Builds 55-Foot Silo for Storage

W. L. Connell, who lives one and one-half miles northwest of Olden, states: "I have stacked and seen bundle feed stacked for several years, but it never occurred to me just how much feed was lost in the stacks in Texas each year, which could have been saved by putting it in a trench silo."

Mr. Connell recently attended a trench silo demonstration in Eastland, sponsored by the Eastland Chamber of Commerce.

He has recently finished constructing a six and one half ton trench silo on his farm.

Mr. Connell filled 20 feet of his silo last week with red top cane and will fill the other 35 feet with hegaria, as soon as it has reached maturity and is ready to be placed in the silo.

THOMPSON'S COLLEAGUE OF TEXARKANA VOICES PRAISE FOR ABILENIAN SATURDAY

Blanton's "courageous fights" in congress to remedy a situation where citizens of the United States paid a majority of the taxes of the District of Columbia also brought praise from Patman.

Patman compared the District of Columbia and pointed out a supposition parallel case: Eastland would secure from the county money for the majority of the taxes because considerable property would be located in the city.

As chairman of the appropriation committee for the district, Patman said, Blanton had reduced the annual disbursement from the U. S. from $20,000,000 to less than $3,000,000.

FOREIGNERS IN SPANISH MINE ARE RELEASED

GIBRALTAR, Aug. 15.—The rebel radio station at Seville announced today that most of the foreigners held captive at the Rio Pinto mines in Huelva province, had reached the city of Huelva safely.

J. O. Ambler, San Antonio, has been held captive in the mines. Whether he has been freed, was not learned.

Rebels of the Spanish Foreign Legion were fighting their way through the frontier town of Badajoz today. It was indicated that loyalists faced extermination.

Refugees from Badajoz continued to cross the frontier seeking haven and to relate stories of terrible slaughter.

Monks and nuns of the Roman Catholic Church are being hunted in some areas and priests are shot whenever they are found.

MADRID.—Asturias miners have entered the outskirts of Oviedo and are dismantling their way from house to house into the center of the city against desperate rebel resistance.

Government leaders expect a long fight without quarter. Fixed explosive men of the loyalists are leading the assault. They are carrying sticks of dynamite in their belts, lighting fuses from cigars and throwing them into the houses ahead.

E. O. Thompson To Talk August 19 In Eastland

Ernest O. Thompson, candidate for re-election as a state railroad commissioner will speak Wednesday night, Aug. 19, at 8 o'clock on the south side of the courthouse square at Eastland.

The North Texas Oil and Gas Association district embraces Eastland county. C. W. Hoffmann of Eastland is a past president of the association.

Thompson is also supported by the Independent Oil Operators of Eastland County.

A statement from the Eastland county operators stated Thursday, in substance, that the election of Thompson's opponent would be injurious to the interest of independent oil operators of the county and state.

Thompson has pledged continued vigor in enforcing the oil conservation laws of the state and in keeping the flow of hot oil stopped.

Thompson, a former mayor of Amarillo, has pointed out in speeches that during his term oil conservation laws have been strictly enforced and as a result the oil business is the most stable basis in years, has increased employment and has brought many more millions of dollars to the school funds of the common schools and the University of Texas and A. & M. College.

In the July 22 election Thompson's opponent had 17 per cent of the vote while he only needed one per cent of the total for a complete majority.

DROUGHT AREA TRIP STARTED BY COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, August 14.—The President's great plains drought committee started out today in the role of physician to diagnose the ill and prescribe a cure for the drought-stricken middle west.

They left by train, but planned to meet a Texas caravan, which will take them over "back roads" through the sunburned area.

They expect to talk to farmers, get dust in their nostrils, and rub shoulders with America's greatest drought.

Their route lies through the heart of the so-called "dust bowl"—3000 miles through Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Nebraska and North and South Dakota.

At the end of their trip, about August 23, they will meet President Roosevelt and Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace, to report their findings.

The committee's task is to map out long-term policies designed to prevent a repetition of the present emergency.

BRITISH AND U. S. BOATS IN MINOR FORAY

HENDAYE, French-Spanish Frontier, Aug. 15.—The U. S. Coast Guard cutter, Gayoga, and the British destroyer Comet, trained their guns on the Spanish rebel cruiser Al Mirante Corvera, when it threatened to fire on them as they embarked refugees.

The rebel ship retreated. The cruiser was in the Gulf of Gascony. It approached the Cayuga and the Comet, its eight six-inch guns trained on them, as the American cutter and the British destroyer were embarking neutral refugees at San Sebastian.

"We will open fire on you if you help government adherents to escape among the refugees," "Thank you," replied the Cayuga, training its one five-inch gun and its two pounders on the cruiser. The Comets four guns also trained on the cruiser.

The rebel ship steamed out of the harbor.

Most of the dead were left where they lay.

FOUR KILLED BY GAS FUMES NEAR ODESSA

ODESSA—Four men were killed today when they were overcome by gas fumes in an oil well near Odessa.

The dead were Eertis Magness; Jack Hall, Granville Torbert and D. D. Striplin.

One of the men had gone into a cellar at the well-head, 17 miles southeast of Odessa, during an operation of acidizing the well. He remained so long one of his companions went after him. Both were overcome by gas fumes. The other two then attempted rescue, but also were overcome.

Striplin was manager of an acid company at Breckenridge and the other three men were employed by the concern.

The bodies of Magness, former Breckenridge High School and Rice Institute football player, and Hall were sent to Breckenridge, as will be the body of Torbert.

Striplin's body will be shipped to Hamilton for burial.

Deputy To Return Prisoner To County

Deputy Sheriff Ray Hardwick left Saturday for Lovington, New Mexico, to return A. J. Clements, wanted to answer an Eastland county burglary and theft charge. A requisition was secured last week from Governor James V. Allred.

Mr. Blanton read many items from the big Washington news papers in which all of them had declared they were going to get Blanton because he had cut the appropriations of the City of Washington to the bone. He showed pictures of Garrett on the Capitol and asked him to show that he was not a paid hireling of the big papers and the holding companies.

Blanton said when the utility bill or holding company matter came up for a vote on the floor of the House that he received 400 telegrams in one day from people in his district urging him not to vote for the bill but to vote against it. But he said that he voted for the bill and the only reason it did not pass was because some of the congressmen became scared and were afraid they would not be re-elected because as the big papers had said they were going to defeat every man who voted for the bill. Mr. Blanton said he voted for the bill and would do the same thing again when the bill was brought up in January.

ROOSEVELT IS FOR A UNITED PEACE EFFORT

CHATAUQUA, N. Y.—Through the foreign offices and the chancellery of the world rang today President Roosevelt's forceful preaching against war and a pledge to isolate this country from all war dangers.

In a major pronouncement of American policy, the president told a crowd of several thousand that he had been bitterly dissatisfied in the hope the whole world could be led in the ways of peace.

He portrayed his grave concern with world conditions. "A godly portion" of his every 24 hours he said, was devoted to a story of foreign relations.

"We believe in democracy" he cried at the end. "We believe in freedom and we believe in peace. And so we offer to every nation of the world the handclasp of a neighbor. Let those who wish our friendship look us in the eye and take our hand."

Some observers saw significance in four words appended to the pledge that this country was ready to defend herself. The words were a pledge to defend not the United States alone but to "defend our neighborhood."

Mr. Roosevelt made four specific points in a program to maintain American neutrality and peace in the world of war and threatening war. These points were:

- 1. Insistence that American business, industry and agriculture, forewarn profits from foreign countries.
- 2. Cultivation of an active and vigorous public opinion in favor of peace.
- 3. Greater official caution to avoid any steps or action which might lead toward involvement of the United States in war.
- 4. Extension and development of the "good neighbor" policy in the western hemisphere, seeking to weld north and south America into an area comprising half the world, in which peace will always reign.

Average Motor Vehicle Taxed $49 During Past Year

The average motor vehicle operator in the United States last year paid special automotive taxes aggregating $49.06, or 24 1-2 per cent on the value of his $200 car, figures compiled by the American Petroleum Industries Committee from official sources show.

The amount paid was approximately one dollar per vehicle more than the average tax paid in 1934, the year before.

Gasoline taxes again constituted the largest item in the automotive tax budget, the average motor vehicle operator paying $36.10 through federal and state levies on motor fuel. Of this total, $23.53 on an average was paid to the state and $6.57 to the federal government.

Registration fees, drivers' licenses and similar fees amounted to $12.31, while federal excise taxes on lubricating oil, new automobiles and trucks, tires and tubes, parts and accessories, amounted to $3.85 more.

Although no accurate statistics are available on the amounts paid by motorists in personal property taxes and local levies of various kinds, the Committee estimated that they cost motorists $73,500,000, or $2.80 each.

Race Question Injests Self Into Olympics

The man who said that international athletic competition and harmony among the nations must have been entirely ignorant of the things that happen at the Olympic Games.

Judging them strictly on form, these games would seem to be about as fertile a source of international dislike as anything that man's inventive brain has yet devised.

The all-time high water mark seems to have been reached in Berlin. Herr Hitler, flanked by his official muscle men, beams down from his box, prepared to extend the right hand of good fellowship to the winners — and right away the show is stolen by a young American colored boy named Jesse Owens, ably seconded by other America colored boys named Metcalfe, Woodruff, Johnson, Albritton, Williams, LaVelle and Robinson.

At this point high comedy enters. Herr Hitler owes his career to the thesis that blond Nordics are, ipso facto, superior to all other breeds. But he hardly gets his chair warm before it is clearly proved that there isn't a blond Nordic on earth who can give the completely non-Nordic Mr. Owens a real race.

Thus Jesse Owens puts the dictator of Germany on the spot. The dictator departs hastily, the world treats itself to a chuckle at his expense and the most sensationally athlete of the Olympics turns out to be the very one who can't receive the personal congratulations of Der Fuehrer.

Yes it is all pretty ridiculous. But we Americans might do a little bit of thinking before we laugh too hastily. After all, we are hardly in the best of all possible positions for pointing the finger of scorn at anyone who gives way to race prejudice.

The race problem is a knotty one, and it probably will have to work itself out over many generations. Getting sentimental over the athletic prowess of Jesse Owens isn't going to show us how white and black men can live in eternal amity.

Bpt it might at least remind us that the problem is there to be solved. And we'll be in a better mood to try to solve it if we give our whole-hearted acclaim to the young Negroes who put the Stars and Stripes at the top of the Olympic flagpole.

Steel Is Poor Setting For Tense Drama

The great steel industry may be able to avoid that much-called strike if some of the breathless commentators who go down to report on it can just restrain their enthusiasm for drama.

The steel situation is tense, of course, and it may well get more so. Trying to bind 400,000 workers into a militant union over the decided objection of the employers is bound to involve a good deal of risk.

But the situation isn't helped any by the efforts which some observers make to see more tension that is actually there. Instead of giving a factual, analytical account of the great organizational drive, they make the situation look more like a stage-setting for the invasion of Belgium or the Sicilian vespers. "Scare" story reports of this kind make you smell trouble in the air, and give you the impression that the next act will see battle and bloodshed.

It is precisely this sort of thing that makes it hard for the industry to get through the present tension peacefully. It creates the wrong atmosphere. It makes everyone expect a strike; by taking trouble for granted, it makes trouble more likely to occur.

When the commentator remembers that he is paid to provide facts and not to show what a keen eye he has for drama, you get the sort of thing that the situation really needs.

For example: Willis Thornton recently made an extended tour of the steel district. He reported that the union organizers decidedly do not want a strike; that the steel magnates are not adopting a "Scram, you lugs!" attitude, but are sensibly waiting to see what happens; that the workers are enjoying steady employment and are carefully weighing the advantages and disadvantages of unionization, before committing themselves; and that, all in all, the odds are clearly against trouble in the near future.

If we all could see it like that, the air would be a good deal clearer. We might as well realize that this steel thing is not a dramatic spectacle arranged for our excitement, but a delicate industrial situation in which both sides — although they may later make mistakes, become rash and defiant or stumble into avoidable trouble — are behaving pretty coolly and unemotionally.

After lying behind barricades, the modern caballero is surrounded with his Spanish catarrh.

The little dog who laughed to see such fun when the new jumped over the moon can have a picnic now, should anyone rig up a short circuit in the electric milker.

Q. Why did the city of Houston decide not to hold its celebration depicting the Battle of San Jacinto this year? S. A., Kyle. A. It wished to avoid all possibility of giving offense to Mexico or Mexican citizens, the relations between that country and Texas now being most cordial. Centennial authorities have emphasized the fact that Texas is celebrating a century of independent progress and not a victory in battle.

Q. How may a county go about establishing a county library in Texas? R. D., Sinton. A. County libraries may be established by commissioners' courts either on their own initiative or on petition of a majority of the county's voters. A sum not to exceed 5 cents on the $100.00 property valuation may be voted for that purpose. For assistance in getting county libraries, address the State Library, Austin.

Life of the Saint Of the Day

By REV. S. E. BYRNE

St. Hyacinth, the apostle of Poland and Russia, was born of noble parents in Poland about the year 1185. In the year 1218 he accompanied his uncle, the Bishop of Cracow, to Rome. There he met St. Dominic, and received the habit of the Friar Preachers from the patriarch himself, of whom he became a living copy.

So wonderful was his progress in virtue that within a year Dominic sent him to preach and establish the Order in Poland, where he founded two houses. His apostolic journeys extended over numerous regions, Austria, Bohemia, Livonia, the shores of the Black Sea, Tartary, and Sweden and Norway to the west, were evangelized by him, and he is said to have visited in Scotland. Everywhere multitudes were converted, churches and convents were built; one hundred and twenty thousand pagans and infidels were baptized by his hands. He worked numerous miracles, and at Cracow raised a dead youth to life. He had inherited from St. Dominic most filial confidence in the Mother of God; to her he ascribed his success, and to her aid he looked for his salvation.

On the eve of the Assumption he was warned of his coming death. In spite of a wasting fever, he celebrated Mass on the feast, and communicated as a dying man. He was announced at the foot of the altar, and died the same day, 1257.

Sweetwater Sees Big Cotton Crop

By United Press

SWEETWATER Tex.—Harvest of a bumper cotton crop is expected to begin in this area by the middle of the month.

Hot weather which helped insure the crop points the way to a near-record yield in late August in Nolan, Fisher, Runnels, and other West Texas counties. Farmers and county agents declare physical factors stand in the way of a successful cotton year.

Harvest season and a late start of insects. In Nolan county, farmers cotton planted in the better conditions expect a bale-to-the-yield. Drought in other parts of the nation also will mean profit for small grain farmers. Progress is in good yields in maize and row crops have caused farmers to proclaim 1936 as the best around year since 1926. Reynold grain stored last year is barked at the present high prices.

American Family Changing For Better

By United Press

NEW ORLEANS—The family unit is changing from a domestic unit to an individualistic group, Dr. Harold D. Meyer, regional director for the Community League organization for Leisure of the Works Progress Administration, told members of a recreation planning conference here.

"Various factors in modern civilization are making each mere unit of the family guide his own responsibilities," Dr. Meyer August 14, and this evolution is for the family. "Today, although the family unit, it is composed of individuals. Children are responsible not only to their parents, but the whole community. The parents, in turn, are responsible for the sovereignty of the state."

You Can't Advertise Today and Quit Tomorrow

You're Not Talking to a Mass Meeting . . . You're Talking to a Parade . . . !

BRUCE BARTON

Ceaseless hammering on the same spot helps win prize fights . . . it is the essence of advertising success. Not until enough individuals in the same neighborhood have been sufficiently saturated with a certain slogan, say, to cause them to react on one another does advertising become a social phenomenon.

The modern business man realizes that his best customers wear out at a rate of nearly 3 per cent a year. Advertising-made prospects disappear far faster. Casual impressions, however favorable, dry like dew in the heat of competition.

"Cumulative" effects of advertising come not from one advertisement paving the way for another. This is negligible, to say the least. Cumulative effect, on the contrary, comes from salvaging as customers half-finished prospects.

Each advertiser is in much the same plight. If he quits successful, he loses money. If he quits unsuccessful, he tosses away an equity in public recognition far more valuable than the money: So many thousand partly manufactured customers. The second group are spending as little money as they can and still keep their names before the public. They believe themselves wise spenders because they spend so very cautiously—or perhaps reluctantly is a better word . . . THE BALD TRUTH IS THAT THESE RELUCTANT SPENDERS ARE, AS A CLASS, THE REAL OVER-SPENDERS IN ADVERTISING!

A Selfish Spirit Stirs The Rabble-Rouser

The term "rabble-rouser" isn't supposed to be a compliment. But when the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith addressed a National Press Club luncheon in Washington the other day he admitted the epithet had been applied to him—and he gloried in it.

Mr. Smith explained himself like this. "Oh, I know," he said. "If you say 'the flag' you are a rabble-rouser. The very first reference to the Stars and Stripes makes you a rabble-rouser.

"And never refer to the Bible. That makes you a demagog, and a rabble-rouser. Never reach down where people pray. Never reach down where people are sincere. Stay out where people are smart, drunk, and sophisticated. Stay with them. Then you are somebody."

Mr. Smith makes an eloquent plea and makes demagog sound like a high and holy thing. The only trouble is that he forgets that the spirit in which you do a thing can be a good deal more important than the thing you do.

Getting down and appealing to the sincere and humble emotions by which people live is not solely a trick of the demagog. Lincoln was a past master at it.

The American Revolution was fought largely because such men as Patrick Henry and Samuel Adams had the same knack. Bryan could do it, and so could Theodore Roosevelt, and both men occupy honored places in our history.

The thing that stamps a man as a rabble-rouser and a demagog is the fact that he appeals to those profound and magnificent emotions for his own ends. He does not really care whether the high aspirations which are evoked by his appeal to those emotions are fulfilled or not; he has an ax to grind, and his appeal to those emotions is just his way of getting someone to turn the grindstone for him.

The tragic thing about the demagog's work is the fact that he arouses a force which could move mountains, and then turns it to his own selfish ends.

For the human race, mean and weak and confused as it often is, nevertheless is capable of magnificent things. It has the power and the heroism and the self-sacrifice to work miracles... the faith that can move mountains... if only the right appeal be made. The force is there, waiting to be put to work.

Now and again a man arises who can unleash that power, who can demand that men live up to the best there is in them—and when he does, the wheel of history makes another turn. But it is not a game to be played lightly.

A selfish man can unleash the same power only to debas it, can rouse men to the pitch where they can transcend themselves—only to lead them into some swamp such as Hitler has created in Germany.

It is not words that make the demagog. It is the motive back of the words—the soul of the man who utters them.

Mr. Smith is deeply mistaken if he thinks that any intelligent man objects to an appeal to the emotions of the mass. The objection is to the use which is made of those emotions once they are fully stirred.

DOGGIEST DOG

Now don't you envy those doggy people who get listed in the social register? There, in big type, on page 288, is listed Miss Rose, junior member of the George L. K. Morris family of New York and Lennox, Mass. But alas, society will never be invited to attend her debut, for Miss Rose is only the bright-eyed Pekingese pictured with Mrs. Morris, whose sense of humor burst the bubble of social exclusiveness. And horrors! Rose doesn't have even a pedigree.

In this column answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. As evidence of good faith inquirers must give their names and addresses, but only their initials will be printed. Address inquiries to Will H. Mayes, Austin, Texas.

Life of the Saint Of the Day

By REV. S. E. BYRNE

Seven monks, named Liberatus, Boniface, Servus, Rusticus, Rogatus, Septimus, and Maximus, who lived in a monastery near Capsa, in the province of Byzacena, were summoned to Carthage by Huneric, the Arian Vandal king in Africa, in the seventh year of his reign. They were first treated kindly and were tempted with great promises, but as they remained constant in the belief of the Trinity, and of one Baptism, they were loaded with irons and thrown into a dark dungeon. Some of the faithful being friends of the guards, visited the Saints day and night, to be instructed by them and mutually to encourage one another to suffer for the faith of Christ. The king, learning this, commanded them to be more closely confined, loaded with heavier irons, and tortured with a cruelty never heard of till that time. Soon after, he condemned them to be put into an old ship and burnt at sea. The martyrs walked cheerfully to the shore, unmindful of the insults of the Arians as they passed along. Particular offers were promised Maximus, who was the youngest; but God, who makes the tongues of children eloquent to praise His name, gave him strength to withstand all their efforts, and he boldly told them that they would never be able to separate him from his holy abbot and brethren, with whom he had borne the labors of a penitential life for the sake of everlasting glory. An old vessel was filled with dry sticks, and the seven martyrs were put on board and bound on the wood; and fire was put to it several times, but it went out immediately, and all endeavors to kindle it were in vain. The tyrant, in rage and confusion, gave orders that the martyr's brains should be dashed out with oars, which was done, and their bodies cast into the sea. They suffered in the year 483.

OLLY MILFORD, rich and handsome, has received proposals from three suitors. BRENT STUART, whom she has not asked her to marry...

GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER IV
newspaper front pages were filled with details of a bank robbery. Molly read them, but the headlines, she was sure, were going to be a dreadfully...

Molly made up her mind. She answered a telephone call indifferently. Then her eyes leaped at the sound of a strange voice. Almost sure, for there was something familiar about that voice.

"Interesting stranger," she said. "Hello, Molly Milford." "Hello, Sam Smith." "That isn't my real name. It's Nelson. My friends call me Nelson. Won't you call me a friend?" Molly asked.

The blue-eyed stranger did not see the rush of color to Molly's cheeks. "I thought you might be Sam I. I was wondering if you had dinner with me. But pose that's impossible." "Impossible," Molly spoke in a firm tone.

Why should I be? "I thought you might be Sam I. I was wondering if you had dinner with me. But pose that's impossible." "Impossible," Molly spoke in a firm tone.

the things that couldn't happen—yet it had. Talking with this girl with the golden-brown hair was almost like talking to herself. But vastly different, too. Because unless terrible and cruel things had happened to you, your voice could never sound so cold, so hopeless, as this girl's did.

Molly studied the other girl. The same slender nose, slightly tipped. The same shade of hair, the same eyes, the same contour of face. They were about the same size, too. A difference of two or three pounds, at the most. "Well," Molly said shakily, "I guess I've met my double. They say everyone has one."

MOVED by a sudden impulse, half compassion and some other feeling she didn't stop to analyze, Molly said: "I'd like to change clothes with you. I'd as soon be wearing yours as mine."

"Oh yeah?" "Please believe me. I'm in earnest. I want to change with you."

The girl's laugh rang harshly. "Tell that to someone who hasn't cut her wisdom teeth yet. Besides," she added, "I won't need clothes much where I'm going."

"You're going away?" "Yes." "Then please take these with you—there's some place where we could change? We must hurry because I'm meeting a friend here at 6."

"You haven't much time," the other girl replied. "All right. Anything to oblige. If you're planning to give the boy friend the shock of his life, I'll accommodate you. It will be a kind of shock to some friends of mine, too. I guess we can make it before the store closes. With everybody putting away stock, the rest room will be empty."

A few minutes later Molly stared at herself. Yes, clothes made all the difference. In the cheap, bright green crepe and the cheap hat with a green feather at the side she looked exactly as the other girl had a moment before.

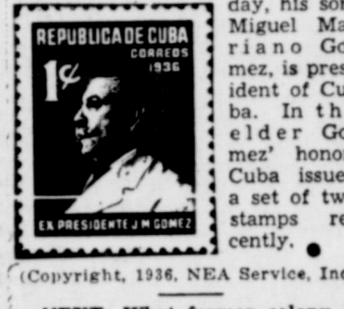

The shoes were a trifle loose, but not enough to matter greatly. The other girl opened her purse and took out a handkerchief and a small package, then handed her purse to Molly. She was smiling queerly.

Thompson Leads Morris In All But 12 Counties

The map above shows the positions of Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the state railroad commission, and Frank S. Morris, second man in the first primary vote in the road commission race in July. Last figures on the race showed that Thompson had led Morris 288-130 votes and had almost carried the election by a majority over all of his opponents.

Despite the overwhelming lead of his opponent, Morris is making a campaign in the run-off primary. The shaded area shows the counties in which Thompson led Morris. The white ones were the only ones in which Morris ran ahead of the forceful railroad commission chairman. In the white counties, Morris' lead was only 9,686.

Mr. Higginbotham states, "I do not have any feed stuff to put in my silo, and I believe that even though I am going to fill my silo with weeds, that it will feel much better in my cows' stomachs this winter, than the cold North wind."

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson and family, of Crowley, and Mrs. J. A. Patterson, of Lott, Texas, were visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Patterson Friday. Mrs. Johnson is a sister and Mrs. Patterson is the mother of Mrs. Johnson.

The Johnson family had been attending the Centennial at Dallas and Fort Worth and had gone to Lott to visit her mother and to take her home with them. After leaving here, they were to stop at Eastland and visit Mr. and Mrs. Guy Patterson.

In our notice last week of the visit to Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Davis of her brother, F. E. Cotton and wife, of Corinth, Mississippi, we stated they had visited the Dallas and Fort Worth Centennials but we were in error, as they had come straight here and were to visit the Centennials on their return. They left Tuesday afternoon of last week. Mrs. Davis and her daughter, Mrs. Aaron Hensle, took them to Comanche, where they took the bus to Coleman and then by train to Dallas and Fort Worth.

Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Davis of Valley Mills spent the week-end here with their daughter, Mrs. Hugh Abel, and family.

Mrs. Dick Cutting of Cisco visited her grand-mother, Mrs. Clara Beamer, and her aunt, Mrs. Charles Lee, and also Mrs. C. W. Malthy on Monday. She was accompanied by her mother-in-law, Mrs. C. Cutting, of Henderson. People of Desdemona feel that the Cuttings still belong here and are always glad to have them visit here.

W. C. Bedford returned Friday evening from Lubbock and other West Texas towns, where he had gone on business with O. P. Newberry of Gorman. When near Snyder, they stopped a short time for Mr. Bedford to see Mr. and Mrs. Asa Morton, whom he had known all their lives. He was sorry to find Mr. Morton disabled on account of a broken shoulder. Mrs. Morton had been reared by Mr. Bedford's father and step-mother, an aunt of Mrs. Morton. They have lived near Snyder for 30 years.

Jay Malthy spent the week-end here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Malthy. He makes his home at Mount Vernon and works in the Talco Oil field. He hadn't been home for 7 months.

Mrs. Horace Usery and her daughter left Wednesday for her home at Fresno, California, after a short visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Whitworth. Other relatives of the Whitworths during last, one or two days, were Mrs. C. C. Evans, mother of Mrs. Whitworth, and younger sisters and also a brother, Brad Evans of Fort Worth. Rev. and Mrs. Bob Butler were also with them part of the time, though they were guests of the members of the Methodist church for the noon and evening meals during the two weeks revival meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Glazener and little daughter visited Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Bruce, on Friday and Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Glazener were among our most popular teachers for a number of years before they moved to Dallas, where they have lived ever since. Their many friends and former pupils are always delighted to see them when they visit here.

The Methodist Missionary Society met at the church Monday afternoon for the regular Bible Study lesson from the book "Teart Messages from the Psalms." The study Superintendent, Mrs. W. H. Whitworth, had asked the pastor, Rev. E. M. Daily, to conduct the lesson on the 23rd Psalm and he did so in a very interesting and instructive way. Those present were: Miss Mollie O'Rreear, Meses. S. E. Snodgrass, Charles Lee, G. S. Bruce, W. H. Whitworth, E. M. Daily, and W. C. Bedford.

Road Conferences To Meet In Fall

WASHINGTON — Representatives of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, state highway departments, road contractors, chemists and engineers will attend two conferences to be held in September and October.

The fifth annual National Road Oil and Asphalt Congress will be held at Tulsa, Oklahoma, on October 8 and 9, while the Second Annual Montana Bituminous Conference will convene at Many Glacier Hotel, Glacier National Park, a month earlier, September 8, 9, and 10. Delegates to the Tulsa Congress will come from all parts of the country, while the Montana conference will attract engineers and oil men from all states west of the Mississippi.

The Tulsa congress, under the direction of Emby Kaye of the Skelly Oil Company, will feature new road building machinery and other developments fostering construction economies. At the Montana conference emphasis will be on: (1) Developments and Fundamentals of Successful Bituminous Practice; (2) Developments in Practical Design and Construction of Bituminous Surfaces; and (3) Maintenance of Bituminous Surfaces.

The far reaching importance of these meetings to motorist taxpayers and to the petroleum industry is seen in recent developments in bituminous paving, which indicate that substantial savings in road costs may be made through use of low cost materials, thereby permitting substantial reductions in motor vehicle taxation.

Highway experts now believe that the construction of excessively high cost highways and the failure to take advantage of the possibilities for more economical highway construction through use of low-cost materials have been responsible for the present tax burden borne by motorists.

Lee Aguirre was in Fort Worth on business Wednesday.

Miss Opal Hodgkins left Friday for New Mexico where she will spend her vacation.
