more difficult work under rules of the prison system.

The Texas system is well-constituted for segregation and classification, Frank Loveland, director records show little chance for rehabilitation.

The fourth class is made up of men hopelessly buried in crime. Many are vicious killers, with little regard for human life. Troublemakers inside "the walls" will be in the lowest ranks, along with those having serious escape records.

After the records are compiled, provisions will be made for handling each convict according to his record.

Peace Amendment Is Proposed By General Butler

NEW YORK—Amendment of the Constitution as a simple and practical method to "guarantee everlasting peace to our nation" is proposed by Major General Smedley D. Butler today, in an article in The Woman's Home Companion. His suggested Amendment for Peace is as follows:

1. The removal of members of the land armed forces from within the continental limits of the United States and the Panama Canal Zone for any cause whatsoever is hereby prohibited.
2. The vessels of the United States Navy, or of the other branches of the armed service, are hereby prohibited from steaming, for any reason whatsoever except on an errand of mercy more than 500 miles from our coast.
3. Aircraft of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps is hereby prohibited from flying, for any reason whatsoever, more than 750 miles beyond the coast of the United States.

"Such an amendment," General Butler writes, "would be an absolute guarantee to the women of America that their loved ones would never be sent overseas to be needlessly shot down in European or Asiatic or African wars that are no concern of our people. Such an amendment, linked with adequate naval and military defenses at home, would guarantee everlasting peace to our nation."

In explaining how the amendment would work, General Butler points out that the United States is in no danger whatever of military invasion, first because of its geographical position, and second because of political dissensions abroad, which prohibit any one nation from leaving its borders unguarded in order to make war 3,000 or 6,000 miles distant. Even if foreign nations ever could agree to pool their resources against the United States, he adds, there still would be little fear of successful invasion.

"Therefore," he says, "with the invasion of our shores an impossible military undertaking, the only war in which we can possibly become involved is one in which our people would have no interest and no concern—a no right to join. It would be one into which we should be thrown by some economic, political or diplomatic intrigue, and not a war which we should wage in defense of our homes. And it is from just such a war, a war such as the late World War, that we must protect ourselves."

As for the country's territories and dependencies, the General would let them all go, except the Canal Zone, which is necessary to defense, Hawaii and Alaska. The last two, he would not defend against armed invasion, but feels that the occasion would never arise; if the United States would announce to the world that it would use every economic pressure possible against any nation which might be tempted to attack them.

"Let's pass all suggested anti-war legislation," General Butler says; "let's attend all the peace and disarmament conferences; let's have all the war protest meetings we can arrange; let our young men form their 'veterans of future wars' groups—let's do all this and more. But if we really want to make it impossible to have our young men sent abroad to fight the wars of others, then let us by all means insist upon adding the Peace Amendment to the Constitution of the United States."

"And the wives, the mothers and sisters of the future cannon fodder must lead the way."

Cigaret Smoking Grows In Canada

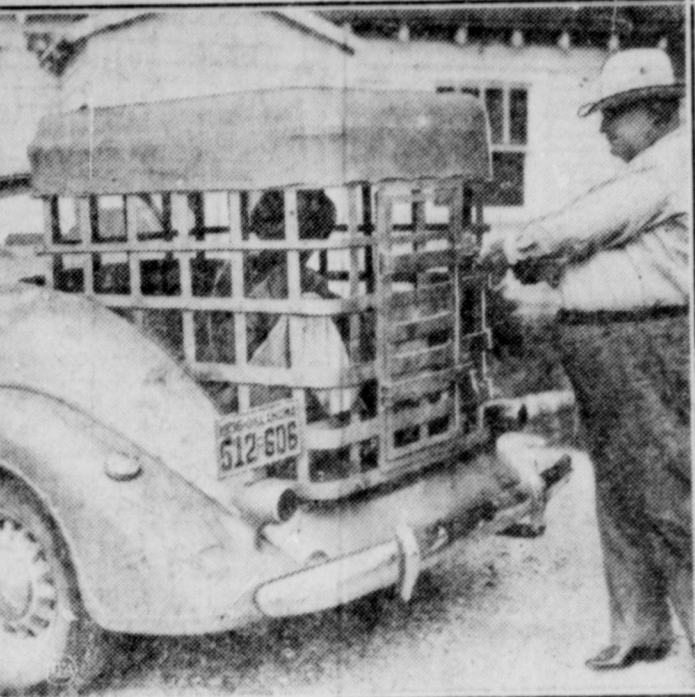

OTTAWA, Ont.—Consumption of cigarettes in Canada has increased by a billion since women and girls began smoking.

Government statistics just issued here show that consumption increased from 4,401,000,000 cigarettes in 1930 to 5,310,000,000 in 1935, and figures for this year indicate that it is still rising steadily.

The heavy increase in cigarette consumption is believed to be due to the vogue of feminine smoking. Cigar smoking, on the other hand, is declining. Five years ago 152,159,000 cigars were consumed. Last year consumption declined to 124,970,000.

If the Spanish furor has done nothing else, it has provided bulls with the new lieure.

Quick Chave And Haircut Quicker In Eastern Shops

ALBANY, N. Y.—Albany barbers believe they have something to brag about.

Members of the Albany Barbers' Association have taken some speed tests to see how they compared with the times reported by the Wisconsin Journeymen Barbers' Association. Their principal discovery was that it takes almost three minutes longer to get a haircut in Milwaukee than it does in Albany.

The Albany barbers are faster by almost two minutes for a shave, Joseph C. Papa, president of the association, reported. He contrasted Albany's time of 15.4 minutes with Wisconsin's 17.2 minutes. The shave also requires less time in Albany—7.5 minutes, as compared with 10.9 in Wisconsin.

But the shampoo is different. Wisconsin barbers report 16.7 minutes, while in Albany it requires 17 minutes flat.

Comparison of the times led to a discussion of Papa's philosophy on modern barbering. Papa suggests that customers should relax in the barber's chair.

"The barber," Papa said, "shouldn't talk to the customer except when necessary. Nor should he discuss such complicated questions as the political situation at home and abroad, or the pennant race in the big leagues."

"Neither should the barber make any suggestion of treatments except those which he feels the customer needs. It is his work to serve the patrons, and their needs alone."

Races Of World Growing Taller

LONDON.—The human race is growing taller.

That conclusion has been reached after a study of human growth over a number of years, details of which are given in the current issue of the "British Medical Journal."

Children of today, according to the experience of many countries, it is said, compare favorably with children the same ages before the war; and a tendency to increase of growth long has been observed.

Figures for measurements of recruits in Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, Switzerland and Italy over a period of years all show an increase in weight also.

Even in Japan measurements on students record increases of growth, while it is recalled that in the United States there has been a slight increase in growth during the last 80 years.

"In general, however," it is stated, "the bodily build of both sexes has tended to become slimmer, especially for women in the region of the hips, an observation also made in Germany."

This change is attributed primarily to environmental influences including general improvements in hygiene, improvement in average diets and the result of sports and gymnasium work.

"It is noticeable," adds the report, "that the inhabitants of cities in general are bigger than countrymen. Those of the North bigger than those of the South. Hence one can hardly attribute the change to the effect of sunlight, which some have occasionally regarded as the primary factor of growth."

Child Growing Up Rather Rapidly

FORT WORTH—John Douglas Jackson, one-year-old son of Mrs. Georgia White Jackson of Fort Worth, will be grown before he knows it.

When 26 days old, the youngster's hair was so long he needed the attention of a barber. At 11 months, John Douglas chewed with 16 teeth, and now he has 4 new ones—enough for the average 2½-year-old.

The mother said all the teeth were cut without the usual fretting.

Legislature May Provide Fund For Prison Reforms

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the last of three articles on the segregation and classification program now being conducted in the Texas prison system.

HUNTSVILLE—The Texas legislature may be called to provide funds for extending the segregation and classification program now in progress in the Texas prison system.

Desire of Gov. James V. Allred, members of the prison board, and officials to gain a better understanding of those committed to state penal institutions are led to a demand for reforms. The present prison appropriations has not permitted establishment of a classification unit, however.

The University of Texas bureau of research in social sciences early this year decided to finance such a program during the trial period, augmented by funds from the Rockefeller Foundation. Frank Loveland, formerly of the Massachusetts prison staff, was hired as director and a small staff recruited to work with incoming convicts at the Huntsville unit.

With adequate appropriation by the legislature, the work might be extended to include all the farms on which Texas convicts are kept. "It is our purpose to prepare a brief case history of each man entering the prisons," explained Director Loveland, according to a plan adopted by the Texas prison board.

"The governor of Texas, the Texas prison board, and the manager of the Texas prison system have recognized the necessity for a better understanding of the persons committed to prison and for specialized treatment based upon that understanding."

Two purposes will be served by the new program. The first, and most important, is that case histories will furnish a basis for segregating the men according to their behavior, capacities and interests. The second will be to provide a record for members of the state pardon board and parole board to study when the men become eligible for clemency.

The records further will provide a library for use in the courts when ex-convicts again become embroiled with the law, as many of them will. Psychologists and psychiatrists working with prison officials will be enabled to interpret what sends men to prison in Texas and to keep them from returning.

Reforms in Texas' system for punishing its wayward citizens have been slow, as they have been in most other states. The present classification and segregation program is hailed as a forward step, as has the new system of voluntary county parole boards created by the current state administration.

This fall, voters will decide another important problem, whether the pardoning power should be left in the hands of the governor or the decision of the pardon and parole board made final.

Canoes Will Race Over Rapids In Quebec Classic

By United Press
LA TUQUE, Que.—Harking back to the days when birchbark New France, sturdy canoes and craft threaded the river trails of sportsmen from the United States and Canada are here preparing to shoot the rapids of the St. Maurice River, Aug. 21-23, in the sports world's newest international competition—the international canoe race from La Tuque to Trois Rivières. The classic recalls the vanished days of the Iroquois and Montagnais, as well as of Nicolet, Radisson, Laverendrye, and the other great Quebec pioneer-explorers who traversed the historic valley.

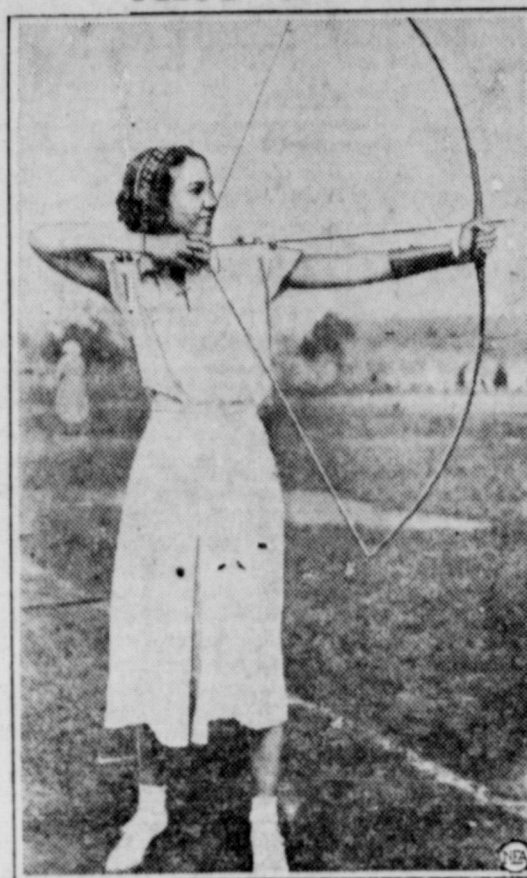

The 125-mile test will be divided into three laps, one each day. The first is an 85-mile paddle from La Tuque to Grand'Mere. The second, covering 15 miles, runs from Grand'Mere to Shaynigan Falls to the finish line at Trois Rivières, covers 25 miles. En route, the contestants are required to jump four famous rapids—the Croche, Cuisse, Manigance, and Les Forges.

Falling 1,315 feet on its rapid course the St. Maurice River is one of the oldest thoroughfares of the New World. Today it is paralleled by a modern highway, Route 19, which affords facilities for watching the race.

A permanent committee has been formed to supervise the contest, which was instituted as a feature of the commemoration marking the founding of Trois Rivières three centuries ago. First restricted to canoeists of the St. Maurice Valley, the event is now open to all residents of North America, and many challengers from the United States have filed entries.

Each team entered in the race consists of two men and a regulation canoe of the sturdy, non-racing type, approximating as nearly as possible the canoes of the 17th century coureur-de-bois. Double-bladed paddles may not be

Explorers Plan To Sail Pacific In Twin Canoes

HONOLULU — Two French explorers, Capt. Eric Schop and Joseph Tatibouet, completed the first of two twin going canoes with which they expect to explore the Pacific for several years.

The two hulls are patterned after ancient Polynesian canoes. The first one has been hauled down to Waikiki Beach from the woods where it was hewed. It is expected that the second will be completed shortly.

Once the two hulls are ready, water, they will be joined on a platform, masts and Chinese rig erected, and in about six weeks thereafter the two adventures will leave on an exploring cruise of the Pacific in the same manner which the early Polynesians played.

Their first expected port of call is Clipperton Island, a French possession off the Mexican coast where they will do research for the French Geographical Society.

From there they expect to go to the Marquesas and other islands of the South Pacific. They will make a detailed study of winds, currents and native traditions in an effort to determine whether the Polynesians in their present island homes came from Asia or from America.

They have been in Hawaii for five months in the 1853 earthquake in Japan. "The stars can talk if you only listen long enough," he said. Jupiter controls earth's movements, he insists. On August 14, he noticed the Pleiades shining with unusual brilliancy. Within a short time a storm struck, and after the had passed the constellations been seen but dimly, indicating storm originated in its direction.

Hawaii Is Warned Of A Lava Flow

HONOLULU — Sunset colors and planetary positions, as well as movements of the sun and moon, hold the keys to weather and seismic disturbances for Brother Othmar of St. Louis College, Honolulu.

Brother Othmar, who seems headed for a reputation as great as that of Father Ricard, late famed "padre of the rains," at Santa Clara College, Cal., already used, and according to the regulations, the canoe must be carried by one man on the numerous portages.

has listed a probable series of events for Hawaii this year. He predicts a major eruption of the volcano Mauna Loa on the island in February, 1937.

He also has predicted a flood in the Nuuanu Valley above Honolulu in September, and continuation of rainy weather in Honolulu proper all summer.

Next February the planets Jupiter, Saturn and Venus will be in superior conjunction, with only the moon between them and the earth.

"There is going to be a lot of fun when this happens, and Hawaii can expect another major eruption," he says.

A fiery, blotchy red sunset in Hawaii may be followed shortly by typhoons in the distant Philippines, according to Brother Othmar. He said that "red" sunsets

Parole Conference Creating Little Interest In Texas

AUSTIN—Parole officials are preparing a program for the Southwest Parole Conference at Galveston in September with diffidence. There is one topic considered important, but they are hesitant about broaching it.

This is the problem offered by the release of men prisoners after a term of sex repression. W. W. Halcomb, supervisor for the state parole boards, admits that in a reaction from sex starvation many released men fall into companionship with women of loose morals and get into influences that hamper their efforts to reform.

A frank discussion of the situation would be welcomed by parole students, if anyone has the courage to tackle the topic in the conference.

Halcomb is noticeably proud of the record being made by the volunteer parole board of Texas. He believes they have solved one of the hardest problems that former-convicts applied for positions and revealed their prison record, they didn't get the jobs. If they concealed records, they were discharged for not telling. Under the volunteer parole board system the board members make the first contact with possible employers and give the ex-convict's history.

In money, Halcomb says, the system has saved the state hundreds of thousands of dollars. Albert Steves, head of the San Antonio board, estimated the saving in that county's paroled men at $100,000.

The cost of keeping the prisoner is only a small part of the saving. A typical case is that of an ex-convict employed so that he no longer remained a charge of the state, but was able to take off relief his mother and sister.

Diversion Issue Taken To Polls In Maine - California

NEW YORK—The question of whether highway funds may be diverted to other uses or will in the future be used only solely for highways will be decided by the voters of Maine and California this fall.

On September 14 Main will hold a referendum on the issue, while in California signatures of more than 200,000 voters have been obtained on an initiative petition permitting a popular vote on a constitutional amendment prohibiting any diversion of gasoline tax revenues. After a scrutiny of the signatures of the petition by the Secretary of State, as required by law, the amendment will be placed on the ballot to be submitted to the voters in November.

The anti-diversion amendment to the California constitution is being sponsored by the California Highways Council, and the efforts of the Council have been endorsed by the directors of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

In a statement sent out by the Club, Standish L. Mitchell, secretary and general manager, said, "The only way effectively to stop diversion is by action of the people. The club unqualifiedly recommends adoption of this anti-diversion measure."

According to the bill to be voted on in Maine all revenue received by the state from registration fees, drivers licenses, gasoline taxes and other highway fees would be allocated solely to the general fund and used solely to meet highway bond payments and to defray the costs of the state highway department. Neither the general highway funds nor any other fund derived from direct taxation imposed for highway construction, bridge construction, or for the improvement or construction of roads and bridges may be diverted or expended either temporarily or permanently for any other purpose than those set forth in the bill.

Weed Growths Are Menace To Health

AUSTIN—Texas has been fortunate this year in having beneficial rains in many parts of the State during the hot summer months. The rains, however, have made the weeds grow faster and left water standing in secluded places and has created an unsightly and insanitary condition in many communities.

"While many places are well kept, there are some individuals who do not realize the necessity of keeping the weeds down and eliminating the standing water so that mosquitoes cannot breed," said Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer.

"An appeal to the civic pride of the citizen in a community will often result in a clean-up campaign with astonishing results. Each individual can help by inspecting his premises to see that all nuisances are eliminated.

"The inspection of conditions which might need correction should include:

1. Weeds and long grass which spring up almost over night this time of year.
 2. Can and other rubbish which might furnish a sufficient amount of water for mosquitoes to breed. Inspection of fish ponds.
 3. Garbage should be disposed of in such a manner that flies will not be attracted.
 4. Out-door toilets should be made sanitary.
 5. Wells and cisterns should be inspected to see that the family water supply is free from contaminated material.
- Every member of the community should do his part to remove potential disease and death breeders."

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE

FROSTY red drinks, fans, shady porches. They all help us to endure the stifling midsummer heat. The family can't live on these drinks alone—and it shouldn't try it! We can't sit before fans or on porches all the time, either.

There are other ways to combat the burning sun. One of them is to simplify housework in every way possible. Another is to do the major part of the preparation of meals in the early morning hours. Then, after the day's routine is planned, you can relax and think about keeping cool.

Insulated Oven Is Boon Use as little heat in your cooking as possible. An insulated oven helps amazingly to keep the kitchen cool. You can prepare a dish, put it in the refrigerator until time to bake and then leave it to cook while you dress or rest in the shade.

Substantial salads are tempting concoctions for hot noons. Breakfast and dinner are eaten in the coolest hours of the day, but luncheon comes at the very peak of the heat and must be inviting, indeed, to tempt appetites.

Quick breads that can be baked early in the day make delicious sandwiches for any occasion.

Desserts may be fresh fruit, served with sugar and cream, or frozen in sherbets and ices. Ice creams made with milk and eggs contain as much nourishment as do their first cousins, the baked custards. All the chilled gelatin puddings are refreshing.

If you plan meals the day before they are to be served, you can do your cooking early in the morning and not have to rush to the market. Remember, too, that it takes time to chill salads and

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Apple sauce, cereal cooked with dates, cream, crisp toast, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON: Salmon salad loaf, date and nut bread, watermelon, tea, cocoa.
DINNER: Filled bouillon, radishes and celery, baked ham, potatoes au gratin, fried cucumbers, frozen fruit salad, crackers and cheese, milk, coffee.

Here is a main dish salad that is inexpensive enough to serve frequently but looks festive enough for company use.

Salmon Salad Loaf One pound can salmon, 3 cups diced cooked potatoes, 2 tablespoons minced onion, 1 sweet green pepper, 1-2 cup diced celery, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon white pepper, 1-2 cup whipping cream, 2 tablespoons granulated gelatin, 1-3 cup cold water, 1 cup boiling water, 1 cup mayonnaise, curly endive, 2 tomatoes, 1 cucumber, 3 tablespoons lemon juice.

Remove skin and bones from salmon and flake. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Sprinkle potatoes with onion. Remove seeds and pith from pepper and shred flesh. Combine salmon, potatoes, celery and pepper. Season with salt and pepper. Sprinkle gelatin over cold water, add boiling water and stir until dissolved. Cool. Combine with mayonnaise and fold in cream which has been whipped until firm. Fold in salmon mixture and turn into a wet loaf mold. Chill until firm. Turn out on a chilled platter and garnish with endive and fingers of peeled cucumber.

"Plenty . . . police."
"Police!" Molly spoke with the disdain of one who has known only the friendly protection of the

They were inside now, and a tall, suave-looking man came toward them, smiling. Molly felt his gaze rest on her for a moment with sudden, sharp interest.

"He knows I'm not a regular customer," she hazarded mentally.
"and suspects I'm all set for something exciting."

The proprietor signaled to a waiter, who piloted them to a table.

Molly curved her mouth downward to signify to Wick her disappointment. Wick had been studying, deliberately building up an atmosphere which was about to collapse. There was absolutely nothing here to thrill or excite one.

The big room had the usual polished dance floor. A large revolving mirrored disc in the center of the ceiling bathed the dancing area in a flood of shifting rainbow squares. Mirror panels were set in the walls between other panels decorated with vivid red poppies.

The crowd had not yet come to life. People were sitting at tables indifferently, looking at a quite ordinary show with bored eyes. Perhaps after a while that girl with hair like green straw would be crying in her cup and that ugly man with her would flourish a knife—as Brent's edition would have it.

THE music had begun. Loudly, brassily and insistently, but the tune was familiar. Nothing daring or sinister in that!
"It's a dumb sort of place,"

who had sauntered by their table.
The new man was young and very handsome, Molly marked.
His dark hair grew nicely on a poetic kind of head. He was evidently a person of importance, judging by the interest of the group. All three looked pleased and excited. The proprietor was standing deferentially, talking in a low tone, while the young man regarded him coolly, almost with disdaint, Molly decided. Once he smiled, and she saw a flash of white teeth. And once he turned, and his eyes met hers steadily for a moment.

She flushed a little. There were lots of staring people in this place.
And she was quite as mannerly 4, looking at others around her as though they were a new species.

A SIGNIFICANT conversation was taking place between the dark-haired young man and the others at his table.

"What's the reason for getting me into these clothes the minute I get to town?" the young man asked in a low, level tone.

"The same reason that brought you to town, that paid your train fare from Chicago, Nelse." Thornton Black, who was known as "Nelse" to a small group of "special friends," spoke quietly.

"Cut the preliminaries. What wedding reception am I to crash tonight?"

"You're wrong this time . . . you start your job right here. What do you think, Nelse, the girl walked in tonight! Looks like everything is playing into our hands. You could have knocked me over with a feather when she came through that door. You see, Nelse, you're graduating from petty jewel robbery."

The young man took out a cigar-ret and lit it coolly. "You're not talking to me, Steve. The word kidnaping isn't in my vocabulary, but G-Man is."

"Got a white liver, Nelse? Well, we've a cure for that. It's pretty strong medicine and you might have to spend a stretch inside some big house after you take it."

Nelson Ferguson's eyes narrowed. "Somebody else might be keeping me company."

"Here, here!" put in one of the trio, a fat little man with an oily voice. "Is that any way for friends to talk? Nelse wants to be urged. He doesn't know what a big piece of pie he'll draw for his share. Only right, too, when he'll be taking the biggest risk.
You could never make me believe Nelse would scare."

"Not scared," Nelse said slowly.
"But this is a right pleasant planet I'm living on. A lot of the boys have left it recently."

"These boys didn't have your brains," Bill Patrick put in. "Tell me which one of your absent friends could have engineered that Dawson deal except you and pulled three straight bank jobs without leaving a clue. Or made take notice for nothing. You've got to hand it to yourself. Those boys weren't as smart as you.
That's why we're sent for you.
That's why we're willing to take a small slice if you pull the job."

"What job?" Nelse sat down.
"Know who that girl is?" I pointed out to you?" Black asked.

"No."
"They call her the Golden Girl."

"The man she had mentally dubbed "the proprietor" was speaking now with a newcomer,

Chimpanzee Put Nearest To Man

CHICAGO.—Man and the African chimpanzee had a common ancestor either an ape-man or an anthropoid, according to the theory of Han Weintert, German anthropologist, as explained by the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Weintert's "anthropopithecus theory," the Journal reported, holds that the chimpanzee has characteristics which place him nearer to man than to other anthropoid apes.

Weintert was quoted as summarizing his theory this way:

"There remains extant today an animal species that possesses several inherited characters in common, not with other animals but with our own human kind. This species is the African chimpanzee. This is not saying that we are descended from chimpanzees but it does mean that there once was an ape-man species the descendants of which still exist today in the chimpanzee and in the man, while other existing species of anthropoid apes become differentiated from this immediate type at an earlier date and hence fail to exhibit today the chimpanzee-human characters."

Whether this root was one of anthropoid apes or a race of apemen has not been determined, the correspondent explained. The chimpanzee, gorilla and orang-utan all figure prominently in evolution theories, it was explained. One of these three, recent investigations place the orang-utan closest to the lower apes. The chimpanzee and gorilla were paired with man as a class of summoprimates, the most highly developed primates. In this group the chimpanzee passed the gorilla in evidence of human kinship.

Florida Reaps Citrus Profits

TAMPA, Fla.—With the last carload of fruit of the 1935-1936 crop shipped out of the state, Florida citrus growers have computed their profits and find that they are approximately $25,000,000 richer than they were when the season opened. The citrus exchange here estimated the value of the total crop at $65,000,000 and charged off an estimated $40,000,000 for picking, packing and shipping. The remaining $25,000,000 net, they reported, is an unusually high profit for a staple crop in days of unsettled market conditions.

They reported a gross increase of $4,436,000 in the year's orange crop, which in volume was no larger than the 1934-1935 crop. Prices, however, averaged 41 cents a box higher than the previous year with an average auction value of $2.97. The grapefruit crop was worth $406,665 more this year than last year.

Proportionately, the largest increase was in the value of the tangerine crop. This year's shipments were worth $5,009,000, or $1,036,000 more than last year. The total increase in value of all citrus crops was $7,879,000.

Convict Looks On Crime Crusade Role

HUNTSVILLE.—C. Edgar Eskridge, 45, is convict No. 82677 to-day—last year he was pastor of the First Baptist Church at Orange, Texas.

The big, gun-toting minister who thundered from the pulpit last year that "crime does not pay" is serving a five-year sentence in the Texas State Prison for the shotgun-slaying of Police Chief O'Reilly of Orange.

Eskridge hopes to be assigned a job in the prison library because he had studied that work in college. "Whatever they give me I'll be a model prisoner," he said.

Eskridge said he wanted to forget his trial—but one phase of the testimony worried him. He did not want people to think he shot the officer in the back of the head. "He was standing there talking to another man when I slowed my car," the crusading minister said. "He was looking right at me. His hands were at his side then and he froze. I had to get my shotgun out through a window. He reached for his gun and his head turned just a little before I shot. I saw him fall. It looked like his hand froze to his gun."

TULARE, Cal.—Mrs. Marcy Thompson is not quite sure whether her pet Persian cat saved her life or whether she saved the cat's life. When the cat saw a six-inch centipede creeping up on its mistress, it hissed, then dived under the stove. Mrs. Thompson seized a broom and killed the centipede.

SAINT JOHN, N. B.—Fall of a huge meteor into the Atlantic Ocean near Harbor de Late, Campobello Island, was reported here by Alonzo Conley, Deer Island lighthouse-keeper. Alonzo said the meteor fell into 20 or 40 feet of water and "steamed and hissed like a cauldron of boiling water."

Patsy Kelly Helps Young Art Aspirant

Comedienne Featured In "Private Number" Aids Artist

As a patron of the arts, Patsy Kelly is proving to be a good samaritan to a struggling Hollywood artist.

The artist is Eva K. Potts whose work in pastels never reached an audience nor found a customer until chance and Patsy Kelly turned the tide.

Roy Potts, husband of the artist, happened to be a sound man on the production of "Private Number," the new Fox hit now at the Connellee Theatre with Robert Taylor and Loretta Young.

Knowing that the still man on the production Clarence Hewitt would be interested in such things Roy brought four of his wife's pastel drawings to show him.

Looking over their shoulders, Patsy became so interested in the drawings that she immediately bought all four of them, and within the next hour had arranged for art galleries in two prominent Los Angeles stores to exhibit the woman's work and handle the sales.

All of this was arranged before Roy Potts drove furiously home during his lunch hour to break the good news to his wife.

"Private Number" is a gay, romantic triumph, with youthful love-making and gay dialogue alternating with vivid drama and hilarious comedy. Taylor and Miss Young are co-starred in the leading roles, with the supporting cast including Basil Rathbone and Marjorie Gateson, as well as Miss Kelly.

Roy Del Ruth directed the picture with Raymond Griffith as associate producer. Gene Markey and William Conselman authored the screen story, based on a play by Cleves Kinkaid.

Glider Flight Planned

PASADENA, Cal.—A glider flight at an altitude of 15,000 feet from the summit of Mount Wilson is planned by John Batterson, a member of the team who with their glider, "Miss Pasadena," established a world's altitude record of 5,979 feet at the recent national glider competition at Elmira, N. Y.

Batterson is confident that the proposed altitude can be reached with his ship. Eastern gliders, he says, have an entirely different technique from that used in the West, and now that he is master of this he is confident he can exceed anything ever before accomplished.

Heretofore, Batterson explains, California gliders have relied only on the slope currents sweeping up a hill to lift them upward.

In the East, he found that gliders use the air currents in billowy white cloud banks, making possible a means of gliding called thermo flying.

Caught in one of the banks of cumulus clouds at Elmira, Batterson says he shot upward at the rate of 500 feet a minute and was obliged to point his glider nose downward in order to shoot out of the cloud.

In his coming test to attain a 15,000 foot altitude, he proposes to make use on purpose of these cumulus cloud banks. By launching his glider from the summit of Mount Wilson Batterson is confident that he can at once take advantage of the strong air and cloud currents there to get almost immediately into the banks of cumulus clouds, and after that he declares that the ceiling — of the cumulus clouds — will be the only limit.

Flight Around The World In Two Days Thought Possible

JOHANNESBURG.—Predictions that it would be possible for an airplane to fly from Croydon to Cape Town in one day at a speed of 500 miles an hour, and to go around the world in two days were made by Selig Brodetsky, professor of applied mathematics at Leeds University, England, in an address at Rand University here.

Brodetsky, an authority on aeronautics, said proper organization and night flying would be essential to a flight around the world in two days. He alluded to the possibility of following the sun so as to have permanent day in certain latitudes.

In the future, he said, it would be possible to fly from England to the Cape in a day at 500 miles an hour. This prediction was not as foolish as it might seem, he added. A speed of 400 miles an hour had been reached in the Schneider Cup race, he pointed out. The obstacle in the way of increasing airplane speeds indefinitely, he said, was that the span of the wings had to remain finite. The greatest speed it seemed possible to achieve, unless something fundamental were changed, something about 500 miles an hour.
